A pair of two-run homers by Jim Tabor and another by Ted Williams accounted for all of Boston's runs and a 6-4 triumph in first game as Tex Hughson limited the Yankees to seven hits for his 16th pitching victory and his tenth in a row.

Charlie Keller, who hit his 20th home run in the opener, smashed No. 21 with the score tied in the break up a pitching duel between Ernie Bonham and Joe Dobson and give New York a 2-1 decision. The blow carried Bonham to his sixth straight win and his 15th of the year.

Roger Wolff blanked Washington on nine hits as the Athletics pounded three hurlers for a dozen blows, three of them by Dick Siebert.

In the National League Pennant chase, Brooklyn Dodgers crushed the Boston Braves, 11-1, but St. Louis Cardinals stayed 6 1-2 games behind by walloping Chicago Cubs, 5-1, in a night contest.

Mort Cooper distributed seven hits in beating the Cubs for the first time in three attempts this season. It was his 15th victory.

The Dodgers pounded four Boston pitchers for 19 hits, three each by Pete Reiser, Dolph Camilli and Billy Herman.

Grand Island, Neb., Aug. 20—(AP)—A woman living in a trailer house complained to C. W. Burdick, city light, water and ice commissioner: "your ice isn't nearly as good as Omaha's." "What's the matter with it?" he inquired. "I don't know unless it's because you use too much water," the woman answered.

CECIL HUGHSON PRAISES CRONIN

Boston Righthander Allowed to Take Time in Getting Into Condition

By BILL KING
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

Boston, Aug. 20 (AP)—It was only about three months ago that all the managers of the Boston Red Sox farm teams were pleading with supervisor Herb Pennock not to send them Cecil (Tex) Hughson, then regarded as hopelessly incurable pitching case.

Today that lanky, righthander is the first American League pitcher to gain 16 victories and appears assured of becoming the first 20-gamer the Sockers have had since the departed Wes Ferrell turned that trick in 1936.

Early last August, shortly after Joe Cronin, then in dire need of pitching, called up Hughson from Louisville, the latter injured his arm while gaining a 4-1 win over the St. Louis Browns in the second game of a doubleheader.

Hughson nursed his ailing flipper on his 60-acre farm in Kyle, Tex., all winter but he noted little or no improvement when it came time to report to the training camp.

"I have Joe Cronin to thank for my success," Hughson continued. "He was exceptionally patient with me and ordered me to take my time, not to worry and not attempt to start until I was certain I was ready."

Hughson decided he was ready on May 16, when he made his first 1942 start and turned in a two-hitter against the Browns. Since then he has beaten the Browns again and the Senators, White Sox, Athletics and Indians twice. Yesterday he turned in his third victory over the Yankees and he also has drubbed the Tigers thrice.

VANDERBILT MAKES GIFT

New York, Aug. 20— (AP) — A $300,000 gift by Harold S. Vanderbilt to the United States navy relief society, largest so far received from any contributor, was announced yesterday. Clarence Dillon, National Chairman of the Society, said the sum represented the entire purchase price paid Vanderbilt by the United States government for his new 117-foot motor sailor, "Vagrant," taken over by the navy last March.

I'LL SAY THE HOUSE WON'T BE THE SAME WITHOUT HER. NOW THEY CAN AFFORD TO GIVE IT A COAT OF PAINT.

Toronto, Aug. 20 (CP)—A few days ago at Connaught Park in Ottawa a little man celebrated an unusual anniversary. He sat all afternoon in an automobile near the timer's stand, watching the races, greeting old friends.

Nine years ago that day there was a bad spill at Connaught. A horse named Skirt broke her neck and a jockey named Jimmy Darou was carried, limp and quiet, to a hospital. Doctors gave him little chance of living, but Jimmy Darou came through—paralyzed from the hips down.

The little man in the car was Jimmy Darou, now a service-station operator in Montreal. Since he was released from hospital a few months after his accident he has done his travelling by automobile, train and wheel-chair. A fine column by Bill (Ottawa Journal) Westwick told of his good cheer, his lack of bitterness, as he celebrated the anniversary of an accident at which only he can laugh. His friends still shudder.

Incidentally:

Promoter Jack Price may show Ken Lindsay in Victoria soon against Art Hoff of Montreal and Regina for the Canadian featherweight title....Lindsay has fought previously as a bantam but the weight is a little light for him now ....Elmer (Montreal Herald) Ferguson quotes Wild Bill Lonfson that of his many bruises and scars, all but one came from wrestling fans, not wrestlers....Of that one, Longson imparts this shy and westful reminsence: "When I was early in the game, I wrestled that big stewbum, Man Mountain Dean. He weighed about a ton, fell on me, and broke my back. Really did fracture something in there. The doctors told me I would never wrestle again. But in a year and a half, I was back. The first fellow I met was Man Mountain Dean. I broke his leg in two places." Isn't civilization wonderful?

Winnipeg Blue Bombers' Reg Threfall, whose backfields have blocked like nothing on earth in previous seasons, is trying out a T-formation in practice these days and blocking by backfielders is ignored..Herb (Winnipeg Tribune) Manning reports right halfbacks developed almost solely for blocking under the old system are out in the cold....Nate Shore, a fine right half, will try out for end. This all looks strange in print....Can it be that the westerners are going to drop their ageless argument for increased interference? .... Very strange, indeed.

YESTERDAY'S STARS

Roger Wolff, Athletics—Shut out Senators and brought in two of his team's runs by singling, with bases loaded.

NEWARK EXTENDS INT. LOOP LEAD BY DOUBLE WIN

LEAFS IDLE

(By The Associated Press)

The spotlight that had been shining exclusively on the Newark Bears through most of the International League season, now is turning its glare on a struggle among six other International League clubs trying to earn another crack at Newark in the playoffs.

In front by thirteen and a half twenty games left to play, the games and with approximately Bruins are almost certain of finishing in the No. 1 spot.

On the other hand, only five games separate the seventh-place Baltimore Orioles from the second-place Montreal Royals. In between are Jersey City Giants, half game behind the Royals; Buffalo Bisons and Syracuse Chiefs, tied for fourth; and Toronto Maple Leafs, who trail this pair by a half game. The tail-end Rochester Red Wings are out of it, thirteen and a half games away from seventh place.

Whip Wings Twice

Newark whipped the Wings twice yesterday, 5-1 and 6-0. Joe Page allowed the Red Birds only four safeties in the first game and the only time he was in any sort of trouble Newark unreeled its second triple play of the season. After Jack Fallon singled and Mickey Burnett walked in the first inning, Dusty Cooke lined to Gene Corbett at first. Corbett tossed to second to double Fallon and the return nipped Burnett trying to get back to first.

George Washburn blanked the Little Cardinals in the second game on seven hits.

Buffalo split a doubleheader with Jersey City. After winning the opener 5-0, behind the six-hit hurling of veteran Bud Thomas, the Bisons dropped the second tilt, 4-2, to Bobby Coombs, credited with his 16th victory of the year.

Ken Trinkle allowed Montreal only five hits in a night game as Baltimore blasted the Royals, 8-1.

New York, Aug. 20 (AP) — The Berlin radio is broadcasting the glad news these days that Walter Neusel, who was knocked out by Max Schmeling, Primo Carnera and Tommy Farr, will fight Adolf Heuser, who is champeen although he was flattened by Neusel in 1941, again Sept. 6 for the German heavyweight championship....They fought a "hotly-contested draw" in Hamburg a few weeks ago and you know what happened to Hamburg afterward...They might try matching the winner with that great Japanese battler, "Piston" Horiguchi....Of course, Piston is only a featherweight, but who likes an even match over there?

That Chicago scrap between middleweight champ Tony Zale and Georgie Abrams may be declared off unless the navy releases Zale to start training in the next few days.

Baseball Brain-Teaser

The other night Manager Ducky Holmes of the Dayton (O.) Middle Atlantic League Club raised a ruckus about the decisions the umpires in Canton were giving him... Finally the umpire ordered Ducky out of the game and, when Holmes refused to leave, called a cop to escort him off the field....There wasn't a policeman present, so the arbiter forfeited the game to Canton....Now Ducky is protesting the forfeit on the grounds that the home club is required to provide police at the park and violated the rules by not having a cop there to toss him out....How would you decide it?

SAVING MOTHERS

Caracas, Venezuelan capital, has cut its maternal mortality rate in half in three years.

CASUAL COMMENT by K.J.C.

CONNIE MACK, that venerable gentleman of baseball, always contended that pitching was ninety per cent of any ball club. Today Archie Green and his No. 5 ITS "Flyers" know that Mister McGillicuddy was absolutely right, because the difference between the Flyers and the champion Army & Navy Veterans was undoubtedly in the pitching. And we're not detracting from the fine efforts of Al Bell. However, it was elongated Jim Hunter that put the Vets into the running and last night Johnnie Bawden finished the job in a blaze of glory. Jack Parry nicked Bawden for a two-run circuit blow in the opening frame and the Flyers added another run in the second, but from then in Bawden was invincible, as he not only blanked the Flyers, but let them down with a mere single base blow. As a matter of fact the Airmen only had two left on base after the second inning, a single and a walk accounted for those.

THERE WAS NO DISGRACE IN being beaten in this year's City League finals, as the series was one of the keenest contested in some tim. The Belleville Softball League is indebted in a sense of measure to the Mountain View and No. 5 ITS. for their splendid co-operation and it's hoped they may be able to return another year. However, the lion's share of the Vets' victory might be handed to three individuals— Jim Hunter, Johnnie Bawden and Cy Barriage, the latter playing his best softball in many a moon. However, one cannot forget the semi-finals when Connie Harris came through for the Vets, but it was Hunter's military replacement that really counted. Last night Bawden allowed but four base knocks, Parry's perhaps being the one that hurt worst. Taking into consideration Bawden has been on the injured list for over two weeks, his firing last night proved he is one of the best softball moundsmen today in the province.

WITH LEO BARRETT'S DEACON A.C. lassies the hottest nine in the Ladies' Softball League playdowns Barnett's Zellers and Barney Smith's Corbin gals meet in a third and final semi-final league game tonight, the winner meeting the Deacons in a best-in-five series. Perhaps the main reason for the sudden upshot of the Deacon stocks is the fact Skipper Barrett has been arranging exhibition games for his charges for the past month, the result of which proved most prolific in their elimination of the strong SWACO girls. Then, on the other hand, the discovery of "Stewie" Stewart's' pitching prowess has materially helped the Deacons in their current drive for a league title. However, all eyes are focused on tonight's Corbin-Zeller game, when Ev Fitzgibbon will go to the mound for the "lockmakers" with the veteran Bessie Doolittle the most likely pitching choice for Barnett to depend upon to bring his champions into their third successive

IT AS MOST UNFORTUNATE that Earl McCready did not appear for the British Empire eliminations here last night, but Al Dunlop tried his best (which wasn't too good as a wrestler) against that Mad Hindu, Nanjo Singh. Promoter Frank Tunney assured us that he would continue the British Empire eliminations here two weeks hence. In the meantime McCready is flying to Regina to endeavour to reach his father's sick bed. It was most unfortunate that the initial British Empire elimination bout was removed on account of an illness, but Promoter Tunney assured the patrons last night that the Empire eliminations would continue.

DUNLOP IS NO MATCH FOR THE "MAD HINDU"

Although Losing First Fall on Sneak Play, Nanjo Singh Easily Disposes of Substitute

PRAYING WRESTLER

When an opponent interferes with a Hindu's religious belief—well, that's really bad—especially if the Hindu happens to be Nanjo Singh, the Mad Hindu of the wrestling world. Last night Al Dunlop, substituting for Earl McCready in the main bout of a three-go card, decided the best way to beat the Mad Hindu was with an unexpected attack.

Singh was praying to Allah for mental guidance on his knees in the corner when Dunlop sensed his opportunity. Racing across the Hume Arena ring Dunlop pounced upon the kneeling and unsuspecting Singh and the round was over before you could say—"Phil Lawson"—he was the referee.

Losing the first round didn't seem to be appreciated by the bald-headed Hindu and he made short work of his substitute opponent in the following two rounds, winning in jig time with the application of his famed "cobra hold" and leaving the fighter-referee Dunlop lying on the mat disgusted with humanity and Singh in particular. The luckless Dunlop had to concede the last two falls and admit defeat after winning a sneak fall to open hostilities. However, promoter Tunney assured the patrons he would return in a fortnight with another British Empire elimination scrap. Earl McCready, a main bout attraction last night, was called to his father's sick bed in Regina, necessitating Dunlop's substitution.

It took elongated Rolend Kirchmeyer, the human skyscraper, a little less than twenty minutes to win over Jan Gotch in the opening bout, although the contestants spent most of their time arguing with Referee Cliff Fox. Rudy Patek, a willing Polish lad, tried to rough matters with the villainous John Katan in the semi-final and got little results, except a physical beating as the powerful Calgary "eye-opener" won with a reverse leglock, Referee Fox stopping the bout in order to save Patek from further punishing. Upward of 700 fans exercised their tonsils and seemed to enjoy themselves generally at the fortnightly wrestling show in the Hume Arena.

AT THE CAPITOL

"Son of Fury"

In the five years that Tyrone Power has been on the screen, he's given many stirring portrayals—but his latest, "Son of Fury," the story of Benjamin Blake which opens tonight at the Capitol Theatre, surpasses them all.

Based on Edison Marshall's best-selling novel, "Son of Fury" has everything — swashbuckling adventure, action on the high seas, torrid romance in the South Sea Islands, realistic fights. The story is laid in the early 1800's, and depicts the adventures of a nameless urchin who must go through life battling the world for his birthright. It is the blazing history of a man who rises from stable boy to ruler of a South Sea paradise, and who deserts this paradise to claim his name.

"Son of Fury" marks another step forward in the career of Miss Gene Tierney, whose portrayal of the exotic native girl is her best to date. As the langorous Tahitian beauty, she makes it doubly hard for Power to return to his native England—and who would blame him for not leaving!

George Sanders, Frances Farmer and young Roddy McDowall complete the top featured cast and each turns in a well rounded performance. Sanders is at his sinister best as the treacherous conniving uncle, while the talented Miss Farmer makes a most appealing young English girl. Roddy McDowall continues with the splendid work after his famous acting in "How Green Was My Valley?" with the portrayal of the youthful Benjamin Blake in "Son of Fury." Others in the cast are John Carradine, Harry Davenport, Elsa Lanchester and Dudley Diggs.

On the same program at the Capitol today is Buck Jones and Tim McCoy in "The Gunmen from Bodie," a fast moving western thriller.

AT THE BELLE

"Her Cardboard Lover"

Fascinating as she has always been in cosmopolitan comedy roles, Norma Shearer has Robert Taylor as her co-star in "Her Cardboard Lover," which is now on the Belle Theatre screen.

The story is based on the play by Jacques Deval and it is devoted happily to light romance and laughter. It was skillfully directed by George Cukor.

Rollicking characterizations of the gay world at a fashionable Florida winter resort are portrayed by George Sanders, Frank McHugh and Elizabeth Patterson. No thought of world's worries and kindred woes enter into the story, which accordingly provides excellent relief.

The sets have been constructed effectively by Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's art department. Costumes are brilliant, backgrounds spectacular and the musical arrangement is lifting, with a specialty number, "I Dare You," written by Burton Lane and Ralph Freed.

Miss Shearer, invariably at her best in scintillating roles of comedy romance, maintains her high standard of excellence. Taylor again demonstrating his facile talents, comes from the merciless gangster role of "Johnny Eager" to suave gentility as a sophisticated young man-about-town. McHugh and Sanders are superb comedians and the veteran Elizabeth Patterson thoroughly pleasing.

"Joe Smith, American" Exciting

Action, suspense and excitement are adroitly mixed in "Joe Smith, American," with Robert Young giving a powerful performance as a man who outwits a gang of thugs in as unexpected a climax as has been seen on the screen in some time.

The story is an timely as this morning's first page. Young has the title role, as a steady, unassuming worker in an aircraft factory. Marsha Hunt is his wife, and ten-year-old Darryl Hickman portrays their son.

They are symbolic of the average young American family. Young is detailed to work on a secret bomb sight which draws the attention of four enemy agents. He is kidnapped and tormented, but refuses to divulge the secret mechanism. His escape by a dramatic ruse is logical and his swift memory serves to capture the gang in a brilliant climax.

"Voice of Canada," Timely

"Voice of Canada," is the title of the latest and thoroughly entertaining Canada Carries on series, film to be exhibited on the same program.

AT THE McCARTHY

"Private Buckaroo"

Exploiting the combined musical talents of Harry James and his orchestra and the celebrated Andrews Sisters, Universal's new musical comedy "Private Buckaroo" opens next at the McCarthy Theatre.

Announced as timely and elaborate screen enterainment, the story of "Private Buckaroo" deals with the adventures of a group of performers in one of Uncle Sam's Army cantonments. One novelty of the offering is said to be that a majority of the players appear as themselves.

Notables Assembled

Augmenting the Harry James aggregation and the Andrews trio are Dick Foran, Ernest Truex, Shemp Howard and Mary Wickes. Other favorites in the imposing cast include Richard Davies, Huntz Hall, Jennifer Holt, Tagalong, and the popular Jivin' Jacks and Jills.

Their present co-starring appearance in "Private Buckaroo" marks the second time the Andrews Sisters have worked with James and his Music Makers.

First joint appearance of the two was at a Chicago theatre a few seasons ago, when the combination shattered all box-office records for the playhouse. At that time, both the Andrews Sisters and James were on the way up. Now, with both at the top in their respective fields, they meet again and are setting new entertainment records.

Dead End Kids

Welcome news to Belleville movie fans is the fact that also opening next at the McCarthy Theatre is The Dead End Kids and Little Tough Guys in their latest mix-up of high hilarity and reckless misadventures entitled "Tough As They Come." This gang of roudy happy-go-luckies always bring to the screen a grand show of delightful entertainment and presented in addition to "Private Buckaroo" make up a combination in enjoyment you are urged to see.

CANADIAN TROOPS

The Canadians under Maj.-Gen. J. H. Roberts, said Col. Ralston, battled their way forward from the beaches of Dieppe, "reaching objectives which included destruction of many of the enemy's defence works."

"In the next few days there will emerge stories of dauntless heroism. Whether pieced together or surveyed in part they will form a record of Canadian deeds of valor well worthy of the highest places on the scroll whereon is written the achievements of brave men."

The announcement from defence headquarters here that Gen. Roberts commanded the Canadian invaders prompted military observers to speculate on whether he went into the assault with the division he has been officially announced as commanding or whether he has been detached from the division to head a special force of assault troops who might have come from his or other divisions.

But if the 51-year-old permanent force artillery officer from Kingston, Ont., actually went ashore during the smash, it would have been his second excursion on French soil during this war. He commanded a Canadian artillery formation in France in June, 1940. When France fell and his regiment was ordered back to Britain, he brought back every gun under his command.

Text of Col. Ralston's statement: After two and a half years of patient endurance, during which they have borne the high responsibility for defence of one of Great Britain's most vital areas, while, at the same time, perfecting themselves in all the new arts of warfare, the Canadian troops in England today cast aside this role and challenged the enemy on his own ground.

Reports from our commanders overseas clearly indicate that in this, their first actual contact with the Germans, the men of Canada's new army bore themselves with stout-hearted resolution and matchless courage.

We expected this and the fact that our expectation was realized only increases the pride and admiration which the exploits of our valiant youth stir within us.

At Dieppe yesterday they carried the battle to an enemy flushed with nearly three years of almost uninterrupted victory.

The fighting was severe. This was anticipated, for no one underestimates the resourcefulness of the Germans. But from the beaches of Dieppe our men battled their way forward, reaching objectives which included the destruction of many of the enemy's defence works. When their task was completed, they withdrew.

Duty of Canadians at Home

In the next few days there will emerge stories of dauntless heroism. Whether pieced together or surveyed in part, they will form a record of Canadian deeds of valor well worthy of the highest placed on the scroll whereon are written the achievements of brave men.

Today's exploit brings to Canadians at home a realization that we also shoulder a heavy responsibility. It is ours to be worthy of our young men, of the youths who fought today at Dieppe and who, with the same ardour and stoutness of heart, face with confidence the battles of the future. So, it must never be said of us that we gave them cause to falter.

Our own individual duty is plain.

It is for us to sustain our soldiers, sailors and airmen with a manifestation of the same selfless courage and the same determination that carried them unflinching into the teeth of the German fire.

Casualties were severe. For that we must be prepared, for war is a grim business.

But the real test of whether the price was great or small lies in the hearts of the people of Canada. Against the cost there has to be placed the right of men and women and little children to live in freedom as compared with the prospect of enslavement and degeneration under the heel of German tyrants.

JAP VISIT MONGOLIA

Chungking, Aug. 20— (AP) — A Chinese army spokesman reported today that high Japanese officers, led by Gen. Shunroku Hata, former commander of Japanese forces in Central China, visited Mongolia last month.

He said the visit evidently was intended to strengthen the defences of Inner Mongolia, which borders on soviet-protected outer Mongolia, and reported road-building equipment had been sent there by the Japanese.

CHAPTER 5

The Homecoming

When morning came, Linda still moved in a happy glow, thrilled by the remembrance of Greg Hollister's warm eyes and his voice.

She was scarcely aware that Diane and Sally were discussing the previous evening's activities as they dressed, until Diane said: "I saw you leave the reception quite early with Greg Hollister. Where did you go?"

Linda was reluctant to share the secret of her new-found happiness until she had possessed it a little longer. "Oh, just around," she said. "We danced at several places." She did not mention the fact that Greg had driven up the Lakeshore drive and parked where Linda might watch moonlight rippling over Lake Michigan, and that they had sat for two hours—talking.

Greg had told her a little about his work as chemical engineer for a large rubber company, and Linda had confessed her engagement to Kyle.

"I should have known I couldn't find someone like you unattached," Greg had declared ruefully.

"It's strange," Linda had replied honestly, pointing to the sparkling ring on her left hand, "how little that means to me right now."

Sally shattered Linda's reverie. "Hey, snap out of it. Diane insists on taking us to breakfast downtown, and we're waiting on you."

Linda stared ruefully at her reflection in the mirror. The familiar black hat looked almost comic now, atop her new hairdo, and Diane, seeing and understanding the reason for her distress, brought forth a tiny hat covered with soft, colorful velvet ribbons.

"Wear this," she commanded, adjusting it at the prescribed angle despite Linda's protest. "You can wear it this morning and return it before you leave for home. That," she said truthfully, "would be unappreciated in Prairievale, even though it is a Paris model."

The morning passed almost too quickly. Breakfast consisted mainly of coffee and a review of the previous evening's activities, and then there was a frantic dash back to the apartment.

"Twenty minutes until train time," Sally wailed. "We'll never make it!" Yet scarcely ten minutes later they were out of the apartment and in a cab, with Diane breathless from haste.

"And to think I've scarcely seen you," she complained as the cab careened around curves and through crowded areas en-route to the station.

Standing on a bottom step before the train pulled out of the station, Linda turned to her hostess. "How can I ever thank you enough for all you've done for me?"

"I had nothing to do with your success," Diane retorted spiritedly. "Whenever you tire sufficiently of Prairievale, come and visit me."

"Tire—of Prairievale?"

Diane nodded wisely. "You will, Linda. You were never meant to bury yourself in that smug little town; but be sure, when you do want to break away, that it isn't too late."

When the train began moving and Diane was gone, Linda stood digesting the other girl's words. What did Diane mean—"make sure it isn't too late."

The return trip was uneventful. Linda was so absorbed in her blissful dream that time passed rapidly. If Sally was aware of any difference in the manner of her companion, she gave no sign.

Dusk was falling and lights from scattered farm houses flickered bravely as the train rushed on. Then, with a sigh, Sally tossed her book aside and announced: "Ten miles more and we're home. Now are you sorry you went with me?"

"Oh, no!" Linda was radiant. "I had a wonderful time."

"And now you're back to settle down in Prairievale, and tomorrow is Monday and that means pounding a typewriter again." Sally spoke with emphasis, her bright eyes on the other girl. If she expected some outward sign of discontent or rebellion on Linda's part, she was disappointed.

"It was a lovely wedding, wasn't it?" Linda murmured wistfully.

"Ideal. Ted Cummings, (Betty's husband) was very nice."

"Yes." Linda stared through the window with unseeing eyes, remembering each detail of the solemn ceremony. Suddenly she leaned forward, her pretty face intent. "Sally, when you first met Hugh how did you feel?"

Sally had sensed that something was troubling Linda. Now she knew.

"Like kicking, biting and scratching," she answered cheerfully. "We were rivals in everything we did. Sworn enemies to the death."

Linda settled back, disgruntled. "That's scarcely a satisfactory reply."

"Neither was Hugh—satisfactory, I mean," remarked her companion. "You know, I met him when I was home from school for the summer and on our first date I gave him a terrific walloping at tennis. It went on like that for weeks." She grinned. "Sometimes I think we've never gotten beyond the battling stage."

"Nonsense!" Linda was indignant. "You're the happiest couple in Prairievale."

"Yes, we are happy," Sally agreed soberly. "I never knew life could contain as much happiness for me. Hugh is the sweetest, most generous man in the world."

"But why shouldn't he be?" demanded Linda. "He has an excellent position. His father is wealthy and so is yours. You've never had to skimp and save and struggle to get by. That makes a difference, you know. It's less wearing on the differently toward Hugh," Sally answered gravely, "if he hadn't a penny to his name."

Linda frowned. This wasn't what she had wanted the other girl to say, although she knew Sally's conviction was a natural. But had she (Linda) honestly ever felt that way? Was she so much in love with Kyle that nothing else mattered?

"I—don't know," she murmured wistfully. "Naturally I love Kyle—and I want to be his wife. But being poor and—and having to do without the things I've always wanted, takes away the — the thrill."

She paused for breath. After scrutinizing her carefully, Sally uttered the words that Linda had been trying to avoid in her own thoughts. Words that made the girl move uneasily and remain silent and moody until they had reached their destination.

"You wouldn't," Sally asked simply and shrewdly, "be trying to convince yourself?"

The sight of Kyle, standing patiently on the station platform, made Linda shiver a little. He looked so—she groped for words—so placid, stolid, as though welcoming her back was commonplace. For no apparent reason, Linda remembered her farewell to Greg Hollister and scolded herself for being unfair to Kyle Norman.

Sally, preceding her off the train, was caught in a bear hug by her husband and kissed so violently that her hat tumbled to the ground. This caused the conductor no end of amusement, but the sight wrenched Linda's heart. Why, she wondered desperately, must she continually compare Kyle with other men and find him lacking in the qualities she most admired?

"Hello, Linda." Kyle had reached her now and Linda shrank back slightly. If Kyle should attempt to kiss her—but no, he was picking up her bag, his manner completely businesslike.

"I suppose you had a good time?"

"Oh, yes. Wonderful."

"That's nice."

How ordinary this is, Linda thought, how polite we are? Kyle isn't really interested in hearing about my trip, and I don't want to tell him.

She heard her name called and paused, as Hugh Barnes, on the run, caught up with them.

"Since this is rather an occasion," he began, "I thought maybe we four could celebrate by having dinner together, out at our place. After all, Kyle and I want to hear about your little spree, don't we, old man?"

Linda's eyes sparkled. She turned to Kyle, her face glowing expectantly. "I think that would be grand." She caught Kyle's hand. "Shall we, dear?"

Kyle glanced at Hugh Barnes. Almost rudely he said, "Thanks, Mr. Barnes, but I think Linda's mother has dinner waiting."

There was a moment of silence while Linda stared at Hugh pleadingly. Kyle's tone had been almost insulting and now he was climbing into the car, starting the motor without further ado.

Hugh Barnes saw the sparkle die in Linda's eyes. In the raw November wind she shivered a little. "I—I'm very sorry, too, Hugh, but I can't keep mother in suspense, I guess. But before we go, I want you to know how wonderful Sally was to me. I—I'm so terribly happy that I went to Chicago. I'll never forget it."

Sally, seeing the effort it took for Linda to hold back tears, said airily, "Skip the bouquets, darling. It was fun to be with you." She pressed Linda's hand. "We'll get together soon — the four of us. Okay?"

"Okay," Linda replied.

"It—it wasn't very polite of you," she said mildly to Kyle as the small car sped away from the station, "to be so brusque with Hugh when he was being kind and good-natured. After all, they are my friends—"

"Friends!" Kyle muttered angrily. "They're not our sort, Linda. Just a couple of tiz-wigs trying to patronize the little girl from the other side of the tracks.

Linda felt a surge of anger. What right had Kyle to criticize her friends—to condemn her as being unfit to mingle with society? She opened her mouth to protest furiously and then held back the bitter words. What good would it do to quarrel—now?

Kyle was humming under his breath, Linda's head ached and she was aware now that the magic weekend was over. Once more living was commonplace and drab. Even Sally and Hugh might have been only characters in an exciting novel; their gay, happy mode of life merely her own dream.

She was suddenly conscious that Kyle's humdrum monologue had broken off, and he was staring at her.

"Sa-ay," he exclaimed. "What's that thing you've got on your head?"

Linda's last, shining air castle tumbled in ruins. Swiftly her hand went up to snatch Diane's gay, be-ribboned offender from her hair. So Diane had been right, after all, in saying the little hat would be unappreciated in Prairievale.

"It's just a very silly little hat that belongs to Diane," she explained wearily. "I'll send it back, tomorrow."

Little Benny's Note Book

Today was Nora's day off, and I was eating breakfast with pop, and ward if I get ma to have liver and onions for dinner tonight?

Liver and onions being pop's favorite thing any time no matter how often, and he said, If you turn out to be a batchelor and live with your mother as many years as I have you'll learn that she has an almost insurmountable prejudice against serving liver and onions more than twice in any single week.

Meaning we had it twice this week already, and I said, Well anyway, pop, suposing I get her to have it anyway?

I'll go so far as to say there's no harm in trying, pop said.

Meaning he wouldn't actually say he would give me a reward, and just then ma came down, and I said, Hay ma, what's you think? Puds Simkins claims his mother can make liver and onions twice as good as you. What's you know about that for nerve? I said.

I know you can't pull the wool over my eyes or you either, William Potts, ma said. You're transparent birds of a feather and I can see through you both, she said, and pop said, I might of known you were too smart a fox to fall into any such ricketty trap as that. It might be a different story if you'd been reading the government health reports about the thousands of Q vitamins in a single dish of liver and onions. It seems the Q vitamins work on peoples instincts of generosity. In one test case a man who was completely tone deaf insisted on taking his wife to a concert after 2 helpings of liver and onions, he said.

If that's another trap I'll fall into it bodily if it means you'll really take me to that concert tonight after all, ma said, and pop said, I dont quit get you, but you cant

WALL STREET

New York, Aug. 20. (AP)—The stock market ran into a little more profit-cashing today and, with scattered exceptions, leaders slipped fractions to a point or so.

Wall Street felt that the big Commando raid on the Nazi-held French coast still was a bullish influence but scant market stimulation was derived from other war news.

The Canadian section was slightly off, Hiram Walker and Lake Shore easing 1-8 point each and International Nickel dropping 1-4. Dome Mines and Canadian Pacific held unchanged.

Stocks in the faltering division included Chrysler, General Motors, U.S. Steel, Bethlehem, Santa Fe, Atlantic Coast Line, Anaconda, Allied Chemical, Loew's Paramount, Dow Chemical, General Electric and American Telephone. On the other hand, Amerada Petroleum got up more than a point to a new year's top. Corn products, Sperry, Sears Roebuck and Homestake were ahead most of the time.

In the base metal group Steep Rock was weaker by 3 cents at $1.35 and Ontario Nickel was off slightly while International Nickel firmed ⅛ to 29⅞.

Brazilian, Steel of Canada, and Walkers pfd. were moderately soft issues in the industrial section.

EYEWITNESSES DESCRIBE LAND, SEA, AIR ASSAULT AT DIEPPE

Ross Munro, C.P. Newsman, Pictures Battle

Ross Munro, 26-year-old Canadian Press war correspondent, landed in France with the Canadian-led commando forces yesterday the first Canadian newspaperman to step on European soil with a commando. Munro was the only newspaperman with the Canadian forces raiding Spitsbergen a year ago; on the recent manoeuvre-workout for this assault on Dieppe he was along. His full-time job is 'covering the Canadian troops in Britain. Here is his story.

By ROSS MUNRO
Canadian Press War Correspondent
Copyright By Canadian Press 1942

With the Canadian raiding force at Dieppe, Aug. 19—(Delayed)—(CP Cable)—For eight raging hours under intense Nazi fire from dawn into a sweltering afternoon I watched Canadian troops fight the blazing, bloody battle of Dieppe.

I saw them go through the biggest of the wars raiding operations in wild scenes that crowded helter skelter one upon another in crazy sequence.

Furious Attack by Nazi E-Boats

There was a furious attack by German E-boats while the Canadians moved in on Deippe's beaches landing by dawn's half-light.

When the Canadian battalions stormed through the flashing inferno of Nazi defences, belching guns of huge tanks rolling into the fight, I spent the grimmest 20 minutes of my life with one unit when a rain of German machine-gun fire wounded half the men in our boat and only a miracle saved us from annihilation.

A few hours later there was the spine-chilling experience of a dive-bombing attack by seven Stukas, the dreaded Nazi aircraft that spotted out the small assault landing craft waiting off-shore to re-embark the fighting men.

Our boat was thrown about like a toy by their seven screeching bombs that plunged into the water around us and exploded in gigantic cascades.

There was the lashing fire of machine-gunning from other Nazi aircraft and the thunder of anti-aircraft fire that sent them hustling off.

Over our heads in the blue, cloud-flecked French sky were fought the greatest air engagements since the battle of Britain, dogfights carried on to the dizzy accompaniment of planes exploding in the air, diving down flaming, some plummetting into the sea from thousands of feet.

Warships Growl Salvoes

Hour after hour guns of the supporting warships growled salvoes at targets ashore where by now our tanks also were in violent action.

Unearthly noises rumbled up and down the French coast, shrouded for miles in smokescreens covering the fleet.

There was heroism at sea and in the skies in those hours but the hell-spot was ashore, where the Canadians fought at close quarters with the Nazis. They fought to the end, where they had to, and showed courage and daring.

They attacked the Dieppe arsenal of the coastal defence. They left Dieppe silent and afire, its ruins and its dead under a shroud of smoke.

Start From British Port

The operation against Dieppe started from a British port Tuesday evening. I boarded a ship which also carried the Royal Regiment of Toronto. It was seven o'clock and only then were we told that Dieppe was our destination.

The Royals took it cooly enough. They had been trained with the rest of the force for several months on combined operations for just such a job.

Maps, Mosiacs and photographs of Dieppe were issued and as the boat put to sea with the other ships of the raiding fleet, the troops were briefed in their tasks.

It was a muggy night but the sky was clear. The sea was calm. It was combined-operations weather.

Below deck the men sat around cleaning weapons, fusing grenades and loading the magazines of Stens, Tommy-guns and Brens.

In darkness formed the flotilla, shadowy tank landing craft that looked like oil tankers, a score of small assault boats, destroyers, gunboats, motor launches and torpedo boats.

A few officers in the raiding party drank a beer with the ship's captain and chatted about everything but the operation. We had a snack of bully beef, bread and butter and tea and then went over the side into assault craft.

Flotilla Takes Positions

After leaving the mother ships, our flotilla of little craft took positions in line astern. The Royals were to land at Puits, one mile east of Dieppe and establish themselves in that flanking area.

Just as we were pushing away from the mother ship, an old British tar whispered to us: "Cheerio Laddies, the best of luck, give — a bellicking."

It was pleasant in the open assault boats. Nobody seemed particularly nervous about the coming business though it was to be the Canadians' first time in action.

I made myself think in terms of manoeuvres, exercises in which I had taken part with these men in preparation for this night.

I had about convinced myself that this was another of those familiar exercises when at 4:10 a.m., about 50 minutes before we were due to hit the beach, a flare arched over the channel.

"E-Boats," Shouts Sailor

Tracer bullets followed quickly, long green and red streaks marking their path. They were too close for comfort. "E-boats," announced a sailor.

The atmosphere suddenly tensed. Wide-awake men tightened their grip on their weapons. A sailor hoisted a Lewis gun into place and cocked it.

Our boats slipped steadily through the quiet waters. The motor was hardly audible.

Then the E-boats appeared, close by off to one side. They opened up with lead that bounced bright red off one or two of our boats. Fire now came from several angles.

It was the first time most of us ever had been under direct enemy fire. We flattened against the armor-plating of our craft. The E-boats kept up a running attack for twenty minutes and the night became alive with streaking tracers. It occurred to me it was awkward to be travelling toward the Germans, with other Germans hanging on our heels.

E-Boats Scurry Like Rats

But the Royal Navy took care of our unwanted travelling companions. Destroyers popped up with a barrage that sent the E-boats scurrying like sea rats.

Aircraft drummed overhead by this time, heading for the South. They were the first of the bombers for Dieppe, and in a few minutes great crumps shook the French Channel shore as they unloaded their bombs on the port.

Nazi anti-aircraft defences barked at the skies and a haphazard pattern of tracer and flak crisscrossed a horizon showing the first streaks of dawn.

They made a brilliant chandelier over Dieppe. Two searchlights probed for bombers dodging anti-aircraft fire. Others bombers went in, squadron after sqadron.

Flashes of bomb explosions in the town to which we had crept within two miles revealed a concrete jetty at the harbor entrance.

Anti-aircraft fire was heaviest from the cliff-tops on either side of the town.

Over on our right I could see another fleet of raiding craft bearing men of the Essex Scottish, the Royal Hamilton Light Infantry and the Calgary Tank Regiment to the main beach in front of Dieppe.

Smoke Billows Out to Conceal Landing

There was a great roar as a concentration of high explosive and smoke bombs landed on the east headland by the harbor with a blinding flash that seemed half a mile long. Black smoke billowed out and turned white as it curled along over the sea to conceal our landing from the shore defences.

Crouched low, the Royals gave their webbing last-minute hitches. Faces were taut, jaws firm. We knew that this wouldn't be any party.

We could see destroyers and gunboats creeping up behind the attack flotillas racing for the main beach. The flame and peal of artillery told us that the naval bombardment of the town had opened. The navy kept up its torrent of shells into Dieppe as we sped for shore.

Already some of the Royals were landing at Puits as we headed for the beach at the base of a slope leading from the shore into a break between the cliffs.

To one side fighter planes hopped in at sea level to blast with cannon and machine-guns the hotels and buildings full of Germans on the Dieppe esplanade.

Dawn was breaking. The battle of Dieppe got hotter.

We were to land in a matter of minutes. Through smoke layers I looked up at the white cliffs, growing higher before us. Anti-aircraft guns up there clattered unceasingly. Machine-guns drilled down bullets that clanged against the armor of our boat.

Din at Crescendo

By the time our boat touched the beach the din was at a crescendo. I peered out at the slope lying just in front of us and it was startling to discover it was dotted with the fallen forms of men in battle dress. The Royals ahead of us had been cut down as they stormed the slope. It came home to me only then that every one of those men had gone down under the bullets of the enemy at the top of the incline.

Vicious burst of yellow tracers from the German machine-guns made a veritable curtain about our boats. The Royals beside me fired back with everything they had. One Canadian blazed away with an anti-tank rifle.

Some Strong Nazi Pillboxes

The Germans held a couple of houses near the top of the slope and occupied some strong pillboxes. From their high level they were able to pour fire into some boats, ours among them.

Several bursts from machine-guns struck men in the middle of our craft. The boat's ramp was lowered to permit the men with me to get ashore, but German fire caught those who tried to make it.

The remainder crouched inside, protected by armor and pouring return fire at the Nazis. The Canadians' shooting was dead-on and half a dozen men in steel helmets and field gray uniforms toppled from windows to the ground.

Enemy Caught Changing Positions

Other Germans made the mistake of trying to change their positions only to be caught when sighted by Royal sharp-shooters armed with Brens.

Caught by this unexpectedly intense Nazi fire, the Canadians fought a heroic battle from those craft that were still nosed up on the beach.

I lay behind a flimsy bit of armor plating and heavy calibre bullets cut through it a couple of feet above my head.

An officer sitting next to me was firing a Sten gun. He got off a magazine and a half, killed at least one Nazi, and then was hit in the head. He fell forward, bleeding profusely.

A sailor next to him was wounded in the neck and another got a bullet through the shoulder. Those around the injured tied them up with field dressing. The fire was murderous now and the Canadians' fire-power was being reduced by casualties.

There were eight or 10 in our boat who had been hit and a landing here seemed impossible. The naval officer with us decided to try to get the boat off the beach. On manoeuvres there were times when it was a difficult task to do it quickly, but by a miracle it slid off and we eased away from the hellish fire with nerve-wracking slowness.

Memory of Scene

The Nazis pegged away at us for half a mile out. That attempted landing was one of the fiercest and grimmest events in the whole raid and the only spot where the landing was temporarily repulsed.

I will forever remember the scene in that craft: wounded lying about being attended by medical orderlies oblivious to the fire; the heroism of the Royals as they fought back and strove as desperately as any men could to get on the beach and relieve their comrades still fighting ashore; the contempt of these men for danger and their fortitude when they were hit. I never heard one man even cry out.

During the whole raid there were no stauncher fighters than these Toronto soldiers.

Off Dieppe the raid flotilla remassed after putting the troops ashore. Our wounded were sent to a hospital ship and I transferred at sea to another assault landing craft and then another and another.

They were floating about doing jobs at the different beaches.

At one stage 15 soldiers and I tried to get onto one of the beaches near Dieppe but the German cliff-side machine-gun posts which later were wiped out plastered us without hitting anyone and we turned back out of range.

Finally Reach Shore

Finally we got ashore for a few minutes right in front of the Dieppe esplanade. The smoke screen was so thick, though, that one could not see much of the town and we took off again. The area in front of the town looked like a First Great War battleground, with broken buildings gutted or burning in all sections.

By 10 a.m. the Canadians, many of their actions led by tanks, seemed to have the town fairly well under control and to have stabilized the situation on the beaches.

Nazi Air Raiders Attack Fleet

Then 50 minutes later the Nazis sprang their one heavy attack by air. For 45 minutes, Stukas, Dorniers, Heinkels and fighters swept up from the south and attacked the fleet, whose terrific bombardment I had been watching from an assault craft just off the main Dieppe beach.

Earlier the enemy had sent over aircraft in fours and fives but they had been unable to cope with the Royal Air Force and had resorted only to minor machine-gunning and inaccurate bombing.

But the big attack was a real one. German pilots flying anywhere from 200 to 2,000 feet showered bombs over the British ships, at the same time sweeping them with machine-gun fire. The sky was splotched with hundreds of black and white puffs from exploding shells and the thundering of the ships' guns was deafening.

Sometimes the Nazis picked peculiar targets. At one time even their Stukas were dive-bombing our little craft, which this time carried only one naval officer, four ratings and this lone correspondent.

Sea Churned as if by Tornado

Their bombs came crashing down on either side of our bouncing craft, making the sea look as if it had been churned by a tornado. Once we almost capsized but we landed up with only a bashed stern and a shattered bow.

We had just picked ourselves up from the deck when a fighter zoomed in and gave us a hail of gunfire. But they added only more scars to our unsteady but still seaworthy craft.

The plane was one which had succeeded in avoiding squadrons of British planes which hovered overhead throughout the operation, picking off German machines attempting to get in close. Seven Nazi machines crashed into the sea within the limited view we had of the complete scene.

One Dornier attempting to attack the destroyer was raked by fire before it could release its bombs. It exploded at about 300 feet. Small bits of debris were all we saw fall into the sea.

Every once in a while a lone German would swoop on an isolated assault craft whose crew would reply ith everything aboard. Sailors would pop off with Tommy-guns and Lewis guns from hip level and some even used rifles. And they suceeded in bringing down some of these diving Nazis.

Troops Re-embark on Main Beach

At noon final re-embarkation of the troops was under way and the force was taken off the main beach.

With another smoke screen blanketting the raided town, the fleet turned for England. No German aircraft marred the departure and the navy gave some coastal installations another bump with its heavy guns for good measure.

Through the afternoon I sailed north in a craft to which Stukas had taken such a licking. It was just an ordinary assault landing craft, 30 feet long and looking like a floating packing box. This is the way hundreds of raiders started back to England but the sea stayed reasonably smooth.

I lay in the sun and slept, and woke to see the white cliffs of England in the mist ahead.

British planes — fighters and bombers — were swarming south to France again in a steady stream with more packages for the Germans.

"FEELS YEARS YOUNGER" SINCE TAKING SYNTONA

Says Stomach and Nerves Felt Better After First Bottle. Continued Treatment Brought Relief from Backache, Leg Pains, Headaches and Dizzy Spells.

"If I had known about Syntona sooner, I could have saved myself from a lot of suffering," said Mr. J. Corney, well-known Hamilton man, residing at 269 Wilson St., Hamilton.

"For six years my stomach was in such a disordered condition that I suffered after every meal with gas, indigestion, acidity and heartburn. At night I would roll from one side to another trying to get to sleep, but there was a constant discomfort from gas and a burning feeling in my chest and throat. The acids from my stomach must have gone all through my system, for I developed pains in my back and legs and I had frequent headaches and spells of dizziness. I felt tired out, nervous and listless because I wasn't getting my proper sleep.

"Of all the medicines I tried nothing gave me any real relief, until I began taking Syntona, but it helped my stomach and nerves right from the first bottle. I have now taken six bottles and I really feel years younger. I enjoy my meals wherever I go and have no gas or indigestion afterwards. The pains have left my back and limbs and I am free of those backaches and dizzy spells."

Let this grand herbal tonic help you, as it has hundreds of other local men and women. Syntona is pleasant to take and it contains no harmful drugs or depressors.

Syntona is sold and recommended in Belleville at DOLAN THE DRUGGIST.

C. H. Millard Given Power To Take Action

Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., Aug. 20—(CP)—C. H. Millard, National Director of the United Steel Workers of America (C.I.O.) has been given complete authority to take any further action he sees fit regarding the Algoma Steel Workers Union demand for a basic labor rate of 55 cents hourly for employees in the Algoma Steel Corporation plant here.

This decision was taken last night at a special meeting of the committee of the Stewards Council. This body had met to consider the result of the vote favoring a strike if necessary to enforce the Union's demand for boosting the basic hourly wage from 45 1-2 cents to 55 cents.

"In the exercise of the authority vested in us by the mass meeting held on Monday last, which empowered us to decide the next step to be taken, and having regard to the fact that our fellow workers in Sydney are now involved in a situation similar to our own, we now feel that the dispute has assumed all the characteristics of a [illegible] issue," said a statement issued after the committee meeting last night. "We will hold ourselves in readiness to act promptly in whatever way he (Millard) may direct."

R.A.F. and Royal Navy Smash Nazi Air Force In Dramatic Dieppe Raid

Drew Middleton of The Associated Press, one of the American newsmen selected to represent United States Press on the Dieppe raid, observed yesterday's operation from one of the vessels that lay offshore. He was not permitted to land.

Middleton, 28, was accredited to the original British Expeditionary Force of this war and spent considerable time with it in France in the early months. He was withdrawn to England just ahead of the troops in the 1940 retreat through Dunkirk.

(By DREW MIDDLETON)
(Associated Press Staff Writer)

Aboard a Motor Launch of the Royal Navy Returning From Off Dieppe, Aug. 19. (Delayed)—(AP)—I have just watched the R.A.F. and the Royal Navy smash the German air force in the fiercest and most dramatic air and sea battle of the war in the west.

For seven hours in the blue skies over Dieppe and on the glassy waters of the Channel, Briton and American, airman and seaman, fought for the lives of thousands of Canadian, American, French and British soldiers who scrambled ashore this morning to storm the ancient Port of Dieppe.

The result was a decisive Allied victory.

Its full measure is not 91 aircraft shot down by British pilots and Gunners but a long line of landing craft full of weary but triumphant men now passing our ship.

They are homeward-bound because of the magnificent job done by the little ships and great seamen of the Royal Navy and the headlong assaults of pilots of the R.A.F.-R.C.A.F. Spitfires, Mustang and Hurricanes.

This combination broke a German force of at least 500 aircraft seeking to blast the Commandos and infantry into submission and sink the armada of landing craft.

Since dawn, when two Focke-Wulf 190's darted at us with machine-guns and cannon chattering this tiny craft and every other ship have been bombed and strafed repeatedly and all have blazed back at the enemy.

Our motor launch, which is about 100 feet long, left a southern port last night, escorting tank-landing craft. The moon was sinking toward the horizon as England dropped astern and the ghostlike line of ships headed for France and the enemy.

As it grew light we discovered scores of other ships—destroyers, motor gunboats, lighters, assault craft and chasseurs of the fighting French navy all converging on Dieppe.

Heard Rumbling Crump

One 24-year-old sub-lieutenant whistled softly at the sight and said: "What's that line in Shakespeare about 'Gentlemen of England now abed?' They ought to see this. It makes you proud."

The first Commandos landed as we neared the French coast.

R.A.F. bombers had sneaked across the channel to hammer German gun positions. Aheau anti-aircraft fire spurted in fountains of red tracer bullets.

Across the water we heard the rumbling crump crump of big bombs.

"The well-dressed man will wear a tin hat from this point," the sub-lieutenant said.

As the light brightened we saw six Spitfires flying high overhead. We were still admiring them when there was a roar of planes to port and two Focke-Wulfs attacked our convoy.

They swept over us with every gun firing, and ours answering. One climbed out of the barrage, a second wavered and slid into the sea.

"Let's go and see the fun," said the captain after the tank transports had run in to landings.

We steamed through the smoke and in the early sunlight saw the burning houses of Dieppe and heard the rattle of rifle fire and the chatter of machine-guns.

Shells Begin to Whistle

Shells from the four-inch guns of the British destroyers began to whistle overhead.

Watching through field glasses you could see them smash into a row of hotels, once sacred to honeymooning Britons, along one side of Dieppe's main boulevard.

Slowly the British gunners brought the hotels down around the ears of the German machine-gunners and riflemen they sheltered. As the buildings disintegrated under the shelling you could see Allied troops moving forward, running and pausing to fire.

Periodically we were strafed by Nazi fighters. When we finally cast off, squadrons of Bostons flying very low were sweeping inland to bomb the second line of German defences.

We heard the broken beat that characterizes the motors of heavy German bombers.

Four Dornier 17Z's, flying at about 6,000 feet in echelon, headed toward the long lines of British ships. Ship by ship, anti-aircraft guns opened fire and tracer bullets cut sharp patterns into the blue sky.

Looked Big and Black

The Dorniers looked big and very black as they roared closer. Our little ship jumped under the recoil of her Oerlichon (anti-aircraft gun) and machine-guns.

The leading bomber swerved slightly and out of its belly tumbled four bombs. You could see them dropping slowly ahead and to port. They landed with explosions that nearly lifted us out of the water. The second and third bombers dropped their loads, but anti-aircraft fire drove off the fourth.

The bombs missed their targets but by now everyone was watching the Dorniers. The first was blazing from hits by anti-aircraft shells as the others were hotly pursued by three Spitfires.

The first fell flaming into the sea near shore. The next two tried desperately to evade the fighters which hung like black crosses above them. There were furious bursts of machine-gun fire, then one after the other the two Dorniers turned lazily over, burst into flame and fell into the sea.

Cheer of Sailors Heard

The cheers of sailors on other ships could be heard faintly across the water.

After that there was a steady rain of bombs. One ship shivered and shook. But R.A.F.-R.C.A.F. fighters pressed their attacks and few of the German bombers got a chance to make their run and take careful aim. I saw only one small boat sink by bombs— and I saw 17 German planes shot down as payment.

Our ship was ordered to take the wounded off a tank-landing craft which had been hit by German field guns while landing its tanks and troops on one beach. While we were lying alongside the greatest air fight of the day developed.

The sky was literally covered with fighters and bombers. Many more were flying so high we could not see them. I counted 49 aircraft engaged in one pitched battle to the northwest. Twisting and gyrating madly, they filled the air with the sound of their motors and machine-guns.

A Junkers-88 breaks away as though it is going to dive-bomb us. But, attacked by a spitfire, it Jettisons its bombs and flies away. A Hurrican bursts into flames. A wing falls off an Me-109 and the plans drops slowly into the sea.

The whistle of falling bombs seems continuous. I look south and see huge geysers thrown up by faling bombs.

We were taking wounded aboard through all this, and a big Lancashire boy, his face creased with pain, forced a smile when the tiny Cockney coxswain bent over to tell him how the battle was going.

Toronto, Aug. 20 (CP)—Premier Mitchell Hepburn left here today by airplane for Sault Ste. Marie where he will begin tomorrow, four-day inspection and speaking tour that will take him as far as Port William. Mr. Hepburn is accompanied by J. P. Bickell, Toronto financier, and is flying in Mr. Bickell's amphibian plane.

At the Soo he will inspect the Helen Mine, then go to Fort William and Port Arthur where he speaks at service club functions under arrangements with Mayors Cox and Ross of these municipalities. When he returns to the Soo on Monday or Tuesday he is likely to address a public gathering, and returns to Toronto next Wednesday.

BY NAZIS GIVES SELF UP TO COMMANDOS

New York, Aug. 20 (CP)—BBC said today that one prisoner captured in the Deippe Commando raid was a Hollander who had been sent with a draft of reinforcements to the Dieppe area.

The broadcast was heard here by CBS.

The prisoner said he had been forced into the German army, but gave himself up, as soon as he got a chance.

Nazi Elite Guard Ridiculed by Secret French Radio

New York, Aug. 20 (CP)—Columbia Boadcasting Company yesterday heard the Clandestine "Gustav Siegfried Eins" radio station describe the wild confusion among SS. (Elite Guard) men in German occupied Paris when they heard the news of the Dieppe raid —which the station said they mistook for full-scale invasion.

CBS said that the station, which is described as oposed to Himmler's Gestapo and "pro-German army" broadcast as follows, in part:-

"Well, this is how I always imagined the war in the west! What a monkey theatre this morning in Paris! In order to appreciate this you ought to have been there!

"One hundred and seventy kilometres away the Englishman starts a patrol enterprise against the French coast, and it was the bashful, withdrawal kind. And hardly had this report been put through when everything in Paris went wild, what a fuss, what heroism. All the ponts-wetters, the swashbucklers, draft dodgers and soft-job-warriors in fullest war regalia, ready to go to war—in their offices.'

U.S. PILOTS SCORE THREE PROBABLE VICTORIES

London, Aug. 20—(CP)—United States fighter pilots scored three probable victories in the Dieppe area yesterday. They made four trips across the channel, spending more than six hours in the air.

COMMANDO CHIEFS STUDY DIEPPE OPERATION
REDS FIGHT DESPERATELY TO DISLODGE NAZIS

Success Proven Of Sea, Air, Land Co-ordination

Allied Casualties High With Raid Termed a "Reconnaissance in Force"

DESTROYER SUNK

(By ROSS MUNRO)
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, Aug. 21 (C.P. Cable) — Units of Canadian regiments, their ranks thinned in the costly action against the pebbled beaches and narrow streets of Dieppe, straggled back to camps in Britain today while Allied Commando chiefs studied the effect of giant combined operation of the general United Nations attack plan.

The official communique which said the Allied casualties were high termed the eight-to-nine-hour sortie of Canadians with tanks and all the weapons of assault a "reconnaissance in force." It said the raid which resulted in the destruction of 91 German aircraft and the probable destruction or damage of double that number had a "vital part in our agreed offensive policy."

Two gun batteries and a radio location station were destroyed, two small vessels were sunk, heavy casualties were inflicted on the Germans and numerous prisoners were captured.

It was important in that, among other things, it demonstrated successfully the theory of co-ordination between the three services — sea, air and land.

It was believed to have cost the Germans one-third of their effective air strength on the western front, a circumstance that may force them to divert bombers and fighters from the Russian front where they were exerting their most powerful effort.

There were no actual figures on Canadian losses in killed and wounded but the Germans claimed they had taken 1,500 prisoners. 98 Allied aircraft were lost, but thirty pilots were saved.

Many of the prisoners would probably be Canadians, since these men under the command of Major General J. H. Roberts of Kingston, Ontario, formed a large proportion of the raiding force. It also contained a smattering of American Rangers along for an instructional ride, a few fighting French Commandos and a good number of British Commandos.

Units of six Canadian infantry battalions and a tank regiment carried out the major attack on the French coast.

The Royal Hamilton Regiment and the Essex Scottish of Windsor, Ont., with the Calgary tank regiment, carried the main attack right into Dieppe itself; men of the South Saskatchewan Regiment and the Cameron Highlanders of Winnipeg landed at nearby Pourville in a flanking movement; while the Royal Regiment from Toronto went in at Puits, one mile east of Dieppe. The Fusiliers De Mont Royal, were floating reserves who were rushed ashore at Dieppe to help their comrades.

In addition to these formations there was a detachment of Toronto Scottish machine gunners who manned Vickers guns set up on the assault boats and on the principal beaches for anti-aircraft work.

There was a detachment of the Black Watch from Montreal which operated with the Royal Regiment in the landing at Puits.

Officers of the Royal Canadian Artillery and a number of non-commissioned officers were with the assault troops to co-ordinate naval bombardment with army operations ashore.

Heroism, Courage Of Canadians in the Hellfire That Was Dieppe Recounted

NO TRACE OF FEAR

(By ROSS MUNRO)
(Canadian Press War Correspondent)

Somewhere in England, Aug. 21 (CP Cable)—Through Canadian army camps in Britain today stories of the heroism and courage of Canadians in the hellfire that was Dieppe on Wednesday were recounted by hardened men who now have been battle-tested.

There were countless deeds done on the shores of France and in the streets of Dieppe that never will be told. Too many did not return for a complete picture of the Canadians' individual heroic performances ever to be assembled.

But at the bases of the Essex Scottish, South Saskatchewan Regiment, Royal Hamilton Light Infantry, Fusiliers Mont Royal, Toronto Scottish, Winnipeg Camerons, Royal Regiment and the Black Watch there was plenty of accounts from fighting men to stamp the action as something rivalling the last war's Vimy in point of valor.

And as an eyewitness to the manner in which these men faced withering fire from strong Nazi fortifications without a trace of fear—rather, in fact, with sheer enthusiasm at getting into action at last —I can testify there is no praise too high for the courage of the Canadians.

At this particular time, when the results of the war's biggest raid are still being studied by the chiefs of the Allied commands and the benefits and losses are still being calculated and casualties enumerated, there is no opportunity immediately for naming many names.

They are still to come as the story unfolds from wherever these Canadian assault troops base among the Canadians in England or recover from their wounds in Canadian army hospitals.

At that, though, there are stories without number already.

They tell of a wounded regimental sergeant major Roger Strumm of Saskatoon unable to walk who was carried waist-high into the sea and re-embarked by comrades who refused to leave him behind when the withdrawal was ordered.

BOMBERS ATTACK CONVOY

London, Aug. 21—(CP)—British bombers attacked a German convoy off the Netherlands coast last night, scoring hits on three ships, the Air Ministry announced today. All the British planes returned safely, the communique said.

Radio Comments Between Tanks Indicate Only Desire to Kill Nazis

"In the following story Alan Humphreys, Reuters News Agency Staff Correspondent who was aboard a tank-landing craft, tells of this action which he said "Canada can well write with pride into her military history."

By ALAN HUMPHREYS
(Reuters Staff Correspondent)

London, Aug. 21 (CP)—As the battered remnants of that force (The Calgary Tank Regiment) held off the enemy while the rest of the Allied forces were re-embarking, I listened to their radio messages.

Damage to tanks and fierce German resistance were the main burden of the reports coming over.

OnOe tank reported: "My tracks have been shot off. My turret won't work. I am accounting for a lot of Germans."

Another, which had reported it was on the promenade near the Casino, was warned about a "pillbox on your left."

The Casino was proving a strong fortress and a nearby tobacco factory also was very strongly held.

The Germans had assembled about 100 British prisoners near the Casino, said one tank's radio.

At last the tank radio gave the word everybody had been expecting for some time. The men on the beach and on the promenade and those that had driven into the town had had a hard fight, but they had stuck to it.

"Evacuate," said the radio.

A smoke screen along Pourville beach had already covered the withdrawal of the South Saskatchewan Regiment. Smoke concealed the coast for several miles.

The final drama of the raid, most gripping and intense of the whole operation, came over the tank radio.

Twenty-five minutes later the beach radio reported a tank landing-craft holed and sinking. The voice answering this piece of dire news was quite unchanged.

"Can you see anything coming yet?" asked the tank radio. Four minutes later the radio emitted only a heavy burst of machine-gun fire.

End very near. Another four minutes and I heard: "I am ready by the centre of the tank-landing craft to unload."

Back came the imperturbable answer: "You'll see me yhen the smoke comes in."

Only one more minute—the last: "I have to unload. My guns are gone. I can do no more good on the beach."

The smoke had come in.

LANDING REPULSED ON MAKIN ISLAND JAPANESE REPORT

CLAIM 200 LANDED

Tokyo (from Japanese Broadcasts), Aug. 21 (AP) — A Japanese communique reported today that some 200 American troops affected a landing at dawn August 17 on Makin Island, at the northern tip of the Gilbert Islands. The communique claimed the troops were "repulsed completely." (There was no Allied confirmation of such a landing attempt.)

(The Gilbert Islands are on the Equator 2,400 miles southwest of the Hawaiian Islands. They are a cluster of 16 small islands, with an area in all of 166 square miles.

(Makin Island itself is north of the Equator and about 1,100 miles northeast of the Solomon Islands where United States marines have been consolidating positions won from the Japanese in the first Allied offensive in the Pacific.)

The full communique follows:

"The Japanese garrison on Makin Island at the northern tip of the former British-owned Gilbert Islands, in spite of their numerical inferiority, repulsed completely some 200 American troops who affected a landing at dawn on the island August 17."

The communique was issued by imperial headquarters.

The Gilbert Islands were occupied by Japanese forces at the outset of the war in the Pacific.

Says Spaniards Must Be Ready to Struggle

Vigo, Spain, Aug. 20 (Delayed) — (AP)—Gen. Francisco Franco said in an address tonight that Spaniards must be prepared for an industrial, moral and military struggle, although this "does not mean that we want war."

Franco spoke before a special assembly of Galician syndicated workers, making the trip to Vigo by a destroyer.

"Life is a struggle," he said, "and peace is accidental. Therefore our people must be prepared to struggle, for the people who surrender to an easy and bourgeois life are dead people."

He said the objective was to "have Spain united, great and free."

President Roosevelt Warns Enemy Nations Of "Fearful Retribution"

Washington, Aug. 21 —(AP)— President Roosevelt warned enemy nations in a formal statement today of "fearful retribution" to some for what he called their "barbaric crimes" against civilian populations in Axis-occupied countries.

The president issued his warning after State Secretary Cordell Hull had given him a communication from the Netherlands ambassador and the Yugoslav and Luxembourg ministers calling attention to Nazi slaying of hostages.

Describing these as acts of desperate men, and promising that they would result in fearful retribution, the president said the government of the United States had been receiving information on Axis atrocities from numerous sources and would welcome more.

When the United Nations achieve victory, he asserted, it is their purpose to make appropriate use of the amassed evidence.

The time will come, Mr. Roosevelt said, when the guilty persons will have to stand up in courts of law in countries they now are oppressing and answer for their acts.

Asked at his press conference whether he could commit the people of ravaged countries to acting through courts of law once "they got a chance" at their oppressors, the president admitted probably he could not do so, but said he was expressing a hope judicial processes would prevail.

JAPANESE TROOPS BASED ON TIMOR HEAVILY BOMBED

Allied Pilots Report Jap Soldiers Run for Lives Into Jungle

DUMPS BLOWN UP

Allied Headquarters, Australia, Aug. 21—(CP)—While Allied scouting planes searched the waters around the embattled Solomon Islands for new evidence of Japanese naval activity, bombers made another attack yesterday upon enemy forces based on the island of Timor northwest of Australia.

A communique announcing the raid on Timor said medium bombers had touched off great explosions at the Japanese-occupied town of Maobisse in the interior of the half-Netherlands, half-Portuguese island, indicating that fuel or ammunition dumps had been hit.

All planes returned safely from the mission, said the bulletin, which made no mention of any Japanese aerial opposition.

One pilot returning from the Maobisse raid told of seeing "a lot of Jap soldiers running for their lives for the shelter of the jungle."

The bombers dropped to low levels to attack the place, a native settlement 17 miles south of Dili in the Portuguese part of the island. Diving on their targets, the bombers hit fuel and ammunition dumps and when they pulled out of their dives their gunners peppered objectives with machine-gun bullets.

The only reference to the situation in the Solomons—where Allied bombers attacked Japanese warships the previous day in the Bougainville area at the extreme northern end of the Archipelago—was a terse line in the communique saying:

Marines Mopping Up

"Northeastern sector—reconnaissance activity only."

A spokesman at Gen. Douglas MacArthur's headquarters said, however, that no inferences should be drawn from the lack of activity reported in that sector.

Millard Will Appeal To Prime Minister To Intervene in Dispute

Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., Aug. 21 — (CP)—C. H. Millard, Canadian National Director of the United Steel Workers of America, said today he would appeal to Prime Minister Mackenzie King at once by letter seeking his intervention in the wage disputes which threaten to tie up production at two of Canada's three basic steel producing plants.

Mr. Millard's statement was made after he received word from Sydney, N.S., that U.S.W.A. members of the Dominion Steel and Coal Corp. there voted yesterday for a strike by 3,074 to 38. Earlier this week steel workers at the Algoma Steel Corp. here voted to strike by 3,122 to 22.

GERMAN AGENT FOR LENINGRAD PROVINCE KILLED

Moscow, Aug. 21— (AP) — Red Star reported today that Adolf Beck, German agent for 14,250 acres of Leningrad province farm lands, had been killed by guerillas. The army paper's story said his assistants also were slain, his office burned and farm machinery intended for German seized.

CHINESE FORCES SCORE SUCCESS AT KIWANGFENG

Recapture Most Powerful Stronghold of Japanese in Kiangsi Province

FIRST BY-PASSED

Chungking, Aug. 21—(AP) — An official Chinese military report today said Chinese forces had recaptured Kwangfeng, which the Japanese had developed into one of their most powerful strongholds in Kiangsi Province.

It was stated the recapture had dispelled the threat of the first overland Japanese invasion of Fukien Province.

The Chinese were said to have retaken the city yesterday morning after by-passing it in the Kiangsi campaign in which they had recaptured Kweiki, Shangjao and other points to wrest from the Japanese the control of a 60-mile stretch of the eastern Kiangsi railroad.

Flying Fortresses Attack Jap Ships

New York, Aug. 21—(AP) — A BBC broadcast said today that United States Flying Fortress bombers were reported to have "launched a big attack off the Solomon Islands against Japanese warships." The bradcast heard by CBS said no details had been received.

Demolish Truck Body to Release 3 Injured Persons

Fort Erie, Ont., Aug. 21.—(CP) —Rescued only after the body of the light truck, in which they were proceeding for work at the Fleet Aircraft plant here, was demolished in order to release them, three people are in Douglas Memorial Hospital here today suffering from grave burns and other injuries.

Injured are the driver, Joseph Giovinazzi, 57, badly burned and suffering other bodily injuries: his 18-year-old daughter, Mary, burns and bodily injuries and Emanuel Huffman, 58, left shoulder and several ribs broken, also severe bodily injuries.

The Giovinazzi truck collided with a car driven by Samuel Hare, and overturned, catching fire.

It was with great difficulty the injured were released, Provincial Police who investigated said. He escaped without injury.

Says U-Boat Corner Exists in S. Atlantic

Alexandria, Egypt, Aug. 21—(AP) —A U-Boat "corner" exists in the South Atlantic where five ships were sunk in one day, an American Merchant Captain declared today after bringing his ship to an Egyptian port.

"We only missed getting torpedoed ourselves because we mistakenly altered course instead of following the usual route," he said.

While steering toward a certain port, he said, he saw five lifeboats of survivors from a sunken ship, but an officer in one boat shouted, "don't stop to pick us up. There's a submarine around."

ALLIED MASTERY OF THE AIR OVER EUROPE COMPLETE

500 Planes Make Daylight Sweep Over France Practically Unchallenged

AMIENS OBJECTIVE

London, Aug. 21 (CP) — The clipped wings of the German air force in western Europe ranked today as the first big dividend of Dieppe.

Allied mastery of the air now is complete beyond challenge, not only over Britain and the channel but even deep into enemy territory itself.

This was proved by the extraordinary show of Allied airpower yesterday, with virtually no opposition and apparently without the loss of a single plane, over German-held soil.

In broad daylight, 500 fighters swept across the French coast — where never before had more than 300 planes made such a raid at one time.

R.C.A.F. in Forefront

The R.C.A.F. in the forefront of the air duels over Dieppe on Wednesday again took to the skies. Four squadrons escorted a force of Flying Fortresses, manned by members of the United States army air forces, to Amiens where the big four-engined bombers rained explosives on railway yards without even sighting a Nazi fighter over the target.

The Canadian squadrons were commanded by Sqdn. Ldrs. Keith Hodson of Ottawa, Norm Bretz of Toronto, Knobby Lee of Toronto, and R. B. Newton, an Englishman in the R.A.F.

One Nazi aircraft was shot down during the operation but it was not indicated whether it was destroyed by an escorting Canadian plane or a bomber.

An Unplanned Battle

The air triumph, generally regarded as the biggest of all the successes, was the outcome of an unplanned battle. Thus in an R.A.F.-made crisis, British observers said, the Germans lost more than one-third operational aircraft in the west in one day and now must divert bombers and fighters from the Russian front.

Evidence that the Nazis' were hit a staggering blow to their bomber strength as well as their fighter forces was the feeble counter-punch over Britain the last two nights.

Only Slight Damage

The only appearance of hostile planes last night was over the south coast, British authorities said, and only a few attacked, briefly, causing but slight damage. One was shot down.

An informed British air observer said the Germans' air command was caught napping Wednesday and had to meet hundreds of R.A.F. fighters at first with 50 Messerschmitts "which were swept away like flies."

Later, he said, they called in every plane they could get from the Low Countries and put 400 into the air. Many of these, however, never were able to penetrate the Allied air cordon and either were turned away or shot down.

Munro's Story of Canadian Assault Hailed as One of the Best in War

(By The Canadian Press)

The Canadian soldier, for the first time since 1918, hit the world's front pages today. There were pictures of him, stories of his gallantry under German fire in the commando assault on Dieppe. On top of all the stories was the byline: "By Ross Munro, Canadian Press War Correspondent."

Gangling Ross Munro, fair-haired and 28 years old, who landed under German fire with the Canadian attack specialists Wednesday before Dieppe, scored a great journalistic triumph.

But he will be far more pleased to think that all over the Allied world people are reading about the efficiency and fighting prowess of Canadian soldiers — the men he lives with in England.

Munro's eye-witness story is hailed in newspaper offices as one of the great stories of this war. Distributed throughout the United States by the Associated Press, it appeared on the front pages of hundreds of United States evening papers yesterday. The New York Sun set it under a two-line, six-column headline.

Beside the story were invariably pictures of Canadian troops.

The New York Times and Herald Tribune each used Munro's story on its front page this morning, while the tabloids, the New York News and Daily Mirror, also published his story.

Canadian newspapers gave over their front pages to Munro's stories. The eye-witness account was cabled to Australia and widely displayed there.

Nazis Concentrate 2 Fresh Divisions At Don River Bend

Enemy Forces Which Crossed Near Kletskaya Pinned Down By Bayonet Charges

THOUSANDS KILLED

By HENRY C. CASSIDY
(Associated Press Staff Writer)

Moscow, Aug. 21—(AP)—German forces which crossed the Don River loop southwest of Kletskaya fought violently for a pathway to Stalingrad today, but field dispatches said strong Russian bayonet charges pinned down the vanguard and the complementary thrust from the soutwest was hurled back by counter-attacks.

Izvestia declared that almost all the Germans who sought to establish bridgeheads along the Don bend were exterminated, but two fresh Nazi divisions moved up.

Bodies Cover Ground

This report from the government publication came as the army newspaper Red Star said approaches to the river were covered with the bodies of Germans, Italians, Hungarians and Rumanians even while the crossing effort persisted.

German airmen supported the assault operations.

Soviet air scouts discovered a large concentration of Italians in two settlements and Red Army ground troops were reported to have wiped out virtually all of them in surprise attacks with mortars.

The Axis dead totalled thousands said the Communist newspaper Pravda. It reported 17 tanks led a charge into Red Army positions at one place, but six were destroyed and the others turned back.

Tank Charge Repulsed

Heavy Soviet artillery and Soviet tank crews co-operated to thwart a charge of 35 tanks upon the Russian lines in another sector during the critical battle of the Don Bend.

Reverses again attended the defence of the western and central Caucasus. The Russians said, however, that about 700 Germans were slain south of Krasnodar before a further Soviet retreat in that area and that invaders made "some advance" southeast of Pyatigorsk only at heavy cost.

The mid-day war bulletin said that a Soviet formation annihilated more than 2,500 Germans, destroyed 14 tanks, seven armored cars, 103 trucks and many guns during a three-day engagement in the western theatre south of Krasnodar.

Defenders of the Kletskaya area to the northeast were reported to have caught the Germans off balance with an assault while the invaders were preparing an attack.

"Our men destroyed five German tanks, eight anti-tank guns, 11 machine guns and seven mortars and wiped out 350 Hitlerites," the communique said.

Enemy Transport Sunk

Red navy warships, on patrol against a possible German attempt to supplement Caucasian operations with an invasion from the Crimea, were credited officially with sinking a 7,000-ton Nazi transport in the Black Sea.

25-CENT SUBSIDY WILL BE PAID TO MILK PRODUCERS

Will Ensure Supply During Fall and Winter When a Shortage Might Develop

RETAIL PRICES SET

Ottawa, Aug. 21 —(CP)— The Wartime Prices and Trade Board announced today the payment, effective Sept. 1, of a subsidy of 25 cents per hundred pounds to fluid milk dealers in certain urban markets "where the present supply indicates serious shortage might develop during the fall and winter months."

Concurrently, the board fixed minimum producer prices—on delivered basis—in all markets where the subsidy is payable. These specific prices represent an average increase of about 10 cents per hundred pounds, and the measures taken are designed by their combined effect to increase the returns of fluid milk producers by 35 cents. As result of this action, the board said, it is hoped to encourage milk production in the areas affected so supplies adequate to meet the demand may be maintained next winter and throughout the following season.

District List

The subsidy of 25 cents per 100 pounds of milk over and above minimum prices to producers will be payable in each of the following markets in Ontario, (Partial list): Belleville, Frankford, Kingston and Peterborough.

Announcing the subsidy, Foods Administrator J. G. Taggart said milk sales for the first half of 1942 showed an increase of nearly 10 per cent over those of the corresponding period in 1941, while milk production for all uses showed an increase of less than four per cent.

The greatest increases in fluid milk consumption have occurred, he said, in Halifax and in the industrial areas of Ontario and Quebec.

Mr. Taggart said it is recognized that there is a limit beyond which milk production cannot be expected to increase, in view of the shortage of farm labor, except at the expense of production of other necessary farm products. Accordingly, if present measures do not result in sufficient increases in production, other steps will have to be taken in areas of short supply.

Added to Price Paid

The amount of the subsidy, it was explained, will be added to the price paid the producer by the milk distributor. The distributor will be reimbursed, at the end of each month, for all subsidy payments upon completion of a form approved by the Commodity Prices Stabilization Corporation Limited, and production of a certificate from the appropriate provincial milk control agency that the sub-

An old offender appeared on a charge of intoxication and he was remanded in custody for subsequent disposal. "This is the sixth time this year this man has been picked up in a drunken condition on the street," revealed Acting Chief Harman.

A non-support case, held in camera, concluded the morning's short session.

LT.-COL. MERRITT, HUSBAND OF LOCAL GIRL, WAS AT DIEPPE

One of the outstanding Canadian regiments to take part in the Commando raid on Dieppe early Wednesday morning, the Saskatchewan Regiment was commanded by Lt.-Col. C. C. I. Merritt, husband of Grace Bone, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jamieson Bone, of this city.

According to the Canadian Press story by Ross Munro, C.P. correspondent, who accompanied the Canadians on their Commando raid, the Saskatchewan Regiment gained a good position on high ground and then withdrew to the boats without the loss of a single man. A sergeant explained it this way: "We had no casualties on that return trip because there's a bunch of guys with a lot of guts and good management."

Lt.-Col. Merritt enlisted with the Saskatchewan Regiment and proceeded overseas in December, 1939. Mrs. Merritt and children are at present living in Belleville.

Collapsible Metal Tubes Urgently Needed by Gov't

The need for used metal tubes such as are commonly employed for the distribution of tooth paste, shaving cream, ointments and the like remain as great as ever, the regional office of the Wartime Prices and Trade Board points out, and wherever they remain in the possession of consumers, they should be turned in to the nearest drug store, general store, department store or cigar store without delay.

The tin of which these tubes are composed is badly needed for the manufacture of munitions, and the office suggests that consumers make a practice of surrendering at least one used tube whenever they purchase a new one. This, it holds, will assure a continuous return to the smelters of the metal that is so urgently required for the production of defence goods and equipment.

Belleville Boy Posted to Unit

A Belleville boy, Radio Mechanic Jack Embury, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. D. Embury, 286A William Street, is included on the personnel of the new Royal Canadian Air Force coastal unit posted to Scotland to operate under the coastal command, it has been announced in Ottawa.

The new coastal unit will operate in keeping with the announced expansion of R.C.A.F. squadrons overseas, and according to the announcement the Canadians are equipped with giant, long distance Catalina flying boats.

Jack Embury enlisted with the R.C.A.F. in April, 1941, and after reporting to Manning Pool in Toronto proceeded directly overseas, where he took a post graduate course in radio mechanics in England. Following his graduation he was posted to Scotland and has been there since. His parents in Belleville are proud that their son is associated with the new branch of the R.C.A.F., which is doing a great deal to keep the sea lanes about the "tight little Isle" open.

Airmen Reticent To Talk of Show

(By ALLAN NICKELSON)
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

With the R.C.A.F., Somewhere in England, Aug. 21 (CP Cable) — Two airmen sprawled on the grass of this Canadian fighter station, loose-limbed from relaxing after the day's terrific activity against Nazi fliers and protested, "shucks, we didn't do anything."

They were wiry-haired PO. Gordy Mather of Ottawa, and PO. Maxwell Ports of Weyburn, Sask.

These two youngsters—Mather is 23 and Ports 27—couldn't "do anything" because it wasn't their job to shoot down Jerries.

They were in one squadron whose job was to provide aerial cover.

"The chatter between the fighter pilots over the radio telephone was just like listening to the commentary of a hockey game," Ports said. "When a plane was hit there were shouts of 'look out, get out,' then hollers from another pilot, 'yah, he's made it', as a parachute blossomed beneath the crippled machine."

The pair and their companions "stooged about" over the convoy until the squadron relieved them. They spent a couple of hours in the air each time they went up and Mather was up four times, Ports three times. They came back only when it was necessary to refuel, sometimes with little more than 5 gallons of gas in their tanks.

At the end of the day there was not a man in the squadron who was not out on his feet.

"They had a 'do' for us at the mess but it was washed out because none of us felt like any hilarity," Ports said.

Asked if Wednesday's show was something they would like to go through often, both replied: "Tis only too damn true."

Five Officers Of Essex Scottish Believed Killed

Windsor, Ont., Aug. 21. (CP)—Relatives were advised by the Department of National Defence that five officers of the Essex Scottish Regiment of Windsor are missing and believed killed in action.

The officers are:

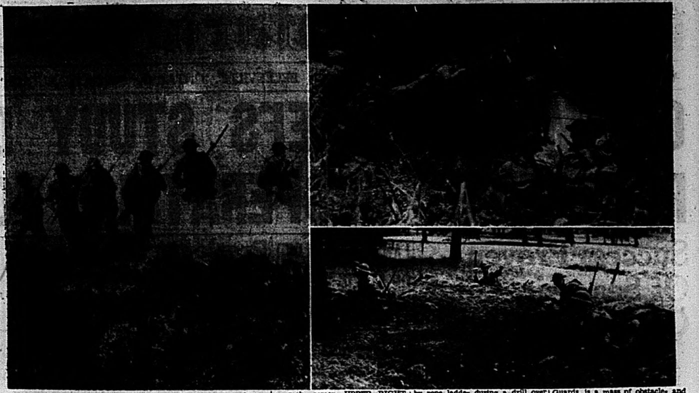
Lt.-Col. Fred K. Jasperson, commanding officer of the regiment.
Major John A. Willis.
Acting Major David Deziel.
Capt. Walter L. McGregor.
Capt. Denis T. Guest.

(Units of the Essex Scottish took a prominent part in Wednesday's raid in Dieppe, forming part of the Canadian Force which landed on the main beach. After attacking over the open promenade, where they lost a few men, they worked through the buildings and warehouses alongside the harbor.

(Pillboxes stopped them for a while, but they fanned out through the central section of the Port and took part in many street fights).

Relatives of members of the regiment had quietly awaited news of casalties since despatches yesterday carried wor dthat the Scottish were in action.

The regiment's reserve unit, the 30th (Reserve) Reconnaissance Battalion observed a one-minute silence during its training activities last night out of respect for the Scottish, who were lost.



Somewhere in Northern Ireland U. S. troops have been holding attack exercises, preparatory, perhaps to their part in the commando raid at Dieppe, France. Men from a "Ranger" battalion participated in that attack. Gas-masked troops are seen at LEFT, advancing through a smoke screen. UPPER RIGHT, in "Tarzan" training for U.S. marines somewhere in Britain, the "leathernecks" are crossing a stream by rope ladder during a drill over the assault course where they set new records. This course, originally designed for the Coldstream Guards, is a mass of obstacles and traps. One of the phases of the training is a pause in the shell-pocked section, LOWER RIGHT, to deliver a few hand grenades.

THE WAR TODAY

By GLENN BABB
(Associated Press Staff Writer)

Winston Churchill's dramatic travels and the magnificent adventure of Dieppe have relegated the war in Russia to smaller headlines this week but have done nothing to alter the fact that the one major front remains that along the Don and in the Caucasus foothills.

Comparatively the other fights are training bouts—preliminaries. There is nothing preliminary or tentative about the battle of the Don Bend. It is make or break for keeps for the two greatest armies in the world.

Today's Moscow communique is one of the best for many days. It recites the usual list of battlefields where thousands of men are dying without any of the oil too frequent admissions of retreat. But it would be a mistake to draw too much encouragement from a single half-day's record. Only last midnight the Russians had to report a damaging series of setbacks: partial survival of a German force that had crossed the Don above Stalingrad; south of Krasnodar "Our troops were forced to withdraw to new positions in one sector"; "the Germans advanced somewhat south east of Pyatigorsk". Only in the Kelnikovski sector, where the southern claw of a Nazi pincer is reaching for Stalingrad, does the stubborn defence continue wholly successful.

City in Peril

Stalingrad has become the symbol of victory in this campaign. There is no blinking the fact that this great industrial city and communications centre, whose sentimental value to the Russians is almost as important as its strategic importance, is in serious peril. The tremendous battle for its possession, already nearly a month old, goes forward in an obscurity little relieved by the communiques—either Russian or German—but the broad outlines of the struggle have been made manifest.

From the northwest Field Marshal Fedor Von Bock having conquered most of the Don Bend, is engaged in a titantic effort to force a crossing of the river only forty miles from the city. From the southwest another powerful armored and infantry force is attacking from the Kotelnikovski area. The Russian admission that not all the enemy who crossed the Don have been wiped out is ominous.

Stalingrad's hour comes just as her sister of the north completes the first year of one of the great sieges of history. It was a year ago today that Hitler's guns took Leningrad under bombardment and the siege lines were drawn about the former capital of the Czars. Russians and their Allies ask fearfully whether the City of Stalin can take its place beside the City of Lenin in the list of heroic last ditches. The answer must be tinged with grave doubts. The city on the Volga has none of the formidable natural barriers that have helped save the city on the Neva.

Meanwhile many questions bearing on this turning point in human affairs haunt an anxious world-wide public. The answers too most probably are as elusive to their leaders as to the rank and file. What of Marshal Timoshenko's reserves? Does the abandonment of so much of the Caucasus and its wealth in oil mean the Red Leader is trading territory for time while he holds to his primary objective preservation of the Red Army as an intact fighting force? How far has Russia's striking power been diminished by the terrible losses of men, of industrial strength, of food-producing lands? Can Allied aid be sufficient to keep the Russians fighting effectively until the British and American armies are ready? Will winter come in time and will it, in the more southerly climates into which Hitler has now penetrated, be as stout an ally to the Russians and all of us as it was a year ago?

He landed on the beach with units of his regiment in the early morning of Wednesday's assault.

Shortly afterward he received a shrapnel wound in the leg and as he could not walk he was carried by his battling comrades to a captured pillbox.

Carried to Shoreline

There the soldier lay while the fortunes of war swayed across the pebble-dappled beaches and through Dieppe's narrow streets. He stayed until mid-afternoon when, their job done, his men came back for him.

Willing hands lifted him and then ducking, scrambling and taking advantage of anything offering even the most meagre cover, the Western Canadian was carried to the shoreline, out into the sea by wading men and placed aboard the landing craft despite heavy enemy fire.

Doctors told of a Canadian private arriving at a dressing station in a pair of army shorts with a blanket around him. It was all he had after being picked out of the sea but as they were fixing him up he stuck out his hand and said, "I've still got this anyway."

He clutched a sea-soaked but still intact snapshot of his wife.

SUCCESS PROVEN

Naval Guns Used Extensively

With a fleet of destroyers lying within a mile of the French coast—right under the German noses—throughout the operation, naval guns were used extensively for smashing up opposition that the infantry could not cope with. One destroyer, the Berkeley, was so badly damaged by enemy attack that she had to be sunk. The majority of her crew were saved.

Artillery officers—in this case called "Forward Observation Officers"—advised formation commanders about possible naval fire and told them whether targets were suitable for their shells.

They sent wireless messages to offshore destroyers when they needed the aid of guns.

An elaborate system of combined operations wireless communications was used by the Royal Canadian Corps of Signals on the raid.

The force headquarters remained at sea aboard destroyers and General Roberts directed the battle by wireless through various signal networks which reached all over the Dieppe area.

The work of the British Commando troops was highly praised by the returning Canadians.

The British outfit, commanded by Lord Lovatt, wiped out 150 Germans when it destroyed a German gun position at Varengeville, west of Dieppe.

Another Commando went in to attack another gun post at Berneval, east of Dieppe, but its ships got tangled up in an accidental naval scrap with some German flak boats.

Decided to Land

The force had to disperse but one young Commando officer and a naval officer in one of the units of 20 landing craft decided to land according to plan.

With a handful of his troops he went ashore and located the Berneval battery. With the force at his disposal he could not attack the battery, but he and his men hid near its position and sniped at it.

This had the desired effect, for the sniping so harassed the gun crews that the guns did not fire throughout the raid despite the fact they were ranged on the Dieppe beach.

A special detachment of the Royal Canadian Engineers was trained for the raid and developed demolition equipment with explosives for use in the particular task assigned to them in helping to destroy Dieppe installations.

Engineers Work Hard

Thes R.C.E. landed on the main beach with the Essex and Hamilton men. They blew up wire obstacles which blocked the infantry, checked the promenade for mine fields and then helped the tanks get through road blocks at street entrances.

There were many cases of valor.

There were the men of the Royals with whom I rode who were turned back from the beach by withering fire from the cliffs.

I left them and transferred twice to other assault boats and heard later that they had regrouped, gone ashore and knocked off the opposition which prevented them from landing at the first attempt. They had been badly cut up in that attempt, too, being under fierce fire for 20 minutes.

Basin Renamed

There were the Fusiliers whose task was to blast German boats in a pool in town. It was a mile from the beach and was called the "Basin Du Canad." The survivors who blew up everything they could renamed it the "Basin Du Canada."

Twelve of them started for the job, but only four arrived. After they had done their task they bumped into eight other French-Canadians but were promptly surrounded and captured.

They had seen the Germans take a dozen of their comrades prisoner and shoot them in the back.

They were luckier.

Their captors merely stripped them of their clothing, down to their underpants and took their boots from them, then left them in charge of one young German soldier who stood behind them with a rifle.

One big French-Canadian got an idea. In broken English he asked the Nazi if he could speak English.

The German said he could a little and the Canadian asked:

"How about a glass of water."

The Nazi was not as tough as the rest. The question got him for a second. He lowered his rifle and promptly found himself at the bottom of a dozen half-naked men.

One of them found a length of pipe and knocked the Nazi's brains out.

Then they ran for it through streets piled with dead Germans and swarming with lively ones.

Hid Among Boulders

They made the cliff-top and hid among boulders there until the re-embark order came and brought them a smoke screen through which they slid to the beach.

As they ran across the shingle to the boats which had come in from their offshore station the big man who had the idea that saved them all stumbled on a wounded officer. He slung him over his shoulder and took him aboard.

They were all still in their underpants and bare-footed. They arrived in port in a strange assortment of togs, sweaters, tankmen's berets and naval uniforms borrowed from the sailors who took them off.

Their outfit is believed to have lost a lot of men, but their casualties were not announced as some may have escaped by some means.

The Canadians carried with them handbills and posters advising the French populations of Dieppe not to try to help them because this was not an invasion—only a visit.

"Frenchmen!" the text read, "this is a surprise stroke, not an invasion. We strongly urge you to take no part and to do nothing that might invite reprisals by the enemy.

"We appeal to your cool-headedness and good sense. When the hour strikes we will notify you. And then will we act side by side for our common victory and your liberty."

Returning Canadians said the warning worked, except in a few isolated instances.

JAPANESE TROOPS

(A communique issued last night by the United States Navy Department in Washington said United States Marines were engaged in mopping up remnants of Japanese forces on islands "recently captured" in the Solomons. It said a Japanese destroyer or cruiser had been set on fire by Allied aircraft and said casual bombardments of Allied shore positions in the Solomons by enemy planes, destroyers and submarines had done only minor damage.

(Previous reports had indicated the Marines had landed on three of the southernmost Solomon Islands and the latest navy communique was generally taken as meaning that the occupation of these bases virtually was completed.)

Dispatches from Auckland, New Zealand, quoted informed sources there as saying the Japanese were busily reorganizing their naval and air forces in the northern Solomons, apparently in preparation for some sort of counterblow against the newly-won Allied footholds to the south.

Japanese land forces in the Solomons, these scurces said, were waging a bitter delaying action in the evident hope of receiving reinforcements, and they declared the outcome still hangs in the balance, with the scale at present tipped in favor of the Allies.

Bob Bowman Says Losses as Heavy As at Hong Kong

London, Aug. 21 (CP)—Bob Bowman, CBC London correspondent, who travelled across the Channel with part of the Calgary Tank Regiment and witnessed the raid on Dieppe from their tank-carrying craft, said in a broadcast to Canada last night that "it seems reasonably certain our losses are as heavy as they were at Hong Kong.

Bowman did not elaborate on the remark other than to refer to Nazi claims that 1,500 prisoners were taken. "We suffered heavy losses," he said. "I saw men die, but I never saw men die with as much bravery."

(The Canadian contingent which reached Hong Kong last November numbered 1,985 officers and men. Shortly after Hong Kong fell Christmas Day, the Japanese claimed Canadian prisoners totalled 1,689.)

Among units in which Bowman said it is feared casualties may be heavy were the Royal Regiment, the Essex Scottish and a regiment of engineers.

The important factor in the raid, he said, was that the landing parties had learned "the secret of German coast defences—and how to break them in future."

As proof that the raid was unexpected, Bowman said the Allied assault boats encountered a German convoy moving down the Channel. He described this as unfortunate since it held up the invasion force temporarily.

Nazis Properly Rattled

Bowman said the Nazis had been "properly rattled" by the operation. This was proved by two contradictory stories German propaganda was circulating—one that the invasion had been in preparation for ten months, and the other that it had been "hastily improvised" as a gesture to Russia.

Bowman related how a colonel of the Hamilton Light Infantry, whom he described as a London man, told his men they were going into action. There were no heroics, no cheers. The men asked questions as a general would—nature of the coast and extent of air protection that would be accorded.

Just after Bowman's boat left the English coast, the Padre gathered the men about him and by the light of a flashlight read from the sixth chapter of Ephesians. (The sixth chapter is an exhortation for obedience and one part says "put on the whole armor of God, that ye may be able to stand against the wiles of the devil. For we wrestle not against flesh and bood, but against principalities, against powers, against the rulers of the darkness of this world, against spiritual wickedness in high places.")

The South Saskatchewan Infantry got ashore safely but the Cameron Highlanders were under fire of six-inch howitzer shells and there were casualties.

Bowman told of listening by short wave to the tank crews talking to one another as they went into action. He heard the captain of one say, "come on over boys, we're killing lots of Heinrichs."

POWER SHORTAGE DURING WINTER IS PREDICTED

Chairman Hogg of Hydro Estimates Shortage Will Be 250,000 H. P.

WILL SUPPLY PLANTS

Port Arthur, Aug. 21 —(CP)—Dr. T. H. Hogg, chairman of the Ontario Hydro-Electric Power Commission, said here last night that demand for electric power has overtaken the supply and that during the winter the Hydro will face a power shortage in Southern Ontario.

Speaking at a dinner meeting of the northwestern section of the Ontario Municipal Electric Association, Dr. Hogg estimated the shortage in Southern Ontario in the winter months will total 250,000 horsepower.

"To meet this shortage it is imperative that some restrictive measures be put into effect whereby certain non-essential uses of electricity will be curtailed," he said.

He stressed that there should be no failure in the supply of power to airplane plants, shipbuilding yards, tank and gun factories, military training centres and scores of other activities engaged in essential war work.

Establish New System

The Dominion Power Controller, H. J. Symington, is establishing an equitable system of power regulation which would be applied so that plants engaged in war industry would be accorded preference, Dr. Hogg said. It is expected the initial restrictions will be put into effect some time next month.

"It is also expected, although I can give you no assurance of this, that the restrictions will be imposed in the first place in power shortage areas which, in the case of Ontario, will be what we term the Southern Ontario area, including all of the Niagara system, all Eastern Ontario system and the Georgian Bay system."

In outlining the province's power system, Dr. Hogg said the Ogoki Diversion project in north-western Ontario is proceeding rapidly.

As far as construction was concerned, Ogoki water should be flowing in the Nipigon River by this time next year, he said, but the commission "has not yet received the necessary approval of this major project from the Dominion government under the Navigable Waters Protection Act."

The project was designed to divert 4,000 cubic feet per second from the Ogoki to Lake Nipigon and the Great Lakes system, providing for an increase of about 290,000 additional horsepower.

Tank Cars Freed By Recent Order

Washington, Aug. 1 —(AP)—Movement of petroleum products by tank car in 20 middle and south-western states has been ordered stopped immediately, Representative Edith Nourse Rogers (Rep.-Mass.) said today she had been informed by the petroleum co-ordinator's office.

Mrs. Rogers said that the move would free from 6,000 to 7,000 tank cars for use in transporting gasoline, oil, and fuel oil to the rationed United States east coast.

The directive, Mrs. Rogers said, forces the affected area to rely entirely on pipelines, trucks, and barges for its oil supplies.

She described it as a new and important step in the effort to ration transportation facilities so that the industrial east will have enough fuel oil and gasoline for this winter. Mrs. Rogers said she did not know which states were involved.

WANTED TO PAY FOR GAS

Kansas City, Aug. 21 (AP)—Herman Westhoff, postman on vacation, walked three miles from his home to a service station, and three miles back again. He wanted to pay for the gasoline he had used in recent days. He couldn't use the car for the trip—his tires had given out.

Rangers Receive Baptism of Fire In Dieppe Raid

(By EDWARD E. BOMAR)

The seeming certainty that both the raid on Dieppe and the Solomon Islands advance were mere samples of blows-to-come emphasized the reassuring vigor with which American forces are being whipped into shape for 1942-43 style offensive warfare.

The Rangers who received their baptism of fire with Canadian, British and French comrades-in-arms at Dieppe will teach their tactics to still more American fighting men, says Under-Secretary Robert P. Patterson of the War Department.

Such post-graduate instruction is established and proven practice. Already United States army tank men are passing on to the armored forces at home the benefit of first-hand experience with British forces in the North African desert. Pilots back from the Southwest Pacific are teaching front line air war tactics to Neophyte fliers.

Almost every offensive possibility open to the United Nations outside of Russia calls for teamwork between ground, air and sea forces on an unprecedented scale, it is now apparent.

Intensive Training

For the combined aerial and amphibian operations demanded for victory American men-in-arms are being trained as intensively as were the Nazis and Japanese in advance of their conquests, and very likely in greater numbers.

Just what is being undertaken and accomplished has been disclosed only guardedly and piecemeal thus far. The Rangers were not heard of until they actually went into action at Dieppe. They are a relatively small vanguard of the American version of the commandos.

Incidentally, both the Army and Marines hope to win acceptance of other popular names for their crack outfits, leaving the term "Commando" to the British Empire.

A new unit of combat engineers being trained in the Pacific Northwest is known as the American Pioneers. Ultimately there will be a suitable nickname for the newly organized Special Service Command which includes a contingent of Canadians and is to be made up entirely of hand-picked commissioned and non-commissioned officers.

The preparations for second fronts in Europe and the Pacific have many and confusing ramifications. There is an amphibious command of the army ground forces, and a special amphibian command of engineer troops recruited from men skilled in handling small craft of all kinds.

A new army air-borne command, which includes paratroopers and an initial force of two entire divisions to be sped to scenes of action by transport plane and glider, operates with a troop-carrying command of the air forces.

Fighting on both land and sea is, of course, the very nature of the United States Marine Corps, whose prowess is being displayed in dislodging the Japanese invaders from the Solomon Islands.

It is easy to share the confidence of American fighting men that before the conflict is much older they will make telling and distinctive contributions to the Commando methods of warfare.

SHIPPING WARNED

Norfolk, Va., Aug. 21 (AP)—The United States navy is warning shipping to beware of "what may appear to be floating pumpkins" in the Atlantic. They may be mines planted by Axis submarines. In a bulletin broadcast by the hydrographical office, such an object was reported sighted in latitude 29.18 north, longiture 88.42 west.

MUNRO'S STORY

"The Associated Press is proud indeed to carry this story throughout its service, adding as it does a striking chapter to the courageous and rescourceful epic of correspondents covering the war on all fronts.

"Munro exemplifies the highest type of reportorial craftsmanship among men who—like AP's Larry Allen, Clark Lee and Yates McDaniel — have shared in writing some of the most brilliant chapters in war journalism."

In reply Mr. McNeil noted the commando eye-witness story by the AP's Drew Middleton also was heavily played in Canadian and United States papers yesterday, and added: "Accept in turn our felicitations on Drew Middleton's graphic story. His name and Munro's will be added to the long honor roll of war correspondents whom they match in heroism, loyalty and craftsmanship."

Editor and publisher in New York, Journalism's Trade Magazine, sought the text of Munro's story and his picture. The picture went out over the wirephoto network of the Associated Press.

Spoke Over Radio

Munro was on the air. Many Canadian radio stations put on a 15-minute dramatization of his eye-witness story. He spoke to Canada from London last night for the Canadian Broadcasting Co.

Allen Bill, managing editor of the Calgary Herald who was a fellow war correspondent with Munro in England for several months, cabled the CP correspondent: "Another swell job under Spitsbergen-Dieppe Munro's web belt."

D. B. Rogers, editor of the Regina Leader-Post who met Munro when he made a bomber trip to England last year, described his story as an "epic."

Robert Bunnelle, chief of the AP's London staff of top-flight correspondents, watched Munro batting out his story and called it "one of the best stories of the war."

And Munro's London boss, D. E. (Ernie) Burritt, bureau superintendent, was pleased. He said: "There may possibly be a more conscientious war reporter alive. But, if there is, I don't want to meet him. He wouldn't be human."

Canadians Seen in Action

A Canadian Press correspondent who has been covering the news of the Canadian troops overseas, was with the Canadians in the raid on Dieppe and from his personal observation was able to tell a graphic story of the events of that memorable day, Wednesday, August 19th, when Canadians had their first opportunity of meeting the enemy on protected terrain. There he saw deeds of heroism and devotion performed by the young men of this country and was able to portray them for the Canadian people. His story, unfolded with the gift of a trained observer, and appearing in yesterday's newspapers revealed in every word that it had its origin under fire. Mr. Munro landed on the beach at Dieppe and saw at first hand the impact of Canadian fighters against the enemy. The scene he pictured is unforgettable.

Drew Middleton of the Associated Press also went through the battle, witnessing the swiftly moving panorama of modern war from a vessel off-shore one of the American newsmen on the scene and well known to readers, but he was not permitted to land. He was able to give another aspect of the assault by the commandos.

Modern war correspondents must run into peril to bring back the picture of war. The people appreciate the pictures which these men brought back showing Canada's young men with the Britons, Americans and Free French, carrying their assault against the enemy to win a great victory. The story of their deeds will inspire the people at home to emulate in their devotion to the Allied cause in as far as is possible the golden deeds of the men who there struggled for freedom's cause. Realization of their heroism and sacrifice and success must stimulate to action. The war correspondent at ever-present personal risk in the great hazards of war is able to help the people at home to a true appraisal of what their sons are doing. He will help them to do what Defence Minister Ralston sees as the duty of Canadians at home when he said on Wednesday:

"It is ours to be worthy of our young men, of the youths who fought today at Dieppe and, who, with the same ardour and stoutness of heart, face with confidence the battles of the future. So it must never be said of us that we gave them cause to falter . . . The real test of whether the price was great or small lies in the hearts of the people of Canada. Against the cost there has to be placed the right of men and women and little children to live in freedom as compared with the prospect of enslavement and degeneration under the heel of German tyrants."

The war correspondent helps to bring to everyone a sense of his duty as he comprehends what the forces in the army, navy and air force are doing for Canada, Britain and the world.

The Moscow Conference

Prime Minister Churchill has become the great traveller among the leaders of mankind. He has been much about the world as a soldier in his youth and an adult and latterly as prime minister of Britain. He met the President of the United States on the Atlantic when the Atlantic Charter was drawn up and again when he was in Washington. Now he has been in the Middle East in Cairo and in the heart of Russia as well, when he met Premier Joseph Stalin in Moscow. Mr. Churchill is a great world figure with a broad outlook and a wide experience. He is also the ideal Britisher and symbolizes the British spirit. To Mr. Churchill the meeting offered the first opportunity to meet the great Russian leader and to Mr. Stalin it offered the opportunity of greeting and entertaining in his own great country the leader of the British democracy. It was a journey that Mr. Churchill known to the world for his cosmopolitan interest enjoyed. That meeting in Moscow will surely tell a tale of great import in military and in other aspects. The western world met the great representative of the powerful nation which covers a large part of Europe and Asia. Truly by this journey by air the West met the Near East and Far East as respects Russia in Asia.

Is this my road to Mandalay?
Where I have sung my song, and then
Looked up to skies one summer day,
And off to where the fishes play,
And prayed for endless peace for men?.

Tell me, can this be Mandalay?
All tense and rigid now with fear,
Scanning horizons black with death,
While Buddhists chant with bated breath
And call on charms of yesteryear?

Ah, yes, this must be Mandalay!
Where dawn rolls out of China Bay,
Where East and West must surely meet,
And treachery will taste defeat,
And leave my Burmese love to pray.

Then pray, my Supiyawlat, kneel
And thank whatever gods you may
For British valour, Yankee worth,
And God's good, ever-blooming earth,
For palms, and rice and Mandalay.

DON'T "LET GEORGE DO IT"

It is no longer egotism or bad taste to think and talk only in the first person singular Confronted with the task we have today, it is more than bad taste, it is downright stupidity to use any pronoun other than "I." Never before in the history of the world has the independent thought and conscience of every human being been so necessary and important. "George"—the other guy, can't win this war. "I" can.

It is not enough to admire, aid and abet the other fellow. His money, his muscles, his life, won't do instead. It is not enough to go about overflowing with vague intentions, with half-formed plans for action. The danger is now, the need is urgent and no one else can do the job.

There is no conceit in believing that eash of us is vitally important in the present crisis. It has been truly said that a nation is made great not by its fruitful acres, but by the men who cultivate them; not by its mines but by the men who work them; not by its railways but by the men who build and run them. If you are a powerful executive, an outstanding public figure, an eminent statesman, your environment is large; if you are obscure, it is small. In the one case your field of action is large; in the other small. But remember the evil which threatens us though it is vast and terrifying, arose from small evils added together. The power to crush it will arise from small strengths added together. Your strength and mine.

The future of our nation, of the whole of civilization depends on the initiative, courage and stamina of each and every individual. The British Empire and America have been the Citadel of Freedom. It is the first person singular who can defend that citadel. Ours is the responsibility and our efforts, our accomplishments, our determination will balance the scales. Our fierce and sacred resolve should be—"I will make the whole war and the duty of beating the enemy my duty—I refuse to let George do it! With God's help, and so far as it lie swith me, I WILL WIN THE WAR!"—Ediphone

In a baseball match here between the Belleville Maple Leafs and a team from Peterboro, the result was an easy victory for the Belleville boys, the score being 15 to 9. "Daddy" Downs ran about the field like a school boy let loose from his tasks; he can play ball without over exertion and played well on first base. The only Bradford was in the box and he was held well by Howe although they had played little together and Howe does not pretend to be a catcher. Charles Thompson on third base did himself justice, as did Stovel on second and Lynch at short stop. The outfield had little to do, but they did that little well. The following composed the teams: Belleville: Thompson, Gibson, Burns, Stovel, Cronkright, Bradford, Downs, Howe and Lynch. Peterzoro: Heaps, McCabe, O'Brien, Evans, Lipsett, Hay, Lyle, Gibson and Brennan. The battery work of McCabe and O'Brien for Peterboro was good. The umpire was Freeman McMullen.

Laymen's League Against Epilepsy Incorporated

One of my early recollections is seeing a woman struggling in the arms of her husband and a friend as she was being carried out of a large gathering. It was whispered that she was having an epileptic fit that nothing could be done to prevent the fits and that to prevent her from injuring herself was the only possible treatment.

When I think of that scene and know that to-day these scenes are becoming few and far between, and that while the cause of epilepsy is unknown, methods of preventing it entirely or in part are known it is very gratifying.

The measures are now used in the treatment of epilepsy and the same treatment is now general throughout the world, are:

1.—Cut down on all starch foods—potatoes, bread, sugar, pastry.

2.—Cut down on all liquids.

3.—Increase the fat foods—cream, butter, egg yolks, nuts, fat meats.

4.—Regular doses of phenobarbital or dilantin sodium as prescribed by the physician.

Where there is a history of a fall on the head before the onset of the epileptic attacks, the X-rays are used to try to locate the injury.

Fortunately for epileptic patients an organization has been founded at Harvard University known as Laymen's League Against Epilepsy Incorporated. This organization has for its object the investigation as to the cause or causes of epilepsy and to give to epileptics the latest results of these investigations. A further object is to try to show the patients and the public that this ailment deserves the same consideration as does tuberculosis, diabetes, deafness or lameness.

In their circular, the League shows a huge crowd under which is "Do you know that one in every ten in a crowd like this has a predisposition to epilepsy, (b) that one in 200 actually has epilepsy, (c) that epilepsy is as prevalent as tuberculosis or diabetes?"

The league has published a book by Dr. W. G. Lennox, "Science and Seizures" which can be read with profit by the families of epileptics and the public generally.

When we realize that even in the present day bright, even brilliant, children are unable to attend school, and skilled mechanics are unable to obtain work because of this ailment, all time and money spent in investigating the cause or causes of epilepsy will pay a large dividend not only in happiness but in actual financial returns.

A different world the sages say 'twill be
When peace is won.
Things as they were again we'll never see,
Says many a one.
But when the tyrant frets the world no more
Parents will teach their children, as before.

War ruins buildings and lays waste the towns
And maims and kills.
Kings are defeated and give up their crowns,
As gunfire wills,
But children still at night will kneel in prayer
And ask for blessing here and everywhere.

YOU'D BE SURPRISED!

VICE-PRESIDENT'S VOTE

Recently Vice President Henry A. Wallace, as President of the U. S. Senate, cast a vote that was not required to change the result.

The proposal before the senate was an amendment to the Florida pipeline and barge canal bill offered by Senator Josiah W. Bailey of North Carolina.

After the record vote was taken, according to the Congressional Record, the Vice President announced:

"On this vote the yeas are 30 and the nays are 30. The Senate being equally divided, the Chair votes in the negative."

"So Mr. Bailey's amendment was rejected," explains the Record.

Later it was called to the Vice President's attention that his negative vote did not alter the result, because a tie vote is equivalent to a negative vote under the rules of the Senate.

Vice President Wallace, however, was entitled to vote if he wished to do so and was perfectly within his constitutional rights.

"The Vice President of the United States," says Article 1, Section 3 of the Federal Constitution, "shall be President of the Senate, but shall have no vote, unless they be equally divided."

A negative vote cast by the Vice President, while it does not alter the result, does make a public record of how the Vice President feels regarding the proposal on which the Senate is evenly divided.

Perhaps Vice President Wallace was not so dumb in the case under consideration as some of his well-meaning critics thought he was.

The Congressional Record shows many instances where Vice Presidents have voted and broken equal divisions of the Senate, but it is an interesting fact that no important judicial decisions have been made regarding the legality of the votes broken by a Vice President.

Although by virtue of his office the Vice President is President of the Senate, he is not a member of the Senate and has no vote except in case of a tie.

The proceeds were further swelled when the teacher, Mrs. Bruce Hart and Mrs. Sherman Steele sponsored a dance Wednesday night at Lake-on-the-Mountain pavilion. This brought the total proceeds to $19.20 which are being forwarded to the Evening Telegram's B. W. V. Fund.

The rug was drawn for at the dance and won by Miss Jennie Sanberg who has also assisted the B. W. V. Fund by making lovely articles for draws.

New Production Record

With a record of 25,547 pounds of milk in 365 days, a nine-year-old Holstein cow, Minnie Abekerk Vale, owned by Amos Hudgin and Brian Dodds, has established a new high mark for milk production in Prince Edward County. The former record was exceeded by more than 2,000 pounds. Under R. O. P. the champion was milked twice a day with a high production of 108 pounds in one day and still milking 51 pounds when the test was finished. Butter fat totalled 803 pounds.

This cow is a consistent producer. As an eight-year-old she had a record of 20,613 pounds of milk and 659 pounds fat, making a total of 46,160 pounds milk and 1,462 pounds fat in two years. Four daughters of this outstanding animal are in the Hudgin and Dodds herd.

When Woman's Hair Turns Grey

Lucille Ball has beautiful blonde hair

By HELEN FOLLETT

WHETHER or not some anxiety causes the hair to turn grey nobody knows definitely. We do know that there are more than the usual number of prematurely grey domes. The war may have something to do with it.

Color of the hair is produced by pigment cells within the transparent shafts. When they disappear, the hair is white. What causes them to vanish? Advance of years does away with them in most cases, but prematurely grey tresses are a problem.

A woman stands at the beauty crossroads. Will she get her hair ducked in the dye pot or will she accept the silvery threads? It's up to her ;it is her problem. But before she makes the date at the salon she should know what she's in for.

The first dyeing treatment, if done by an experienced operator, will be satisfactory. Hair coloring has been developed to a fine art. But there is a catch. Madame Natre does not co-operate. The white threads keep pushing out from the scalp. There they are, big as life.

If the hair grows fast, there may be an inch of snowy shafts in two month's time. That means that the frequent touch-up is necessary. One becomes a slave to the dye pot.

Home treatments are a mistake unless just a few grey hairs at the temples are to be darkened. That trick can be achieved easily enough. Some women apply mascara which, of course, washes out during the next shampoo, but applications of this coloring agent are easily made.

Bleaching also is a job for the expert, not for the experimenting amateur. Hair can stand just so much peroxide and ammonia and no more. Over-bleaching makes the hair crisp, without character, of an unattractive color. It is when bleaches or dyes overlap that troubles begin.

Dr. and Mrs. Helliwell Honored By Their Friends at Foxboro

On the evening of Tuesday, Aug. 18th., friends of Doctor and Mrs. Helliwell of Foxboro met at their home to honor them on the occasion of their departure for Stirling where Dr. Helliwell is now practising.

The removal of this family is a distinct loss to the community. Dr. Helliwell, a veteran of the Great War, served during the present conflict until, due to an unfortunate accident, he was given an honorable discharge. While in Foxboro he taught in the Sunday School and was an active and valued member of the church. Mrs. Helliwell was a faithful member of the W. A. and for the past two years has been a capable and exceptionally zealous president of the W.M.S. Misses Hildergarde, Jean and Mary will be greatly missed from the choir, Sunday School and Y.P.U.

During the evening Dr. and Mrs. Helliwell were presented with a walnut coffee table, each daughter with a photograph album and the youngest son, Grant, with a flashlight.

How Three Women Made Home Better Place to be

Remember the old song that perhaps your dad sang, with lines full of protests like "Nothing to wear but clothes, nothing to blow but nose"? Frank Daniels, who was really a great comedian, made it popular.

It has taken World War No. 2 to make true for most of us a line of this ditty: "Nowhere to go but home". Wives have put their minds to work, as they've done from the beginning of time, to make this condition more bearable. One of them wrote to me the other day about tne means two of her neighbors and herself hit upon.

These three women lived in adjoining houses in a suburb of a large city. They were friendly, their children about the same age, and all did Red Cross work. It was at one of these Red Cross classes that the new idea was born.

Mr. B. said as she rolled a bandage: "The fences positively must go. No one could have a good time in a backyard twenty-two feet wide, but take down the other two fences and you've got sixty-six feet, big enough to fit up with a grill, a couple of gliders and umbrellas.

"If you took in Mrs. D's yard, we'd have eighty-eight feet.

"Let's see how the experiment of the three yards turns out first, before we add a fourth. And how about our husbands?"

There isn't space to give in full my correspondent's letters. Suffice to say that the husbands were cajoled, pampered, even bullied perhaps until they agreed to the experiment of removing the fences and having a joint backyard big enough to turn around in and provide space for recreations.

The women were sensible enough to pool their resources for equipment. They planted shady-nook grass and morning glory vines near fences. These spring up almost as quickly as Jack's Beanstalk. They weren't too economical about the grill they bought, deciding that one really good one would be better than three of the cheaper type. There was a camp chef's outfit that would beguile any husband into imagining himself a chef and taking a turn over the charcoal briquettes. There was game equipment.

Sometimes the three neighbours clubbed together for a steak treat. Again when economy seemed the better part of wisdom, each family had his own hamburgers or frankfurters. The children loved roasting potatoes—very unevenly, if the truth must be told. But there was always a grand dish of salad and fruits in season and a succession of birthday cakes.

There was at first one, and afterwards two, special absolutely necessary gadgets. These the neighbors called the "bug lamps". When lighted they drew the pests who singed their wings true to the proverb. These neighbors were all pretty good friends of some years standing. The experiment worked in their case and it's decidedly worth trying now that there's "No place to go but home".

MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

Proper Attire for a Wedding Reception

Dear Mrs. Beeckman.

1.—I would like information about the proper attire for a wedding reception. For instance, what would a man and a women wear when they are attending a wedding in the later afternoon and then going on to a reception where there will be dancing?

Also how about a morning wedding, followed by breakfast, or a late morning wedding followed by luncheon? (For both men an women.)

2.—Are hats always worn by women in church?

E. R.

1.—First, the thing to remember is that it is the hour of the ceremony. .not the hour of the reception directly following the ceremony . . for which we should dress.

For a wedding for which the ceremony-hour is in the morning or in the afternoon, a woman guest wears street clothes suitable to the season of the year. . . a dressmaker suit or an afternoon dress (with when necessary, a dress coat), hat accessories to match or contrast, and, if she wishes, a corsage. This is the proper attire for a formal, semi-formal, or informal wedding. For a formal evening wedding, the woman guest wears an evening dress and wrap. For a small informal evening wedding, she would wear either an afternoon dress or, perhaps, a dinner suit and hat.

For a formal day-time wedding, a man guest wears, if it is convenient, formal day clothes (cutaway coat, dark striped trousers and formal accessories), or Oxford jacket with striped trousers. For a formal wedding (when he doesn't find it convenient to dress formally) or for a semi-formal or informal wedding, he wears a dark business suit. In summer he can wear a white linen or flannel suit, or white flannel trousers and dark coat, preferably dark blue.

For a formal evening wedding, a man guest wears formal evening attire ("tails", white tie); for an informal ceremony, either dinner jacket or dark business suit.

2.—Hats are always worn by women in church at day-time weddings. And some kind of headdress must be worn for evening weddings in churches of some denominations.

Wedding Announcement Form

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Because my fiancee is in the Army, I moved to a city near him six months ago. Now we have decided to be married here soon. We would like to send wedding announcements, particularly to our relatives and friends "back home".

Since neither my parents nor his are present, would it be proper for us to have the announcements engraved in the usual form. . . . "Mr. and Mrs. John Smith announce the marriage of their daughter", and so forth? Or what form would you suggest that we use?

R. T.

Your marriage announcements should be sent out in the names of your mother and father, even though they may not be present at the ceremony.

HEALTH CHATS

President, Chicago Board of Health

First Aiders Must Be Careful In Cases of Broken Bones

The teaching of principles of First Aid to the injured should be as important in school training as any subject in the curriculum. The reason for this statement is apparent. There are about ten million people involved in accidents each year. Of course, it is impossible for physicians to be immediately available at all serious accidents. So, if all persons were acquainted with proper methods of rendering First Aid, many lives could be saved and much permanent damage prevented.

It is particularly important that the proper First Aid be given in cases of broken bones or fractures. According to Dr. Herman C. Schuman of Milwaukee, one important thing to remember is that no person who has suffered a fracture of a large bone should ever be moved until a splint has been put on. Failure to apply a splint may cause the patient a great deal of pain and may even result in shock or collapse.

The use of improper First Aid measures, on the other hand, may do a great deal of harm. Persons should be taught not to do anything when they are in doubt as to proper thing to do. When fractures occur, the proper course of procedure is to cover the injured person, keep him warm, then examine him gently, and finally put on a splint so that he may be transferred to a hospital.

Of course, if a physician is present, he will make an examination to determine the injury. The clothes of the patient may be cut away to expose a bleeding area. Then a pressure bandage may be put on to control the bleeding. If a tourniquet is necessary, care should be taken to loosen it every 30 to 45 minutes until it can be permanently removed. A tourniquet is an appliance used to compress a blood vessel so as to control bleeding. It usually consists of a tight bandage or other material wrapped around the arm or leg above the point of bleeding. If no sterile dressings are available, a clean handkerchief may be used to cover an open wound.

If it is suspected that the spine has been broken, the patient is gently rolled onto his abdomen by the doctor and, if possible, stretching is applied to the head or under the arms and to the legs.

Of course, none of these procedures should be carried out except under the direction of a physician. The patient, according to Dr. Schum, may be then transported on the back seat of an automobile or on a blanket which is held tight. He should be handled and moved as little as opssible. Once the patient reaches the hospital, X-rays may be taken to determine the exact location and the extent of injury, and the proper treatment may als be carried out. First Aid dressings are removed; the wound is thoroughly cleansed with soap and water; damaged tissues are cut away and sterile dressings and a cast put on if needed. Sulfanilamide may be given by mouth and applied directly to the wound if it is badly contaminated.

May Soon Call Married Men

Albany, N.Y., Aug. 21— (AP) — Drafting of New York married men is "not far off," the State Selective Service Director, Brig.-Gen. Ames T. Brown, warns. It is impossible to govern inductions so each board exhausts a category and approaches the next with exactly the same speed, Brown says, "but it is no secret the time is not far off" when married registrants will be called for active military service.

ON THE RECORD

By DOROTHY THOMPSON

The Remarkable Phenomenon of Mr. Churchill

New York, Aug. 21 — Hope for a renaissance of Britain arises from contemplation of the figure of Mr. Churchill. The oldest of the Allied statesmen, he appears to be the youngest. For he has the chief characteristic of youth, which is elasticity. The face of his youngest grandson is still remarkably like his own.

No statesman has inherited such a difficult situation. Called to the leadership of the nation in its most desperate moment, after years in which the gravest domestic and Imperial problems had been postponed, while England lived in a kind of frozen suspension between a great past and an unborn future, Mr. Churchill had to deal not only with an almost lost war, but with an Empire threatened by disintegration, and an internal social situation demanding radical reform.

His tasks were, first, to create a strong home front; second, to strengthen the ties binding the Empire; third, to find allies.

He could not undertake these things step by step. He had to do them all at once. And he had not to lose the war. When Mr. Churchill took the leadership it was not a question of winning the war; it was a question of not losing it

Like Circus Directer.

Mr. Churchill has had to be the director of a three-ring circus. None of the three performances has been perfect. But all three rings have been kept going. His leadership created the most homogeneous and courageous Britain which the world has seen in many decades; the Empire still stands, and the alliance is world-wide, and of the most profound political as well as military significance.

But none of this could have been done if Mr. Churchill himself had not shown enormous intellectual elasticity. The extent to which this "Old Tory" of nearly seventy-one years has cast off his own past, and turned his face squarely toward the future, is one of the miracles of these times. No one with a scrap of artistic sensibility can fail to be moved and impressed.

It is a supreme rule for every statesman not to leave his country in a dangerous moment, for his position may be endangered in his absence. Mr. Churchill has disregarded the rule. Mr. Churchill has asked himself: At what point on this globe must the critical decision of this moment be taken—and there he has gone; to mid-Atlantic for the Atlantic Charter meeting; twice in Washington; and now to Moscow—but not directly; via Cairo; via the chief danger points of the war at this moment.

Mr. Churchill is by blood, breeding and tradition, a Tory and an Imperialist. But he has a brain—an active, scintillating, courageous intelligence. History, for Mr. Churchill is never finished; the final word is never written. "The old order changeth, yielding place to new." And Mr. Churchill changes with the observations registered by his intelligence.

He sent Sir Stafford Cripps to Moscow—and apparently the mission failed. But it didn't—as the months passed. He sent Sir Stafford Cripps to India—and the mission failed. But it is too early to write that statement as the last word.

The alliance with the United States, Russia and China, cannot fail to have immense repercussions on both the domestic and imperial life of Britain. Mr. Churchill knows it and does not totter with horror. The knell of feudalism rings in England, and the son of the Duke of Marlborough hardly listens.

He travels, but without an umbrella, and returns, promising not too much. Chamberlain went to Berchtesgaden and the last man in the street felt the humiliation. Churchill goes to Russia, and we read the remarkable statement by Mr. Churchill himself, that the discussion was "comradely."

He is moved neither by the spectre of Communism, which haunts a few of his class, nor the spectre of an Americanism inheriting the Anglo-Saxon world, which haunts still others. He is too rooted in British tradition and history to believe that British Socialism will ever be like Russian Socialism. And he happens to love America—which is a great help.

If the British Empire is bound to undergo a profound reformation—as it certainly is — Mr. Churchill knows that it has served a purpose in time, and that the world concept that it has created inspires the newly forming world, even among those who have rebelled against the Empire. And so a courageous imagination is confident that Britain has a mission still, and a nobler one than in the past. That is his conviction, his unwavering faith.

The historical sense premeates everything he does. He is aware of the epochal historical moment. He meets it with what is least expected from a British Tory—humility. He is not personally humble; he is humble before the events. Actually an enormous pride moves him—the proud intention that Britain shall play a noble role. And in his pride there is no trace of vanity.

This is the man who met Stalin in the Kremlin. What a meeting of two worlds! Yet it is reported that it was a happy meeting. And I believe it. For it was a meeting between two desperately serious and remarkably courageous men.

Mr. Churchill has always been criticised by the Left. But, when the history of our century is written, I am sure that Mr. Churchill will be recognized as one of the moving forces of the age, having contributed more to its evolution and even revolution than all the progressive doctrinaires.

Zellers Advance to Finals In Ladies' Softball League Defeating Corbins in 3rd Game

Chuck Barnett's Crew Score Eleven Runs in Third Frame to Cinch Pastime

SCORE IS 21-8

Racking up eleven runs in the third inning the league champion Zellers advanced to the Belleville Ladies' Softball League finals by downing the Corbin "lockmakers" 21 to 8 in a saw-off game of a best-in-three series. The Zellers now meet the strong Deacon A.C. lassies in the league championship of a best-in-five series commencing next Tuesday.

Things went along rather evenly for the initial two frames last night with Zellers pushing over four runs in the initial frame to take an advantage, as the Corbin gals had racked up a brace of counters in the opening stanza.

The bust-up came in the bottom half of the third when the Zellers counted eleven runs and literally coasted in to win as the "lockmakers" passed into oblivion and elimination. It was all started with "Pee Wee" Colden's circuit blow and before the dust of battle had subsided the Zellers had shoved across 11 runs which was just enough to win. In a seven inning contest the Zellers scored runs in four of the six frames they faced Ev. Fitzgibbon, while the "lockmakers" only scored runs in two frames off Bessie Doolittle's deliveries, getting two in the second and six in the fifth.

"PEE WEE"

Defensively the league champions played strong ball behind their pitcher, while the Corbins literally fell to pieces and booted infield hits for what proved extra base advances for the winners. Pauline Colden had a perfect night at bat for the winners getting four hits in as many trips to the bat. Pete Haslip and Helen Garrow following with timely base knocks. Cook and Balyx wielded the most potent bats for the eliminated Corbins.

The lineups:

Zellers: Colden 2b; Clarke rf; Haslip cf; Donovan ss; Garrow 1b; Bennett 3b; Douglas lf; Findall rf and Doolittle p.

Corbins: Reid ss; B. Zebedee 3b; Barnhardt cf; Blake lf; Elliott 1b; Cook rf; Balyx 2b; M. Zebedee c and Fitzgibbon p.

Score by innings:

Corbins .... 020 060 0— 8 runs
Zellers .... 41 11 005 x—21 runs

Umpires—Bawden and Pointer.

Today's guest star:

Howard Preston, Cleveland News—"Cleveland wins a second-place award in a national contest for the elimination of needless noise and it is understood that the fact that Indian rooters had nothing to cheer about this year didn't influence the achievement."

Helen Garrow, one of the original members of the Zellers girls' softball team now in the city league finals. Moved from shortstop to first base Miss Garrow has helped the league champions defensively to advance to the league finals versus the torrid Deacon A.C. nine in the league finals.

Brooklyn Hurler Comes Close to Hurling No-Hit No-Run Contest

HOLD 7-GAME LEAD

By AUSTIN BEALMEAR
Association Press Sports Writer

Brooklyn Dodgers still have a little matter to settle with St. Louis Cardinals before they will be ready for the World Series, but their ace right-hander, Whitlow Wyatt, is as fully prepared for the October classic today as he can ever hope to be.

Wyatt, who never has pitched a no-hit game in his dozen years around the major leagues, came as close as possible without actually achieving it yesterday when he let New York Giants down with one blow as the Dodgers triumphed, 2-1, in a twilight-arc light game.

His only mistake was in trying to throw a fast one past big John Mize, who demonstrated that he has recovered from a recent injury by parking the ball behind the centre field score board for his 20th home run.

In compiling his 15th victory against only four defeats, Wyatt fanned six, walked none, and, aside from Mize, didn't allow a man to get on base except in the fourth when Mickey Witek reached first on an error and Mel Ott was hit by a pitched ball.

The victory, opening an important four-game series, boosted the Dodgers National League lead to seven games over the Cardinals.

Reds Snap Out of It

In the only other National League game, Cincinnati Reds snapped a six-game losing streak and crept up on the third-place Giants by turning back Pittsburgh Pirates, 5-3.

Johnny Vander Meer pitched six-hit ball for his 14th win and missed a shutout when Vince DiMaggio blasted a three-run homer in the eight.

Boston Red Sox, refusing to concede the American League flag to New York's front-running defending champs, walloped the Yankees, 7-4, and rounded out a four-game series with three triumphs.

Jim Tabor, who hit a pair of two-run homers in leading the Sox to victory the previous day, homered with two mates aboard yesterday to climax a six-run outburst in the fifth inning. The Red Sox chopped another full game off the Yankee lead but they still trail by 10 1-2 lengths.

A's Win Double Bill

At the other end of the junior circuit, the Philadelphia Athletics took a doubleheader in their cellar series with the Washington Senators.

A 17-hit attack on three Washington pitchers gave the Athletics the opener, 9-2, and sent Buck Newsom to his 16th defeat as Russ Christopher hurled seven-hit ball for Philadelphia.

The nightcap went 12 inning before the A's triumphed, 6-1, by routing Walt Masterson with a five-hit uprising that produced five runs with the help of a sacrifice, a walk, a wild pitch and two Washington errors.

Chicago White Sox came from behind with six runs in the fifth inning to stop the St. Louis Browns, 8-5, in a night game. Johnny Humphries hurled seven-hit ball for the Sox.

When Freddie Cochrane, world's welterweight champion, now in the U. The Denver lad was in training for his bout with Ray Robinson, Harlem star. He is seeking Freddie's crown, too.

SPORT SHORTS FROM BRITAIN

London, Aug. 21 (CP)—Gordon Richards, many-times jockey king, rode the strangest double in the history of British racing at Salisbury. It won exactly nothing for those who wagered on the two horses, either singly or as a double.

Richards ran Fleur de Lys to victory in the Yeovil Stakes. He couldn't have lost unless the mount fell dead or jumped the fence because it was the only horse in the race. The other entries just didn't show up. That's called a "walk-over" and pays nthing to bettors.

Thirty minutes later Richards rode Probation which ran a dead heat with the outsider Towkay in the Arlington Handicap. Since Probation was an even-money bet with the bookmakers, a win wager on the dead-heater cancelled itself out.

Bettors who placed their wager with the track totalizer instead of the bookies actually lost because the "tote" win dividend was returned at 42 cents for every 50 cents invested.

The "walk-over" was the first in Britain since war began.

They played a "Test" cricket match at a prison camp deep in Germany while Nazi guards stood about with guns at the ready in case any of the participants didn't stop running.

A letter received here from one of the players said the match, Australia vs. England, was played on a concrete pitch laid down by the prisoners.

"The game had all the attributes of a Test match, and had quite an international flavor, even to both teams wearing sweaters with monograms representing their countries," the writer said.

Incidentally England won by 33 runs on the first inning.

They favor the Canadian game of ice hockey so much in Scotland that they play it most of the summer before large crowds. As proof, a tilt between a Royal Canadian Horse Artillery team and a Scottish select club at Dunfermline ended in a 6-4 victory for the Scots.

Held throughout most of the struggle, the Scots scored three times in succession in the early part of the final period for their victory margin. The Canadians could tally only once after being tied 3-3 at the end of the second period.

Artillery marksmen were Gunner R. Griffis of Montreal, defenceman who scored twice; Sgt.-Maj. Jack Belwa of Kingston, Ont., and Sgt. C. Turner of St. Catharines, Ont., each with one.

LEAFS DEFEATED TWICE BY TIMELY HITTING OF RABE

Slams Two Homers and Two Singles as Baltimore Wins

ROYALS WIN

(By The Associated Press)

Sparked by the timely hitting of William (Bud) Rabe, 21-year-old outfielder, Baltimore came through with a double victory over Toronto Leafs at Baltimore last night. Rabe, brought from Rochester Red Wings this year, slammed out two home runs and two singles, and drove in seven runs.

The twin killings, by scores of 6-2 and 10-9, left the Birds one percentage point behind the sixth-place Leafs in the International League standings.

In the only other game scheduled the second-place Montreal Royals whipped the fifth-place Syracuse Chiefs 4-1 behind the five-hit pitching of Chet Kehn. Eddie Morgan hit two homers for the Royals.

Pete Center allowed six hits in the first game with the Leafs' runs coming on a two-run sixth inning homer by Al Rubeling. The Orioles got off to a two-run lead in the second inning when Joe Becker slammed one of Joe Sullivan's offerings out of the lot. Rabe applied the crusher in the fifth with a three-run cirult clout.

In the nightcap the Leafs scored six times in the second frame, but Rabe cut their margin in the Oriole half as he exploded his second three-run homer of the night. Baltimore tied the score in the third and went ahead with three more runs in the fourth. Each team scored once in the sixth and Toronto made it close when Johnny Wyrostek homered in the ninth with one aboard.

Toronto, Aug. 21—(CP)—Why is the Canadian Junior Tennis team in the Seigniory Club's International Invitation Tournament Saturday and Sunday limited to Quebec and Ottawa district players?

That's one of those nice, burning questions which usually never are answered. But discrimination is plain in the choice of the "Canadian" team. Five of the juniors chosen are from Montreal, two from Quebec City, two from Ottawa and two from Beauharnois, Que. The entry hardly qualifies the tournament for its tag as "international."

If sponsors of the matches called it the United States vs. Quebec Province Junior Tennis Tournament, headline writers across the country would go crazy but the name would be a fair representation of the competition's nature. "International" doesn't fit at all.

Our boys probably will take a dreadful beating from the visitors, because the United States team really has a national aspect and top American juniors generally are as good as our best seniors. But the degree of defeat could have been lessened considerably by a judicious choice of the best juniors from Canada's nine provinces.

The one possible explanation is financing. Well, I doubt that the pacific coast residents on the United States team are paying their own way to the tournament. And four of the Americans are from the far west, one from the middle-west. It looks from here like the old trouble—giving more consideration to a visiting attraction than to genuine promotion of the sport within our own borders.

Prospects of a trip to Quebec for this tournament would have given tennis in Ontario, the Prairies and British Columbia its biggest boost in years. The opportunity has been lost.

CASUAL COMMENT

by K.J.C.

HARRY ROLLINS, DISTRICT O.A.S.A. convener and vice president of the Provincial Sofbball Association, announced the draws for the playdowns in Eastern Ontario today. The first round brings together Belleville and Trenton league champions here on Monday and in Trenton Wednesday with the possible third game slated for a week from tonight. Oshawa and Peterborough commence their zone playdowns on Aug. 29, while the winner of the Belleville-Trenton round meets the Kingston champions at home on Aug. 31st and in Kingston champions at home on Aug. 31st and in Kingston on Sept. 2nd. The Eastern Ontario finals commence on Sept. 10th. Incidentally this year Deseronto and Frankford are included in the Intermediate "C" series. There are only two Junior "A" teams in Eastern Ontario—Oshawa and the Belleville Esquire kids. These two nines open the district finals in Belleville next Wednesday and back in the Motor City the following Wednesday and it's play-off time again.

HERE'S IS HOW GEORGE Campbell in the Oshawa Times-Gazette sizes up district softball: "In Peterborough, they have four teams in the semi-finals, with Royals, Luckies, Soldiers and Plazas. Plazas look like the class of the Liftlock City loop with a flock of talented softballers on their roster, who aso excel in baseball and hockey. Jim Ellis, Art Heal, Bun Kingdon, Don Crowe, Joe Blewett, Eddie Starr and others are on the Plaza lineup. Royals have Pat Calladine, Parnell, Giarino, Akers and young Crowe, (Juveniles last year) while the Luckies have the Caccavella brothers, Mowry, Lewis and Moorhead. Tom Parsons is doing the softball hurling for the Plazas, the team, which at this distance, looks to be Peterborough's representative in the O.A.S.A. first round against the Oshawa champions. Down in Belleville, it's the Veterans who are still setting the pace. The R.C.A.F. team from No. I.T.S. with "Al" Bell as ace hurler, is going along in great style and has advanced to the semi-finals by ousting Reliance. Now they meet the Army & Navy "Vets" for the championship. Conny Harris and Johnny Bawden are the big hurlers for the Army & Navy team. Bawden won seven straight games this year then suffered a broken toe in an accident at work. He's not yet back in action but the fine hurling of Harris is still considered to be good enough to carry the Vets to the title. The veteran Johnny Bawden is still rated as Belleville's best hurler. The Army & Navy team have the veteran Murney Green catching for them, along with Cy Barriage, his brother, Speedy St. Louis, Henn, Ethier and Bennett, all very well-known in local softball playoff records with Belleville teams".

IT'S DEACONS AND ZELLERS in the City Ladies' Softball League finals this year. Last night Chuck Barnett's Big-Z lassies pushed the Corbin "lockmakers" into the discard in a third game of a best-in-three semi-final, winning handily by a 21 to 8 count. It marks the third successive season the Zellers have moved into the final picture since girls' softboll was revived locally three years ago. However, the Deacons have been knocking at the door for two years and now are in the big moneyed series for the first time. Although the Zellers did some lusty clouting and the Corbins literally booted the spheriod all around the ball yard last night, much credit must be given to the Zellers' veteran hurler, Bessie Doolittle, who has been the mound mainstay for the league champions in their thrust for a third league title. The finals open Tuesday in what promises to be one of the bess title series since the league was re-organized.

REMEMBER WHEN LOU AMbers proved an exception to the "they-never-come-back" rule by becoming the first man ever to regain the world's lightweight boxing crown? Three years ago tonight, Ambers was awarded the title on a decision over Henry Armstrong in a 15-round bout at New York.

BELLEVILLE LAWN BOWLING rink failed to defend the General Motors Gold Cup at Oshawa on Wednesday. The Belleville quartette, of Davie Davison, Doug Rowe, Cliff Argue and Ab Wonnacott, fared better than average as they won two games, but were defeated by a Markham rink in their third round after being well up in the standing for the early rounds. Incidentally the General Motors Gold Cup was won by the Goodman rink of Oshawa.

STUFFY McINNIS, FIRST baseman on Connie Mak's $100,000 infield of three decades ago—Baker, Barry Collins and McInnis—member of three Athletic world's champion teams, also first baseman of the Red Sox champions of 1918, revealed recently in an interview that the biggest salary paid him as a player was by Barney Dreyfuss of the Pirates, when he was 36, supposedly washed up and had been waived out of the American League. It was after the World's Series of 1925, when, with the Pirates trailing Washington, three games to one Bill McKechnie sent Stuffy to first base in place of George Grantham. The Pirates then pulled ou the series, winning three straight. Asked who was the greatest first baseman in his opinion, Stuffy replied: "Without question—Hal Chase".

DALE ALEXANDER, WHO once won an American League batting championship — ten years ago, in 1932, when he swatted .367—struck out in his first time at bat in the field of politics. Dale ran on the Democratic ticket for sheriff of Green County, Tenn., August 7, but was defeated by B. H. Renner, his Republican opponent, in the unofficial returns, 5,196 to 4,876. Dale has a tobacco farm in Greene County, but failing to win his sheriffs' badge, he said he would like to return to baseball as a coach or minor league manager.

"WILD BILL" LONGSON, that dynamic wrestling personage from Salt Lake City, Utah, is still recognized as the world champion in his truck and trade. Longson defeated Yvon Robert in Montreal Wednesday night; hopped a train and repeated the dose on Billie Watson in Toronto last night. Longson is managed by Ray Steele, formerly known as "the perfect wrestler." Flash—Promoter Frank Tunney just called to say he was bringing Wild Bill Longson to Belleville next Wednesday night. Manager Walt Gerow of the Hume Arena immédiately cancelled a named dance band that was to appear here that night and immediately set upon work to erect additional ringside seats for next Wednesday. Longson has beaten Robert and Watson in Canada, but Tunney picked the toughest hombre of them all to face Longson here—none other than the pugnacious Jerry Monnahan will meet the world heavyweight wrestling champion.

THIS AND THAT—The price of baseballs comes rather high in the National League. . . . That is President Ford Frick has tabbed the bean ball at $200 each, and that's no ceiling. . . . Oscar Judd came through with some fine relief hurling as the Red Sox beat the Yankees yesterday. . . . It will be Babe Ruth at bat, Walter Johnson pitching and Billy Evans umpiring behind the plate at the Yankee Stadium Sunday during the Army and Navy Relief program. . . . There is talent of another age. . . President Benswagner of the Pittsburgh Pirates has asked several Negro ball players to attend a special workout at Forbes Field next week. . . . Whirlaway, the world's leading money winning horse, will start in the $10,000 handicap at Camden, N.J. next week. . . . Witt Wyatt was stingy with his hits as the Dodgers beat the Giants yesterday. Wyatt pitched a one-hitter. . . . On hands-down.

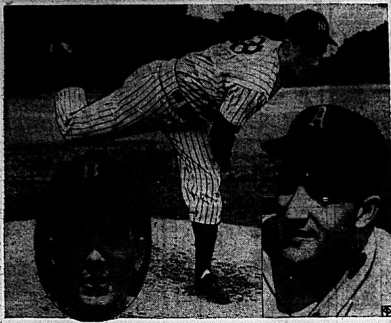
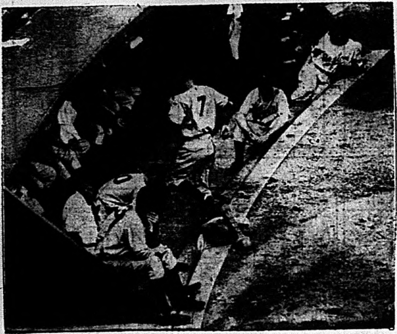
Young Pitchers Clicking In American League



There are many new names this year among the starring pitchers in the major leagues. In the American, three youngsters are doing especially well, despite some weak hitting behind them. They are: Phil Marchildon, RIGHT, big Philadelphia Athletics' righthander; Tex Hughson, LEFT, Red Sox hurler, and Hank Borowy, CENTRE, Yankee righthander, who hurled for Fordham University a couple of years ago.

Gets Warm Reception



Eddie Miller (No. 7) Boston Braves' shortstop, gets a warm reception from teammates as he trots into the dugout after poling a home run with one man aboard. It was fourth inning of a New York-Boston game at the Polo Grounds, and the Giants were leading at the time, 6-0. The homer accounted for the Braves' only runs. Carl Hubbell of the Giants won his eighth straight game, 10-2.

"Son of Fury"

"Son of Fury", 20th Century-Fox's fiery adventure film starring Tyrone Power, is now at the Capitol theatre playing. The critics and public alike have hailed "Son of Fury", one of the best films of recent months—a box office "natural."

"Son of Fury," the story of Benjamin Blake, is the swashbucking tale of a man battling the world for his birthright—living and loving riotously—sailing the seven seas to find fortune and love in a tropical paradise. Full of suspense and exciting drama, "Son of Fury" highlights the flaming romance of Tyrone Power and the four women who influenced his life—Kay Johnson, who loved him as her own. Frances Farmer, ruthless and coldy beautiful—Elsa Lanchester, a slatternly girl who aided him in a perilous moment and finally Gene Tierney, exotic and lovely—who gave him peace and love that defied time and distance. "Son of Fury" is the magnificiently thrilling dramatization of a man who knew how to love as fiercely as he could hate.

The role of Benjamin Blake is portrayed by Tyrone Power with gusto and charm and it is a perfect characterization for this top ranking star. Power's dynamic performance rates with his other outstanding work in "A Yank in the R.A.F." and "Alexander's Ragtime Band."

Gene Tierney gives an unsurpassed performance as Eve, the native girl—easily her best performance to date. Equally impressive are the featured roles played by Frances Farmer, George Sanders and Roddy McDowall.

On the same program is Buck Jones and Tim McCoy in "Gunman From Bodie."

AT THE McCARTHY

Dead End Kids

Those popular headliners, The Dead End Kids and Little Tough Guys, display their Thespian wares to plump advantage in Universal's "Tough As They Come" a thumping melodrama, now showing at the McCarthy Theatre. The picture is full of action, well-pointed drama and packs a convincing moral punch.

The cream of the original Dead End crew—talented Billy Halop, Huntz Hall, Bernard Punsly and Gabriel Dell—all have unusually important roles, and they have never been seen to better advantage. Additionally there is Paul Kelly in the type of sincere performance in which he best shines. H. Parrish, John Gallaudet and others lend talented aid.

New York Background

The story is set in the familiar New York slums and it deals arrestingly with the lives of these people and their efforts to rise above their poverty-ridden surroundings and circumstances. Importantly involved is the problem of bringing about reforms and breaking the rackets which make the slum dwellers their particular prey.

Billy Halop shines in the juvenile role of a young student of law who innocently becomes a part of the rackets and subsequently plays a vital part in their undoing. He teams romantically with Helen Parrish and Ann Gillis, who portray girls from the opposite sides of the tracks.

The hottest band in all the land Harry James and his music makers, The Andrews Sisters that top trio of tuneful treats in the jive hit "Private Buckaroo" is the second feature presentation at the McCarthy, making up a show of excellent entertainment. A technicolor cartoon "Mother Goose On The Loose" and a new chapter of "The Adventures of Captain Marvel" is also presented. The show is continuous Saturday.

AT THE BELLE

"Syncopation"

Painting a vivid picture of American life over a quarter of a century against the colorful background of the growth of "ragtime" into "swing," "Syncopation" coming to the Belle Theatre this week-end presents Adolphe Menjou, Jackie Cooper, Bonita Granville and George Bancroft at the head of a distinguished cast.

This film is said to be as authentic in its handling of its musical phases as it is engrossing in its dramatic love story. It represents the outcome of many months of preparation on the part of Producer William Dieterle to give the screen its first genuine account of the development of American dance rhythms.

Opening in New Orleans in 1907 and carrying on to the present day, the action deals with pretty Kit Latimer, who learns the fundamentals of rag-time from her Negro mammy. When Kit's father moves to Chicago she accompanies him, grows up in the Windy City, and after a tragic wartime romance marries a young trumpet player who shares her ideals of popularizing syncopated music

The rigors of the Prohibition Era interfere with their romance and their plans, and the Crash of '29 serves to bring them together again after many difficulties, leading up to the picturesque climax of the unusual offering.

The nation's most popular musicans assembled in "Syncopation" as the All-American Dance Band, were chosen from the winners of a country-wide poll conducted by The Saturday Evening Post, take part in the "jam session" that forms a climactic scene. The seven top-notchers participating are Gene Krupa, Harry James, Joe Venuti, Benny Goodman, Alvino Rey, Charlie Barnet and Jack Jenny.

Menjou, as the heroine's sympathetic father; Cooper as the young musician; Miss Granville as Kit and Bancroft as Menjou's friend, have principal dramatic roles. Frank Jenks, Ted North, Mona Barrie, Todd Duncan, Jessie Grayson, Connie Boswell and the Hall Johnson choir have important roles.

More than thirty songs and musical numbers are brought into the RKO Radio picture, most of them oldtime favorites, many of them authentic Negro "blues" and spirituals reproduced exactly in the manner of the period and locale they typify. In addition, musical director Leith Stevens composed several numbers.

"Suicide Squadron" Timely

Generating a series of high-powered adventure, and recounting an absorbing up-to-the-minute story, "Suicide Squadron" is the added feature attraction.

Anton Walbrook, brilliant film favorite, portrays the leading role in the new feature, with Sally Gray heading a strong supporting cast.

The Belle Latest World News Events and a new and thrilling chapter of "The Sea Raider" serial complete the program.

AT THE BELLE

M.G.M. offers filmgoers an interesting new screen team in "Joe Smith, American," in which Robert Young and Marsha Hunt are co-starred. The added comedy feature now at the Belle is Norma Shearer and Robert Taylor in "Her Cardboard Lover."

AT THE McCARTHY

Part of the cast of Dead End Kids and Little Tough Guys now at the McCarthy Theatre in the comedy drama, "Tough as They Come." The jive hit, "Private Buckaroo", featuring the Andrews Sisters and Harry James and His Music Makers is the second feature.

Tami Mauriello goes against Jimmy Bivins in Cleveland's next big fight show, getting the spot declared open when Anton Christoforidis frizzled against Nate Bolden last week, but the Sept. 10 date they agreed upon will be changed. . . . The reason Ben Jones is shipping Whirlaway to Camden for the Trenton Handicap Aug. 29 instead of keeping him at Saratoga to run for just as much dough in the Saratoga Handicap is that Ben wants to do a favor for a friend who is an official of the Garden State track. . . . Wife Preservers

Hang your seersuckers and other crinkles on the line from the waistband, keeping skirt and blouse in a straight line to prevent wrinkles and avoid having to iron. Pin a string to each sleeve and attach it with a clothespin to the line on either side of the garment to avoid sleeve and shoulder wrinkles. If you want a more finished appearance, you can iron all woven crinkles while damp, but others should be pressed dry with a not-too-hot iron. This advice comes from the Cotton-Textile Institute, Inc.

CHAPTER 6

Release

It was hard, Linda soon discovered, to slip into the routine of her regular life again. The routine of eating and sleeping, of working hard each day and sitting at home each night with her parents—and with Kyle.

Little things Kyle did began to annoy Linda, this was puzzling, for she had never allowed any criticism of Kyle, nor felt any emotion toward him before save admiration and trust. Now both her admiration and trust seemed waning. Since Kyle was out of work, he seemed to take it for granted that he was welcome to spend his time at the Phillips home, and each evening when she returned home Linda found him hunched over a card table, or absorbed in a newspaper. Still she managed to keep silent, her sympathy for his lack of employment over-riding her growing suspicion that Kyle was making no effort to find work.

Gradually Kyle began to study her thoughtfully. Linda's parents, too, watched their daughter in wondering silence. There was a strangeness about her that perplexed them. By turns she was moody and gay; irritable and gentle. And then, four days after her return from Chicago, Greg's letter came!

Linda stared at the slim, white envelope addressed in flowing masculine style, and her heart pounded madly, her thoughts were deliriously joyful. It had come—at last, the message for which she had been waiting. Forgotten was the agony and doubt of the last few days when she had waited and hoped for some word — some sign that Greg Hollister had not forgotten. . . .

Later Linda faced her parents defiantly.

"I think you should know," she began bluntly, "that while I was in Chicago I met someone I like very much. Someone completely different from anyone I ever knew before."

For a moment after Linda's startling words, there was an uncomfortable silence. John Phillips looked anxiously at his wife, then in the direction of his daughter. Painfully he cleared his throat, giving voice to the nameless fear that had haunted the Phillips for several days.

"This—this person—is a young man?"

Linda nodded brightly. "His name is Greg Hollister, and he's a chemical engineer."

The faces of her parents were shocked and incredulous, and suddenly the thrill of telling them was gone for Linda. It was going to be very hard, she realized suddenly, for them to understand all that had happened in that brief Chicago weekend. Their lives were so placid, so completely shut away from the excitement and intrigue of life in a big city. Could she make them see Greg Hollister as she saw him, or would they condemn her for allowing the man to make light love to her.

Gravely she poured out the story sparing no detail in a description of Greg, of his work, his eligibility.

"But dear, what about Kyle?" Her mother asked. "Have you forgotten that you're engaged to him?"

"I haven't told you everything," Linda hastened on, evading temporarily all mention of her fiance. "I received a letter from Greg today. He—he's coming to Prairievale this weekend. He's coming," her voice rang out proudly, "to see me."

Following her joyous announcement, there was absolute silence. John Phillips looked uneasily at his wife and then toward his daughter and Linda's happiness died. She had expected something — some word regarding Greg's trip, but the silence was pregnant with meaning.

Then slowly, Mary Phillips arose, her face white and determined. She was still not sure that she had heard correctly. The idea of Linda announcing the arrival of a stranger to their midst seemed incredible.

"I don't understand this," Mrs. Phillips said earnestly, "and I don't want to hear that — that man's name mentioned here again. If he dares to follow you to Prairievale—if he dares, this—this Greg person shall not set foot inside my house!"

Following her mother's grim statement, Linda felt hot, resentful tears welling up in her eyes.

"You don't understand," she sobbed pitifully. "I—I don't understand, myself, but I'm trying to. Please help me, Mother. I'm—I'm terribly afraid."

Mary Phillips hesitated, torn between pity for her daughter and rebellion against something she could not comprehend—a hidden danger that threatened to invade their home.

Then she gathered the weeping girl into her arms, and Linda sobbed out her fears.

"I thought I was happy," she murmured. "Now I'm—unsure. If I don't find out before it's too late."

"Then you must do what you think best," Mary Phillips said. "Marriage is a solemn rite, Linda. If I've been hasty in condemning you, I'm sorry. But your father and I value your happiness above all else, if you want to indulge in this bit of foolishness, to try Kyle's patience, then everything must rest with you. I want no part of it."

"But you will see Greg and talk to him?"

Mary Phillips sighed heavily. "I'll see him," she promised, and Linda's faced cleared magically.

"He's driving through to Kansas City to attend a chemical convention and stopping over in Prairievale for the weekend."

John Phillips shook his head sadly. "I don't know just what to say to you, Linda. If we'd had some warning that you, that—" he stumbled over the words, and went on. "Well, as long as you've heard from this young man, what will you say to Kyle? The story will be all over town by morning."

"Kyle?" Linda repeated the name slowly, knowing that she could no longer postpone a discussion of her fiance. Despite her happiness over this exciting interlude, Kyle, too, must be considered.

"I'll tell him the truth," she decided bravely. "Tonight."

"And what will be the truth?" Linda debated the question silently. What was the truth? That she had fallen in love with another man, or that she had been temporarily swept away by the excitement, the glamour of seeing new faces and living in a whirl of excitement and thrills.

There was other excitement that evening in the Phillips household, for Kyle had obtained a new job! Promptly at dinner time he appeared in the door, beaming proudly.

"You are now," he announced a trifle self-consciously, "looking at the new assistant clerk in Haddon's Drug Store."

"That—that's fine," Linda said, when his eyes rested on her flushed face inquiringly. The smile died from his eyes as though he sensed that Linda no longer cared. He had expected her to be happy—proud of his success. Instead she looked covertly at her mother, avoiding his inquiring glance.

For Linda the evening seemed to drag on and on, until at last Mary and John Phillips withdrew, leaving Linda and Kyle alone. Almost primly she sat on the edge of her chair and stared at her hands, until Kyle bent over her and said coaxingly: "How about a congratulatory kiss, dear. Don't I deserve one?"

Linda jerked away from him, despising herself for a sudden feeling of revulsion. "Please don't . . . don't touch me, Kyle."

Kyle eyed her, perplexed, then he demanded impatiently, "What's the matter with you? You don't seem very glad I'm working again."

"How long will it last?"

Kyle stared at her anxiously. "Something's the matter," he decided heavily. "You haven't been yourself since—well, since you went to Chicago."

"And you want to know why?"

"Yes." Stiffly. "If there's something wrong, I think I deserve an explanation."

It required a strong nerve and a complete lack of sympathy to break the news, but Linda forced herself to go on and on. As she poured out the story of her disappointment at their often postponed marriage, Kyle winced, but Linda steeled herself against breaking down.

When she reached the part of her story regarding Greg, and the fascination he held for her, Kyle became almost violent.

"I knew you shouldn't have gone to Chicago," he raged. "You've had your head full of dreams—romantic nonsense about operas and plays and meeting big shots for months now. I've seen it coming. Everytime you're with Sally Barnes she makes you more dissatisfied with your own lot."

"That isn't true," Linda flared back. "Every girl wants nice things. That's only natural, but I was willing to wait for them. You came first. You know that you did."

Kyle ignored her honest statement. His sarcastic, "Have you fallen in love with a man or with the things he stands for—glamour and security?" made Linda protest desperately, but slowly his manner changed from one of anger and frustration to abject pleading: "Think how much we mean to each other—how long we've worked and planned, and saved together. What about me, Linda? You know how much I love you. You mean more to me than anything else."

"Do you think I don't realize all that and more?" she asked softly. "I've lain awake night after night trying to figure this out, but it's too big for me to fight. I've got to know, Kyle. If I don't and if I try to forget Greg and—and never see him again, it might ruin both our lives. Yours and mine. But if I've only imagined all this, it will make me love you more."

Kyle shook his head wearily. "No," he said wisely, "in spite of our engagement, if you have met someone who makes you feel unsure, then you have never loved me—really loved me, Linda, and this is our good-bye."

Linda clung to him desperately. "I do love you, Kyle. I do. I do!" It seemed incredible that the man she had cared for so long might be making his farewell for the last time.

"I hope that's right, Linda." He patted her shoulder gently. "I'm stepping out of the picture for awhile—until you make up your mind what you really want."

"But where will you be? Where can I find you?"

He gestured vaguely. "I'll be around. Just whistle if you need me."

There were tears in Linda's eyes as she saw him to the door. "You—you're swell, Kyle. Really you are."

Kyle grinned weakly. "There comes a time in every man's life," he said, "when he wants to be a hero. I guess this is my turn now, and frankly, the feeling is swell!"

Little Benny's Note Book

Ma turned off the radio to get a rest from the war, saying to pop, William, there's one word that every radio commentator seems to pronounce according to the mood of the moment. I mean the word for those awful people whose sole aim in life is to wreck machinery or blow up bridges while the rest of us are busy buying war bonds. The man on the air just now called it sabotoor but I'm sure I've heard the same man call it sabotair, and there seems to be a dozen other variations, so what is the correct pronunciation for land sakes, William? she said.

The best way to fix it in your mind is to memorize a little rime, the same way you learned the short and long months by memorizing Thirty days has September and so forth, pop said, and ma said, That's a very clever idea, but what rime, for instance?

Well, for instance, They're no respecter of mine or yours, Those Hitler-loving sabotoors, pop said, and ma said, But do you really mean that's the correct authentic pronunciation?

It might be, and if it is, that's the way to fix it in your mind, pop said. Or to take another possibility, Scoundrel villain, cad and cur, Are other names for sabotur, he said, and ma said, Now William, that's a very indefinite way of making a thing clear, I must say.

Well, of course there are other choices, pop said. For instance, Let him dig like the mole or hide like the otter, We'll fix his remains with a shover and blotter, That double faced, double talked traitor sabotter. Or for instance, Track him down to his Fashist lair, Deprive him of food and deprive him of air, Then deport the imported sabotair. But the safest way is to pronounce it any way that occurs to you, as long as you take care to remark first, "As the French say," pop said.

Now William that's what I call a really constructive suggestion, ma said.

Being the end of the subject.

One of Canada's outstanding horsemen in pre-war days, Brig. Mann went overseas as a Captain with the 1st Canadian division. His wife is daughter of R. S. McLaughlin of Oshawa.

Ottawa reports have named Brigs. Sherwood Lett and W. W. Southam as taking part in the Dieppe raid in addition to the Commanding Officer, Maj.-Gen. J. H. Roberts.

Weekly Livestock Report

Toronto, Aug. 21—(CP)—Lambs were lowered $1.75 from last Thursday's close in trade on the livestock market here this week. Veal calves advanced 50 cents and hogs suffered a decline of 25 cents. Sheep were steady. Cattle prices were steady according to quality. The week's supply of cattle showed lack of top quality killers.

Total cattle receipts for the week of 11,550 head represented a larger run than that of the week before. The bulk of cattle consignments were to the Wartime Food Corporation. Ottawa announced during the week that the export cattle quota to the United States had been filled. This quota constituted cattle purchased by the Corporation in Canada as well as those entering the United States. Following the announcement regarding the quota the Corporation suspended operations on the local stock yards.

In cattle trade weighty steers were $9 to $10.50, butcher steers and heifers were mostly $8.50 to $10. Fed calves brought $10.50 to $12. Butcher cows were $6.50 to $8.50 with canners and cutters selling down to $5. Bulls were scarce, especially those of top quality and sold mostly from $7.50 to $9. Stockers and feeders traded at $8 to $10.50 with light western stock calves selling as high as $11.75. Milkers and springers were $90 to $130 each.

Calves sold at $15 to $15.50 for choice with other grades downward to $8. Grassers were $8 to $11.

Hogs were lowered to $16 dressed on Monday and continued steady at this level for the week. Sows were mostly $12.75 dressed. Owing to recently announced quarantine on the stock yards there were no feeders sold.

Lambs were lowered to the price ceiling level on Monday at $11.75 for good ewes and wethers and closed steady. Bucks were $10.75. Sheep were steady at $4 to $8.

Weekly summary of receipts:

Total this week, cattle 11,553, calves 3,518, hogs 3,234, sheep and lambs 2,429.

RECTAL SORENESS AND PILE TORTURE
QUICKLY RELIEVED.

If you are troubled with itching piles or rectal soreness, do not delay treatment and run the risk of letting this condition become chronic. Any itching or soreness or painful passage of stool is nature's warning and proper treatment should be secured at once. For this purpose get a package of Hem-Roid from J. S. McKeown or any I.D.A. or other drug store, and use as directed. This formula which is used internally is a small, easy to take tablet, will quickly relieve the itching and soreness and aid in healing the sore tender spots. Hem-Roid is pleasant to use, is highly recommended and it seems the height of folly for any one to risk a painful and chronic pile condition when such a fine remedy may be had at such a small cost.

Some District Cheese Factories Short of Boxes

Despite the reported assurance by the timber controller's office, Belleville district will be supplied with sufficient cheese boxes to supply the demand, many district factories are without the required boxes to ship their cheese, it was disclosed at the regular meeting of the Belleville Cheese Board on Thursday night.

Many factory salesman who previously had last night for the first time this season complained they had not sufficient boxes to ship the cheese which they boarded, and in some cases were 200 boxes short. This is the situation, it was revealed, despite the fact that several carloads of cheese boxes have been shipped into the district from Quebec.

Shortage of heading materials had forced D'Alton Clarke, one of the largest makers of boxes in the Belleville district, to temporarily close his plant this week, according to Mr. W. R. McCreary. "As a result Mr. Clarke's production of 450 boxes per day is lost to the district," he stated. "Mr. Clarke had been promised heading material from outside the district, but it failed to arrive."

Mr. F. R. Mallory, secretary of the board, intimated there had been a report district makers had refused to take heading material but this was contradicted by Mr. McCreary who held that there was a shortage of heads, while there appeared to be sufficient veneer.

"The whole situation has been very improperly handled," continued Mr. McCreary. "We are short of boxes and the cheese quality is suffering as a result. I think the only sensible constructive solution to the problem would be to raise the present 35-cent ceiling price of the boxes, raise them five cents, if necessary."

Mr. W. H. Montgomery, member Ontario Cheese Producers' Association, disagreed with Mr. McCreary that the solution was to raise the price of boxes. "If the material is not in sight at 35 cents per box, then it is not in sight at $1.50," he said.

"Belleville is the only place in the province where the cheese box situation is really acute," he continued "and the situation here is that boxes are being made just that much harder to procure. The Association does not feel that producers in this area should be penalized by raising the price of boxes. The 35-cent price is just as fair as prices which farmers have been offered for certain of their products, and which they have been forced to take."

No constructive solution to the local cheese box problem was offered, however, and, although, shipment of more boxes to Belleville from Quebec is expected, it was claimed there will not be sufficient to supply the demand.

When the last car of boxes arrived from Quebec there were applications for 5,000 boxes while only 1,500 boxes comprise a carload.

Allied Assault Force Consists Mainly Of Canadians In Dieppe Area Fighting

The Allied assault force that engaged in heavy fighting in an attack in the Dieppe area of occupied France was backed up by tanks and aided by parachute troops. The force was made up mainly of Canadians, whose opinions generally were summed up in these words: "Here's what we've been waiting for." The commandos fought counter-attacking Nazi troops under clouds of fighters and bombing planes. Action such as depicted in these scenes took place. On the LEFT, raiders dash through battle smoke; CENTRE, the bursts of bombs as the air force strikes at landing.

CANADA IS LAND OF PLENTY SAYS GORDON TAGGART

Essential Food Supplies Ample Unless Shared to Major Extent

DETAILS GIVEN

By JAMES McCOOK
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Ottawa, Aug. 20—(CP)—Canada was pictured today as a land of plenty in which essential food supplies will remain ample unless they are voluntarily shared to a major extent with Allied nations.

"Rationing of foods has been only to tea; coffee and sugar, all products which we import either entirely or in major quantity," J. Gordon Taggart, Foods Administrator for the Wartime Prices and Trade Board, said in an interview with The Canadian Press.

"Even if we lost every imported article we could live well. We could even do without sugar if we had to, although it wuld mean an adjustment in the diets of all Canadians to meet a situation where we would have to get along with only about 20 per cent. of the sugar we now use annually."

Reviewed Canadian Position

Mr. Taggart took five major food groups and reviewed the Canadian position:

1. Cereals: From the forthcoming crop and the wheat now in store Canada has enough wheat to feed the Dominion for fifteen years. Vast quantities of oats are also being produced. Grains also represent foods in the form of meat, poultry, eggs and pork and they are used for feed.

2. Meats: Canada will produce about 7,000,000 hogs this year, while the number required for home consumption is about 2,250,000. The total production might rise to 8,000,000 in 1943. Canadians have reduced their consumption of pork products so British requirements for bacon might be met, but from 2,500,000 to 2,7150,000 hogs for home consumption would represent a "comfortable" supply.

More Beef Than Can Be Eaten

Canada produces more beeg cattle than it can eat. It is able to meet home requirements and export 100,000 head annually to the United States without difficulty. While the Wartime Food Corporation set up by the Prices Board now is buying export cattle for domestic use instead of shipping them across the border, this system is required only to meet a temporary condition. Shipmenta of Canadian cattle tc the United States to the largest extent possible represent a contribution to the United Nations cause, as the imports from Canada release American stocks of beef which may be required by the United Kingdom or other nations.

Egg Supply Plentiful

Supplies of poultry and eggs are plentiful, although 30,000,000 dozen eggs are being shipped to the United Kingdom this year. As in past years, there might be a temporary shortage of eggs in September and October but the prospects are that overseas and home requirements would both be met.

Feed for poultry is abundant, and it is possible that 50,000,000 bushels of wheat and other grains will be required in a year to feed growing flocks of poultry and turkeys.

3. Dairy Products: Fuild milk consumption is up 12 per cent over last year and in 1941 a consumption gain of 10 per cent over 1940 was reported. Milk production for all purposes to date in 1942 is up four per cent over 1941.

Adequate Supply of Butter

Because of other demands on milk, including increased cheese production, butter production is about five per cent lower for this year. The current rate of butter production, spurred by a bonus, is ahead of that for last year with indications that a gain recorded in July will continue or will be accelerated, with the prospect that by next Spring all supplies will be adequate.

4. Fruits and Vegetables: The supplies of all home-grown vegetables are sufficient and the canning program will also be larger this year except in the minor fruits. A surplus of apples is in prospect, and potatoes and onions, a little short of requirements last year, will be sufficient.

5. Fish: Sufficient supplies of most fish are being obtained and marketed. All canned salmon is being sent to the United Kingdom.

Historic Moscow Scenes Recorded At Churchill-Stalin Conference

A second front was said to be discussed when Prime Minister Churchill held his historic conferences with Premier Josef Stalin at the Kremlin in Moscow. It was Churchill's first visit to the Soviet since he became prime minister. Here, LEFT to RIGHT, are Sir Alex Codagan, Churchill, W. Averill Harriman, U. S. defence liaison chief, Stalin and Foreign Minister Molotoff. The name of the man in the rear was not given.

Washington Spotlight

By J. F. SANDERSON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Washington, Aug. 21 — (CP) — There is a major fight developing in Washington between Donald M. Nelson, head of the War Production Board, and Lt.-Gen. Brehon B. Somervell, head of the Army Department of Supply.

It concerns fundamental question of civilian or military control of raw materials and production but it is too early yet to declare a winner. In the long run, President Roosevelt probably will make a choice.

Bernard M. Baruch, originally a Wall Street speculator who took charge of armament production in the dark days of 1918 and created order out of chaos, has moved in on Washington again. "Doctors of facts," as President Wilson called him, heads a three-man board to investigate the confused and muddle rubber situation in the United States.

Baruch is one of those curious men who doesn't need a desk or secretary or filing cabinet. He carries the facts in his head and he carries a lot of them.

You can find him practically any day on a bench in Lafayette Park, across Pennsylania Avenue from the White House, or in his room in the Carleton hotel where a steady stream of high officials go to him for counsel and advice on the economic and financial side of the war.

The American people have learned to rely on the advice of this 72-year-old white-haired man who finally has come back into the limelight. His report on rubber is awaited anxiously and if it means the end of all pleasure driving, as many people expect, the mere fact that his name is attached to it should hasten its public acceptance.

Cuban Nickel

Canadian officials in Washington do not seem to be disturbed by the threat of competition from Cuba to Canada's world monopoly of nickel. The United States government has appropriated $20,000,000 for the development of the Nicaro ore reserves in Oriente Province at the eastern end of Cuba and 2,000 engineers and laborers are preparing foundations for a plant.

With supplies from New Caledonia shut off, Canada is the only source of nickel for the war machines of the United States and Britain and, despite every effort, the mines at Copper Cliff in northern Ontario cannot meet the demands.

According to Canadian officials here, the Cuban ore, although extensive, is low-grade and its development at this time is only a desperate attempt to increase production for the United Nations, irrespective of cost or effort. These officials do not believe the Nicaro project will be able to compete with Canadian nickel in post-war world unless heavily subsidized.

Our Best Publicity

Some of the best, if not the best, publicity Canada earns in the United States is through the documentary films of the National Film Board at Ottawa, particulary its series on the world at war. Released once a month, they are regarded generally as the finest documentary films on the market and are distributed in hundreds of American theatres.

Each film seems to contain exactly the right amount of Canadian publicity, not enough to be stamped as propaganda but enough to hammer home the idea that Canada is a major factor in the war.

John Grierson, director of the film board, has turned down many tempting offers from Hollywood. If that does not make him unique, he heads a government agency that actually makes a profit on its operations, turning money into the treasury instead of regarding it as a bottomless pit.

Bombay, Aug. 20—(CP)—(Reuters)—Reports of serious looting and arson by large mobs of Congress demonstrators came today from the Madras presidency.

A communique reported a mob of 3,000 persons attacked the police station in the West Godavari district and looted houses. Another mob of 500 attacked government offices in the Ramnad district and looted the local treasury.

Policel were forced to fire on demonstrators at Bhimavaram, but the number killed was not known immediately.

HOLD ALL GERMANS BUT DIPLOMATS AS HOSTAGES

Order is Given by President Getulio Vargas of Brazil

SIXTH SHIP SUNK

Rio de Janeiro, Aug. 20—(AP)—All Germans except diplomats who had embarked on the exchange ships Bage and Cuyaba were ordered held as hostages today by President Getulio Vargas shortly after the sinking of the sixth Brazilian ship in recent days was announced.

The ships already were filled with German nationals, ready to sail for Lisbon in exchange for Brazilian nationals. The voyages had been postponed earlier in the week when a crisis arose over the sinking of five Brazilian ships by Axis submarines, claiming the lives of perhaps 600 persons including Brazilian troops.

The sixth U-boat victim, announced today, was the coastal steamer Jacy.

It was sent to the bottom a few miles off the northeast coast after all aboard were ordered off in lifeboats.

One high official of the government navigation line declared today that the sinkings, which brought Brazil into undeclared conflict with the Axis, were the result of "brazen operation of Nazi spies who informed on planned troop movements."

Premier Hepburn had nothing to say about a labor dispute here which threatens to tie up work at the huge plant of the Algoma Steel Corporation plant.

Cost-of-Living Bonus Expands Pay Envelopes

Ottawa, Aug. 21 (CP)—The cost-of-living bonus, the commando force of the anti-inflation war, will strike a stout blow for the ordinary man in thousands of pay envelopes being issued today and tomorrow, with thousands of Canadians receiving it for the first time.

Extra money is being provided for Canadian wage-earners because of a 2.4 per cent increase in the cost-of-living since last October. To men and women employees over 21 or earning more than $25 a week, the increased bonus amounts to 60 cents a week. To male employees under 21 and women employees making less than $25 a week, the increased bonus will amount to 2.4 per cent of their basic weekly wage.

The additional sums must be paid by employers starting on Aug. 15 and will therefore appear in the pay envelopes of those paid on the weekly basis either today or tomorrow. More than 1,000,000 Canadians receiving the cost-of-living bonus will benefit from the new payment.

In addition, under Federal regulations, employers who were not paying a cost-of-diving bonus to the classes now entitled to it must start payment effective from the first payroll on or after Aug. 15.

Increase Since May 15

Under the cost-of-living bonus order issued last October, those employers who were not paying the bonus were required to base their future payments, after Feb. 15, on an increase of a point or more over the October figure. The increases in the index have come since May 15, the last date for adjustment of the bonus, and their first payments of 60 cents a week are therefore due on wages after Aug. 15.

Adjustments in the bonus are made on Feb. 15, May 15, Aug. 15 and Nov. 15, if the change in the cost of living has been more than one point either up or down. The Dominion bureau of statistics cost-of-living index stood at 117 at July 1, up 1.2 points from June 1.

Wartime Prices and Trade Board officials in charge of price control in Canada, say the possibility that by Nov. 15 the cost of living might show a reduction.

JAPANESE FORCE WIPED OUT IN SOLOMONS

RUSSIANS WITHDRAW FARTHER IN CAUCASUS

Tried a Stealthy Night Landing To Pierce U.S. Lines

Jap Seaplane Base On Makin Island Destroyed in Growing U.S. Offensive

670 JAPS KILLED

By WALTER B. CLAUSEN
(Associated Press Staff Writer).

Pearl Harbor, Hawaii, Aug. 22—(AP)—United States Marines stood fast in their hard-won positions in the Solomon Islands today after wiping out a 700-man Japanese force which tried a stealthy night landing to piece the American lines.

Other Marines and American bluejackets, with Maj. James Roosevelt, the President's eldest son, one of their leaders, destroyed a Japanese seaplane base in an extension of the United States offensive to Makin Island, in the Gilbert group, 11,500 miles northeast of the American-held Solomons.

Communiques issued by Admiral Chester W. Mimitz, commander of the United States Pacific fleet, told of the flareup of fighting in which the enemy was surprised and destroyed.

Sent Enemy Fleeing

In first detailed accounts of the Solomon Island fighting, where the Marines with a navy covering force captured Japanese positions and sent the enemy fleeing into hills and jungles, Admiral Mimitz related the destruction of the Japanese force.

Mopping-up operations, with daily skirmishes between marine patrols and enemy detachments, have been in progress since the initial marine landings the night of Aug. 7, the communique said.

But last Wednesday night 700 well-equipped Japanese landed from high speed boats outside the marines' lines, on an unnamed island, and attempted a break-through.

"During the darkness only hand-to-hand fighting was possible," the communique said, "but with the breaking of day the marines were able to manoeuvre. While one battalion held the front line another battalion moved to a flank and drove the then withdrawing Japanese to the beach.

670 Killed Out of Force of 700

"The action continued until late afternoon. Of the 700 Japanese, 670 are dead, the rest prisoners. Marine losses were 28 killed and 72 wounded."

Marines in the Solomons, commanded by Maj.-Gen. Alexander A. Vandergrift, U.S.M.C., thus "added another page to their history of outstanding achievement," the communique noted.

The communique also told of a marine patrol and a Japanese detachment in the Solomons last Wednesday, in which the Americans lost only six killed and 13 wounded while wiping out the enemy unit of 92 officers and men, who continued resistance "until the last man was killed."

Maj. Roosevelt, who in November, 1940, left film producing in Hollywood for active service in the Marine Corps, was second in command of the detachment which raided Makin Island Aug. 17. The commander was Lt.-Col. Evans F. Carlson, while Cmdr. John W. Haines, U.S.N., directed the entire operation which was covered by fleet units.

Cairo, Aug. 22 (AP)—Despite dust storms which prevented widespread aerial operations over the Egyptian front, R.A.F. fighter-bombers successfully attacked Axis vehicles and troop concentrations yesterday, a British communique said today.

One German plane was shot down over the Nile Delta last night and an Italian aircraft was destroyed off Cyprus, said the announcement.

S. SASK. REG'T MOST SUCCESSFUL IN DIEPPE RAID

Unit Led by Lt.-Col. Cecil Merritt, Who Flouted Danger And Inspired Men

WENT INLAND A MILE

By ROSS MUNRO
(Canadian Press War Correspondent)

Somewhere in England, Aug. 22 (CP).—Led by a gallant young colonel who flouted danger and inspired every one in his formation, units of the South Saskatchewan Regiment were the most successful of the Canadian groups which raided the German stronghold at Dieppe.

The westerners made a dawn landing at Pourville last Wednesday, two miles west of Dieppe, attacked their object, captured a number of prisoners, and one company with some of the Cameron Highlanders of Winnipeg held off a German battalion during the re-embarkation.

To a man members of the regiment paid the highest tribute to the commanding officer, Lt.-Col. Cecil Merritt of Vancouver.

Several times in the heat of action he personally led detachments of three or four men to destroy machine-gun posts that were holding up the show.

Went Inland a Mile.

Under his direction his men pushed inland more than a mile and hunted down Germans all over the Pourville area.

When the detachments re-embarked at 11 a.m. he stood by the seawall as the Nazis on the headland peppered the beach with lead and quietly waved his men through to the boats.

Under heavy fire he crouched by a field wireless set keeping in communication with headquarters and passing on latest information as the Germans approached.

In their camp in southern England some officers who came back told me the story of the South Saskatchewan Regiment in fighting in France, the fury of which I saw for myself as a correspondent with the landing force.

Medical Officer Praised.

They were Maj. J. E. McRae, Weyburn, Sask.; Capt. F. W. Hayter, Alameda, Sask., the medical officer whom everyone praised; and Lieuts.

Canadian Raid on Dieppe Carried Farthest Inland By Cameron Highlanders

(By ROSS MUNRO)
(Canadian Press War Correspondent)

Somewhere in England, Aug. 22 (CP Cable) — The Canadian attack on Dieppe was carried farthest inland by the lion-hearted Cameron Highlanders of Winnipeg, who fought their way 3½ miles up the Scie River Valley with unsurpassed bravery, halting at a point almost due south of Pourville.

In the face of heavy German fire they landed at 5:35 a.m. and fought with courageous determination and ringing heroism until they withdrew about 11 a.m. They preserved good order and splendid discipline right to the last.

Major Robert Thompson, of Winnipeg, one of those who came back, said the withdrawal was the bravest action he ever saw. Now acting second in command, this veteran of the last war went through the first battle of Ypres and Loos.

"I never saw anything like it for bravery all through the last war," the officer said. "Our boys were simply magnificent."

Scaled 10-Foot Seawall

Ahead of the Camerons the South Saskatchewan Regiment had established a bridgehead at 5 a.m. and occupied the town of Pourville. The Camerons came in under some shellfire and landed under fairly heavy fire on the left side of the beach.

The Highlanders scaled the 10-foot seawall and formed up in a grove of trees along the Pourville front.

Then they started to attack inland, moving through the South Saskatchewan troops who were holding a perimeter there. A large number of Camerons went up the right bank of the Scie River, smashing into pockets of enemy resistance and killing scores of Germans.

Another group of camerons struck up the left bank of the river and a third section joined the South Saskatchewan forces southwest of Pourville. They remained with them throughout a strong attack by a German battalion, which they held off.

The Germans harried the Camerons with mortar and artillery fire from a mile or so away but the Winnipeggers never stopped their forward push until they reached a bridge spanning the Scie 3½ miles from the coast.

Their advance was blocked at this point by a heavy concentration of German guns and after a lengthy action they withdrew for the general re-embarkation.

Nazi Battery Beaten Up.

At one point the Camerons met a German field battery moving across a road preparing to go into action. The guns were drawn by horses and the Camerons "beat up" the battery.

Maj. A. T. Law of Winnipeg was acting commanding officer ashore and he returned to England. Another major who went through the battle and returned was Norman Ross, another Winnipegger.

There were scores of individual acts of heroism but one man all the Camerons are talking about is Pte. Alex Huppe of Winnipeg. He went with the forces pushing inland and re-embarked safely after doing a superb sniping job with his rifle all the way.

An officer said "Huppe was like a kid on the midway shooting up targets with a .22."

He hid behind trees—behind anything that would conceal him—and picked off the helmeted grey forms trying to halt the advancing Canadians. He prowled around as stealthily as an Indian and accounted for a number of German infantrymen.

FIERCE NAVAL, AIR BATTLE FOUGHT OFF PORTUGAL

Sunderland Bomber Falls in Sea but Survivors Picked Up by Navy

NO DETAILS GIVEN

Lisbon, Portugal, Aug. 22 (AP)—A fierce naval and air battle yesterday off Cape Saint Vincent, the southwest tip of Portugal 200 miles northwest of British Gibraltar, apparently was an attack on a British convoy, it was reported late last night.

A British Sunderland bomber fell into the Atlantic off Sagres. Two Portuguese seaplanes flew out to rescue the survivors but reported that the bomber already had been taken in tow by a British warship in the convoy.

There were no further reports late Friday night.

Presumably it was an engagement between German long-range bombers operating from France, and British ships travelling the Gibraltar sea route, but no particulars were given. Such clashes have been frequent.

A Reuters dispatch quoted the Vichy radio as saying that a British cruiser and four destroyers had left Gibraltar travelling northwestward toward the Portuguese tip.

TIMOR DEFENCES HEAVILY BOMBED BY ALLIED PILOTS

Bombers Finish Job Which Remained After Thursday Attack

JAP FIGHTER DOWNED

Allied Headquarters, Australia, Aug. 22 (CP)—Allied bombers struck their second successive blow yesterday at the Japanese-occupied village of Maobisse, Portuguese Timor, and a Royal Australian Air Force spokesman said "they finished off what remained after the Thursday attack."

A Japanese Zero fighter, one of three which rose to challenge the raiders, was shot down into the sea. One Allied plane was lost, the first to fall in more than a dozen successive attacks against Timor military bases and shipping.

Activity in the northeastern sector (New Guinea and New Britain) was reported limited to reconnaissance.

The Zero was shot down in a 30-minute battle over mountains, valleys and sea by a bomber which had been forced from the Allied formation. The victor then withdrew. Details concerning the fate of the one plane lost were not announced.

Hayden Leonard of the Australian Broadcasting Commission said in a report heard by CBS in New York that "some tons" of bombs were dropped on Maobisse, a Japanese hide-away in the central mountains of Timor.

[illegible] damage was done and the Japanese troop concentration may have been broken up, he said.

One Australian Hudson bomber escaped from the raid after a thrilling "hide-and-seek battle in the gorges of the mountains," a BBC correspondent, William Meriot, said in another broadcast from Australia.

Speeding at tree-top level the Hudson once evaded three pursuing Zeros by aiming at one gorge and diving into another at the last minute. But the gorges converged and the bomber met up with its pursuers again.

The battle continued over the sea at so low a level that one of the Zeros crashed when its wing dipped into the waves, Meriot said.

14 DANISH FISHING VESSELS SEIZED BY THE BRITISH

Seizures Made Following Warning Boats Outside Coastal Waters Would be Seized

IN BRITISH PORTS

London, Aug. 22 (CP)—The Admiralty announced today that 14 Danish fishing vessels had been seized and moved into British ports.

Denmark is German-occupied. The Admiralty communique said the seizures were in line with a warning issued last month that vessels proceeding outside coastal waters in the North Sea would do so at their own risk and peril.

Second Casualty List is Issued

Ottawa, Aug. 22 (CP).—In the second casualty list issued since the battle of Dieppe 70 additional names were added today to those announced last night as among the killed, wounded and missing in the hectic fighting of the Canadian troops on the coast of France.

The Department of National Defence today confirmed the loss of two lieutenant-colonels — Lt.-Col. R. R. Labatt of the Royal Hamilton Light Infantry, missing, and Lt.-Col. G. H. McTavish of London, Ont., commanding an engineer battalion, killed in action. Next of kin of these men previously had announced receipt of official notice from Ottawa that they were casualties.

The list released today reported 21 killed in action, three dangerously wounded, 30 wounded, one wounded and missing, nine missing believed killed, five missing, and one missing believed drowned.

The total for the two lists, all apparently casualties arising from the Dieppe battle, now stands at 48 killed, 25 missing and 43 wounded.

BRIG. SOUTHAM MISSING

Toronto, Aug. 22 (CP) — Brig. W. W. Southam of Toronto, one of the officers commanding the Canadian troops taking part in the big raid on Dieppe, is reported missing as a result of the action, according to word received from Ottawa by his family today.

Netherlanders in E. I. Fought Valiantly Against Hopeless Odds

(Relman Morin was an Associated Press writer through the Far East from Malaya to Japan before he was interned in French Indo-China. Now en route home with repatriated Canadians and Americans, he tells here how valiantly Netherlanders of the East Indies fought against conquest.)

By RELMAN MORIN
(Associated Press Staff Writer)

Aboard S.S. Gripsholm, at sea, Aug. 22 (AP). — The Netherlands tried hard.

They ran a losing race against time to prepare for war in the Pacific. When war came, they fought a losing fight against hopeless odds.

Nowhere in the Orient, through the swift-running months of 1941, was there so much consciousness of danger, so much desperate effort, so much determination, as in the Netherlands East Indies.

As the danger increased, Hollanders returned to the Indies. An elderly Hollander resigned his position in Shanghai, and brought his wife and children to Batavia. He was well beyond military age. "If there is a Pacific war," I said, "you probably would be safer in Shanghai."

It was the woman who answered. "If there is war, I would rather have him die fighting here. We were both born here."

Gen. Hein Ter Poorten, later to become commander-in-chief of the army, had been showing me maps and statistics, the whole defence picture. "I hope they don't come now. We need another year, at least."

The general got only a few months. December 8, 1941, the Indies' fighting forces were far from ready. Yet, without hesitation, they fought.

The problem of the Indies was the problem of all the democracies—material. Defence began too late.

Then the Second Great War, and on May 10, 1940, the German army surged into Holland. Within ten days, Holland was over-run.

Within a month, the Axis menace was on their northern horizon. (When France and Holland fell, Japan immediately pressed demands in French Indo-China and The Netherlands Indies. The French gave in; The Netherlands did not.)

The East Indies fleet, built around three cruisers, was barely a good scouting force. The army mustered 100,000 men at most, counting native regiments. In the air force, there were about 500 planes, only half of them first-line.

Purchasing commissions scurried to the United States, offering any price for planes, tanks, guns. Necessarily, British needs took priority.

Meanwhile, shrewd, stubborn Dr. Hubertus Van Mook, head of the Department of Economics in Batavia, was stalling off the Japanese. He told me, "They don't want to talk business. They want to own us."

His proble mwas to evade Japanese demands, without bringing the crisis to a head. From January through June, 1941, he stalled. Finally, the Japanese went home, virtually empty-handed.

Six months had been gained.

Even when the war came, it might not have been too late to make a deal with Japan. The Indies might have done what French Indo-China did. Instead, they fought, instantly, unhesitatingly.

Despite Heavy Losses Germans Able to Advance

Moscow Reports Rather Limited Action in Kletskaya Area of the Don Bend

MAINTAIN BRIDGEHEAD

(By EDDIE GILMORE)
(Associated Press Staff Writer)

Moscow, Aug. 22. (AP) — Red Army men drove back the Germans in the Kletskaya area of the Don Bend northwest of Stalingrad by a surprise attack last night while the Germans generally maintained the initiative in other southern theatres, the Russians said today.

Close-quarter fighting developed from the Soviet thrust and the Nazi survivors were reported to have left on the battlefield 200 dead, two field guns, eight machine guns, 13 munitions trucks and a radio station.

Vanguards Wiped Out

This relatively-limited operation and a report that Russian detachments, forced ever deeper into the central Caucasus, had pinched off and wiped out German vanguards in the hills southeast of Pyatigorsk were balanced by announcement of sustained Nazi attacks southeast of Kletskaya northeast of Kotelnikovski and southeast of Krasnodar.

Several small German forces, mostly automatic riflemen, which crossed the Don at its curve southwest of Kletskaya in an attempt to establish a bridgehead only about 40 miles from Stalingrad, were declared by Moscow newspapers to be suffering heavy punishment. A machine-gun ambush accounetd for about 60 of the riflemen, it was announced.

Nazi Column Trapped

Soviet troops were said to be cutting down a German infantry column mouse-trapped behind a minor Nazi tank penetration southwest of the Stalingrad industrial centre on the Volga.

The mid-day communique reported the invaders had lost heavily in that sector—centred along a 95-mile railway line from Kotelnikovski—and were throwing in reserves.

Twelve tanks of a 50-tank formation were declared knocked out of action and about 300 Germans killed in a battle against an unyielding Soviet front.

New Russian withdrawals were recorded south of Pyatigorsk and Krasnodar, but the Soviet information bureau said Red army mortar crews of one unit killed more than 1,000 German officers and men in three days and destroyed 12 tanks and a number of trucks.

Red army men on the northwestern front—part of an area in which the Russians have been probing on the offensive—were reported to have driven the Germans from a populated place, killed several hundred and destroyed six German tanks and four enemy blockhouses.

A midnight communique indicated no abatement of the peril in the two-way thrust against Stalingrad, but the eighth week of Field Marshal Fedor von Bock's big push was ending with lines of the Red army still intact.

In the central Caucasus, German detachments assigned to the drive toward the Grozny and Baku oil fields were reported repelled yesterday southeast of Pyatigorsk.

Field dispatches said this fighting centred along a 50-mile asphalted highway toward Nalchik, itself 100 miles west of Grozny.

Natural Defenbes at Back

Natural defences of the Caucasian foothills appeared still to be behind the Russians conducting a fighting retreat south of Krasnodar, German-occupied Kuban River port. Soviet soldiers withdrew again in one sector, the communique said. More than 2,000 Germans were reported killed by a Russian unit in three days.

(A Soviet dispatch quoted by the BBC said several hundred German parachute troops were slain in a two-hour battle before Novorossisk, emergency base of the Red navy's Black Sea fleet on the Caucasian coast 60 miles southwest of Krasnodar. CBS recorded the British broadcast.)

Soviet bombers and naval vessels hammered away at Hitler's factories and ships and broadcast beamed to western European peoples said "a great United Nations offensive against Germany is now being prepared."

A large force of Russian bombers raided war industries of Warsaw, East Prussia and Upper Silesia on Thursday night and left explosions and fires behind, it was announced.

Red navy men were credited with sinking a 15,000 ton German tanker in Baltic waters and a minesweeper and two patrol boats in the Barents Sea.

The midnight bulletin contained no direct reference to previously-announced German attempts to establish a bridgehead on the Don Bend, reporting simply that "in the area southeast of Kletskaya (80 miles northwest of Stalingrad) our troops repulsed fierce enemy attacks."

Concerning the southern arm of the Nazi pincer, it said:

"Northeast of Kotelnikovski (95 miles south of Stalingrad) repeated heavy attacks by tanks and motorized infantry were repelled. In another sector the enemy sent 100 tanks into an attack. Only a few succeeded in breaking through. The infantry which followed the tanks was cut off by Soviet troops. Its annihilation is now proceeding."

A vain attack on Russian positions in a settlement on the west bank of the Upper Don near Voronezh was declared to have cost the Germans about 200 dead.

Gallantry and Self-Sacrifice of Men Of Les Fusiliers Mont Royal Told

By WILLIAM STEWART
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Somewhere in England, Aug. 22 (CP).—For every member of Les Fusiliers Mont Royal who crumpled under Nazi fire at Dieppe another man will step up to take his place.

That promise is already on its way to fulfilment as reinforcements poured into a French-Canadian camp somewhere in England from which many a Canadian is missing.

A large number arrived before those who survived the battle on the French beach started on a well-merited leave. Newcomers who had been awaiting the opportunity to get down to training for a fighting role marched in to hear tales of exemplary conduct of those they will replace—men who became heroes under the Dieppe hailstorm that was Nazi handiwork at its wickedest.

None need tell the newcomers that the conduct of the French-Canadians at Dieppe will rank as high as that of Quebec fighting men of the First Great War, such as those of the storied "Vingt-Deuxieme".

The example for all this war's French-Canadian troops was set by fusiliers of all ranks, from an officer who moved along the beach from one fallen figure to another to see if any still could heed his last order—the word to withdraw—to the little French-speaking negro who pulled many a wounded man to the boats which finally took them away.

That officer was not among those who came back. When last seen he was fully exposed to the chattering German machine-guns as he bent over his prone soldiers.

Busiest Self Saving Lives.

At one post another was asking his men if they knew the fight was over and they could start back for England, their duty done. The men who did get back thought he finally fell.

The dusky little fellow who when his wireless set was shot to pieces busied himself saving lives was Pte. Jean Napoleon Maurice, 21-year-old Montrealer whose father went to Canada from Marseille.

Among the wounded Maurice helped get aboard boats at re-embarkation were two members of the Royal Hamilton Light Infantry and two Essex Scottish. He didn't know their names.

The dark youngster didn't speak of these deeds himself. Others who watched him in admiration told the story.

Brave Fusilier Corporal

All Maurice had to say was this: "The Fusiliers were good. What they went through is unbelievable. They were real good. I saw a corporal trying to set up his mortar directly under Jerry's machine-guns. He didn't have a chance. He got it fast but even as he went to his knees he kept trying to get that mortar in place and open up on the cliffs where the Germans were establisned He just wasn't able.

Tough Pte. Pierre Dubuc of Montreal explained in a few words how he and 11 other Fusiliers penetrated the thickness of German defences to stage a raid deep into the town itself.

"Our orders told us to go into the town — we went," he said simply.

CHINESE FLAG FLIES ON CITY HALL STAFF

Fluttering before the breeze, and beneath the Union Jack on the City Hall flagstaff Saturday, was the Chinese National flag. The Chinese flag was being flown in connection with the Chinese tag day being held in the city today. The Chinese National flag consists of a large silver blazing sun on a blue —back ground with a solid red field. The flag was loaned for the occasion by William Wong, chairman of the local Chinese tag day relief fund.

New Milk Subsidy Benefits Suppliers To Local Dairies

District farmers supplying milk to the Belleville fluid milk market will, starting the first of September, receive an additional 35 cents per hundred pounds for their milk as the result of new minimum prices and a 25-cent subsidy to be paid by the government, it was announced in a press release Friday.

The order was made to embrace certain localities where a shortage of milk might occur as the milk flow falls off with the advent of drying up pastures. Distributors in Belleville will, according to the new order, be called upon to raise the present price to producers of $2.25 to $2.35 per hundred pounds for quota milk and will also pay the 25-cent subsidy but will be reimbursed for this amount by the government.

The new order came as a distinct surprise to Belleville milk retailers, who stated they did not know the new regulations were in the offing. No producers could be contacted to obtain their reaction to the order.

Rotary Carnival Huge Success

Success of the Rotarian Carnival now running at the Victoria Park with the Queen City shows as the attraction will be assured with a splendid amount of money raised for their Crippled Children's Fund providing the weather holds for this afternoon's and tonight's performances it was stated this morning by Rotary President Lloyd Hicks.

Scheduled for the entire six days, the carnival has had a splendid run thus far with the club members expressing appreciation of the response shown by the Belleville public.

Highlighting the interest in the carnival for four nights this week was the parade of district airforce bands and of the Belleville Municipal Band last evening. Led by Lieut. Fred Jobson, the band paraded from their band rooms on Front Street up Campbell to Pinnacle and then to Station Street and down Front to the locale of the carnival at Victoria Park. Considerable interest was shown by large crowds on Front Street as the band paraded to the park and undoubtedly the foresight of the club members in securing this added attraction has served to swell the returns at the carnival.

The Carnival will conclude today with afternoon and evening performances.

Unlikely U. S. Will Attempt To Settle Indian Question

Indian Leaders Alienated Section of Americans by Refusing Cripps' Plan

WILL HELP CHINA

By J. F. SANDERSON
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Washington, Aug. 22 (CP).—There is no indication in Washington that the United States government will respond to various appeals by American and British Liberal groups and attempt to settle the complex constitutional status of India.

State Secretary Cordell Hull this week was vague and non-committal when asked if he was prepared to step in between the British and Indian points of view in an effort to reach an amicable settlement. And the prevailing opinion among observers in Washington is that President Roosevelt wants no part of India's troubles parked on his White House doorstep at this time of crisis in the war.

It is becoming increasingly clear that Indian political leaders, when they turned down the Cripps formula of dominion status after the war, alienated a large section of American public opinion which for years had been pro-India in India's long fight for independence and political freedom. Similarly, when Mohandas K. Gandhi and his fellow-leaders of India's Congress Party gave the signal for the civil disobedience campaign, they alienated a further section of American public opinion.

There is no doubt that the people of the United States and their political leaders in particular would like to see Britain and India reach an agreement on constitutional reforms so that India may make her full contribution to the United Nations. But what they cannot understand is how any nation, or a country aspiring to nationhood, can go the way that India has gone with the Japanese at her borders.

A personal experience will demonstrate the change that has come over American public opinion in recent months. For many years Gandhi has been a popular hero in the United States and he has had the general support of the American people in his attempt to win freedom and independence for India. A few days ago in a Washington theatre a picture of the thin little man in a loincloth was flashed on the screen. There were hisses.

The Americans simply cannot understand people squabbling among themselves, resorting to riots, strikes and disobedience campaigns when the Japanese are poised for attack, just a few miles away. Further than that, the American people are becoming convinced that the future stability of China and its ability to continue full-scale resistance to the Japanese is wrapped up with the question of India's attitude toward the war in general. And it so happens that China is a particular pet of the American people at the present time and they don't like to see her placed in jeopardy.

All this does not mean that the American people have changed their opinion that India should have had independence and freedom long ago and that successive British governments must share a measure of responsibility for today's impasse.

What it does mean is that the American people in wartime are placing first things first and stoutly oppose anything that weakens the position of the United Nation as a whole.

That much was demonstrated earlier in the week when Senator Robert R. Reynolds of North Carolina, a Southern Democrat who is a genius for sounding off at the wrong time and is the chairman of the Senate Military Affairs Committee, came out flat-footed for immediate independence for India. His statement brought prompt warnings from Senator Alben Barkley of Kentucky, the Democratic leader; Senator Walter George of Georgia, chairman of the Senate Finance Committee and others that this was no time for personal and irresponsible statements from prominent senators that strengthens the Axis and weakens the unity of the Allied Nations.

Grade 'A' Eggs Up Two Cents On Local Mart

Grade "A" eggs again took a two cent rise over last week's quotations on the Belleville produce market this morning, retailing for 42 cents the dozen with mediums bringing 40 cents. Butter sold at the usual 40 cents the pound with a few vendors quoting their lots at two pounds for 85 cents. Chicken brought up to $1.75 each for well-finished fowl with the average bird bringing from $1.15 to $1.35. Broilers sold from $1 to 1.75 per pair.

Increased offerings of tomatoes again resulted in an easing of prices with 11-quart baskets bringing 50 cents and 6-quarts 25 cents each. Peaches also were plentiful with vendors asking 60 cents for specials, 50 cents for first grade and 40 for seconds. Good seasonal apples sold at from 40 to 50 cents the peck, while cooking varieties brought $1 per bushel or 25 cents the basket.

What was claimed to be practically the last of the huckleberries were offered at $1.75 per six-quart basket or at 30 cents the quart. Long black berries were, 30 cents the box, Bradshaw plums 55 cents and Burbanks 50 cents the basket. Green pears were 50 cents the peck.

Potatoes Plentiful

Potatoes were offered quite freely at 45 cents the peck or at $1.65 the bushel, peas 40 cents the quart, lettuce heads 10 cents and two for 15 cents, celery 10 cents cauliflower up to 25 cents each and seasonal vegetables at the usual 5 cents the bunch. Gerkins were 75 cents the six-quart basket and large cucumbers ranged from 25 cents the basket up. Green corn sold at 25 cents to 35 cents the dozen ears.

Gladioli were offered by a number of vendors with beautiful blooms drawing considerable attention from purchasers who seemed quite willing to pay the 25 cents asked for the blooms.

White fish were offered by one vendor at the usual 25 cents per pound, while a few farmers offered young pigs at the usual $7 to $8 each.

CANADIAN RAID

Bumped Off With Pleasure.

Huppe himself dismissed his action with a shrug of the shoulders.

"All the Germans we seen we bumped off with pleasure," he said.

The Camerons lavished their praise, too, on the regimental padre, Capt. J. P. Brown of Winnipeg and Dauphin, Man., who went ashore as a medical sergeant in a regimental aid post. In the heat of action he worked on the wounded and carried stretchers for hours on end through German machine-gun fire.

Capt. Ben Brackman of Regina, a medical officer, also was highly praised for his excellent work on the injured.

Cpl. Freddy Sutherland, captain of the Camerons hockey team which won the Canadian army championship last winter, summed up the bravery of his mates with the assertion: "I never saw anyone back down anywhere".

Kept Plowing Ahead.

The Camerons didn't seem to have any nerves at all. They just kept plowing ahead and plowing ahead. At one point thirty men under Capt. E. P. Thompson of Winnipeg were cut off by machine-gun fire three miles from the coast and without faltering battled their way out of the trap and ran the gauntlet of German fire back to the coast.

The heroism of the Camerons was so outstanding that Lieut. E. D. McManus of Winnipeg, who was with the forces going up the left bank of the river, said: "You can hardly pick out any individual who did any better than any other".

"Every man was a superb soldier all the way. There was never the slightest indication of fear."

The first man of the Camerons to kill a German was Pte. A. E. Buchanan of Winnipeg, who saw a Nazi in an orchard by the beach and brought him down in short order.

CSM. Charlie McLellan of Winnipeg was with a company that probably saw more action than any other. A veteran of the last war, when he served in the Seaforths and Argylls of the British army, he spoke words of encouragement to his men and was an outstanding example of coolness under fire, especially on the beach where the going was particularly tough.

TRIED A STEALTHY

Admiral Nimitz said the Marines made a successful landing and accomplished their objective by destroying seaplane installations. Following the action, the force withdrew, the admiral said, giving a different version than the Tokyo radio, which broadcast that a landing force of about 200 Americans "had been repulsed."

Enemy Losses Inflicted

"Known enemy losses inflicted by the Marines are at least 80 Japanese killed, radio installations and stores destroyed and one large and one small seaplane destroyed on the water," the communique said.

Losses were suffered by the enemy in heavy bombing attacks dealt by their own confused aircraft which arrived from other bases.

"Ships of our expedition gunned and sank one small transport and one gunboat," the communique said. "Considering the nature of this operation our forces suffered only moderate losses."

None of the officers in charge of the raid was on the casualty list Admiral Nimitz said.

Makin Island is the most northerly island of the British-owned Gilbert group, and is one of the bases attacked last January when an American naval force struck in the Gilbert and Marshall Islands.

Three hundred miles north of Makin lies the Japanese base at Jaluit on the Marshall Islands, Japanese-owned. Jaluit and the further north Japanese bases at Taroa and Wotje in the Marshalls, also were hammered in the January raid.

Ross McIlveen, Gull Lake, Sask.; John Edmundson, Estevan, Sask.; L. L. Dickin, Saskatoon and G. B. Buchanan, Medicine Hat, Alta.

The Saskatchewan troops landed at 5 a.m. right at Pourville. They were the first Canadians ashore and scrambled over a 10-foot seawall and immediately occupied a section of the town. Detachments went through buildings cleaning out Germans.

One company pushed southwest of Pourville and smashed Nazi motor transport sheds and gun positions and later this same company with a platoon and a half of Camerons repelled attacks by a whole German battalion that came up from the south. This action lasted two hours.

Headquarters Established.

Headquarters was established in the town which was constantly under the fire from German mortars and artillery one mile to the southeast. Nazi machine-guns on the headlands kept firing down the main street.

A company attacked down the road leading inland in a southeasterly direction and was stopped by fire from a pillbox a few hundred yards outside the town. A platoon took cover behind a road block 20 yards from the pillbox from which the Germans were firing.

Pte. Charlie Sawden of Consul, Sask., looked over the situation and told Cpl. Charlie Devlin of Lucky Lake, Sask.: "If somebody will hold my rifle I'll knock hell out of those guys."

Firing Certainly Stopped

He slipped forward from cover of the road block with Nazis pegging shots at him all the time, made the pillbox and chucked a hand grenade through one of the firing slits. "We didn't stop to see how many Charlie killed in there but firing certainly stopped," Devlin said.

Later, as Devlin led a section in an attack on some inland guns Sawden had his leg broken by a Nazi bullet.

"We carried him down into a hollow and used our bayonets as splints to fix up his leg," said Devlin. "Then we went on to make another attack. Charlie was picked up on the way back. He's in hospital in England now and doing okay."

In mid-morning a machine-gun post on a clifftop caused the westerners some trouble and Col. Merritt attacked it with a sergeant and two men.

"We crawled up on the cliff behind the colonel and me and the other guy covered the pillbox with a Bren gun," said Ptes. Les Thrussell of Weyburn. "The colonel and sergeant went forward and wrecked the pillbox with grenades."

Colonel Bombs Pillbox

Lieut. Buchanan said that when the colonel came back to the unit's headquarters he told him with a boyish grin. "I just bombed out a pillbox. Try it some time before breakfast. I recommend it."

The South Saskatchewans had a tragic experience with Nazi treachery. A detachment surrounded a machine-gun post and the Germans waved a white flag. The Canadians advanced to take some prisoners and the Nazi opened fire, immediately killing all of them.

"We now know the truth of the statement there is only one good German and that's a dead one," said Lieut. Buchanan.

Units of the South Saskatchewan had a rocky time on their withdrawal when the Nazis closed in and machine-gunned them from high points. The tide was running and the boats couldn't get in closer than 150 yards, forcing the Canadians to walk or swim out to them.

Rev. Kurt Molzahn Convicted On Conspiracy Charge

Hartford, Conn., Aug. 22—(AP)—Stocky, Rev. Kurt E. B. Molzahn today faced a prison sentence, possibly 20 years, after conviction of a charge of conspiracy to violate the Espionage Act by attempting to deliver military secrets of the United States, his adopted country, to Axis powers.

The 47-year-old pastor of an ancient German Lutheran Church in Philadelphia's Franklin Square showed no signs of emotion late yesterday as a federal jury of eight men and four women, after two hours' deliberation, found him guilty of espionage.

Although Judge J. Joseph Smith, granting a defence plea, continued the pastor's case until Tuesday, he immediately sentenced three of the clergyman's co-conspirators including Gerhard Wilhelm Kunze, former "Fuehrer" of the German-American Bund.

Kunze, 36, a self-described German citizen, although born in Camden, N.J., was sentenced to 15 years. The others, Dr. Wolfang Ebell, 43, El Paso, Texas, physician, was given seven years, and Dr. Otto Willumeit, 37, Chicago ex-Bund leader, was ordered to serve five years.

Draws Five-Year Term

The fifth conspirator Anastase A. Vonsiatsky of Thompson, Conn., Russian Fascist leader, drew a five-year term before the four-weeks-long Molzahn trial began.

Only the pastor stood trial. The others pleaded guilty.

The conspiracy in which Rev. Molzahn was convicted of participating was in operation, the government said, from January, 1941, until "on or about" Dec. 6, 1941, the day before United States entry into the war, thus eliminating the graver penalty of wartime espionage.

The aim of the conspirators, the prosecution charged, was to collect information about the United States army, navy, air force and defence industries and deliver it to Germany or Japan through Kunze who went to Mexico last fall and was arrested there less than a month after the Federal Grand Jury indictment was returned here June 10.

The pastor's part, the government charged, was to help Kunze obtain the passport of some neutral country other than the United States.

Dr. Ebell helped Kunze across the border from El Paso to Juarez, Mexico, and Dr. Willumeit attended a meeting in Chacago where Vonsiatsky and Kunze talked over the latter's plan to take the information abroad.

Y.M.C.A. War Services

BELLEVILLE

This evening's servicemen's dance in the Y.M.C.A. gym. will get under way about 8.30 and the young ladies are urged to be on hand as close to that time as possible. Unfortunately, it isn't possible to admit all the chaps who apply, because of limited floor-space, so that 'first-come' get the preference.

The Y.M.C.A. will be open all day Sunday for any chaps wishing to read, write, swim or just loaf.

Dancing class will be held Monday night at 8 p.m. and the hostesses will be glad to assist any member of the forces.

The usual Bay of Quinte Country Club dance arranged by the Y.M.C.A. Tuesday nights has been cancelled next week due to absence of the supervisors at a conference at Geneva Park.

Despite the large number of ladies sent to 6 R.D. for their station dance Wednesday night, the regular weekly dance at the Y. was well attended.

Magazines continue to pour in to the Red Triangle Club nearly every day, and this week we sent several hundred, including English periodicals to the R.A.F. station at Picton. We wish to thank all those who remember 'the boys' in this way and also say how much we appreciate the kindness of one lady in particular who adds a home touch to our lounge by sending in flowers regularly.

Looking over the list of servicemen who signed the register this week, we found men from Bolton, Eng., Boston Lincolnshire, Reading, Eng., Greenford, Middlesex, Devonshire and London, Eng, Inverness, Scotland besides chaps from New Zealand and most parts of Canada. You would enjoy meeting these chaps so if you can arrange to entertain one or more either for meals or overnight, just leave your name at the Y.

Contact Club

Sponsored by Y.W.C.A. rooms registry. The members of the Contact Club were pleased to have two new arrivals in Belleville join with them on Thursday afternoon at the Y. Airmens' wives and their children are all very welcome to these weekly gatherings.

Mrs. Michie, who has been the very capable president of the club since its beginning, announced an election for next Thursday. It is hoped there will be a good turn out.

Plans were made to make a layette to send to England. It was also suggested that each member prepare a two or three minute talk—something on current events, books, history or anything that would be of general interest.

Refreshments consists of fresh fruit now which the members seem to enjoy quite as much as the tea that was served formerly.

R.C.A.F. Station, Trenton, Ont., News

Thirty men from Trenton on 48's this weekend will find themselves the hosts of the ladies of Cobourg, Ont. From all indications a most enjoyable weekend is being planned for the boys, ranging from a "moonlight cruise" on Friday night to a gala dance on Saturday night.

On Monday evening a somewhat new form of entertainment was injected into our plans. Many men at Trenton are keenly interested in good music and the idea was put forth that at regular intervals talks on "How to Appreciate Good Music" takes place. Padre Gower directed the first of this series of programs which was most popular and well attended.

The St. Michael's Club were hostesses at a dance to the airmen of this district at the Quinte Golf and Country Club. Refreshments were served at intermission by the ladies. The R.C.A.F. band supplied the music.

Sports

This week the play-offs started in the Inter-Unit Softball League. On Monday night the P.T.I. team scored a win over the Administration team by a score of 9-4 while on Tuesday night the team from hangar No. 7 C.F.S. won over the Equipment Section by a score of 24-11. Errors were rife in this game and both teams hope they got all the errors over with in this game. Wednesday night the Firefighters burnt up the diamond with a fine display in beating the Motor Transp. team 8-0, then came back on Thursday night to win a close game from the No. 6 Hangar team from C.F.S. by a score of 4-3 and this was the best game of the series to date which continues next week.

Wednesday night Vimy Barracks of Kingston brought up two fine teams which administered a defeat in softball to the Trenton Officers and then the Airmen succumbed to the fine play of their soccer team by the score of 4-3.

Refreshments served after the games were greatly appreciated and it goes without saying a strong feeling of goodwill has been fostered between Vimy Barracks and Trenton Flyers.

The news is out—the big carnival sports day at Trenton Airport will be held on September 7th. What plans are in the making? Surprises are in store for one and all as we go all out to make this day the biggest day of all the year. More about this next week.

TIME TO STAY IN COLLEGE.
(Reprint from Vogue, August 15, 1942.)

Maybe it was a tussle—deciding to go back to college this year. Maybe you felt, obscurely, like a slacker, going back to your books, your friends, your fun, instead of plunging into a job in a bomber plant or a Government agency or something directly, actively connected with the war. But you're going back, all the same. Not only because you like to finish what you start. Not only because you want to collect that diploma you've worked for. But because you know it's the right thing to do.

You know that finishing your education is about the most important contribution you can make, right now, to the future of your country and the world. You know that technical and scientific training is desperately needed for the war effort; that the Government is subsidizing college courses in engineering, physics, chemistry, medicine. You know, too, the enduring importance of the social studies, and—beautiful word—the Humanities. All are needed to make up the mental and spiritual, as well as intellectual, equipment of a free citizen, in a free country; a free world.

You, yourselves, have summed up your reasons far better than we can hope to do—in your answers to a question in Vogue's last Prix de Paris contest. The question was: Offered the choice between a war job and staying on at school, which would you choose? Martha Winckler (University of California) wrote:

". . . To lay aside an educational plan now, before it's completed is short-sighted patriotism at best. There is a peace to think of, as well as a war, and it's going to take all the facts and ideas that we, the young, can wrest frrom our books and lecture halls, and all the straight-thinking habits we can acquire, to win that peace . . . ."

Grain and Hay Crops Prove the Best District Witnessed in Many Years

West Huntingdon — Each year seems to bring its peculiarities in much the same way that not two individuals are alike, so no two years are the same, and this year has brought its many problems to the farmers. Faced with the most abundant hay harvest ever witnessed, coupled with the rainy season at beginning of the hay harvest, delayed the farmers to the extent that many fields of hay in this district have not yet been harvested. Old timers have often predicted that when farmers have a good hay crop the grain, as a rule, is not so good, but contrary to this, the grain is the best in this district that has been witnessed in a number of years. This, of course, gives rise to many stories of large fields of grain. It was thought that the high peak was reached when Mr. Charles Fargey's oats averaged 70 bushels per acre, but this was surpassed on Monday when Mr. Aaron Ashley's oats averaged 76 bushels per acre. The fall wheat has also excelled this year. Messrs James S. Wilson and son Elmer threshed over 800 bushels of wheat from 25 acres.

Threshing machine operators are having a difficult time in endeavoring to keep peace and harmony among the farmers. Threshing has been made more difficult than in former years due to the abundance of straw and the fact that every barn is filled with hay. Every farmer is forced to either stook thresh or stack his grain.

While many of the local organizations cease functioning for the summer months there is one, however, that continues with the regular routine of work, namely, the local Red Cross Societies. Mrs. Frank Hammond entertained the members of No. 1 Rawdon Branch.

Mr. Phillip Carr made a generous contribution to the funds of the Red Cross of this division when he gave his wife a brief holiday by informing her that he would take the threshing gang over to the Hammonds' for the usual pot luck dinner, which is a feature of each meeting.

The Huntingdon branch of the Red Cross held a business meeting of recent date. After the usual business was transacted Miss Bessie Fleming gave a report of the articles shipped in June: 30 pairs H.S. socks; 8 quilts; 30 infants' night gowns; 10 women's gowns. An itemized account of receipts from 12th. July dinner was given. Receipts were $439.12; expenses, $75.68. Balance $363.44.

The officers expressed their thanks for all those who helped to realize this neat sum. A number of others outside of district also contributed generously.

Bees Resent Intrusion

Scientists say that the bumblebee is the farmers' best friend, but Mr. Foster Wilson did not exactly agree with them. When one day recently while raking in the field he ran over a colony of bumblebees and as a result his horses ran away and Mr. Wilson was thrown under the rake but fortunately he escaped with only a severe shaking up.

Manpower's Total Effort

Prime Minister King outlined in his speech the other night plans for the most comprehensive and effective organization of the people of Canada for the war.

This policy will immediately affect all but the very old, the very young and the disabled.

The government is determined as far as is humanly possibly to make sure that the best use is made of the services of all men and women and that every able-bodied man undertakes some form of essential service, in the armed forces, in war production or in a vital civilian capacity.

The Prime Minister stressed the necessity that the demands of the services of men and women should be kept in balance.

Measures are to be taken to secure information on the availability of workers and there will be a registration of women in September.

He said that the employment of women, not previously employed, increases the manpower resources of Canada and it was pointed out that apart from the new generation of young men available each year the total manpower for all essential needs can be increased by the employment of women. It is also increased by the shifting of men from non-essential civilian tasks to more essential activities. So non-essential activities should be curbed or eliminated, the government has decided. The director of national selective service will direct into the most useful channels the manpower released from non-essential civilian activities. Workers who change from one occupation to another of more vital war work will be assured of reinstatement in their previous employment. New controls are to be put to work and the Prime Minister appealed to every Canadian willingly and cheerfully to accept such controls and direction. He said that it is the sumtotal of individual service that counts and that no service efficiently rendered is too small to help tilt the balance towards victory.

Norway and Her King

There has just been issued by the Royal Norwegian Government's Information Office in London in commemoration of the seventieth anniversary of the birth of His Majesty King Haakon VII a souvenir book, "All for Norway," which is intended as a greeting from the Norse people to their great democratic king. "All for Norway" was the slogan adopted by the king on assuming the throne in 1905. They were the words of a long-distant ruler of Norway, another by the name of Haakon.

As the book points out the Norwegian people are bound together by their history this fine sense of history saving their country at the decisive moments and making the Norwegians aware of their destiny.

The book is a souvenir that Norwegians will cherish as it enshrines their king and their country. It has great historic importance for it is founded on records. It is illustrated with hundreds of photographs.

The German invasion was a violation of the Norwegian people's belief in themselves and their ideal that Norway should be built on law.

Out of the great worth of the Norwegian people has come the resistance to the invader—the home front and the war front from outside. King Haakon has became the "Saga King." In the darkest hours he stayed with his forces while the Hun tried to kill him. He is king indeed, King of Norway at war with the aggressor. Today he stands as the symbol of freedom and the constitution and the incarnation of Norway's nationhood.

Norway has her airforce, she has her army abroad and she has her ships which ply the Seven Seas, all in service for the United Nations and the restoration of freedom to their country and other lands and the extension of democracy.

Our virtues are dearer to us the more we have had to suffer for them. It is the same with our children. All profound affection admits a sacrifice.—Vauvenargues.

We should not judge of a man's merits by his great qualities but by the use he makes of them.—Rochefoucauld.

CATS TAKE OVER ISLAND

Large and fierce cats are now the only inhabitants of Frigate, a low coral island 300 miles northeast of Mauritius in the Indian Ocean. They are descendants of two shipwrecks there 80 years ago. To exist they must have fish, and they show great ingenuity in catching them. Forming a circle on a dry reef reaching to the water's edge. they close in at low tide and drive the fish into shallow pools and channels. Picking them out, they tear them with razor-like claws. During violent hurricanes when fishing is impossible, they attack each other.

300 LOSE FREEDOM

Abuse of a provision for "conditional liberty" for prisoners in Santiago, Chile, has resulted in the Government's decision to cancel special privileges for 300 persons and return them to their confinement in prisons. The action followed an increase in crime and an investigation which showed many paroled prisoners were engaged in the pursuits which had led to their arrests.

As a means of curbing the "restaurant hob," Dutch treat, among other things, is being considered by the Food Ministry in London. SWEDEN SEEKS EGGS

Eggs have disappeared into the black market of Sweden and are unobtainable with ration cards "entitling" holders to eight eggs monthly, Stockholm reports. Despite shortages in many products and amplification of the rationing system, Sweden still has adequate food to maintain health, but bread allowances are smaller than in some of the belligerent nations.

WOOLEN ARMOR URGED

Woolen armor plate for military aircraft is under consideration in Australia as a result of a suggestion advanced by N. C. Bucknell, a Melbourne engineer. Pointing out that a bullet cannot penetrate a bale of wool to the depth of more than an inch and a half, Mr. Bucknell suggested that layers of wool placed between sheets of metal in the fuselage of an airplane should make the craft bullet-proof.

BIG BELLS MISSING

Troops going to war like to take a train starting bell with them. A. G. Dennis traffic manager at Sydney, Australia, knows to his regret. Twenty-four big brass bells have been taken from Australian railway stations, and only one has returned. It bore the initials of about 40 "Diggers" and came from the Middle East. It is being preserved as a war relic, and the railroad hopes to have more such mementoes returned.

THE LIGHT

As lights are kept for ships at sea
Where fogs and waters roll,
So, for the eye of faith to see,
Is light for every soul.

Though near or far from shore we are
It shines a beacon true,
As constant as the northern star,
A guide for all we do.

And whether skies be dark or clear,
Storm-tossed or calm the sea
Each has a light by which to steer
No matter where he be

Steer by your light, oh boy of mine,
Live to the best you know.
Be steadfast, whether rain or shine!
And not far wrong you'll go.

Capital Closeups

By JOHN DAUPHINEE
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Ottawa, Aug. 22 (CP)—Prime Minister Mackenzie King said in his radio speech this week that non-essential industries would be "curtailed or eliminated" and, informed sources said today, he might have added that elimination will be more frequent than curtailment.

Two major factors brought them to that conclusion: The heavy demands for manpower from the armed forces and industries already on war production; and the wide-spread shortages of strategic materials.

Elliott M. Little, Director of National Selective Service, soon will have control over manpower for both forces and industry. Mr. King said he and Donald Gordon, Chairman of the Wartime Prices and Trade Board, will work in close harmony in curbing non-essential industry.

"What you'll find happen," said one authority, "is that Gordon will put in the regulations and Little will grab the men they make available."

That will mean, he added, that the tendency will be to move men from non-essential plants to war industries already established, lessening the possibilities for conversion of non-war plants to more vital uses.

It is expected that some conversion will be accomplished through the displaced industries branch of the Munitions and Supply Department. But even that growing office, which already has helped many plants get into war production when their civilian activities were curtailed, is not hopeful it will be able to do very much.

One informant in a position to know said the shortage of many materials would be a hard handicap to surmount.

"Quite frankly, the men I talk to don't see how there can be very much expansion beyond the commitments which have already been made, unless new supply sources are found," he said. "For that reason, if for no other, the number of plants which can be started on direct war work when their non-war production is cut down is likely to be small.

"I'm afraid there will be a lot of locked doors in Canada."

Dog Days

Press conferences are going out of style in Ottawa...Prime Minister Mackenzie King hasn't met the press en masse for a long time and doesn't seem anxious to resume the once fairly-regular meetings....He used to say, as a reason for not holding press conferences, that Winston Churchill never held them in London, even if President Roosevelt was an addict...Now the news from Washington is that F. D. R. is cutting them down if not out—and the prospects look black for Capital correspondents.

The government soon is to take control of all "help wanted" and "situation wanted" ads...Who knows but one day it will be advertising itself, like this:-

"Wanted—Two men with plenty of money and physical endurance for low-paid but exciting work in Russia and China. Jobs carry title of minister plenipotentiary and envoy extraordinary and requisites are generous."

Incidentally we mentioned last week rumors that Mr. King was dickering with an unnamed Montreal man in connection with the Moscow job....One foreign diplomat wanted to know if it might be Warwick Chipman, K.C., leading light in the League of Nations and expert on international relations.

Down Halifax way, work is going ahead on those two navy films.... The Hollywood production, "Convoy," is said to be about 10 percent done with the work laid out for a good bit ahead....The film board's documentary is almost finished and may be released about October.

Dr. E. C. Coleman, Undersecretary of State, has his finger in a lot of other people's pie as custodian of enemy property....He controls assets estimated variously from $800,000,000 to $1,000,000 000....His operations are very, very hush-hush but one thing is known—the enemy is helping to finance the war...periodically the earnings of enemy aliens' property and money is invested in war loans.

Hand Grenades Destroys Pillbox

Somewhere in England, Aug. 22 (CP).—Sgt. Harry Roberts of Oakville, Ont., one of the Dieppe casualties at a Canadian army hospital, came out of the raid with a Messerschmitt machine-gun bullet in his shoulder.

Member of the Toronto Scottish, he was wounded as he stooped to help a friend who had suffered a leg injury.

Roberts was injured shortly after helping knock out a pillbox. Describing the action, he said: "I climbed up to the top of the concrete box and kicked the ventilator to bits. Then we threw hand grenades in and blew the box and the Jerries to blazes."

MURDER AND SUICIDE

Warwick, R.I., Aug 22 (AP).—Four persons in a parked automobile were accosted early today by a 19-year-old youth, identified as Earl La Garie, who shot one woman to death, wounded another woman and a man, and then shot and killed himself, Deputy Police Chief Forrest Sprague reported. A fourth man in the car escaped injury as five shots poured into the vehicle. Sprague said the shooting developed from "a lovers' quarrel".

Defends Provision Of Beer for Soldiers

Ottawa, Ontario,
August 22, 1942,

The Editor,
Ontario Intelligencer,
Belleville, Ontario.

Sir:—

After my escape from Hong Kong and upon my arrival in Canada I was astonished to find that the Clerical groups severely criticize those who had provided our soldiers in the Near and Far East, with a limited amount of beer. It never occurred to us, while we were under the fire by the Japanese, that our people at home were waging a battle at home to prevent us from having something that we not only wanted, but also sorely needed.

It is all very well to argue the merits of temperance when you have a clean and wholesome water supply at hand, but it is quite another matter when your water supply is cut off, with nothing to drink except the vilest and the filthiest brackish water which is unfit for consumption. No one who has not been through such extremities can possible appreciate what our ration of beer meant to us. Ask any old soldier and he will give you the reasons in terms and in language that cannot be misunderstood. I think it will be conceded that the man in the field is really the competent judge. Even if it were only a whim and not a real necessity it still follows that the soldier is entitled to the simple pleasures he experiences and the good he obtains from a clean, wholesome bottle of beer.

Those who are in doubt have the means of determining the truth very easily. Let them join up for service in the hot countries in temperatures of 120° and higher, and they will soon discover why the Canadian fighting man is really entitled to have his beer under fire. Ask the next soldier that you meet and he will give you the right answer.

Less smugness and a greater regard for the practical facts would be a big help.

Yours very truly,
B. A. Proulx.

In Coventry, England, there used to be, and still are if Nazi bombs haven't destroyed them, two "birthplaces" of Ellen Terry, the famous actress. One was marked "The Birthplace of Ellen Terry" and the other "The Original Birthplace of Ellen Terry."

So far during the present war we have heard little of "generalissimos." Perhaps this is because the term is of Italian origin. "Generalissimo" is the superlative form of Italian "generale," and means the chief commander of an army or of several armies operating in unison.

Nowadays, in the armies of several countries, a "field marshal" is a military officer of the highest rank, corresponding to a full or four-starred general in the U. S. Army. Originally, however, a field marshal was a general, officer directly under the commanding general, who performed the duties of a quartermaster in the field.

Our word "strategy" is derived from Greek "stratos," army, and "agein," leader. "Strategos" is the Greek equivalent of our "general." The word "stratagem" is from the same source.

"Tactics" comes from a Greek verb meaning to order or to arrange.

Dieppe Stands With Vimy Among Treasured Battle Honors Says Star

London Aug. 22 —(CP Cable)— The gallantry of the Canadian commandos in the Dieppe action drew the praise of British newspapers and the foremost tribute came from the London Star, which said, "Dieppe is a name that now stands with Vimy among Canada's treasured battle honors."

The Tabloid Star devoted its entire editorial column to "Canada—its fighting men and women; its factories and fields."

Provincial papers, many of which published the eye-witness account of Ross Munro, Canadian Press war correspondent, under his by-line, also were lavish with their tribute to the Dominion's rugged warriors.

"Canadians may rightly be filled with pride in the achievements of their fighting sons in this great raid," said the Star. "To them fell the distinction of playing the leading part.

"It was richly earned and gallantly performed by those hardy troops who have had to wait two years for this chance to strike a blow at the enemy. We may look upon it as a well-deserved gesture to that country whose part in the total war effort of the Empire has been truly enormous."

Reviews Canada's Effort

The paper reviewed Canada's manifold contributions and noted that the limit of her arms and supply production is "still far off."

"Hitherto Canada's sustained share in the fighting has been at sea and in the air," the Star added. "Her soldiers were fated to be at Hong Kong but since the war began her sailors have battled unceasingly with convoys and her airmen have flown with the R.A.F. against the Axis in many fields.

"They all have proud records and to the public their flying exploits are once more as familiar as in the days of Billy Bishop.

"All (4,000,000 Canadian factory workers, farmers, foresters and home defence forces) are sustaining the maple leaf as an emblem of a whole people—and not the least among its citizens are the French-Canadians—dedicated and devoted to victory."

Less Seriously Wounded Canadians Rest in Canadian Hospital in England

Pain Written on Faces of Many but They Have Smile for All Visitors

NO BOASTING

By DOUGLAS AMARON
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

At a Canadian Army Hospital, Somewhere in England, Aug. 22—(CP Cable)—Great-hearted Canadian soldiers, bearing their wounds with the same unflinching courage as that with which they faced the merciless hail of German bullets, unfolded today a story of heroism on the beaches of Dieppe unsurpassed in the Dominion's fighting history.

There is one word to describe the valor of the men I talked with in the clean, airy wards of this newest Canadian hospital where they lay joking about scars they will always carry to remind them of the eight hours under fiendish German fire. The word is guts.

These were the less serious casualties—men sufficiently fit to be moved inland from coastal hospitals where the critically wounded were taken.

Bear Evidence of Wounds

There was no need to ask many of them of their wounds. Weighted pulleys above the beds supported torn and shattered limbs. Blood-stained bandages revealed where skulls had been creased and hands and feet sliced by shrapnel or pierced by bullets.

Pain was written on the faces of many of the men as they smoked and read or just lay still in their hospital cots. But they had a smile for all visitors, a wisecrack for many questions and a united resolve to return to their units and "knock hell" out of the Germans.

None of these soldiers, some of them newly shaven but most with with the black stubble of a week's beard, elaborated on or boasted of the part he played in the battle of Dieppe, but a simple recital of the facts was an account of superb heroism in itself.

One deed which stood out was described to me by a doctor at the hospital who heard it from a wounded soldier—a French-Canadian member of Les Fusiliers Mont Royal.

Wiped Out 15 Germans

With other members of his platoon, the French-Canadian attacked a pillbox, wiping out 15 Germans. Then they stormed and took another pillbox, following this up with an assault on a German-manned trench.

By this time only the French-Canadian and two other soldiers were still alive and as they advanced against another trench they, too, were hurled to the ground badly wounded by a grenade thrown at their feet.

A German officer ordered them to stand but they could not. The officer, revolver in hand, moved away for help and as he turned the French-Canadian, supporting himself on the body of another Canadian, shot him dead.

Then this soldier crawled on his hands and knees to a boat at the beach.

Another story of courage under fire came from Pte. Henry Dingwall of Deloraine, Man., who smiled through a heavy growth of beard as he told how he "had to do it or else die."

Has Skull Creased by Bullet

Wounded in the hand early in the fighting, the 25-year-old member of the Camerons of Canada had his skull creased by a bullet which pierced his steel helmet as he helped shove a boat away from shore.

The German fire was too fierce to risk climbing into the boat so Dingwall, despite his injured hand and dazed from the blow on the head, swam a mile off shore to another boat and was hauled aboard by a rope.

"I figured I was a goner there," Dingwall said. "I was so tired I didn't think I could make it."

Then, half apologetically, he explained he was unable to bring back all his equipment.

"I would sure like to have another crack at them once I get better," he added.

Steel Mirror Dented

R.S.M. Roger Strumm of Saskatoon, who went ashore with the South Saskatchewan Regiment, returned with a souvenir he will cherish the rest of his life.

It is a steel mirror he carried in a pocket over his heart. A deep dent in the mirror made by a jagged piece of flying shell splinter is grim proof that the smallest protection can sometimes save a man's life.

Strumm, who went unwounded through the First Great War, said simply "I was lucky enough to get out this time."

He was wounded in the leg by shrapnel and was carried to safety by four soldiers who waded to their waists in order to place him in a boat.

Carried to Boat by Germans

Maj. F. S. Wilkinson, second in command of the Royal Hamilton Light Infantry, also was carried to a boat—by four German prisoners whom a junior officer rounded up.

The Hamilton major was wounded in the arm before he even landed but insisted on going ashore and for five hours remained with his unit, sheltering on the beach behind the frail protection of a Bren-gun carrier.

His wan face as he lay abed with bandaged and blood-stained arm raised above the covers told of the agony he must have suffered.

Two members of the Fusiliers Mont Royal were amazed at the youth of the German prisoners who returned to England with them.

Driver Henri Malo, 21, of Montreal, whose leg was splattered by shrapnel, said most of the Germans he saw were no more than 16 or 17.

"They seemed glad to be with us," he said, explaining the fierce fighting of Dieppe was "too much for them."

One youthful German wore a Canadian uniform across the channel and Malo declared "he liked it very much."

Wounded Early in Fight

Malo was wounded early in the fight, and apologized he "had no chance to do many things there" but promised "I'll go back again."

Bronzed Felix Hansen of St. Johns, Que., a private who said he "got a very rough time," crossed the channel with German prisoners and told how one Nazi who died during the voyage was dropped overboard to "make more room for Canadians."

Malo, suffering shrapnel wounds, honestly admitted he didn't "care for this" but said he would return to France when the time comes "because it is the duty."

Pte. George McChesney, Hamilton, Ont., had a broken arm, and he, too, remarked on the youth of the prisoners.

"I was with one who was only 15 and he cried like a baby when I made him run across the open space to cover," he said.

The Canadians all spoke of heavy casualties and Pte. Charles Boomer of Brantford, Ont., a member of the Royal Hamilton Light Infantry, who was wounded in the leg half an hour before his unit left the French coast, said "I knew some of them wouldn't come back but I didn't think we would lose so many."

Willkie to Be Special Envoy Of the President

Washington, Aug. 22 — (AP) — President Roosevelt said that Wendell L. Willkie, who opposed him for the presidency on the republican ticket in 1940, is going to the near east and Russia to tell those countries the truth about the American war effort and the unity behind it.

The president told a press conference that in addition to Russia, Willkie's itinerary will include Egypt, Arabia, Palestine, Syria, Turkey, Iraq, and Iran.

The best thing to call him, Mr. Roosevelt said, is a special representative of the president, since he will carry letters not only to various Americans but also to officials of other countries, including Premier Stalin of Russia.

In each country, the President said, in replying to a question as to Willkie's specific mission, his principal task will be to tell them the truth, reporting at the leader of the minority party in the United States. As this leader, he said, Willkie's words will carry great weight.

To Make Comparison

Mr. Roosevelt said that Willike had been asked to carry to these nations a comparison of what would happen to them if the Axis won, and if the United States won.

The president and Willkie conferred about the trip at length yesterday, and Mr. Roosevelt said one thing had been emphasized.

He named this as the fact that a great many people over the world get from American news dispatches the idea that our production is being hurt to a very large extent by strikes. There will be a threatened strike in one small plant that will last 24 hours or a 24-hour shutdown by management in another small plant and these incidents are so handled by news agencies, Mr. Roosevelt said, as to make other countries think/they are the rule instead of the exception.

He said British leaders has gained the same impression but that he had told them the total production affected was infinitesimal and they were much surprised.

False Impressions Spread

Because of what he termed a disproportioned exposition of the news, he said false impressions were spread not only in Britain, but also in the near east and were seized on by the enemy.

So, he continued, he had asked Willkie to tell the truth on the other side of the atlantic.

Reporters reminded him that there were sometimes statements by competent authorities, members of congress, for example, the production was falling off, and that this constituted legitimate news at times.

Yes, the President agreed, with a note of skepticism in his voice, but he said it depended largely on what paper the reporter works for.

STORE PAID DAMAGES

London, (CP)— These wartime measures are a headache to the store detective —a shop here has just paid the equivalent of $275 damages for assault and slander after wrongfully arresting a young woman for "shop-lifting". To save paper she was carrying her paid-for parcels unwrapped.

C. A. Crawford, Native of Foxboro, Holds Responsible Position in U.S.

Another Hastings County boy who has made good in the United States was a visitor in the city the past week.

He is C. A. Crawford, now of Hamilton, Montana, and manager of the western holdings of the Estate of Marcus Daly, a large organization that includes many phases of activity in its large sphere of operation.

Born in Foxboro, the son of the late John Crawford, Mr. Crawford received his early education there, later joining the Rathbun Lumber Company with whom he was associated for a number of years in Deseronto, Campbellford and Belleville.

In 1902 he went to the United States where he has remained since with the exception of occasional visits here.

He joined the Estate of Marcus Daly as an auditor and during his forty years with the organization has attained a position of importance.

Under his supervision in Montana are the Bitteroot Stock Farm, a 17,000-acre ranch, where some of the finest horse racing stock in the world has been produced and the Lakeview Land and Cattle Ranch, comprising some 16,000 acres.

The holdings of the late Marcus Daly also include the famous 60-year-old Anaconda Gold mine which has produced seventeen million dollars in gold and the Nickel Plate mine in British Columbia.

Mr. Crawford paused in his native county while en route to his Montana home from New York City, where he was a guest of former United States Ambassador to Berlin, James W. Gerard and Mrs. Gerard. The latter is a daughter of the late Marcus Daly.

The former Hastings County resident is a brother of the late Mrs. E. P. Frederick and Mrs. R. B. Wiseman of this city.

Income Tax is Fair to All

This year the cost of the war shows another increase. Canada will need almost four billion dollars to carry on. Where is this increase to come from?

From the large income groups? Yes—but not from them alone! Their new tax rates range as high as 98%. A married man with an income of $50,000 must pay about 67c out of every dollar—or if he has an income of $100,000 he must pay about 78c out of every dollar.

From big companies? Yes—but not from them alone! The full amount of all excess profits has to be paid over to the government, while 30% of normal profits are taxed away.

Clearly, this is a battle for our very existence. Every person, rich and poor, must pay his or her share. Income Tax is fair to all. It distributes the load according to each person's ability to pay.

There's going to be less money in our pay envelopes—because the 1942 income tax of salary and wage earners is being deducted at the source during September 1942 to August 1943.

Forms TD-1, which should be filed with your employer at once, may be secured from your employer, Post Offices, or Inspectors of Income Tax.

Employers and Post Offices have been requested to display in a prominent place the official Table of Tax Deductions.

Here are facts you should know:

1. Deduction starts with the first pay-period beginning in September.

2. Your employer must deduct the amount provided by the official Table of Tax Deductions for your current rate of pay, taking account of the marital status, dependents and personal savings you show on Form TD-1.

3. If you do not file Form TD-1 with your employer, he must deduct the amounts provided by the Table for a single person without dependents and without personal savings.

4. The Table of Tax Deductions is designed to collect about 90% of your total 1942 tax after allowing for the National Defence Tax deducted during the first 8 months of 1942.

5. A margin of 10% has been left for adjustments so that, in most cases, over-deduction will be avoided without leaving a large balance to pay at the time of filing the annual return in September 1943.

6. If your salary or wages are less than ¾ of your income, your employer will make the deductions applicable to such salary or wages but you must also pay (by quarterly instalments commencing October 15, 1942) tax on your other income and must file your annual return in April 1943. Remittance Form T.7.B Individuals, for use in such cases, will be available sometime in September at Post Offices and local Income Tax offices.

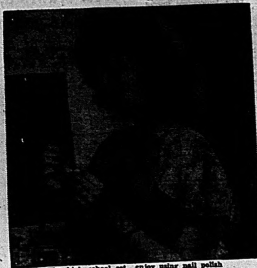
Giving the Sub-Deb Poise



The high school set enjoy using nail polish

By HELEN FOLLETT

WHEN A GIRL has reached the age of 13 she is supposed to be at the awkward stage. She doesn't know what to do with her hands and her feet. She is given to sprawling. She has grown fast, isn't accustomed to her extra inches.

Back of her awkwardness is self-conscious. She is afraid she won't do the right thing or say the right thing, so assumes an air of superiority to cover up her shyness.

Need of Guidance

She needs the gentle guidance of an understanding mother. She also needs a little healthy apple sauce, to be told that she's as sweet and charming as the girl next door when she envies because of her poise and manner. The slightest criticism will make her even more awkward.

Smart, suitable clothes are a help. It's worth the money to have a hair stylist show her how to arrange her tresses. Good appearance boosts the morale of a little girl, just as it helps the big ones.

Dancing lessons will make for graceful movement. Outdoor sports should be encouraged. They are not only good for the growing body, but the young soul that may be fretted and bothered. A desire to excel in some sport takes the child's mind away from herself, dissolves the fear that she is not popular with her associates.

Ice Cube for Color

If the sub-deb pleads for rouge pad and lipstick, and the mama won't hear of it, she can put color in cheeks and lips by frisking an ice cube over them. She should have a light powder, a jar of cold cream, a hand lotion, also little sachet envelopes to place in dresser drawers.

It is especially necessary that her finger nails should have attention. A manicuring kit makes a grand birthday present. It should include a toilet pumice stone to use when her fingers are stained with ink or crayon. She'll love the new flesh-tinted nail polish.

GOOD MANNERS

MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

Proper To Give Engagement Present

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1.—I expect to announce my engagement soon, and I am in doubt as to whether it is considered good form for me to give my fiance a gift. Several of my friends have told me that it is just the man who presents his fiance with a gift, but I am of the opinion that it is also proper for the girl to give a gift as well.

2.—After our engagement has been announced, should I introduce my husband-to-be as "my fiance", and also speak of and refer to him in that way?

A. R.

1.—Of course, it is proper for you to give your fiance an engagement present, if you wish to. It isn't generally done and, of course, it isn't obligatory . . but it's a nice thing for a girl to do, to give her fiance a memento of the occasion!

2.—When you introduce your fiance to a relative you would say, "Aunt Jane, this is Tom Forbes". But when it is necessary to give the information that he is your fiance, you would say, "Mrs. Allen, may I present my fiance, Tom Forbes", or "Mr. Stewart, my fiance, Tom Forbes". To relatives and friends you would speak of your fiance as "Tom".

About Wedding Ushers

Dear Mrs. Beeckman,

There are so many weddings to go to these days! And my husband and I are always uncertain about the usher-procedure. Will you please make it clear to us, so we won't be (and seem) as awkward as we now feel? Also, so that I won't feel awkward when I go to weddings alone.

I believe that when a woman enters the church unescorted by a man, the usher takes her arm and escorts her to a seat. Is this right? But when a woman attends the wedding with her husband, does the usher walk in front of them (the husband holding his wife's arm) when showing them to their seats, or does the usher take the woman's arm, leaving the husband to "trail behind"?

W.A.

The usher offers his right arm to a woman guest. It is not correct for the usher to take the woman's arm. When a woman attends a wedding alone, an usher asks her when she enters (if he doesn't know her), "Are you a friend of the bride or of the bridegroom?" Then he offers her his arms and escorts her to the side of the church she has indicated. (The bride's side is to the left of the aisle; the bridegroom's side is the right.) When a woman and her husband attend a wedding together, the usher offers his arm to the woman, and the husband follows them down the aisle.

Tea, Coffee Rationing Means New Arithmetic Problem for Shoppers

How is your mathematics?

Announcement of coupon rationing of tea and coffee is making housewives solve a lot of problems in Arithmetic this week. They are based on the family's tea and coffee requirements.

According to the regulations laid down by the Wartime Prices and Trade Board, each of the coupons marked "A-B-C-D-E" on the ration card are worth either one ounce of tea, or four ounces of coffee.

Because it is difficult to buy these commodities in very small quantities, purchasers are permitted to buy their whole five-week supply at once, if they want to. Retailers, in many instances, will be faced with the problem of selling tea and coffee in smaller amounts than they have been accustomed to do in the past.

Children under twelve years of age are not permitted a ration. This pleases nutritionists and doctors because there is no nourishment in beverages and their effect as stimulants is not considered good for children. It probably doesn't appeal to the kind of housekeeper however who would like to have the children's extra coupons with which to buy her family's supplies.

A family of four, made up of two adults and two children under twelve, can use only two ration cards. This means that the housekeeper has ten coupons to last the family for five weeks. Each coupon is worth one ounce of tea or four ounces of coffee.

If she wants to buy the family's five-week supply at once and she requires both tea and coffee, she or if she so desire. take four coupons and buy one pound of coffee, and another four coupons and buy one-quarter of a pound of tea. This will leave her with two coupons. With them she can either augment her coffee supply by half-a-pound, or her tea supply by two ounces—one-eighth of a pound. This amount will have to last until September 8 when the permanent ration books are issued by the Wartime Prices and Trade Board.

The above example is, of course, only a suggestion of how a family with two ration cards could apportion their coupons. Naturally it is up to everyone to do as they see fit. Some people would rather buy all tea and no coffee and vice versa. One fact must be faced, however, that one ounce of tea or four ounce of coffee a week per person is not a great deal to get along on. According to government officials the ration is the result of dire necessity. Ships are needed for more important things than tea and coffee. They are required to bring tanks and guns, ammunition and planes to the war fronts. Consumers are being asked to deny themselves in order to win the war.

X-Rays Detect Tuberculosis In Its Early Stages

Not so many years ago it was difficult to make an early diagnosis of tuberculosis. In fact, in the beginning this disease may show no symptoms outwardly. Fortunately, scientists who study X-rays pictures to learn just what these pictures reveal, have shown us that by use of the X-ray the very early stages of tuberculosis may often be recognized.

When a child or an adult is suffering from ill health, and is running a chronic slight temperature, X-rays of the chest should be taken and a careful examination carried out to determine whether or not tuberculosis is present. Together with the X-ray, an examination of the sputum for the presence of tuberculosis germs should be made. Even if the symptoms and the sputum examination show that tuberculosis is present, X-rays should be taken as they will help determine the extent of the disease and aid in guiding the treatment.

Once tuberculosis ha sbeen diagnosed, treatment should be started immediately. The most important part of the treatment consists of rest in bed. The diagnosis of tuberculosis is always a shock to the person who has the disease and is often followed by an attempt on the part of the patient to evade the issue. However, the sooner he can be made to face the reality of his condition, the sooner will he attain the courage and endurance necessary for successful treatment. He must realize that he has a dangerous disease but one which can be controlled and checked, if not cured. Once the disease is put under control, it can be kept that way.

It is impossible to predict just how long treatment will have to be carried out before tuberculosis is brought under control and the patient returned to his normal activities.

Together with rest in bed, usually some form of surgical treatment or collapse therapy is used. Surgical treatment consists of cutting the nerve to the diaphragm, a procedure that will put the lung at rest. Collapse treatment consists of injecting air into the chest cavity, which will also help to limit the movement of the lung. Both of these procedures are helpful in bringing the disease under control.

As a general rule, tuberculosis is best cared for in a sanitarium. Once the sanitarium treatment has been completed the patient can, in many instances, return home with his disease under control. In some cases it will be possible for him to resume only limited activities. From time to time the patient should of course return to his physician for a checkup because there is a tendency for tuberculosis to relapse. A relapse may occur without causing noticeable symptoms for some time. However, by means of X-rays, any return of activity in the infection can be detected at an early stage so that treatment may be resumed at once. Supervision of the condition should never be relaxed for on the prompt detection of recurrence of infection and equally prompt treatment depends the patient's chance for a long life.

Pte. Raymond Bellaire, 22, of Nominingue, Que., whose 20-year-old brother, Pte. Leo Bellaire, got back although wounded, said he crossed the beach but couldn't get beyond a wall beneath Dieppe's promenade. The blond soldier flattened himself against the wall with machine-gun bullets whistling by his head.

He was joined there by other Canadians. They remained huddled until boats approached the beach to take them off. When they dashed to the water's edge many of them were mowed down.

"You know" said Bellaire, "when we were behind that wall and didn't know if we'd ever come out alive, one of the boys kept telling jokes and we couldn't help laughing."

Pte. Gerard Provencal, a veteran of the regiment at 20, who served in the non-permanent Fusiliers for three years before the war, was wounded for a second time in this war at Dieppe. Months ago he was injured in the London bombings and was slightly cut by mortar-bomb splinters during the raid.

Nazis Captured in Raid Brought Back to England

Smoke of battle swirling around them, invasion barges loaded with commandos and American Rangers arrive, ABOVE, on the French coast to launch the raid on Dieppe. Shells from German surface craft and shore defences burst around the Allied barges as they moved into shore to land thousands of Americans, Canadians, British and Fighting French forces on Nazi-held soil for their assault. This map shows the vast territory gained by the German armies since the start of their drive on the Russian Caucasus, vital industrial, farm and oil-producing area. Now that the Germans have succeeded in crossing the Kuban river at two points, the last strong natural fortification they will encounter, military experts voice grave doubts as to the ability of Russians to save the Caucasus from the withering German onslaught.

Chronic Rheumatism Greatest Drag on Human Efficiency

When we think of "serious" diseases, we have in mind dangerous diseases such as heart disease, cancer and pneumonia, because these are at the list as causes of death. What we should have in mind, but give little thought to, are diseases not dangerous to life but which cripple the patient for months, years and perhaps for life.

As a matter of private and public concern, we should have in mind that "as an economic and social burden and medical problem the chronic diseases are a greater drag on the nations' health and efficiency than the acute diseases. The tendency for rheumatism to cripple without killing, places it in the lead of all chronic diseases in medical importance".

It is the fact that the patient is not "dangerously" ill that makes us forget that he may be in pain, is unable to do his daily work in most cases, is unable to be out and about and mixing with others. In fact little sympathy or effort is extended to these patients by most of us.

That sufferers with chronic rheumatism are a "neglected" group is pointed out by Dr. Robert B. Osgood, Boston, in a paper presented at the Second Pennsylvania Health Institute, Harrisburg.

"A survey of chronic disease in Massachusetts revealed that only about 15 per cent of the diabetic group received no treatment from physicians, while about 68 per cent of the cases of chronic rheumatism entirely lacked such care".

Unfortunately, chronic rheumatism is increasing. In the United States and Canada it is found twice as often as heart disease, high blood pressure, and hardening of the arteries, and there are more cases of chronic rheumatism than all the cases of cancer, kidney disease, tuberculosis and diabetes, put together. "Chronic rheumatism stands first as a cause of disability and invalidism but only fourteenth as a cause of death".

What is the lesson from the above survey? Instead of thinking of rheumatism as just a necessary evil, and nothing to worry about, we should think of the suffering, the unhappiness, the loss to the community due to chronic rheumatism and try to give early preventive and curative treatment—removal of infection, proper diet, heat in various forms.

Babe Ruth and Walter Johnson To Reform at Yanks' Stadium For United States War Relief

Famous Stars of Yesteryear Will Show Youngsters How it is Done

JOHNSON TO PITCH

By AUSTEN BEALMEAR
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

The American League, which holds the upper hand over the National League in World Series and All-Star game performances of the past few years, will attempt to catch up with its older companion loop tomorrow in baseball's contributions to war relief.

Far behind the Senior circuit in funds produced for the United States armed forces through receipts of designated games, the American League has pinned its hopes of New York Yankees for boosting the total somewhere near the National League's gift of better than $250,000.

The Yankees will be aided by Washington Senators and both teams will have the help of their brightest stars of former years—Babe Ruth and Walter Johnson. Although the main attraction at Yankee Stadium is supposed to be the doubleheader between the two clubs, top billing has gone to the Babe and the "big train".

With Johnson pitching, Ruth will step to the plate between games and attempt to belt the ball out of the park, just as he did no less than 714 times in his 22 years as a major league player.

Advance ticket sales indicate a near-capacity crowd of more than 75,000, proving that Ruth has lost none of his drawing power.

Ruth Warms Up

Before yesterday's game which opened the New York-Washington series at the stadium, Ruth did a little practising.

After their former slugging star retired, the Yankees went out and put on a demonstration of their own, blasting 21 hits off three Washington pitchers to brush the Senators, 17-7.

Phil Rizuto led the way with five hits, two of them in the six-run first inning, while Charlie Keller poled his 22nd home run and Joe Gordon blasted his 14th into the stands.

The Yankees needed the victory to preserve their 10 1-2 game margin, for the second-place Boston Red Sox whipped Philadelphia Athletics, 7-5, in an arc light game, although they were out-hit, 12 to 11.

Tony Lupien hit two singles and a triple and drove in four of the Red Sox runs, three of them on a hit-run single with the bases loaded.

Cleveland's Indians squeezed out a 3-2 decision over Chicago White Sox in another night game, strengthening their hold on third place with the help of Detroit Tigers, who tripped the St. Louis Browns.

Harder Hurls 5-Hitter

Mel Harder pitched five-hit ball for the tribe to shade Lefty Thornton Lee, who gave up only seven blows but nicked Oris Hockett with a pitched ball after loading the bases and forced in the deciding run.

Home runs by Barney McCosky and Rudy York sparked a four-run Tiger outburst which carried Detroit to a 4-1 decision over the Browns.

The National League program was confined to a pair of afternoon games, but in one of these St. Lions Cardinals walloped Pittsburgh Pirates, 10-2, and reduced the lead of the idle Brooklyn Dodgers to 6 1-2 games.

It was the seventh straight triumph for the Cards, who are gathering steam for their important four-game showdown with the Dodgers next week. John Beazley pitched six-hit ball in registering his 15th win, while Stan Musial and Walker Cooper each cracked a two-run homer.

The Chicago Cubs routed Ray Starr and beat Cincinnati Reds, 6-3, to give Bill Lee his 13th mound success.

MISCUES PLAY PROMINENT PART IN LOOP GAMES

Errors by Myers, Handley and Yount of Leafs Allow Orioles to Win

TORONTO NOW 7TH

(By The Associated Press)

Miscues played a prominent part in the outcome of all International League baseball contests last night.

Bobbles by Lynn (Pee Wee) Myers, Lee (Jeep) Handley and Ed. Yount gave Baltimore Orioles two unearned runs as the Birds defeated Toronto Maple Leafs, 3-1.

Toronto's hard luck hurled, Nick Strincevich, also was the victim of his teammates' errors. By winning, Baltimore displaced the Leafs in sixth place.

Syracuse's meal ticket, Charles (Red) Barrett hung up his 18th victory of the season as he throttled Montreal Royals on two hits, 4-1. Barrett was deprived of his seventh shutout by first-baseman Eddie Shokes, who mussed up a double-play.

The victory lifted the Indians into fourth place, 1-2 game ahead of Buffalo.

Rochester Red Wings and Jersey City Giants fought to a 3-3 tie as dimout regulations halted play at the end of eight innings.

The Giants might have won the game if it weren't for an error by leftfielder Sid Gordon which let the Wings score two runs.

The league leading Newark Bears defeated Buffalo Bisons, 2-1, in the first game of a twin bill and then battled to a 1-1 tie as dimout regulations halted activity at the end of 11 innings.

A misplay by Lambert (Dutch) Meyer, who is being groomed for the second base job at Detroit, handed the Bears the victory.

A muff by Stirnweiss in the second game not only brought to an end a streak of 23 consecutive scoreless innings rung up by Milkman Jim Turner but also deprived Newark of a double triumph.

Toronto Aug. 22 (CP)—Sgt. John Lionel Anderson and Sgt. Ronald E. Richards, two Royal Air Force men from Australia on duty in Canada who were killed in an air accident recently, played brilliant tennis in the Kinsmen's Club Milk for Britain tourney at Montreal shortly before their tragic death.

Richards reached the finals and paired with Anderson to reach the doubles finals.

Andy Alexander and Garnet Dryburgh of Regina Junior Abbots hacve enlisted in the navy. . . Lefty Hornyak, who pitched for the Cubs in the Regina City Baseball League is also in the navy now.

Benoit "Ben" Sauriel, chairman of competition of the Laurentian Ski Zone in Quebec, is scheduled to go on active service as a cadet officer at St. Jerome. He was a member of the Totem Ski Club in Montreal and starred in downhill and slalom skiing.

Herb Picard, one of Manitoba's outstanding golfers and a member of many Willingdon Cup teams, is a sub-lieutenant in the Royal Canadian Naval Volunteer Reserve.

One of Canada's most travelled hockey players is in the Royal Canadian Air Force now, Maurice (Butch) Marchant joined up after a hockey career that extended from Saskatchewan to the Atlantic coast.

The 24-year-old defenceman began with Winnipeg junior Rangers and played senior with Saskatoon Quakers, Geraldton Gold Miners, North Sydney Victorias, River Vale Skeeters in the Eastern United States Amateur League, and Montreal Pats also had Marchant on their roster at one time or another.

Lieut. John Theakston of Truro, N.S. is a former star of Colchester Academy track and field, football and hockey teams. He also played with a Truro team which won the provincial intermediate football championship in 1940.

Art Noble and Johnny Smith, two west coast lacrosse stars are with the Royal Canadian Air Force.

Toronto, Aug. 22 (CP).—The verbal cannonading R.C.A.F. Flyers took from fans along the road to the Allan Cup may have had its moral, for word comes that the air force will not pursue a football championship the same way.

The informant is G. Sydney Halter of Winnipeg, president of the A.A.U., and his sources are the highest possible—Sqdn. Ldr. Lionel Conacher and Flt. Lt. Hec. Creighton, top men in the R.C.A.F. athletic program. The Air Force will play football where possible, but if a football star happens to land in a station where there is no football he won't be transferred unless there is another strong reason.

The plan may be hard to follow, but it can be done. The public would rather see an entirely new lineup each Saturday, due to transfers and training demands, than feel that sport was holding up an athlete's progress in the course he had chosen.

Incidentally:

The Vancouver Sun's turf writer, Sunstar, has a pal with a burning desire to have all pari-mutuel pay-offs limited to $30 for $2, with the government to get the balance and use it to reduce taxation on the low-price favorites. . . . There was momentary confusion in a well-known Toronto gathering-place yesterday when Gordon Drillon dropped to a chair near S. Young and said what sounded like: "I've been sold". . . . On closer investigation, it turned out he had said: "I might be sold". . . . On still further investigation, it turned out that there was no official basis for his statement, except that he had heard certain National Hockey League officials were meeting in Toronto and though there might be a few deals in the wind . . . the meeting was technically to discuss pro-amateur relations, but there may have been something else doing . . . everyone was clamlike. . . .

Tony McCarthy, former Ottawa Rough Riders football star, has been promoted to section leader with the Canadian firefighters overseas. . . . Big business in Montreal wasn't much interested in softball until last week-end when a visiting Toronto club drew 15,000 in exhibitions against Montreal teams . . . now the boys are talking team sponsorship.

FUTURE OF PRO. HOCKEYINCANADA STILL UNKNOWN

Juniors Will be Allowed to Turn Pro. Without C.A.H.A. Permission

MEETINGS HELD

By SCOTT YOUNG
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Toronto, Aug. 22 (CP)—The future of professional hockey in Canada and the United States is still unknown today, its status apparently unchanged by discussions during yesterday's closed meeting here of representatives of major professional and amateur hockey organizations.

Frank Calder, President of the National Hockey League, said after the meeting that discussions were undertaken with the understanding that all recommendations made were dependent on an awaited decision from the Canadian government on the advisability or otherwise of continuing the N.H.L. into a fourth wartime season.

"We are entirely in the hands of the government," he said.

Main point of agreement among delegates to the meeting was that junior hockey players should be allowed to turn professional without the permission of the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association, formerly necessary. The previous agreement defining relations between professional and amateur hockey organizations was discussed and unchanged, with the exception of the clause affecting juniors turning pro.

Decisions reached are not final, but must be submitted to higher authority in the five organizations represented at the meeting—the N.H.L., C.A.H.A., American Hockey League, American Hockey Association and International Ice Hockey Association.

Frank Selke, acting General Manager of Toronto Maple Leaf Gardens Ltd., and Lester Patrick, New York Rangers' owner, were other N.H.L. delegates to the meeting. The American Hockey League delegation was headed by Maurice Podoloff, President, of New Haven, Conn., and the American Hockey Association representatives were George Peterson, St. Paul, and Lyall Wright, Minneapolis. Frank Sargent of Port Arthur, President of the C.A.H.A., headed the amateur delegates with Dr. W. G. Hardy of Edmonton, President of the International Ice Hockey Association.

Toronto Fisherman Lands 30-lb. Muskie

Tweed — Mr. Ross Fetterley, of Toronto, who has been camping at Breen's Resort for the past few weeks, has enjoyed the splendid fishing facilities provided by Stoco Lake. He had been successful in landing several muskies of varying weights up to twenty-five pounds, but was not content with these successes, set out on Tuesday night to his favorite "stamping grounds" at the mouth of Stoco River where he was rewarded with thirty pounds of fighting muskie after a strenuous half-hour battle.

Miss Lois Richardson has returned home after spending the past month with her sister, Mrs. Harry Lawrence in Niagara Falls.

Mrs. James Goldie of Peterboro, who has been visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Sager for the past two weeks, was guest soloist at Tweed United Church on Sunday morning. Always a favorite with the congregation of her home church, her contribution on Sunday was especially pleasing. Mrs. F. Houston, Belleville, presided at the console most effectively.

Mr. William Navan, of Belleville, a student at the Ontario School for the Blind, Brantford, who is camping with friends on Sugar Island, will be guest organist at the Tweed United Church on Sunday morning. Rev. Merritt Price will be the preacher.

COTTON COMING UP

Queensland is stepping up cotton acreage from 5,000 to 100,000 in an effort to supply Australian war needs.

ALTHOUGH THE TRENTON Softball League hasn't exactly finished its schedule, the Simmons Drug Store "Cowboys" will represent Harry Moore's adopted town in the Intermediate "A" playdowns of the O.A.S.A., which opens here Monday. The "Cowboys" already have an exhibition game verdict over the Army & Navy "Vets," and also pushed our league champions around in the 1941 O.A.S.A. playdowns. Jim Stacey is still their ace moundsman, while Barney McColl continues to knock the cover off the ball on occasions. However, the "Vets" of 1942 is a strong all-round club as Corbys were last fall. They've three tried and proven pitchers, notably Johnnie Bawden, Jim Hunter and Connie Harris. Point Anne players have contributed, in no small measure, to the crowning success of the "Vets," with Murney Green doing a swell chore at handling the club's catching duties. Phil Loft is having his best season in years, while Doug. Bennett, Pee Wee Hutchings and Mike Whalen have all added strength to the local softball titlists, which prompts one to predict the "Vets" should reverse matters over the Trenton champions this time.

DOWN IN KINGSTON it's the Victorias and the Ordnance in the city softball finals, with the Vics only needing one win in three games to cinch the league bunting. Two well known athletes in Belleville are on the Vics' roster, Sonny Green, former Belleville baseball and softball star, and Yip Radley, who played defence for the Kingston Combines. Reg. Fair and "Tip" Miller, two former Oshawa Central League ballsters, are umpiring in the Motor City softball league that finds the Oshawa Laundry and Malleable Colts tangling in the league finals. Jim Ellis' Plazas took the first game in the Peterborough softball finals, beating the Royals 5 to 2. The Plaza lineup resembles a hockey roster to the degree they have no less than seven of the nine regulars who are pucksters of note. They are Art Heale, Bun Kingdon, Don Crowe, Joe Blewett, Jim Ellis, Eddie Starr and Ned Vitarelli. What—no Calladine?

WITH THE FINAL PLAY-OFFS in the Ladies Softball League scheduled to open Tuesday, between the Deacon A. C. and Zeller lassies, the standing of games won and lost in the league semi-finals wes as follows:

	W.	L.	Pct.
Deacon A. C.	2	0	1000
Zellers	2	1	.667
Corbins	1	2	.333
SWACO	0	2	.000

LOOKS CAN BE DECEIVING. Take for instance the handsome "Wild Bill" Longson, world heavyweight wrestling champion. Longson is perhaps the best looking wrestler in the business and appears to look more of the movie or matinee idol, but don't be deceived. Longson is one of the most rugged and rough hombres that Promoter Tunney has yet to handle. The Salt Lake City adonis has Ray Steele for his manager and what Steele doesn't know about "jockeying" his charge's opponent isn't worth mentioning. The usual run of wrestling fans clamor for the defeat of the champion, but such is not the case with Longson, especially with the fair sex. Being a bachelor, Longson sometimes has more trouble battling a battery of feminine admirers than he does in the ring, as the women really go for "Wild Bill" and his good looks. However, in announcing he would bring Longson to Belleville, Promoter Tunney would desire the pugnacious "Irish Jerry" Monahan, to say nothing of the splendid preliminaries arranged.

REMEMBER WHEN ONE OF the few remaining links with the baseball era of razor-like spikes, gloveless catchers and handlebar moustaches was severed four years ago today by the death of George Wright i nBoston? Known as the "grand old man" of baseball, Wright captained the first professional baseball team—the Cincinnati Red Stockings—back in 1869. Baseball has come far since that memorable occasion of a first paid team and today is one of the biggest business enterprises on the continent.

A move that should materially assist the National Hockey League in an endeavor to function another year was announced by the C.A.H.A. yesterday. The governing body of (?) amateur hockey let down the barriers, insofar as teen-aged players was concerned. The moneyed moguls may now sign junior players which is as it should be. After all Mel Ott was playing good ball for the New York Giants before his seventeenth birthday. The move is only a wartime measure on the part of the C.A.H.A., however.

THIS AND THAT—In the Jim Tobin family (himself ace of the Boston Braves' pitching staff) the year 1942 will live forever.

Not so much because Abbadabba was the first pitcher in the National League to chalk up his twentieth complete game this year and the 200th inning of work, the requirements necessary to stand as a "regular" varsity ace in any given major league campaign, but because 1942 puts him in the baseball record book in the department of home run hitting.

When he chalked up his twentieth complete game he had already hit six homers ,three of them in one game, tying the league all-time record for homers hit by a pitcher in one baseball season, with nearly two months left to hit another one and seize that bracket in the book all for himself.

Hal Schumacher, who hit a half-dozen in 1934, held the record unassisted until Uncle Ab Tobin came along this year.

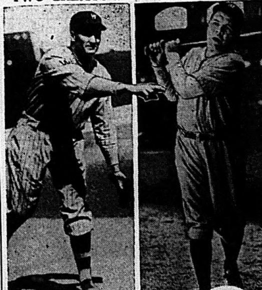
TWO GREATS MEET ONCE AGAIN



Two of baseball's greatest immortals will meet once again, probably for the last time, in Yankee Stadium, New York on Sunday, Aug. 23, when Walter Johnson, LEFT, ABOVE, and Babe Ruth face each other. Johnson will attempt to show some of his old-time speed for the occasion and Ruth, batting against him, will try mightily to park one of his familiar drives in the right field bleachers. Meeting of the two has been arranged for the benefit of Army and Navy relief funds.

Weekly War Commentary

By Maj.-Gen. Sir Charles Gwynn

(Written For The Canadian Press)

By Maj.-Gen. Sir Charles Gwynn

London, Aug. 22 (CP Cable)—The Dieppe raid was the largest and longest of any such assaults to date and afforded a real test of German defensive measures and the possibilities of carrying out landing operations in daylight.

The purpose of the raid seemed to be directed much more toward gaining experience than inflicting damage, which often is promptly repaired. It is premature to draw too many deductions, but some points already stand out.

The raid entailed two difficult operations: Landing and re-embarkation, and this second operation normally is both the more difficult and the more costly.

This should not be forgotten in counting the cost of the raid.

It has been made evident that the beach defences set up by the Germans are not invulnerable and, in fact, one landing party after being repulsed carried out its task in the end. That is a vital point in assessing the character of the Nazi defences and defenders.

The fact that the landing went according to schedule and without such delays as occured in gaining footholds on the beaches of Gallipoli is an indication that the enemy's main reserves, faced by such threats, have little time to come into action and this is the probable reason why the Germans apparently relied mainly on local counter-attacks by local reserves.

Landing tanks provide a rapid means of gaining ground and dealing with the first counter-attack. Actual tank losses sustained probably were due mainly to the necessity of withdrawing. Valuable information regarding the layout of anti-tank defences, however, must have been gained.

The effectiveness of the Allied Air umbrella was proved and it tested the strength of the German air defence thoroughly. It has been recognized that the Germans never had revealed the strength of these air defences in dealing with R.A.F.-R.C.A.F. fighter sweeps. Now however, they have been compelled to show their hand and the results of the counter-measures they took could afford little satisfaction to the Axis, especially since, had the operation been prolonged much further, the disparity in strength would have become more markedly in the Allied favor.

It is also evident that the reserve German land forces would not have had time to come into action and their commanders will be left in doubt now as to whether these reserves are sufficient to prevent a footing being gained to an extent which would facilitate the rapid reinforcements of the first wave of the invasion, especially by armor. The Germans must realize also that if a landing can be effected at one point they must face the probability of an attack developing at others a factor affecting the strength and disposition of their main reserves.

There can be little doubt that this raid will do much to shake German confidence. It certainly left no doubt about the high standard of training of the Allied forces employed and of the efficiency of the staff work and equipment of all three services.

It must not be forgotten, however, that while we may have learned much the Germans also may have gained experience. The raid may be considered a full-dress rehearsal of one scene in the first act of the invasion drama, but it must be remembered that there will be other scenes and acts to follow.

The composition of the forces involved is proof of the mutual confidence among the Allies. The Canadians in particular no doubt welcomed the opportunity of testing the value of their long period of training.

Violent Fighting

Throughout the last week Russia has been fighting violently both in the Lower Kuban and the Don Elbow and there have been no signs of slackening in the Nazi offensive.

Having at last sucoeeded in establishing a substantial footing across the lower Kubain, it seems almost certain that the Germans will attempt to press on over the western spur of the Caucasus which stands between them and the naval base at Novorossisk and Tuapse.

From the nature of the fighting taking place, Marshal Semeon Timoshenko seems to have considerable reserves of infantry and artillery and though he has lost much of his armor he may be expected to offer stubborn resistance.

Don Bend.

The battle in the Don bend is increasing in violence and the Germans have gained a footing on the west bank. No attempts apparently have been made to cross the river in the northern sector and none may be made as long as the Russians have strong forces on the west bank and are able to hold up any German thrust on the east bank from Kotelnikovskn.

Although the west bank of the Don commands the low ground on either side and therefore facilitates a crossing, it would still be a dangerous and difficult business to deploy sufficient forces across the river in view of the large reserves the Russians must have in the Stalingrad neighborhood.

In the central and north sector of the Russian front the Red armies retain the initiative and the German defences evidently are being tested severely.

A critical position undoubtedly is that of the Germans now as they find themselves confronted with great difficulties, for unless the Kotelnikovski drive gains weight and makes progress, the Volga may not be reached.

Glancing Back 25 Years.

For a week following the Canadian triumph at Hill 70, strong enemy forces made several determined counter-attacks in an effort to recapture the heights which formed the northern key to Lens. Hugo Wood and St. Laurent North and South of Hill 70 were stormed on Aug. 19, but the enemy was repulsed by Canadian artillery. Unsuccessful attacks were made in other areas. In official reports the fighting was described as of a desperate character and unsurpassed in fury.

Air Challenge One for Hitler In West Tough

By EDWARD E. BOMAR.

The Nazis must meet the challenge of the aerial power of United Nations are steadily building up in the British Isles or accept heavy odds in the prospective fight to prevent establishment of a second front in Western Europe.

The manner in which the Luftwaffe's wings were clipped as a part of the Dieppe venture suggests that Hitler may be obliged to accept the challenge sooner than anticipated. The German air command, it is asserted in London, was caught napping by the magnitude of the air support given the Dieppe attack, with the result that the Nazis in a single day lost possibly a third or even more of their operational aircraft in the west.

Matter of Guesswork.

Inasmuch as the eastern front is the most logical ready source of reinforcement, the joint declaration made two months ago by President Roosevelt and Prime Minister Churchill that coming operations "will divert German strength from the attack on Russia" suddenly takes on fresh significance.

What's next in Europe is, of course, as much a matter of guesswork as the second-front question. The latest trend of events, however, jibes with a theory which is taking form in the minds of some exceptionally well-informed observers. In outline the thought is:

The Nazis have been able to blast their way forward in the Caucasus largely by virtue of tremendous aerial superiority over the Red Army, built up at the expense of the Western Europe air defences.

Even this advantage has been found insufficient to effect the destruction of Marshal Timoshenko's armies, though it has brought within sight the conquest of the North Caucasus and control of the Black Sea.

Allied Air Threat.

Now, either from choice or necessity, Hitler very likely plans to go on the strategical defensive in Russia for the winter, thereby releasing vast manpower and permitting diversion of the bulk of his air forces to Western Europe and the Middle East.

In the West, the first urgent necessity the Nazis face is the threat from increasing British and American aerial strength. It can be met by diversions from the Russian front, and also by steping up German aircraft production by returning to German industry this winter some of the skilled manpower now in the armed forces.

In challenging for control of the skies over Northern France, the Nazis retain the advantage they won two years ago at Dunkirk their foes' bases are concentrated within the relatively small area of the British Isles, whereas the Germans can strike from numerous widely scattered fields in Western Europe.

If Hitler does have any such intent as suggested here, he had better hurry. As noted this month by Lieutenant-General Henry H. Arnold, United States Army Air Force chief, American planes are flowing to England in large numbers.

RAY ROBINSON FLATTENS SHANK IN TWO ROUNDS

Harlem Battler Has Gone Through 123 Fights Without Defeat

MAY QUIT RING

By SID FEDER

(Associated Press Sports Writer)

New York, Aug. 22 —(AP)— Exactly 40 years ago on a mid-summer night, Nate Lewis, the Bald Eagle of the Boul' Mich' who has heard a lot of eyebrow-lifting episodes in his long span, got the kick of his life.

Which is really dipping back into ancient history to let the folks in on something that is about as much a secret as the fact that Joe Louis is heavyweight champ. This is that Ray Robinson begins to look like the first fellow in four decades likely to go through a fistic career without losing a fight. And this was especially apparent last night after the skinny swatter from Harlem took the Colorada Cowboy, Reuben Shank, apart in two heats at Madison Square Garden.

The Bald Eagle, in case you're not familiar with the leading citizens of the bashed beak business, is a guy off Michigan Boulevard in Chicago who is considerably respected as a story teller and a fight manager. This particular night, his fighting sensation, Billy Thom, after scoring his 13th knockout in 13 starts, said, "Nate, don't get me any more fights—I'm quitting."

Billy was the kind of a kid who took six punches to land one, but once he landed, the roof fell in on the other fighter. This night he happened to look into a mirror and saw what the other guy had given him before he turned the lights out. He got an education quickly.

According to the oldest inhabitants, Billy was the last fighter to bow out with a record that never showed a defeat. Before him there were the lightweight champion Jack McAuliffe and bantamweight boss Jim Bary.

And now along comes Robinson to threaten to turn the trick again. At least, there doesn't seem to be anyone around who can put the singer into his string, which has now reached 34 pro fights and 89 amateur outings without a setback. Welterweight champ Red Cochrane, the sailor boy who sat in as a spectator at last night's fuss, will have to prove it before a lot of the know-it-alls will believe that he has a chance.

AT THE McCARTHY

"PRIVATE BUCKAROO"

What happens when the maestro of the top swing band of the country hears the call to arms and joins up? Why, his whole outfit goes right along with him. This problem and answer are tunefully propounded in Universal's "Private Buckaroo" which opened yesterday at the McCarthy Theatre.

Harry James, the hottest and most tuneful trumpeter these ears have ever heard, is the orchestra leader and with him to help along the entertainment and the plot are the famed Andrews Sisters, Joe E. Lewis, top night club performer who makes his first bow on the screen here, Dick Foran, Ernest Truex, Shemp Howard and a lot of other charming and talented people.

Strikes Popular Note.

Without resorting to formula, Universal seems always to hit upon just the right combination in its sparkling screen musicals; and the action and music come so fast that the company is lined up for the final chorus before you realize that you've been watching a show that runs more than an hour and a half.

James, unlike so many band leaders, is a handsome young man who really has acting talent, a fact that adds greatly to the entertainment value of "Private Buckaroo". His band is easily the best heard here, and it is not hard to understand why his organization holds top rating on the air and in the juke boxes.

Jive Trend Indicated.

James' band is a forerunner of what might very easily be a new trend in the modern music field. He plays no senseless "jive" tunes, designed to drive the average non-jitterbug listener screaming into the street. Rather, he combines sweetness with swing, and plays the classics in a manner you imagine would please the old boys who wrote them a century or two ago.

Trio Is Effective.

The Andrews Sisters, as always, more than hold up their end of the entertainment and are as tuneful and effervescent as ever. Joe E. Lewis, the comedian, not the prize fighter, is a real comedy find and has a style of delivery that fits well on the screen. Dick Foran reveals a baritone of power and purity astounding to those who are accustomed to seeing him on horseback.

The story, briefly, revolves around James' band and what happens when Harry is induced into the army. The entire outfit promptly gets into uniform, the Andrews Sisters and Lewis joining the USO.

Role Is Romantic.

Foran resents discipline and is on the way to becoming a first class heel until he falls in love with Jennifer Holt, sister of his lieutenant, and sees the error of his ways.

Conspicuous in the balance of the cast are Mary Wickes, Richard Davies, Huntz Hall, Tagalong and the popular Jivin' Jacks and Jills.

The Dead End Kids.

The program also includes the feature "Tough As They Come" starring the Dead End Kids and Little Tough Guys, and in addition a new technicolor cartoon "Mother Goose on the Loose". The management of the McCarthy Theatre highly recommends this show which was carefully selected and arranged to give a double order of fine entertainment.

AT THE CAPITOL

"Captains of the Clouds"

James Cagney's newest starring picture, "Captains of the Clouds", a stirring story of Canada's heroes of the air starts Monday at the Capitol with a preview performance Sunday midnight. Dennis Morgan, Brenda Marshall, Alan Hale, George Tobias, Reginald Gardiner and Reginald Denny head the featured cast of the new picture, which was filmed by Warner Bros. in Technicolor.

Made with the co-operation of the Royal Canadian Air Force, "Captains of the Clouds" was filmed against the authentic backgrounds of the Canadian North Woods and the R.C.A.F. training field at Uplands. Director Michael Curtiz, the cast, and his crew of technicians travelled more than three thousand miles and spent nearly four months making the picture.

The story of "Captains of the Clouds" tells of the dare-devil bush pilots of the North Woods country who join the Royal Canadian Air Force, only to find that in spite of their years of flying experience they are not eligible to be fighter pilot because they are too old. Instead they are assigned to teaching jobs. Cagney, as the most individualistic of them all, finds himself constantly in hot water because of his disregard of rules, and his insistence that a good pilot flies "by the seat of his pants". In disgrace, he nevertheless achieves at last his ambition to fight his country's enemies in the sky, to the lasting regret of those enemies.

Interwoven with the action drama is an unusual love story involving Cagney, Dennis Morgan and lovely Brenda Marshall.

War Ace in Movie.

Most moviegoers may fail to recognize him, but Canada's world-famous "Billy" Bishop, V.C., who shot down 72 German planes in World War 1, plays himself in Warner Bros'. "Captain of the Clouds". He appears in his full dress uniform as Air MArshal of Canada and makes a fighting speech to a group of pilots. Author of the speech was none other than "Billy" Bishop himself.

AT THE BELLE

The Saturday Evening Post and the Red Network of the National Broadcasting Company joined hands with RKO Radio in a popular dance band poll tied in with the musical "Syncopation" now on the Belle Theatre screen. It involved one of the most important promotions in the history of motion pictures.

The nation's dance music fans named their favorites of various popular band leader instrumentalists through coupons carried in full-page copy in The Saturday Evening Post, announcing the poll, with NBC's Red Network joining in the sponsorship.

Conducted over a period of months and with the hope that most of the winners might be able to harmonize their talents in the picture that dramatizes the fabulous history of American jazz, the results of the poll show the hold of fourteen idolized swing virtuosi on the musical-minded millions.

Of the fourteen musicians picked seven found themselves able to accept Producer-Director William Dieterle's invitation to participate in the climactic "jam" session of "Syncopation."

Winners of the poll are: Clarinet, Benny Goodman; trumpet, Harry James; drum, Gene Krupa; piano, Eddy Duchin; violin, Joe Venuti; guitar, Alvino Rey; bass, Bobby Haggart; saxophones, Jimmy Dorsey, Tex Benecke, Charlie Barnet; trombones, Tommy Dorsey, Glenn Miller, Jack Teagarden, Jack Jenny. Of these, Goodman, James, Krupa, Barnet, Rey, Venuti and Jenny arrived by plane from wide-flung sections, where they were entertaining, to New York where Disterle was waiting for them. In a single day, to permit them to return to their engagements, he put these maestros through their musical paces, to high-light "Syncopation" which features Adolphe Menjou, Jackie Cooper, Bonita Granville and George Bancroft.

Also featured musically in "Syncopation" are Connie Boswell, Todd Duncan and the Hall Johnson Choir, which sings some famous old spirituals.

"Suicide Squadron" Timely

Easily the most timely motion picture of the current film season, "Suicide Squadron," a thrilling and entertaining feature, comes to the screen of the Belle Theatre as the added feature attraction. Anton Walbrook is featured in the stellar role with Sally Gray heading a powerful supporting cast

The Belle latest World Events from home and abroad completes the program.

Little Benny's Note Book

Pop was smoking in his private chair and ma said, It takes more than a uniform to make a hero, William.

It even takes more than a meddle, pop said. In a war the size of this there are a thousand heroes that get lost in the shuffle for every one who gets a badge on the chest and a notice in the papers, he said, and ma said, Yes, and I dont only mean that, I mean some of the very greatest heroes are not even in the army at all.

You mean they're in the navy, pop said, and ma said I mean they're not even in a uniform of any kind or distinction whatever. A glaring example of the living proof of it took place before my very eyes this afternoon. I happened to be downtown while a military reception was taking place on the City Hall steps and without any co-operation of my own I suddenly found myself in the very front line of the crowd with an unsollicited view of the whole performance, she said.

Who were they making all the fuss about? pop said, and ma said, I haven't found out to this day and perhaps I'll never know, but anyway I was fishing —in my bag for my —hankerchiff and somehow I flicked out my lipstick by mistake, the way anybody might.

Any woman, anyway, pop said, and ma said, Well my deer, my lipstick rolled and bounded and tinkled right to the feet of that line of major generals or whatever they were in their resplendent uniforms, and they looked down at it rather startled and obviously embarrassed at the titter of amusement that arose from the crowd, and not a single one of them had the courage to pick —it up to return it to me, and finally a little man in overalls who was standing next to me darted out and picked it up and brought it back to me and joined heartily in the general laugh that went up at his expense. Imagine, William, that little nobody in overalls showing himself more of a hero than that whole line of fully outfitted field marshalls of whatever they were, ma said.

Excuse me while I retire to blush at the very thought that I might of been there with you, pop said.

CHAPTER 7

Gossips

Linda had little time to regret Kyle's unhappiness. The next few days seemed fairly to whisk by, and if there was any hostility in the family, Linda was too delirious with joy to notice. She made elaborate plans for entertaining Greg.

After her amazement at Linda's being daring enough to defy Prairieville conventions had given way to pleasure, Sally joined in the scheme by sending out invitations to a dinner party in her home, followed by dancing at the country club. This, despite Linda's protests.

"Nothing is too good for your new boy friend," she said airily, amused by Linda's flushed cheeks and downcast eyes.

"I've never been to the Prairievale Country Club," Linda admitted. "I do hope Greg will like it—and me, too."

"He'd better like you," Sally returned firmly, "in view of the gossip you're having to endure."

"Gossip?" Linda was surprised. "What gossip?"

Sally giggled. "Now I know you're in love, Linda. Everyone in town knows a wealthy young man from Chicago is coming to Prairievale, just to see you."

"How could it get around?" Linda was shocked and confused. "I haven't told anyone."

Sally shrugged. "That, my dear, is one of the mysteries connected with living in a small town."

"The—the people all sympathize with Kyle, don't they?" Linda inquired hesitantly. "Do they think I'm very—very bad, Sally?"

"Not bad, just foolish," the other girl answered bluntly. "Frankly, Linda, public sentiment is with Kyle because he's never had the opportunities so many of us have enjoyed. After all, he was raised in Prairievale the same as you were and people seem to feel that if Kyle isn't good enough for you, no one is."

"How cruel they are," Linda said angrily. "They are condemning Greg even before they've seen him. And such fantastic stories! Greg isn't wealthy, but he's ambitious. He wants to be wealthy some day. And he isn't coming here just to see me. It so happens—"

Sally interrupted, laughing. "I know, Linda. I know, so save your arguments for the people who are doing the gossiping, in case they don't like Greg."

"But they've got to like Greg." Linda was adamant. "Everyone must like him, Sally. It—it means so much to me."

By the time Greg's convertible roadster raced through Prairievale's main street to shriek to a stop before the Phillips house, Linda was weak with indecision and doubt. Her fears had started early that morning when her mother said bluntly, "What will you do if he doesn't come?"

Steadily her doubt mounted. Suppose he found her dull and unattractive in her home surroundings? Or, worse still, suppose she compared him again with Kyle and found him lacking? Kyle had been generous and understanding. Would Greg be as kind, or would he fight to hold her love? Linda felt a sudden thrill at that thought.

When she saw the car before the house, Linda went cold with dread. She wanted to run and hide. But later, standing on the porch as he approached her, Linda smiled into the eyes of the red-headed young giant, saw the audacious grin on his handsome face and knew that her fright had been only temporary.

"Hello, sweetheart," he greeted her loudly, and Linda flushed, "Oh, Greg—"

She led him into the house made spic and span for the occasion and while he made himself completely at home, Linda dressed for dinner. Her heart pounded madly. Her eyes sparkled with happiness.

When she re-entered the living room, her mother excused herself nervously and left the room. Linda sat very still across the room from Greg, eager for his admiration. But he was staring curiously through the window.

"What's going on uptown tonight?" he asked. "People keep marching up and down the street."

"Nothing is going on," Linda was resentful. "To be perfectly honest, Greg, those people are just walking up and down, waiting to get a good look at you."

"At me?" Greg was surprised and amused, and Linda nodded. "Everyone knows you're in town and they want to see what a wealthy young Chicagoian looks, like."

While Greg listened attentively, Linda told him the gossip circulating through the village, but instead of being angry, Greg laughed uproariously. When he announced gleefully "Another expeditionary force is passing by," Linda exclaimed irritably, "Perhaps you should go out and make a speech, or hand out autographs just to satisfy their curiosity."

Greg chuckled. "I'm getting a big kick out of this, Linda. Those people want to be sure that you're not getting a bad bargain, and I can't say that I blame them. You must have a lot of friends here."

"I grew up in Prairievale," she said simply.

For Linda the evening was a success. Sally and Hugh made her feel completely at ease, and their friends gave Greg a gracious welcome, charmed by his poise and sparkling wit. During dinner Linda could not take her eyes from him. Without a doubt, Greg Hollister was at home anywhere, and Linda's vague fears vanished. She was content.

Pausing before the mirror in the powder room at the country club, she listened proudly to the others as they described Greg in glowing terms.

"He's marvelous," said one girl. "You're lucky, Linda, to have someone like that burning up the concrete between Chicago and Prairievale, just to see you."

"Don't you believe it," Sally said firmly. "Greg's a very lucky young man to have Linda's affection. She deserves the best."

Linda flushed happily. Catching a glimpse of her reflection in the mirror, she saw a small girl with sparkling eyes—cheeks untouched by make-up, yet bright with color. Dressing for Greg, Linda had been undecided whether to be herself—to let Greg see her as her friends and neighbors in Prairievale did—sweet, plain, and thoroughly natural, or to be what she had laughingly termed "artificial" in Chicago.

"He's got to know the real me sometime," she said to herself at last, "so I won't pretend to be something I'm not."

If there was a puzzled light in Greg's blue eyes that evening whenever he glanced down at his companion, Linda did not notice, for she was deliriously happy, and at ease in an inconspicuous blue crêpe dinner dress that had seen service two previous winters.

"You see," she said sweetly, when the evening had come to an end and they were at home again, "I'm not really a painted butterfly, after all. Diane and Sally dressed me up as a lark. Are you—are you disappointed in me, Greg?"

"Disappointed?" he laughed. "I wouldn't want you to be anything else but what you are."

Trustingly she lifted soft lips for his good-night kiss. "I've never known anyone like you before, Greg."

"And I didn't know there was someone like you in the world, Linda."

He kissed her gently and Linda clung to him. If only the night would never end—if only they were just setting forth—

Gently Greg released her. "This is good-bye, Linda. I had a great time in Prairievale."

"Oh, but you'll be here tomorrow."

Greg shook his head. "I thought you understood that I'm pulling out the first thing in the morning."

Top-Grade Eggs Decline One Cent

Toronto, Aug. 22.—Top-grade eggs A large and A medium declined a full cent on the Toronto open produce market Friday while grade A pullets and B eggs in the lower grades advanced a cent to a cent and a half. Butter solids firmed a ¼-cent a pound while cheese prices remained at previous levels.

Although egg production is still light the local demand has eased due to the lack of consumer interest at higher price levels. Shipments to Northern Ontario have been filled mainly by direct shipments from the west. There has been an improved demand for grade A pullets and Ontario grade B's.

Ontario No. 1 creamery butter solids showed an advance of ¼-cent a pound. Offerings were light and the demand was more than sufficient to take care of the butter that was offered. Western butter sold at the previous price of 35 cents a pound. While demand was not heavy in this product there was no pressure to sell.

The cheese market continued dull and draggy with no sales reported. The current white make was offered at the previous level of 20 cents a pound.

The poultry market continued firm at unchanged prices. Receipts in general were plentiful with broilers still hard to obtain. A good volume of heavy chickens cleared well under a good demand for all weights. A fair quantity of fowl also moved freely.

Montreal Produce.

Montreal, Aug. 22 (CP).—Produce prices here Friday, as reported by the Dominion Department of Agriculture follow:

Eggs—Graded shipments selling A large, 40½c-41c; A medium 39½c; A pullets, 34c; B, 29½c-30c; C, 25½c-26c. Receipts, 1,310 cases.

Butter— First grade creamery prints, jobbing price, 36½c; first grade solids, jobbing price, 35½c-36c; current receipt.

Canadian Paratroop Training Combines Best Features of All Methods

Ottawa, Aug. 22 — The awful lesson taught by the Huns, when their parachute troops fluttered down on the Isle of Crete by the thousands from transport planes to seize this strategic spot, will bear rich benefits for the Allied Nations when Canadian parachute troops to be trained at Fort Benning, Georgia, go into action.

Every trick, every manoeuvre of the German paratroops will be improved upon in the training of the Canadian air borne troops.

They will learn how to drop behind the enemy lines, assemble in orderly array as a powerful fighting force, then seize strategic enemy strongholds or harry the opposition forces from the rear.

It is a job for fearless fighting men and Canada is calling on the bravest of her-trained soldiers to volunteer for service in the Parachute Unit. The first detachment assembled in Ottawa at Lansdowne Park preparatory to going south.

Upon completion of their training they will return to Canada as instructors at the parachute training centre to be opened at Camp Shilo, Man.

Men trained in British parachute schools will also be assigned to the Canadian paratroop training unit so that Canada will be able to utilize the best features of the British and the American methods. Of interest, therefore, is the system in use by the Germans in the training and operation of their parachute units.

German Method

The Germans classify their airborne troops as parachutists and air landing troops. Parachutists are those dropped from an aircraft by parachute. And air landing troops are those carried in power aircraft and gliders. They are not dropped, but are landed with their 'planes.

In the middle of 1940 it was estimated that Germany had a minimum of 5,000 trained parachutists. This number has been considerably increased.

At first all parachutists were volunteers. This is not now the case.

The parachutists must be independent. He is trained to use his initiative whether working alone or in a number. The general idea is that they must continue to be on the offensive regardless of local conditions.

Parachutists are trained at certain schools in Germany. At these schools they are trained in actual jumping from aircraft only. After four weeks at the schools they graduate to parachute units.

With the unit he has been posted to, the parachutist is given a two or three month course of intensive training in his operational role. He is taught to use the weapons he may need or may be called upon to operate.

On the ground, the parachutist may be considered to be a brother to the infantryman. He is trained to handle a rifle, automatic pistol, Tommy gun, light, medium and heavy machine-guns, light artillery pieces and mortars.

In Germany certain specialists are trained in demolition work, and others receive training to equip them as spies.

Well Equipped

The parachutist wears a special light metal helmet. His trousers are similar to the Canadian skiing pants, and a pair of water-proof overalls in the typical German olive green is worn over the uniform.

He wears rubber soled boots with slide fasteners. His hands are protected by padded gauntlets. He has knee pads and foot and ankle bandages.

For his personal protection the parachutist carries a respirator, pistol, two hand grenades, two smoke bombs and a knife. His comfort and subsistence are provided for, he ras a wallet containing food, a flask of rum, an electric torch and a field dressing.

Air borne troops, both parachutists and air landing troops, are unable to carry large supplies or amounts of ammunition with them. Supplies are unlikely to last for more than a week unless they are augmented in some way.

The general German method of dropping personnel and stores seem to consist of the using of various colored parachutes. In Greece, according to one report, white 'chutes were used in the dropping of the troops, while stores were lowered in grey, black and red.

Some of the parachutists carried flags which were immediately unrolled and displayed to their fellow-fighters in the air. This, of course, identified them, and the flags were used to drape captured vehicles.

Equipment carried with the parachutist and dropped for him has varied in different campaigns. The general idea, however, is not varied greatly.

Many Jobs to Do

The German parachutist has many jobs to do. The general interruption of communication systems and transportation facilities is one of the most important. General sabotage is carried out by them. And they often attempt to direct bombers to targets by pre-arranged plan, such as making markings on the ground.

The parachutist is often used as an agent for the spreading of false rumors. The breakdown of morale if the civilian populations is one of their objects. They try to seize and hold small localities and features such as aidromes.

Because they are usually dropped from low altitudes, usually 300 to 400 feet, they reach the ground quickly. They leave the aircraft in rapid succession and fairly large numbers may be dropped on an area in a short space of time.

Air Landing Troops

Unlike the parachutist, the air landing troop stays with his powered aircraft or glider until it has come to rest on the ground.

Every infantryman in the German army is considered to be a potential air landing troop. The training is comparatively simple. Soldiers are quickly trained to enplane and deplane. Many German units have been moved by air.

Aerodromes are not a necessity even for the landing of air borne troops. A clear space six hundred feet square, flat and free from obstacles, will do.

One of the most important follow up operations after the landing of either paratroops or air landing troops is the achievement of an adequate system of supply for them. Armored fighting vehicles and artillery are considered to be necessary for their support.

The Canadian paratroops will be more than a match for the Huns however when they take to the skies.

ZAGREB-BELGRADE EXPRESS WRECKED

Yugoslav Sources Say Croat Guerillas Block Rail Traffic to Italian Border

London, Aug. 22 —(CP)— A fresh wave of sabotage by Yugoslav patriots was climaxed Saturday by wrecking the Zagreb-Belgrade express, with 21 persons killed and 32 injured, Yugoslav sources reported.

The German field commandant at Nis, named Von Bothmer, offered rewards for arrests of persons who recently cut the Belgrade-Salonika railroad at three points, they said.

The report added that Serbian villages near the scene had been "severely punished" and two Bulgarian regiments were coming to the area north of Nis in search of Chetnik forces.

The Vichy radio said the wreck Saturday occurred 40 miles southeast of Zagreb.

Yugoslav sources in the Middle East said Croat guerillas also had blocked rail traffic between Zagreb and the Italian border for two weeks.

A Reuters dispatch from Zurich quoted a Swiss correspondent in Berlin as saying 10 men had been shot in the eastern Croat town of Stara Pasova for undisclosed reasons.

German Soldiers Attacked

Other reports told of "revolts by Communist elements and partisans" in eastern Slavonia during the first half of August in which German soldiers were attacked, food stocks burned and farm machinery destroyed.

Yugoslav circles in Jerusalem reported fierce battles between Croats and Axis troops near the Slovenian towns of Gorenjsko and Rogaska-Slatina.

The Yugoslav report added that Ustachi (pro-Axis Croat) garrisons in several villages near Zagreb had been annihilated by patriots and that Axis troops burned a number of villages near Ljubljana.

CANADIAN PEOPLE DEEPLY STIRRED SAYS PREMIER

Ottawa, Aug. 22. (CP) — Prime Minister Mackenzie King Thursday cabled Lt.-Gen. A. G. L. McNaughton, commander-in-chief of the Canadian Army overseas, that the people of Canada shared with the Canadian troops raiding Dieppe "the satisfaction of their opportunity to strike a telling blow at a Nazi stronghold".

"All Canada had been deeply stirred by the account of yesterday's raid on Dieppe", said Mr. King, adding that "we were proud to learn that Canadian troops had been given a foremost place in the operation".

Canadian hearts are "filled with sympathy" for the families of those who fell in action and for the wounded and missing, he said. "Their sacrifice has strengthened the country's determination to give the utmost support to our fighting men on land, at sea and in the air".

He asked Gen. McNaughton to convey to the officers and men taking part in the raid "the expression of our deep admiration of their memorable exploit".

Defection Thwarted By Col. Sun Wei-Yin

Chungking, Aug. 22—(AP)—Gen. Chang En-to, a divisional commander on the southern Shantung front, was ordered arrested Friday by the National Military Council on charges that he attempted to desert with all his troops and organize his own "anti-Japanese shock army."

The defection, it was said, was thwarted by Col. Sun Wei-yin, a loyal regimental commander, after Chang had forcibly detained his deputy division commander, chief of staff and several other officers.

When Sun rebelled with his men against his superior's action and killed a regimental commander who backed Chang, the general was said to have fled with 200 followers.

34,000 MILES ON 2 CENTS

For two cents a letter travelled 34,000 miles before it caught up with E. A. Leete, of the Royal Air Force. It was sent by his mother, Mrs. Leete, of Perth, Australia. When it arrived in an English town, after a 10,000-mile trip, stamps were missing and Aircraftman Leete had moved to a new station. The letter was readdressed to the Dead Letter Office in Sydney, Australia, a return journey of 12,000 miles. From there it went to Perth, 2,000 miles across the continent. Mrs. Leete enclosed the letter in another, which travelled to England under cover of a penny stamp, and this time Leete received it.

WASTE NO FUEL R.C.A.F.'S AIM FOR SALVAGING

By JAMES McCOOK
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Ottawa, Aug. 22—(CP)—No airplane can be smashed so completely that the Royal Canadian Air Force will leave it where it lies.

A house of Commons committee on war expenditures, studying salvage operations, was informed by R.C.A.F. supply branch officials that present instructions are that all crashed aircraft, regardless of their condition, must be forwarded to repair depots so every possible part may be salvaged for use either in the service or by issue to manufacturers.

From July 1 to December 31, 1941, sale to other government departments of equipment and salvage put up for disposal by the R.C.A.F. was valued at $131,756 and transfers were valued at $25,878. Among the sales were cartridge cases with a value of $13,276 and scrap metal worth $23,903.

In the field of conservation, the R.C.A.F. limits the speed at which motor transport may travel to 40 miles an hour and combines service runs in various areas to prevent wastage of gasoline. A motor transport organization has been set up for the express purpose of economically adminstering all phases of vehicles' operation.

To save paper, instructions have been given that new forms must be essential, of minimum quantity and of the smallest size adequate to their purpose.

Airmen are assured of plenty to eat, but at frequent intervals a non-commissioned officer is stationed near the receiving bin for dirty dishes to determine whether those dispensing food are serving too generous portions or whether any particular dish is generally unacceptable.

Gasoline Control

Gasoline is removed from aircraft only before repair in workshops, before transfer not under their own power or immediately after a crash, in accordance with instructions received in the maintenance schedule. Gasoline removed from undamaged aircraft tanks is returned to the station bulk storage for flying purposes. Gasoline removed from damaged aircraft tanks is screened carefully and mixed with motor transport gasoline for use in ground transport.

For technical reasons, reclaimed aero engine oil is not used in aircraft but is disposed of to the army and, when army requirements have been met, through the salvage officer to private concerns, a price of 3 1-2 cents a gallon being obtained in Quebec and the Maritimes. Prices obtained elsewhere range up to 10 6-10 cents in Manitoba.

Airmen are required to wear overalls at all work which would cause soiling or excessive wear to uniforms. Where uniforms cannot be repaired for further use they are converted to produce and sold through the salvage officer. Articles with a wool content are sold to mills for manufacture of cloth to make R.C.A.F. uniforms and greatcoats.

All empty oxygen and acetylene cylinders, ammunition, bomb and surplus transit cases are returned to contractors to be used again. All obsolete equipment is reported by units to their command headquarters for disposal instructions.

Half a day is set aside at land bombing ranges each spring when the snow melts for men to pick up all the metal which is easily recoverable and suitable for salvage. Electric light blub bases are collected and empty typewriter ribbon spools are reported to the salvage officer for disposal.

Where R.C.A.F. kitchens have difficulty in disposing of by-products, fats are utilized in the manufacture of soap according to a recipe issued by headquarters.

Another Axis Sub Sunk off Brazil

Rio de Janeiro, Aug. 22—(AP)—Sinking of another Axis submarine off the Brazilian coast—the third reported destroyed in those waters this week—was credited unofficially today to United States planes operating from somewhere in Brazil. Report of the sinkings came from Fortaleza, on the other side of the Brazilian "bulge."

Reports of the sinkings came as President Getulio Vargas announced that henceforth all Brazilian merchantmen moving through the usual sea lanes would be convoyed by the Navy and Air Force in cooperation with United States Naval and Air units.

The decision to establish a convoy system followed swiftly the disclosure that Axis submarines had sunk another Brazilian vessel—the small coastwise steamer Jacy—bringing to six the number destroyed in recent days with a loss of some 600 lives.

The Experts Say . . . .

By ISABEL ALLAN
.. Canadian Press Staff Writer ..

Ottawa, Aug. 22 —(CP)— Hints for wartime living from folk who ought to know:-

MILK

Now that tea and coffee consumption has been cut by rationing and seems likely to be scarce while the war lasts, milk will probably be more popular as a beverage. . .Marion Harlow of the Pensions and Health Department's nutrition services says women trying to keep their weight down don't have to be afraid of milk because it's not the thing that puts on extra poundage. "Pastry, rich desserts, jam, chocolate sundaes and other fatty and starchy foods are the real villains," is the way she puts it.

Apples

Laura Pepper of the Agriculture Department's consumer division is constantly on the watch for sugar-saving hints . . . "When you buy early varieties of apples make sure they're fully ripe," she says. "Green apples take too much sugar in cooking" . . . Her sugar-saving receipe for apple sauce is three-quarters of a tablespoonful of sugar for each Duchess apple and one-half a tablespoonful for a Yellow Transparent . . . Add the sugar after cooking while the apple sauce is still hot for best results.

Spending

Byrne Hope Sanders, "Mrs. Consumer" of the Wartime Prices and Trade Board urges every family to adopt a "spending plan" for most efficient wartime living. . . "Let's decide now what we need to keep our families well and strong and yet spend less," she suggests. "Hit-or miss spending waste money. Lay aside money regularly for essentials like taxes. And adopt as a motto: 'If it means running up a new bill to buy something—don't buy it.'"

Coffee

The rationing division of the Prices Board comes out with this advice for making rationed coffee: "Don't over-percolate" . . . Most economical results come from one level tablespoonful of coffee for each cup "perked" not over 12 minutes. . .And make sure the beans are ground correctly for your coffee maker to avoid waste—coarse for boiled coffee, medium for percolator, fine for drip method and pulverized or fine for glass coffee makers.

Factories

Dr. L. B. Pett, director of nutrition services, says his branch is launching an intensive campaign to improve meals and eating facilities in industry. . .Trained dietitians have already surveyed these aspects of several hundred factories . . .Now the nutrition services are trying to co-operate with the managements in making a real improvement in the nutrition of Canadian workers . . . "Nutrition in Industry" is the title of a new booklet available to all employers.

Stoves

The new order freezing supplies of electric stoves and grills makes it all the more important to take care of the one you're using . . . The experts suggest that any food spilled on the range top should be wiped off promptly. . .After the range cools wipe with a cloth dipped in warm, soapy water . . .If the heating units are open, burn off spilled food and don't use a brush or sharp instrument which might damage the elements.

Attacking Forces On Solomon Islands Praised by Writer

Auckland, N.Z., Aug. 22 (C.P. Cable) — Great tribute to the United States forces attacking in the Solomon Islands was paid Friday by a correspondent at a South Pacific port.

He reported that two factors stand out with exceptional clarity in this assault: the excellence of the planning and the courage and astuteness with which it was executed, and the valor of the attacking naval and marine forces. The Americans were tested by flames, shells, bullets, bayonets and knives but drove all-out to success.

The correspondent also expressed the belief that the present lull may not be taken as a sign the Allies have completed their conquest, as a struggle for control of the sea lanes may flare at any minute.

The Allied fleet, he wrote, probably is regrouped and is ready to meet the expected challenge while the Japanese are frantically reorganizing their plans and seeking some way out of their dilemma.

They are struggling bitterly for a delay, either to give their fleet time to relieve them or to develop a counter-offensive elsewhere, the correspondent added.

ALLIED FLIERS THWART JAP RAID ON DARWIN

NAZIS MAKE PINCER THRUST ON STALINGRAD

13 Japanese Planes Shot Down With No Loss to Allies

Damage Caused Light Despite 27 Bombers And 20 Fighters Used in Attack

A COUNTER BLOW

Allied Headquarters, Australia, Aug. 24 —(CP))— Brilliant defence by Allied fliers sent the Japanese home from a big raid on the Darwin airfield yesterday with little to show for their effort except the gaps left in their formations by the loss of four bombers and nine zero fighters, Allied Headquarters announced today.

The defending airmen's feat was the more remarkable because they intercepted the raiders at 25,000 feet, knocked down more than one of every four of the 47 enemy planes and suffered no losses themselves although they probably were outnumbered.

The damage caused by the raiders was slight, the headquarters communique said, despite the 27 bombers and 20 fighter escorts used in the attack.

Allied planes scored also on the offensive with an attack on buildings in the wharf area along Buka passage, the narrow strait between Buka and Bougainville in the northern Solomon Islands. The communique said the results were unobserved.

The raid on Darwin, possibly a counter-blow against Allied air forces which have been hammering the enemy-held island of Timor in recent weeks, was the first big foray since July 30 when the Japanese sent over 27 heavy bombers and 22 fighters. In that attack 7 fighters and two bombers were shot down at the cost of one Allied plane.

Brilliant Interception

Yesterday the fliers carried out what the Allied communique called a "brilliant tactical interception."

The raiders approached Darwin from the west and the fighters attacked them first while they still were over the sea. Three enemy bombers were caught in bursts of fire. They left their formations, jettisoned their bombs, and pilots saw them turn for home only to crash into the sea.

The remainder of the Japanese flight came on in three groups Although peppered by machine-gun fire, directed at Zeros as well as bombers, the formation reached the general target area and unloaded 500-pound fragmentation bombs and incendiaries which kicked up smoke and dust but caused comparatively little damage.

One United States flier said he got so close to one Zero fighter that "I could see the pilot's face under his red cap. Nip looked mighty worried as my bullets had set his wings afire. I saw him go down into the sea.

A Chicago lieutenant, who in the Japanese raid of July 30 destroyed an enemy bomber but was shot down himself, this time got a bomber and a Zero.

"I guess I kinda evened things up today," he remarked

Courage of Canadian Soldiers Given High Praise by Germans

LONDON, Aug. 24—(CP Cable) —The Germans paid high tribute to Canada's fighting men when a speaker on the Nazi-controlled Paris radio Sunday said of the Dieppe raid, "The Canadians are endowed with magnificent courage," a Reuters dispatch received here today reported.

Said the announcer, "The first thing that emerges from the Dieppe fighting is the stubbornness of the Canadian soldier ... one has the impression these men clung to the soil and fought to the last cartridge."

One inhabitant of Dieppe was quoted as saying he was awakened by "great air activity . . . we heard terrific bombardments and bombs were bursting everywhere."

Later, said this resident, he saw Canadian and British soldiers "running about with tommy-guns and then we realized what was happening."

3 NAZI BOMBERS ARE DESTROYED

Small Number of Enemy Aircraft Causes Slight Damage in England

LONDON, Aug. 24 — (CP) — Three German bombers of a small number of enemy aircraft were destroyed over Britain during the night. The raiders came in over East Anglia and spread widely over the Midlands and as far as North-west England.

Slight damage was caused but there were no casualties, an authoritative statement said.

The night raid followed deep daylight incursions into hostile territory by both the Royal Air Force and the Germans.

Two Wellington bombers broke through clouds over the German naval base of Emden and the Air Ministry said hits were scored among buildings in the dock area.

A German plane approached the coast of Northern Ireland, where many United States troops are quartered, yesterday morning but R.A.F. fliers intercepted it and said they damaged it before it was forced to turn south.

BRAZIL TAKES STEPS TO GUARD AGAINST SURPRISE

Special Precautions Against Attacks By Axis Subs Taken; Patrol Shore Lines

CO-OPERATION WITH U.S.

RIO DE JANEIRO, Aug. 24 — (AP) — The government moved to put Brazil on a full war footing today, tightening its control over German and Italian Nationals and taking special precautions against a possible token attack by Axis submarines known to be lurking off this country's long coastline.

Noisy demonstrations which accompanied Brazil's entry into the war Saturday died down yesterday and the country was outwardly calm, but the navy and air force stepped up their off-shore patrols — especially in the region of the Natal "bulge," which is only 1,600 miles from Dakar, Africa.

At least four enemy submarines were reported sighted off the coast yesterday and there was widespread speculation they might attempt to shell some point in emulation of the Japanese submarine which ineffectually bombarded the west coasts of Canada and the United States two months ago.

(The government wireless station at Estevan Point, B. C., was shelled June 20. Defence Minister J. L. Ralston told the House of Commons that possibly two enemy craft took part in the shelling, judging from the rate at which 30 or more shells landed in the area. It was the first attack on Canadian land since Confederation.

(There was no damage.)

In Sergipe State, south of Natal, the government demonstrated its awareness of this possibility by ordering a total blackout of the city of Aracaju, decreeing a 10 P. M. curfew and ordering state police reserves to duty to improve the coast watch. Partial blackouts were enforced elsewhere.

In Rio De Janeiro the bright beams of searchlights swept over the beautiful harbor during the night to expose possible intruders.

A desire for closest co-operation with the United States in military and economic matters was evident in official quarters, which obviously were preparing for a long, hard war.

Informed sources said the war minister, Gen. Eurico Gaspar Dutra, the navy minister, Admiral Aristides Guilhem and air minister Joaquim Salgado, Jr., already are planning new moves to build up their respective forces.

Report Argentine Decree to Grant Brazil Non-Belligerent Status

Buenos Aires, Aug. 24 —(AP)— Informed sources said today that a decree granting Brazil non-belligerent status in her war with Germany and Italy would be presented to a cabinet meeting this afternoon and was expected to be approved for signature by President Ramon Castillo.

That would be the same official attitude which Argentina took toward the entry of the United States into the war, granting use of her ports to American nations regarded as non-belligerent while keeping them closed to the Axis.

The decree is expected to be published later in the day.

The position of Argentina—one of two Western Hemisphere countries still maintaining relations with the Axis powers—was thrown into bold relief by an expression of solidarity with Brazil which came from their joint neighbor, Uruguay.

In a message to President Vargas of Brazil, President Baldomir of Uruguay said his country is ready to carry out the Havana agreement which he said "makes the continent a single nation against aggressions of a non-American state."

Some observers took this statement as an indication that Uruguay might follow Brazil into the war. An announcement issued in Montevideo last night by Foreign Minister Alberta Guani after a series of conferences with the Brazilian and United States ambassadors said the Uruguayan government has decided on the terms of a decree fixing its position, but details were not immediately disclosed.

It is expected the decree certainly will grant Brazil non-belligerent status.

In direct support of her northern neighbor, meanwhile, Uruguay began a roundup of Germans and Italians who had fled across the border from Brazil.

Semi-official advices from Montevideo also reported that planes of Uruguay's small air force were co-operating in the search for two German submarines said to have been sighted off the coast of southern Brazil.

Possibility that other South American nations might be drawn actively into the war was not excluded by observers.

Chile—the second American country still maintaining relations with the Axis—maintained official silence with regard to the situation, although the government protested vigorously to Berlin last week over the sinking of Brazilian ships.

Sections of the Chilean press urged a break in relations with the Axis.

Panama newspapers were virtually unanimous in praising Brazil's step. The Panama Star Herald said that "what has happened to Brazil can very well happen to any other American republic" and declared it is time all realized that they could not be friendly with both the democracies and totalitarian governments.

Bren Gun Production To Be Doubled Soon

Ottawa, Aug. 24. (CP)—Munitions Minister Howe announced today that facilities now are being provided to double the production of Bren guns in Canada and that production of Sten machine carbines is being quadrupled.

Capacity output under the expanded Bren gun program, amounting to several thousand units per month, is expected to be attained between December, 1942, and March, 1943. Planned capacity output of Sten machine carbines ultimately will equal that of the Bren gun, said the announcement, issued by the Munitions and Supply department.

Other Types in Production

The announcement added that the new Browning tank type machine-gun now is in production, together with a 100-round Bren gun magazine, a 90-millimetre anti-aircraft gun barrel, and a 4.5 inch anti-aircraft gun carriage. By September, Lee-Enfield rifles will be rolling out at a rate of many hundreds a day.

Amplifying the announcement Mr. Howe said: "Three years ago the manufacture of guns was virtually unknown to Canada. Only the Ross rifle was turned out during the First Great War, but today Canadian guns are in service on most battle fronts".

The announcement continued: "Some of the guns, mountings, carriages, barrels and small arms now being produced in Canada are as follows:

225-pounder field guns, with equipment, trailer and tractors; Bofors anti-aircraft gun barrels; Bofors anti-aircraft guns, mountings equipment and predictors; 90 millimetre anti-aircraft barrels; 3.7-inch anti-aircraft gun barrels; 3-7-inch anti-aircraft guns complete with equipment tank guns and mountings, 2 types; anti-tank guns, 2 types; anti-tank gun carriages; 4.5-inch anti-aircraft gun carriages 2-inch trench mortars; 3-inch trench mortars;

"Bren guns; 100-round Bren gun magazines; Browning aircraft machine guns; Browning tank type machine guns; Lee-Enfield rifles; safety fuze pistols; 12-pounder naval guns; 4-inch naval guns; naval guns mountings, 9 types; depth charge throwers; 4-inch smoke dischargers; Sten machine carbines; boys anti-tank rifles; bomb throwers; naval pom-poms.

"In addition, work is in progress, and in most instances far advanced, leading to the production of the following:

"Vickers naval guns; 4-inch naval guns, second type; naval mountings, three types; secret equipment and weapons of various types; gun carriages, two types."

Complicated Designs

"When Canada undertook the manufacture of guns," said Mr. Howe, "our industries had no knowledge of the complicated designs, of the many parts of the extremely fine tolerance of the metallurgical difficulties, or of the huge and expensive machine tools which are essential to their production.

"At the beginning of the war, Canada obtained an order for a very small quantity of loose barrels for anti-aircraft guns. So fine was the quality of the output of these barrels that an initial order was received from Great Britain for the manufacture of a light anti-tank gun and mobile carriage. Then, with the fall of France, Canada was called upon suddenly to turn out in quantity, guns, carriages, mountings, barrels, small arms, and even the most complicated electrical fire-control instruments.

"To implement a program of this magnitude, we required plant capacity, labor, management, raw materials, and machine tools on short notice. All suitable buildings and equipment were immediately put to use and capital assistance amounting to many tens of millions of dollars was made available for the construction of new plants and their equipment. A government-owned company was incorporated for the purpose of making small arms."

Mr. Howe said that it then became necessary to obtain quickly, and in sufficient quantities, the raw materials required—alloy steels, iron, copper, brass and rubber. The announcement added that 262,000 pounds of steel are required in the

BOARD TO TAKE ACTION AGAINST FALSE RUMORS

Persons Spreading Same About Prospective Rationing to be Prosecuted

MAY BE SUBVERSIVE

Ottawa, Aug. 24 (CP)—The Wartime Prices and Trade Board figuratively took off the kid gloves today and in a bluntly-worded statement warned that action will be taken against persons spreading false rumors of prospective rationing.

Asserting "we can give positive assurance that no critical shortage of any essential of life is in sight," Board Chairman Donald Gordon characterized the false reports as "definitely subersive, often causing runs on existing supplies and needlessly complicating the difficult task of equitable distribution."

"Such rumors," he said, "are often inspired by people who hove to obtain advantage out of them, and unthinking persons spread them without realizing the damage they are doing.

"Any one who rushes around trying to acquire a hoard of this or that may be rated, in my opinion as a fifth-rate citizen. I am sure no right-thinking Canadian seriously means to let greed over-rule his decent instincts.

"It is the duty of all citizens in this period of emergency to act honorable and to refrain from trying to steal an advantage over others."

In future, the Board would decline comment on any rumors of rationing and would bend every effort to punish those responsible for spreading "these mischievous stories"

Mr. Gordon did not mention any specific commodities which had been falsely mentioned as likely to be rationed, but in the last few weeks it has been reported from various sources—and vigorously denied by the Board—that soap, butter and clothing would be placed on the ration list, along with sugar, tea and coffee.

ONTARIO WILL NOT ENFORCE DEFENCE REGULATIONS

Attorney General Conant Issues Order and Asks Data be Given Him

OTTAWA NOTIFIED

Toronto, Aug. 24 (CP)—Ontario authorities today had orders from Attorney-General Conant not to enforce Regulations 39, 39A and 39B of the Defence of Canada Regulations—but to forward all data concerning future occurrences to the Attorney-General of Canada for such action as he may see fit.

Mr. Conant's order was contained in a memorandum sent out to Ontario law enforcement authorities simultaneously with disclosure of his announcement to Justice Minister Louis St. Laurent that the province no longer would enforce these regulations which make it an offence for any person to act in such manner as to prejudice the war effort and the safety of the state.

The Attorney-General said they "are not uniformly construed and applied in all the provinces" and "in other words, the brand of justice dispensed in Ontario with respect thereto is substantially different from the brand of justice dispensed in some of the other provinces."

"In my opinion the anomaly can only be rectified by the Attorney-General of Canada and his department having the conduct of all such cases, so that by the submission of counsel on his behalf and by appeals some subtantial degree of uniformity may be attained in the enforcement of Regulations 39 and 39A," Mr. Conant wrote to the justice minister.

"For the reasons above stated, it is not my intention to direct that any further consents to prosecutions under Regulations 39 and 39A of the Defence of Canada Regulations be given." (Section 39B gives instructions with reference to prosecutions under 39 and 39A.)

BATTLE OF BEACH MAIN CANADIAN ATTACK ON DIEPPE

General Picture Pieced Together From Stories Told by Men Who Were There

MET HEAVY FIRE

By ROSS MUNRO

Somewhere in England, Aug. 24 — (CP Cable)—They speak with awe in Canadian army camps of the "main beach at Dieppe" where three Canadian infantry battalions, tankmen, engineers and provost fought the longest sustained action of the raid on the old French town.

The battle of the beach was the main Canadian attack—boldly directed at the town itself. From the stories told by the men who came back this general picture has been pieced together.

The Essex Scottish landed at about 5.20 a.m. on the eastern half of the mile-long gravel and shale beach, 75 yards wide. The Royal Hamilton Light Infantry went in at the same time on the western half with the Calgary tank battalion, provost and sappers. Les Fusiliers Mont Royal landed later as reserve.

Halfway up the beach, stretched across the Canadians' path, was barbed wire. The attackers faced a thick German fire pouring from a row of buildings looking to the beach across the broad promenade edge which was supported by a long seawall.

The defenders had field guns and the row of buildings they occupied bristled with machine guns and trench mortars.

The R.A.F. and the navy plastered Dieppe for half an hour before the Canadians swept in from small troop-carrying craft and bigger tank-loading boats.

The first wave of Canadians met blistering machine-gun and mortar fire as they swept up the beach, cut their way through barbed wire and then went on again to take cover behind the seawall, 10 feet high at the eastern end and lowering gradually to two feet at the western extremity.

Steel Workers Appeal to Premier

Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., Aug. 24 (CP)—Next development in the wage dispute which threatens to bring work stoppages in the basic steel producing plants at Sault Ste. Marie and at Sydney, N.S., appeared today to hinge on the response of Prime Minister Mackenzie King to appeals from the United Steel Workers of America for a national conference of primary steel producers to bring about "an equitable solution" of demands for wage increases.

C. H. Millard, national director for Canada of the U.S.W.A., who is handling the appeals of the Sydney and Sault unions, announced at a mass meeting of members of the Algoma union yesterday that he had addressed a new appeal to the Prime Minister to summon a conference of employers, employees and the government.

Linchwan After Two Weeks of Siege Is Captured in Offensive by Chinese

Chungking, Aug. 24 —(AP)— Chinese forces have captured Linchwan (Fuchow) in central Kiangsi, second most important Japanese base in the province, the Chinese High Command announced tonight.

Linchwan, on the Fu River 60 miles southeast of Nanchang, main enemy base in the province, has been under Chinese siege for two weeks. United States army planes supported the Chinese ground forces in the early phases of the siege.

The city was captured by the Japanese in June during their drive up the Fu River toward Fukien province. It lies south of the Chekiang-Kiangso railway, along which the Chinese hitherto have scored their chief gains in a come-back campaign.

Chuhsien, a Chekiang air base which was the principal objective of the Japanese summer campaign, and Juihung, only 30 miles east of their main Kiangsi base of Nanchang, were menaced by dual Chinese offensives.

Under heavy pressure, the Japanese were reported hastily withdrawing along the Chekiang-Kiangsi railway which they gained at heavy cost, and Chinese press dispatches said the fall of Juihung is expected shortly.

Chinese correspondents entering Shangjao, one of the railway cities vacated by the Japanese, found it reduced to a heap of blackened ruins as the result of a three-day fire set by Japanese incendiary bombs and grenades.

Great Battles Rage In Kotelnikovski, Kletskaya Sectors

Reds Fight Desperately to Halt Enemy In Area Between Don and Volga

CONSOLIDATE CROSSING

(By EDDIE GILMORE)
(Associated Press Staff Writer)

Moscow, Aug. 24 (AP) — The Russians battled resolutely today in the narrow, flat corridor between the Don and the Volga to halt German forces which finally had consolidated a river crossing and struck out for Stalingrad, probably only 40 miles away.

Another thrust at the great industrial city moved slowly ahead at terrific cost on the Kotelnikoski sector southwest of Stalingrad along a railway leading from the Black Sea.

The mid-day communique reported a violent struggle southeast of Kletskaya where the Germans had reached the east bank of the Don. Tanks which ferried the placid river constituted the greatest threat to Stalingrad.

The exact location of the tank crossing—established only after the Russian artillery and planes had destroyed four previous pontoon bridges—was not disclosed, but the Germans have been attacking most heavily in the Don Elbow, 40 miles from Stalingrad and the Volga.

Russian forces remained on the west side of the river, despite the enemy breach and near Kletskaya itself were counter-attacking to relieve pressure. The lines on the outer defences of Stalingrad appeared to be highly mobile with both armies manoeuvring swiftly for position.

The struggle for Stalingrad appeared to be nearing the supreme test, Russian reports indicated, as a new crossing of the Don was forced southeast of Kletskaya by the Germans. The Russians were fighting stubbornly to push these Germans into the river and destroy the bridgehead.

In the Caucasian foothills, too, the picture darkened today, the Russians reporting the Red army had withdrawn to a new position southeast of Pyatigorsk, only 140 miles from the Grozny oil wells.

A tank group, which the Germans ferried across the Don at the time of their new crossing, was regarded as a serious threat to Stalingrad.

The tanks were taken across under cover provided by the German air force. Four bridgeheads established previously by the Germans had been destroyed by Russian artillery and the Red air force.

The Don itself is less than 500 yards wide in the bend and the slow-running shallow water would constitute only a minor barrier to the Germans in bringing up reinforcements if the Red army defences on the east side of the river were broken.

South of Krasnodar in the northwest Caucasus, where the Germans are attempting to bludgeon their way to the Black Sea coast and the Russian ports of Novorossisk, Anapa and Tuapse, the Russians were reported holding and dealing out heavy losses.

Ten Fatalities During Weekend

(By The Canadian Press)

Ten fatalities were reported in eastern Canada over the weekend. Four persons died as a result of traffic accidents three were drowned, one man was killed by a fall, another by a farm tractor, and a baby was electrocuted.

Four of the fatalities were in Ontario. Harry Gilroy, 24-year-old electrician, fell 18 floors to his death from a Toronto hotel while repairing an electric sign. At Waterford, Ronald Lewis, 17, was fatally injured when the tractor he was driving got out of control and overturned, pinning him underneath.

Joseph Giovanazzi, 60, driver of a truck that caught fire after a collision, died in hospital at Fort Erie of severe burns. At Brantford John Riddolls, 20-months-old son of Major and Mrs. Riddolls, was electrocuted while playing with an electrical extension cord in his bedroom.

Four in Quebec

There were also four fatalities in Quebec, including a double drowning. Mr. and Mrs. Louis St. Jacques were drowned in the St. Lawrence near Rivere Du Loup while attempting to rescue a young girl, who later reached shore in safety.

At Montreal Bertha Morin, 36, died in hospital without regaining consciousness after being struck by a motorcycle while she was cycling, and four-year-old Jacques Poirier died when a motorcar ran into a group of church-goers.

The two other weekend fatalities were in the Maritimes. At Glace Bay four-year-old Mary Lawrence was struck and killed by a motorcar while she was crossing the street, and Sgt. Edward Saunders, back home at Saint John on leave from Newfoundland, was drowned when he lost his hold on a capsized canoe.

Corporal 'Gate-Crashes' Dieppe Raid, Killed After Returning Home

Somewhere in England, Aug. 24 (CP Cable)—The story of a Canadian army corporal who "gate-crashed" the Dieppe raid and returned uninjured, only to die as the result of a road accident the following day was told today at an inquest in a south coast town.

The soldier was Cpl. Victor Samuel Allen, 21, of Fairport, Ont., a former customs clerk. It was stated at the inquest that he joined the Dieppe raid by posing as a member of a field ambulance unit and took part in the heavy street fighting, escaping unscratched.

Some time later he was a passenger in an army vehicle with other Canadians. The machine overturned and Allen received multiple injuries.

He was taken to a hospital where many of the Dieppe wounded were being treated and subsequently he died.

A verdict of accidental death was reurned.

$866 COLLECTED FOR CHINESE RELIEF

Grateful appreciation of the fight which our Chinese ally is putting up against her powerful Japanese enemy and of the great load which her oppressed peoples are carrying, was shown in Belleville on Saturday when at a tag day for the Chinese War Relief Fund a total of $866 was collected. The above amount surpasses by a considerable margin the results of any previous tag day held in this city.

Saturday's tag day was sponsored by the St. Julien Chapter of the I.O.D.E. with the co-operation of the Belleville Chinese Patriotic Association and a very generous response from all walks of life is reported. Eight Chinese girls, five from Toronto and three from Kingston, assisted many Belleville girls and women in tagging and the St. Julien Chapter express their appreciation to all persons who in any way assisted in the success of the day.

TWO MINOR ALARMS ANSWERED BY DEPT.

Two minor alarms were answered by the fire department over the weekend, the first for a chimney fire at 45 Bettes Street on Saturday and the second for a tar fire this morning at the yard of the Public Works Department on Church Street. Workmen were heating the tar in preparation for use when it took fire, but firemen extinguished the blaze before damage of any nature resulted.

ATTENDING CHURCH, MOTOR CAR STOLEN

With a full tank of gasoline available, a 1929 model Durant sedan was stolen from in front of Bridge Street Church Sunday morning. The motor car is the property of Mr. Alfred N. Foster, 15 Yeomans St., who parked his automobile while attending church. The vehicle, bearing Ontario licence plates number 1-N-120, was stolen during the church service. The vehicle had not been recovered at noon on Monday.

CAR TURNS OVER AFTER HITTING RAIL

When the motor car he was driving went out of control while crossing a culvert along the 8th concession of Thurlow, about 1.30 a.m. Sunday morning, James Sexsmith, 4 Holloway St., Belleville, escaped serious injuries as the vehicle subsequently turned over after colliding with a guard rail.

Sexsmith informed Provincial Constable R. W. Duncan that his car apparently swerved as it was crossing an incline over a culvert. The car skidded on the loose gravel, careened against the right guard rail cables and drove to the north side of the road when the vehicle crashed through the guard rail, turning completely over and coming to rest on the top. Damage amounting to $250 resulted to the vehicle, the front of the car being completely demolished. Guard rail posts valued at $50 were also estimated, the officer stated.

AIRMEN OF I.T.S. TO DONATE LOOD

Airmen from No. 5 Initial Training School will offer their blood to their country while in training, when at a special clinic Tuesday night, 90 members of the station personnel will attend the Red Cross Blood Donor Clinic at Kiwanis Centre on Dundas St. The men attending the clinic will be under the charge of Wing Commander M. L. Barr, while the actual operation of the clinic will be in charge of local Red Cross nurses under the direction of medical officers from the air station.

THERMOMETER DOWN NEAR FREEZNG POINT

A sudden change in temperature from the distressing heat of Saturday brought the thermometer down near the freezing mark in areas to the north of the city, it was reported by farmers visiting the city this morning. No reports of there being frost were heard but one Foxboro resident reported a thermometer reading of 36 degrees at an early hour this morning, only four degrees above freezing level. In all probability, however, freezing temperatures were recorded in the northern parts of the county.

DOG AWAITS OWNER AT CITY POUND

City dog catcher, Thomas Thorne reports picking up a black hound wearing no collar nor tag at the Canadian National Railways yards this morning. The hound, which has a few white spots in his black coat, had been seen around the C.N.R. yards for approximately ten days. He will be held the conventional time awaiting his owner.

CARELESS DRIVING CHARGE IS LAID

Stepping from the curb in front of the City Hall directly into the path of an oncoming motor car, Matt Corby, of this city, was knocked to the pavement, sustaining body bruises and lacerations. He was attended by Dr. J. J. Robertson and later removed to the Belleville General Hospital. The motor car was driven by Mark Foy, a Chinese laundryman from Trenton. Eyewitnesses stated that Corby had started across Front St. and upon seeing the approaching motor car decided to retrace his steps. Foy swerved his car twice and later is believed to have lost control as the vehicle mounted the curb in front of the City Hall, after striking Corby. Today Foy was charge with the careless operation of a motor car.

GIRL RUNS INTO SIDE OF TRUCK

Little Beverley Jones, 214 Coleman Street, sustained a split lip and was more frightened than injured when she was knocked down by a truck driven by Carl Raby, Point Anne, near her home over the weekend. The little girl was playing along the curb and suddenly ran into the street as the truck was passing. Mr. Raby stopped his truck and rendered what assistance possible, later reporting the incident to the police after he had been assured by parents that the girl was not seriously hurt.

OCCUPANTS OF BOTH CARS INJURED

The occupants of two motor cars sustained injuries and were rushed to the Belleville General Hospital late Saturday night following a two car headon collision just west of the Belleville city limits on Highway No. 2. The injured are Harold Lemoire, 37 Bay Street, Trenton, and Robert M. Campbell, of Belleville. Lemoire sustained a fractured leg while Campbell is suffering from severe chest injuries.

Lemoire was a passenger in a Trenton cab being driven by Ross LaMorre, who escaped with minor cuts and bruises. According to Traffic Officer W. G. Milton, who investigated, Campbell was proceeding westerly and collided headon with the eastbound LaMorre taxi. The vehicles were badly damaged by the impact. Charges are pending Constable Milton stated today.

The spontaneous applause that followed each separate rendition was ample proof of the appreciation of the attending citizens. Automobiles lined the entire length of the Exhibition Park driveway around the colorfully lighted fountain and adjoining streets.

Six Shipments Sent Overseas To Each Soldier

Chairman Matt Currie received 39 acknowledgments from Belleville boys, who wished to thank the Kinsmen last week.

One of the acknowledgments came by "airgraph service" from Cairo, Egypt, from Flt./Sergt. Wm. Stephenson. Others writing notes of appreciation read in part: "You are making things easier for us over here", M. J. McClelland, while S. E. Turner says some of the boys overseas "would have to give up smoking if it wasn't for such funds as the Kinsmen Fag Fund".

"It is hard to get smokes over here at times, so you can see how your efforts are appreciated," added Doug. Sword. Similar statements were received from J. M. Donaldson, Tony Fardella and P. Van Dusen.

EXTRA HEAVY YIELDS OF OATS REPORTED

Reports of heavy yields of oats in the Belleville district continue to be heard on the street, with the latest being that of a Rawdon farmer who is said to have threshed 300 bushels from a three-acre field. The name of the farmer was not learned. Mr. Merle Robinson this morning reported threshing over 1,400 bushels from a 23-acre field at a farm on the 2nd of Thurlow. This is slightly over 60 bushels to the acre for the entire field.

TOBRUK SUPPLY BASE BOMBED

Climaxes Weekend of Aerial Activity Over Egyptian Front

Cairo, Aug. 24 (AP)—Heavy British bombers made a successful attack on the Axis supply base of Tobruk at dusk yesterday to bring to a climax a weekend of aerial activity over the Egyptian front, a communique announced today.

R.A.F. fighter-bombers continued their attacks on Axis overland communications yesterday, and numerous dogfights developed with indecisive results, the bulletin said

One enemy transport plane was reported destroyed by British long-range fighters northwest of Derna and at least one Axis bomber was destroyed during an attempted attack on a British airdrome.

Except for British night patrol operations no activity was reported on land.

ARTILLERY DUEL ACROSS CHANNEL

Exchange Stops Suddenly—Sound of Machine-Gun Fire is Heard

Folkestone, England, Aug. 24 —(CP)—British and German long-range guns mounted on either side of the English Channel exchanged fire across Dover Strait in the half light of dawn today and out in the strait the firing of machine guns could be heard.

The German guns on the coast of France opened the cannonading but the British guns were quick to reply and the exchange stopped suddenly.

(Sporadic outbreaks of firing by cross-channel batteries usually have marked the slipping of a convoy through the channel by one side or the other.)

The sound of machine-gun fire suggested to residents of this south coast town an encounter between light naval forces but mist limited visibility from the shore to a few hundred yards.

GREAT BATTLES

The Germans apparently were pouring new reserves and every piece of equipment available into the fight for Stalingrad in an effort to capture one of their major 1942 objectives before the weather turns against them.

"The enemy is increasing his pressure in the centre of the Don Bend, but Soviet troops are firmly holding positions captured a few days ago," the army newspaper, Red Star, said. It added that the Germans had lost more than 1,000 men in one attempt to cross the Don.

In one sector of the Kletskaya region, the midnight communique reported that "not less than half the effectives" of the Italian celere division had been destroyed by Russian tanks and infantry.

Gals in Canada's "Quacks" do Plenty of Work—And Have Lots of Fun, Too

Buttons gleam like the family silver when a C.W.A.C. girl shines them. Private A. B. English, of B. Company, Toronto, puts the zip back on buttons on the tunic of Private W. J. C. Whitelock-Swartz, runner at Military Headquarters, Toronto.

Payday is welcomed by the members of the C.W.A.C. in a regular military "pay parade". Here, Lieut. Eileen Richards is shown passing out the pay cheques to C.W.A.C. volunteers. These girls all live at Trinity House Barracks in Toronto.

Other girls are employed as mechanics, drivers.

Brazil at War With Germany

Germany's typical arrogance, disregard of every law of nations and flouting of justice have provoked Brazil into a declaration of war upon her. Germany in the first World War recklessly and with complete indifference of every principle sank shipping and Hitlerite Germany is repeating.

Brazil's declaration on Saturday followed the sinking of a number of Brazilian merchant ships. But Brazil did not wait until then to tell the Nazi state that Germany was acting in contravention of international law. She had told Berlin clearly and had shown her courage by sinking German submarines. Her resources are at the service of the United Nations, to which she is the latest addition.

It was in the beginning of the fourth year of the last war that Brazil declared war on Germany, on October 26th., 1917. Brazil this time entered the war against Germany just a few days before the completion of the third year of the present struggle.

A Plea for Accommodations

As the cottage season is advanced ahd school days will shortly begin, a constantly increasing demand is being felt here for homes for airmen, their wives and children. This is the word which comes from the Y.W.C.A. Rooms Registry where it was stated that places are needed at the present time for at least fifty children.

It is most natural that airmen, many of whom have given up so much and are prepared to make further sacrifices if necessary should wish to have their wives and families near them while they are in Canada and it is also natural that their wives and children should desire above all to be with them as long as it is possible. It is easy to understand the mutual benefit of the associations of family life in the days of training. The children where families are enabled to gather intact while the head of the household is in training or on service enjoy benefits which will prove of inestimable advantage for these future citizens of Canada. It is essential in as far as possible they should be able to remain together while the men are stationed in Canada. There have been, it is said, many instances of reluctance to rent in cases where there are small children, but it is a virtue and a duty to help these people to preserve the unity of the family as much as possible. Everyone realizes how great is the service the Air Force has rendered and can render abroad and even at home and a feeling of appreciation of their work should open the doors of many homes to the sons and daughters and wives of the men who have enlisted in this service.

There are experiences which inspire those who are engaged in war services. An instance may be quoted of one father who has a child of three and another one year old whom he has seen only at long intervals. This man was made very happy when he found a place where the landlady renting some rooms said she and her family loved children and that he could not bring his family soon enough. Members of this family are naturally all looking forward to a very happy time together.

On the other hand an instance may be quoted of the wife of a soldier who has been compelled to seek another accommodation because the house in which she was living has been sold. Because of the inability to find a place she was compelled to send several of the children away during the summer in order to have a home for herself and her daughter who is working in town. This woman is naturally anxious to find a place now so that she can bring the others back when the holiday season ends and school begins.

This is an opportunity at the door of any citizens who can offer accommodation for the many who seek to make their temporary home and fireside in Belleville. Anyone who can help will do such a service for not only the indivduals concerned but also for the morale of the people at large.

The Y.W.C.A. Rooms Registry with telephone No. 2738 is anxious to get in touch with any who have comfortable places for children especially and who will share part of their home. It may mean giving up something but that is not sacrifice with the same meaning as the sacrifice the members of the forces and their families make and are prepared to make.

COLLEGE FOR DULLARDS RUNS WITHOUT RULES

Tabor (Iowa) College is unique. Most colleges admit only students whose high school grades are better than average. Tabor enrolls only those who have just squeezed by in the lowest quarter of their classes.

Dr. Robert F. O'Brian, founder and president of Tabor, is a man of vision. To Dr. O'Brian, there are no dumbbells. The essential difference between a dullard and a prodigy, he believes, is that the dullard is slower to comprehend.

Most intelligence tests, he says, are based on the speed with which a given problem is mastered. But Dr. O'Brian doubts that there is a correlation between the speed with which a person masters a thing and the use to which he puts it.

He cites typing as an example. One person may master it in a few weeks. Another may require months. Yet the nimble minded one may end up as a stenographer while the slower student may become an author of best-sellers.

The idea for a school for dullards came to Dr. O'Brian when he was in Paris during the first World War. One day, while visiting the Pasteur Institute, he noted the framed diploma awarded to Dr. Paul Ehrlich by the University of Zurich. Written across it was:

"Granted with the express understanding that this diploma shall never be used to obtain a license to practise medicine because of the poor scholarship of the recipient."

His "Magic Bullet"

Dr. O'Brian was astounded. Could this, he asked himself, be the estimate which the faculty at Zurich had placed on the brains of the great scientist who discovered salvarsan, the "magic bullet" that revolutionizzed the treatment of venereal diseases! (Salvarsan is known popularly as "606" because Ehrlich compounded 606 mixtures before finding an efficacious remedy. Had he been a little quicker of mind he might have discovered it in a mere 60 or 6 experiments.)

Home from the war Dr. O'Brian became president of Morningside College at Sioux City, Ia. In 1941 he took over the then defunct Tabor College, determined to give slow-witted youths an opportunity to prove their worth.

He ousted the old trustees and amended the charter to provide that "students shall be selected from applicants whose school record places them in the lower (lowest is meant) quarter of their high school classes."

For his faculty, Dr. O'Brian selected six men and three women of long teaching experience who shared his view that a youngster is never too dull to learn if given time enough.

Run Without Rules

They changed the curriculum to suit their objective—to turn out graduates who would be useful in business and industry. In place of Latin and Greek they made Spanish compulsory.

Grammar as such, with its conjugations of verbs and its declinations of nouns, was eliminated in favor of English composition, stressing spelling and the use of crisp, clear sentences. Higher algebra and geometry gave way to the mathematics of statistics and accounting.

Students are given the greatest freedom in all things. Of course, if in a moment of whimsy one should begin carving up the building or a member of the faculty, he would be dealt with by the town sheriff.

Classes are informal.

Successful Failures

An ex-president of a university, looking over the students' compositions, said it was the best freshman English he ever had seen.

"If those fellows are too dumb to learn grammar," he said, "they have at least learned to do without it."

As news of Dr. O'Brian's success in teaching the unteachables began to spread he started receiving inquiries from all over the nation. Already more than 100 boys have applied for admission to next fall's freshman class.

He was perturbed recently to learn that his students were more interested in reading the comics than newspaper editorials. But he capitalized on this interest by supplying his students with comic magazines printed in Spanish. Their improvement in this language has been remarkable, he reports.

MOTHER PRAYERS

The anxious mothers nightly pray
That God will guard their sons away,
And be their shelter and their shield
On every bitter battle field.

The anxious mothers pray for peace
And wish the cruel war would cease.
Against the fury of the guns
They beg the Lord to guard their sons.

The anxious mothers watch and wait
To greet the postman at the gate.
They ache for word from posts afar
That safe and well their soldiers are.

No peace of mind for them can be
While war is rampant, land and sea,
And death is pouring from the sky,
And boys are riding out to die.

Lord, hear the mothers as they pray!
Grant them Thy blessing night and day.
Sustain them till the war is done
And hearten them till peace be won.

The Attack on Dieppe

New York, Aug. 24.—Whether the attack on Dieppe was a success or a failure depends upon how the question is put.

If one takes the initial line adopted by the Germans—that it was an attempted invasion—then it was a failure. No foothold on the Continent was gained, and the troops withdrew.

It is more difficult to answer the question whether it was a successful Commando raid.

That answer depends upon the following questions:

How much damage did we inflict on the enemy? To what extent did we disrupt existing enemy plans? And, what did we pay?

The reports indicate that the raiders inflicted considerable damage. They destroyed a six-gun battery, blew up an ammunition dump, and destroyed a radio location station. They killed some scores of Germans and took a few prisoners.

More was accomplished in disrupting enemy plans. It has been obvious from the conduct of the Luftwaffe in the past months that it was German strategy not to engage in major air battles, but preserve intact their small air force in France. The raid forced the Germans to fight, and in fighting to deplete a large part of their western air force. Some critics estimate that the Germans lost a third of their fighter force for Occupied Western Europe.

Nazis Call Reserves

By that we are forcing the Germans to bring up reinforcements either from their reserves in Germany itself, or from the Eastern Front.

As we ourselves have air superiority in Western Europe, the attrition of German air power in this theatre of war is obviously a success.

What did it cost? We do not know our exact losses, but may assume that the German claims are exaggerated. Nevertheless, our communiques admit heavy losses in men. That we had to destroy our landed tanks before withdrawing, that we lost one destroyer and nearly a hundred airplanes.

From this we conclude that the land fighting was too costly and the damage to coastal defences overpaid. Only the air war was completely successful.

There are explanations from the Allied side for that. One of our landing forces was discovered earlier than calculated, so that in that sector we lost the element of surprise. The German coastal defence was alarmed too early, and welcomed our forces with a hell of combined fire.

But such misfortunes belong to the risks that must be calculated in attacking so strongly fortified an area as the French Channel ports.

Was It Rehearsal?

But there is a fourth question to ask about this raid.

Was it, in essence, really a Commando raid? Was it not, rather, a rehearsal for a real invasion?

Seen as that, with no further information than appeared in the newspapers, it was highly successful and not even very expensive.

It is obvious that the forerunner for any invasion would be immensely costly—whether we should attempt to invade the Continent from Britain, or the Germans should attempt to invade Britain from the Continent.

We must compare such an attack with previous events in this war. The most notable example was the German conquest of Crete. The first German troops that arrived in Crete were annihilated; the second wave was decimated; and, if the purpose had not been to conquer Crete, the first two attempts would have been wretched catastrophes.

The second example is the reconquering of the Kerch peninsula by the Russians late last year. That also was terribly costly. Such manoeuvres are so expensive that the Germans have not dared to cross the narrow Kerch straits even since reconquering Kerch itself.

The third and most recent analogy is our assault on the Solomon Islands, also very costly, but finally successful.

So the question of whether or not this attack was a success depends upon its purpose.

Not Invasion Attempt

For the time being, the purpose will remain a secret of the High Command. One thing, of course, is sure. That was no real invasion attempt. The German explanation that it was, is not borne out by any description of the actual raid.

We, however, can decide for ourselves whether to consider it as a large Commando raid to be followed by others of a similar nature, with the purpose of diversion rather than decision, or as a test for the opening of a second front.

If it was a Commando raid, pure and simple, then the theory that we can divert large quantities of German troops and material from the east by a series of isolated attacks, carried out at little cost to ourselves, does not seem to find support.

But as a test for large-scale invasion, certain things seem to have been clarified. It has not been demonstrated that we could maintain, at this time, a real front in France, or make a blitzkrieg across France to Germany.

But it has been proved that the German coastal defences are not so strong as to prevent us from landing and gaining bridgeheads. Even so strongly fortified a point as Dieppe is vulnerable to an attack by only one division.

And we have also learned that our own troops are seasoned and tough enough to risk such an adventure; the staff work was excellent; and in actual strategy, considering the terrain, our offensive was superior to the defensive.

HABEAS CORPUS

The privilege of the writ of habeas corpus is always put to a severe test in war time.

"Habeas corpus" is a Latin phrase literally meaning "You shall have the body."

The Habeas Corpus Act of 1679, which defined and elaborated a provision of similar character in Magna Carta, established the writ of habeas corpus as the supreme remedy for enforcing the law of personal liberty in England.

This act said in effect to all English judges: "You shall not, under severe penalties, refuse to issue any person held in custody a writ of habeas corpus, compelling the jailor to produce the prisoner in court in person and to certify the cause of imprisonment."

The chief purpose of the writ was to prevent false imprisonment.

It prevented a person from being held in restraint on mere suspicion and made it illegal to hold any person in prison indefinitely without trial.

Our colonial forefathers were deeply interested in this safeguard against illegal imprisonment, and they looked upon the Habeas Corpus Act of 1679 as one of the sheet anchors of the British constitution.

Holding persons in prison for long periods without placing specific charges against them and refusing to issue writs of habeas corpus were among the chief grievances that led to the American Revolution.

When the federal constitution was drafted the framers wanted to be certain that this remedy against false imprisonment was retained in America.

On August 20, 1787, one of the Pinkneys of South Carolina submitted the following proposition to the Philadelphia convention for reference to the committee on detail:

"The privileges and benefit of the writ of habeas corpus shall be enjoyed in this government in the most expeditious and ample manner; and shall not be suspended by the legislature except upon the most urgent and pressing occasions, and for a limited time, not exceeding (blank) months."

What was finally adopted, after considerable debate, was somewhat different. Article I, Section 9, Clause 2, of the Constitution says:

"The privilege of the writ of habeas corpus shall not be suspended, unless when in cases of rebellion or invasion the public safety may require it."

Public Speaking "Panic" Dispelled by Home Study

Member Makes Bad Impression

So you never thought they'd ask you to speak!

You can't avoid being asked, sooner or later, if you belong to a group. And even if you only say one little sentence, you sound lovely or awful, depending on whether or not you know public speaking rules.

Maybe you get stage fright, make a poor impression before you even open your mouth. Simple "Don'ts" help prevent this. DON'T scramble to your feet—take your time. DON'T hold anything while speaking.

It helps your poise to practise enunciation at home. Then you're sure you won't ruin people's impression of you by saying "Yes, ar c'middee's maken the samwiches"; you'll enunciate clearly "Yes, our committee is making the sandwiches."

Important, too, to be up on parliamentary rules — to know how to address the chair.

Learn to speak up confidently! Our 32-page booklet tells how you can improve your vocabulary, voice, pronounciation. Describes how to prepare a speech, hold attention, be at ease. Gives simple speeches, rules of parliamentary procedure.

HALLOWAY W.M.S.

The August meeting of the Halloway Women's Missionary Society was held Wednesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Ed. Emerson when the members of the Baby Band the guests.

In the absence of the President, Mrs. Don Rose was in charge of the meeting. Hymns familiar to the children were sung. Six pairs of socks and a man's shirt are ready for shipment to Newfoundland in the bale. It is hoped more donations of men's clothing will be ready by next meeting.

The Worship Service was conducted by Mrs. Herbert Townsend and Mrs. Harold Wilson.

A reading "First Steps" was given by Mrs. Harry McMullen and told how in Africa, the beginning of missionary work is often through the children and teaching the mothers how to care for their children.

The familiar story of Jesus feeding the multitude was recalled in an interesting story "A Boy's Holiday" read by Mrs. Earl Snider.

"World Friendship for Little Folks", presented by Mrs. Kenneth Kingston, showed the need of Baby Bands in teaching children to love God's other children in these days, when we are striving for world friendship and world peace.

A silver collection was taken which amounted to $2.05. The Baby Band gift boxes yielded an additional $2.45. There were fifteen adults and twelve children present, nine of whom are Band members. At the close of the meeting, lunch was served.

IVANHOE W.M.S.

The Ivanhoe W.M.S. held the August meeting on Tuesday afternoon Aug. 18 at the home of Miss Cora Prest.

The President Mrs. Twiddy opened the meeting. The roll call responded to by the key word "Mother" showed 12 members and one visitor present.

Mrs. S. Kilpatrick group leader No. 4 took charge of the remainder of the meeting. Mrs. Kilpatrick gave a reading. A very interesting talk was given by Mrs. (Rev.) Wagar based on the Bible. The Watch Tower was given by Marjorie Prest, Mrs. F. Palmer, Miss C. Prest and Mrs. S. Prest. The meeting was closed with prayer. The hostess served a delicious lunch and the members enjoyed a social hour.

WHITE'S W.A.

White's W.A. was held on Thursday, August 20th at the home of Mrs. Leonard Young in the form of a pot-luck dinner. After singing grace, all enjoyed a delicious dinner. Collection amounted to $5.20.

After a social half hour the meeting opened. Mrs. Green read the Scripture lesson. The roll call was called and all responded by a verse of Scripture. There were 11 members, 1 new member and 4 visitors. A letter from Mrs. Nicolson, thanking the ladies for a plant given her when she was ill, was read, also a letter of thanks from Mrs. C. Rush was acknowledged.

An itemized account of bills paid by Mr. Frank Reid was read by Mrs. Young. Mrs. W. Jones moved that White's share of $41.56 be paid him by Mrs. Ketcheson. This was passed.

It was moved by Mrs. W. Jeffery and seconded by Mrs. C. Rush that a Sunshine and Shadow contest be held during August, September and until October meeting with Mrs. Jeffrey as Shadow leader and Mrs. W. Jones as Sunshine leader. The members were evenly divided. On cloudy and sunny days, each member drops a copper into the bag provided, according to whichever side she belongs. At the end of the contest the losing side is to provide a 10c lunch. It was decided that the customary pot-luck dinner be cancelled, but the usual 25c fee at each meeting will still be collected.

It was moved by Mrs. R. Jeffery and seconded by Mrs. G. Meyers that whenever there is a quilting, each lady is to take her own lunch.

Hymn 148 was sung and the meeting closed by all repeating the Mispah benediction. Mrs. Young was thanked for opening her home.

White's Red Cross for August was held at the home of Mrs. Leonard Young. The meeting was opened by the President Mrs. Paice. All joined in singing an old hymn. Mrs. R. Jeffrey read the Scripture lesson John I. verses 1-17. Collection was $2.10. Material was handed in for a quilt to be quilted soon. The sum of one dollar was donated by Mrs. C. Rush. Several promised to take sheets to hem for the Russian refugees.

Special Care for 'Hoeing Hands'

Maxine Gray wears gloves while gardening

By HELEN FOLLETT

SINCE SPRING we've had the girl with the hoe with us. Victory gardens flourish throughout the land, and many once lily-white hands are looking forlorn and orphanish. That's a small price to pay. We want our paws to be fair to the eye but more than that we want them to look capable. Both can be accomplished with a little effort.

Protect the hands from grime. That is all important. Wear gardening gloves without fail. See that hand washing is done thoroughly. It won't be unless you use a brush. Let the hands soak awhile in soap suds. That is the time to get after the cuticle that surrounds the nails.

If the flesh adheres to the nail fabric you can count on having a flock of hangnails. It keeps creeping up farther and farther, then breaks. No woman can afford to let that condition arise.

Dry the hands, apply oil or cuticle cream, pick up the sharpened orange stick and get busy. Start at the top side of the nail, do little circles down to the base, up the other side. Don't push back the flesh, lift it gently. Forcing the cuticle at the nail base is likely to injure the underlying matrix. The result will be bumps, ridges or those little white spots that sometimes appear.

By applying cream at night the flesh will be kept soft and detached. After your complexion gets a going over put the remaining cream on your nails. They will benefit as well as the surrounding skin.

Don't file far down at the sides. If you do, the flesh will thicken there. To give the nails length file to a point, then round the point slightly.

Advice to the Lovelorn

Yes, Personality May Be Easily Acquired

Someone has defined personality as an indefinable something which certain people have and others lack, but it is not indefinable: personality is a quality which interests other people. You've seen this quality flash a hundred times—a girl not pretty, not even smartly dressed crosses the floor at some dance and the entire stag-line is on the alert and wants to meet her. Like flint to steel she strikes off a spark called "interest". Hers is probably a case of inherent personality. She's a genuine live wire that sends out vibrations.

But something that passes for personality can be acquired and it's a quality as much to be reckoned with as the born-in-the flesh article. How our forbears, not more than a couple of generations ago would have scoffed at the idea of "personality classes", and charm schools. Then, if an individual succeeded in climbing to the top of the ladder by some inherent quality, it was attributed to brains, shrewdness, initiative, or, as it is often called, "gumption".

The development of personality is taken as a matter of course today; actually, it's included in some of the business schools. For the gift, natural or acquired, depends on learning how to do an increasing number of things with and for an increasing number of people.

So many of us, unfortunately, are like cocoons, wrapped up in our own inhibitions. We're afraid to offer the friendly word, do the neighborly act for fear of incurring obligations. The lonely people who write to me are the mental shut-ins.

Not long ago a woman of 50 wrote me she had worked twenty years in the same office, instructed the junior clerks, but really didn't know anyone. She dreaded the remaining years of her life, as a sort of solitary confinement. She wanted to know, poor woman, whether she should join a "personality school" or some sort of charm class.

I told her she had all the qualities for running her own personality school, if she'd just unlock a little of her mental rigidity and emerge. She had plenty of money and no dependents. So I advised a party for all of the people who worked with her, and after the party to try and take an interest in their lives.

Vicarious happiness is not to be despised. A real glow is kindled in one's own heart when that greatest of happiness—a baby—is born to a friend. Weddings are happy occasions, even for the friends who come to wish happiness. Other people's joys, sorrows, good fortune, bad fortune are happening right before us, not way off in Mars or some remote planet. To know and love people pays the best of all dividends.

GOOD MANNERS

MRS. CORNELIUS BECKMAN

Don't Head Your Letters For Dead-Letter Office

An envelope can be a "worrisome thing" if it is addressed carelessly. And for the duration of its career, it may be "singing the blues" dejectedly and futilely in the Dead-Letter Office.

That important piece of news you wrote so high-heartedly may never arrive. That invitation that might have been the beginning of a wonderful friendship — perhaps eventually a romance —never arrived because you wrote the address illegibly. That letter of condolence, carelessly-addressed, never arrived to solace the heart you yearned to comfort. That reply to your best friend's wedding invitation was reposing in the Dead-Letter Office while her parents were wondering at your bad manners in not replying.

In 1941, 13,744,689 letters, also carelessly and illegibly addressed, ended their lives in the Dead-Letter Division of the Post Office. Think what this means—thwarted hopes, possible human tragedy, non-fulfillments, evidences of thoughtlessness and unkindness to human hearts, beginnings that led to dead-ends. A pageant of futility.

Nor is there the comfort that these Dead-Letter Office arrivals are decreasing; the number has been increasing every year, and 1941's grim yield of illegibly-addressed letters showed an increase of five per cent over the previous year.

Now and for the duration it's going to be a terrible tragedy if some of the letters that are being written to the soldiers and sailors do not reach their destination because of your unwillingness to be careful when you address the envelopes.

There is absolutely no reason why an envelope should not be addressed carefully, legibly. In the first place anyone who can write, can write legibly—a little stern practice will do the trick. Or the address can be printed—even a child can do this. You'd better do this too, if you are a careless writer or if you are inordinately proud of the illegibility of your "temperamental handwriting".

One of the best ways to make your envelopes proud of you, proud of themselves, and scornful of a Dead-Letter Office fate, is to resolve never to use any but the really necessary abbreviations. Write the name in full—no abbreviations (except Mr. and Mrs.), no initials. Take a second more and write out Street, Avenue, Road, instead of scrawling the abbreviations. Then give the city and state the importance they deserve by writing them in full. (Never write "City" or "Town" or the name of a borough . . . that's dangerous, especially if forwarding is necessary.)

Form all numerals carefully. This is most important these days with letters to Service men, when every numeral has a strict meaning and definite mission.

Wrap your parcels carefully too, and address them carefully; in 1941 210,860 carelessly-addressed parcels and articles found loose in the mails didn't arrive where they should have arrived. Think how unhappy that could make your Service man!

Make your envelopes and packages do what you expect them to do . . . arrive alive. Don't drape them with the crepe of your carelessness and bury them in the Dead-Letter Office.

Blocking of Eustachian Tubes Frequent Cause of Dizziness

The eustachian tube, which leads from the throat to the middle ear, may be blocked as the result of any one of several conditions—infection due to colds; ear infections; throat infections, irritation due to excessive smoking. When the eustachian tube is blocked, dizziness occurs. Nausea may occur in some persons over a long period of time and the cause not be recognized as blocking of the eustachian tube.

There are, of course, many other causes for dizziness, but, according to Doctor Forrest W. Merica, of Lakewood, Ohio, blocking of the eustachian tubes is such a common cause for this condition that in every patient with dizziness an examination of these tubes should be carried out.

Because symptoms of disturbance of the stomach and bowel are so common, together with the dizziness, the true cause for the trouble may be overlooked and treatment for some stomach or bowel disturbance employed. In some cases, the symptoms come on gradually. In others they appear suddenly.

For example, one patient woke in the morning and, attempting to turn over in bed, noticed dizziness. When he attempted to get out of bed suddenly, an attack of dizziness developed so that he had to steady himself to keep from falling. Frequently, in such cases, if the patient stands up with his eyes closed for a few seconds, the dizziness disappears and he is then able to go about his work. A sudden change in position, such as stooping, may bring on the dizziness. As the day goes on, the symptoms become less severe.

The treatment for dizziness produced by this blocking consists in blowing the eustachian tube with air. When this procedure is carried out properly there is no danger of rupturing the eardrum or injuring the eustachian tubes. In order to keep the tubes open it may be necessary to repeat the treatment at frequent intervals.

On the other hand, there may be some underlying defect present which can be corrected so that the blocking is permanently relieved. For example, chronic sinus infection, chronic tonsillitis and ear infections may be contributing causes for blocking of the eustachian tubes.

Fashion Flashes

TYPICAL of the autumn picture is a new reefer in diagonal-weave red woollen with snug, double-breasted line, and high, notched revers and collar of black Persian lamb. Welt seaming outlines basket pockets.

Just a look will show you how popular the peg-top line is for early autumn. A casual frock in dull gold wool jersey has vertical panels on the bodice that extend to peg-top pockets on the skirt. Amethyst suede belt and buttons.

From here it looks like plenty of purple for autumn. A good general-wear hat has a lifted brim of purple felt with all-over stitching and a high brim of matching purple velvet with all-over quilting.

Something special for those very important occasions is the bag with stone-set sterling silver frame ensembled with matching jewelry.

A high fashion slated for big popularity is the fez, or perhaps we should call it the Cossack Pappakha. Nice in such furs as Persian lamb but also good in felt or velvet with braid and embroidery trimming.

Take a bow in behalf of the bow that, due to priority regulations, turns up as a closing for everything—frocks, bags, buckles, shoes and gloves. Truly, fashion is all tied up these days.

GOOD HEALTH through NUTRITION

By L. B. PETT, PH.D., M.D.
(Director of Nutrition Services, Dept. of Pensions and National Health)

"I've boiled that grapefruit for hours and it's still tough", complained an American woman recently. The fruit had been given to her under the U.S. government's plan of distributing surplus products to needy families. Most people know enough not to throw away vitamins by boiling grapefruit. But almost everyone can afford to learn more about eating the right kinds of food for health.

Ignorance is one of the causes of malnutrition; other important causes are poverty and indifference. Some people claim that if everyone had more money the nutrition problem would be solved; they have figures to show that as family income rises there is a definite trend to better nourished families. But welfare workers know that as income increases the extra money frequently does not go into food. Surveys show that even when more is spent on food the result is not always better from a nutrition standpoint. Extra money is of no value unless people really care about eating healthfully. In other words there is an educational job to be done.

Interesting reading for anyone anxious to enjoy buoyant health is the first official Canadian Nutrition Program. Printed copies of this program may be obtained from your Provincial Department of Health.

The outline of the Nutrition Program carries a challenge into every rural district, every town and city in Canada. "In the end it is up to a local committee, covering a city, town or rural area, to carry out the Canadian Nutrition Program." This means that you who are specially interested in nutrition must bend your efforts first to building up a community consciousness of what nutrition can do for general health. Then you will need a Community Committee to plan and carry out a program of bringing facts about nutrition to the attention of the whole community. Probably you will get a good deal of help along this line from the Board of Health and the Medical Health Officer. Nurses and dietitians will also be interested."

Why not start today to get your community organized for nutrition?

Trio of Doubleheaders Boosts Contributions to Army Relief Past the $500,000 Mark

Babe Ruth and Walter Johnson Added Attractions at Yankee Stadium.

RUTH BLASTS ONE

(By AUSTIN BEALMEAR
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

"Relief", a word reserved for substitute pitchers in baseball language of the past, took on new meaning in the major leagues today as all 16 teams chalked up their important "assist" of the season—designed to help the families of the United States' fighting men.

The program, in which the receipts of eight regularly scheduled games in each circuit were earmarked for army-navy relief, was completed yesterday when the American league staged a fast finish with a trio of doubleheaders that boosted the contributions past the $500,000 mark.

A New York crowd of 69,136 paid an estimated $80,000 to see the Yankees and Washington Senators. In Detroit, the Tigers and St. Louis Browns drew 50,758 and a gate of $68,172. And approximately $30,000 came in at Philadelphia where the Atheltics met Boston Red Sox.

These doubleheaders, redesignated as relief games after the first five American League Army-Navy contests brought in less than $75,000, enabled the junior circuit to surpass its quota of $250,000, although it fell short of the $270,000 produced by the National League.

Babe Ruth and Walter Johnson were added attractions at Yankee Stadium. The ex-slugger of the Yankees and the former pitching ace of the Senators faced each other in an exhibition between games and the Babe obliged his followers by driving two balls into the stands.

As for the pennant races, which are moving rapidly toward the finish line, the Yankees watched their American League lead shrink to nine games while Brooklyn Dodgers hiked their margin in the National League to 7 1-2.

Dodgers Win Two

The Dodgers, who open an important four-game series with the second-place Cardinals in St. Louis tonight, turned back New York Giants in both ends of a double bill that drew 32,886 in spite of the fact that Babe Ruth was performing only a subway ride away.

The first game went ten innings before Dolph Camilli came up with the bases loaded and blasted the only ball pitched by reliever Harry Feldman for a grand slam homer to trip the Giants, 6-4. Camilli also drove in both the other Dodger runs.

Darkness held the second game to five frames and again it was a last ditch rally that gave the Brooks the nod, 7-5. Ott hit his 24th home run of the year, but the Giants had to come from behind with four runs in the fifth to tie the score. Then Billy Herman decided the issue with a two-run single in the home half of the fifth.

Pittsburgh Pirates ended a St. Louis winning streak at eight games when a home run by Elbie Fletcher downed the Cards, 5-3, but Murry Dickson pitched the Red Birds to a 5-2 verdict in the afterpiece which kept them from slipping more than one full game behind.

Claude Passeau and Lon Warneke hurled a pair of shutouts as Chicago Cubs blanked Cincinnati Reds twice by identical scores of 3-0. Passeau gained his 17th win, although he yielded nine hits, while Warneke tossed a two-hitter for his best effort of the year.

Boston Braves Split

Boston and Philadelphia split, the Braves taking the first game, 3-1, and the Phils grabbing the nightcap, 2-0, on Rube Melton's four-hit pitching.

In the American League, the Senators handed Johnny Murphy his eighth straight setback, when they rallied for three runs in the ninth inning to beat the Yanks, 7-6, but Ernie Bonham blanked Washington, 3-0, in the nightcap, halted by darkness after 5 1-2 innings.

Boston Red Sox picked up a game on the leaders by shutting out the Athletics, 2-0 and 7-0. Tex Hughson pitched four-hit ball in the first for his 17th straight and Joe Dobson matched his performance in the second.

Three-hit pitching by Ted Lyons and a three-run rally in the ninth inning gave Chicago White Sox a 3-1 decision over Cleveland Indians, but Jim Bagby hurled the tribe to a 1-0 triumph in the 10-inning nightcap with a five-hit job.

St. Louis Browns pulled to within half a game of third-place Cleveland by stopping Detroit Tigers, 2-1 and 4-2, the second game going 10 innings.

In Saturday's National League games Brooklyn walloped the Giants 10-5 ,the Cardinals won their eighth straight game— 7-6 over Pittsburgh—the Braves and Phils split a double-header and Chicago downed Cincinnati 5-4. The Braves won their first game 2-1 in ten innings and Philadelphia taking the nightcap 5-3 behind six-hit pitching of Veteran Si Johnson.

In the American Boston hit Philadelphia pitching freely to take a pair, 11-3 and 11-5. New York Yankees, with Hank Borowy hurling brilliantly in the pinches, shut out Washington 1-0. Chicago beat Cleveland 3-1 and Detroit-St. Louis was postponed.

Hockey Schedules Must Not Interfere With War Industry

Toronto, Aug. 24.—(CP) — The Canadian Amateur Hockey Association at the close of its meetings here Sunday announced that instructions are going to all its branches that under no conditions must hockey schedules interfere with war industry in the coming season.

Possibility was seen of amateur games being played during morning hours or possibly starting at midnight in order to avoid interference with working hours of players engaged in war industry.

No statement was issued regarding a proposed new agreement with the N.H.L. on Junior Hockey players. Under this agreement junior players may turn professional without first receiving the sanction of the C.A.H.A., formerly necessary. Officers of the C.A.H.A. including President Frank Sargent of Port Arthur, discussed this among other matters with governors of the N.H.L. here in the past few days.

The C.A.H.A. allocated $9,000 to the nine local branches for promotion of minor hockey, including juveniles and bantams and midgets, but it was not stated how the amount is being apportioned.

Proposal from Eddie Shore, new general manager of the Buffalo Club of the American Hockey league, for a Senior "A" Club of the O.H.A. to play in Buffalo, was referred to the O.H.A. sub-committee.

The ones who work with planes (or make it machine-guns, tanks, etc.) for 12 or 14 hours a day are too tired for serious athletics...Still, if they can run a big-time program and not interfere with training—and some say they can—we don't see the purposes in calling if off... MONTREAL TAKES FIRMER GRIP ON SECOND PLACE

Beat Buffalo Bisons Twice While Leafs Split With Orioles

BEARS BEAT TWICE

(By The Associated Press)

The hitting strength of Syracuse Chiefs which has been lacking most of this season, blossomed out in full bloom during the weekend. The pitching staff has borne most of the burden.

The Chiefs went on the warpath Saturday night when they lambasted Montreal Royals 19-2 and then scalped Newark Bears, international leaders, on Sunday by 8-3 and 6-2 scores.

In the opener, Clayton Lambert of the Chiefs, and Randy Gumpert of the Bears, duelled on even terms until the sixth, when Syracuse tallied five times to seal the contest.

Newark took a two-run lead early in the second game but the Indians clinched the contest with a five-run sortie in the fourth. The victories boosted the Chiefs to third place as Jersey City Giants lost a pair to the last-place Rochester Red Wings by 5-2 and 6-4 scores.

Montreal Royals took a firmer grip on second place as they beat Buffalo Bisons in a bargain bill, 5-2 and 3-0.

Ed Albosta hurled a two-hitter in the wind-up. Les Burge connected for his 25th home run of the season in the fourth. This game was played in 67 minutes — a season's record at Montreal

Toronto and Baltimore traded shut outs with Jack Hallett of the Leafs winning the, opener, 3-0 while giving up only three hits. Clyde Smoll of the Orioles, took the seven-inning contest, 7-0, allowing only five bingles.

In Saturday games Baltimore defeated Toronto 3-1, Newark triumphed 5-1 over Buffalo in the first game of a doubleheader. The second contest was postponed. Jersey City took the opener 6-5 from Rochester and the second contest was called at the end of the fourth because of dim-out regulations.

RETIRED MARINE ENGINEER DIES

Brockville, Ont., —(CP)— George Fleming, well known retired marine engineer and a former resident of Kingston, died in hospital here today. He was 76 years of age and had been ill for five months.

Born at Elgin, Ont., April 10, 1866, he was a son of the late Captain William Fleming and his wife, the former Margaret Doyle, of Elgin. He had resided in Kingston for many years and had sailed the St. Lawrence waterway as a marine engineer since he was a young man.

Colombia has begun forest conservation by setting aside areas in which felling will be limited and regulated, requiring reforesting of areas in which illegal cutting occurs.

DO YOU MEAN TO STAND THERE AND SAY YOU WON'T TELL EVEN YOUR OWN WIFE WHAT GOES ON AT THAT SILLY OLD LODGE OF YOURS?
SH-H-H! NEVER! THE RITES OF THE AMALGAMATED ORDER OF CROCODILES HAVE BEEN KEPT SECRET SINCE BEFORE THE PYRAMIDS. I WOULDN'T EVEN TALK TO MYSELF IN THE BATHTUB ABOUT 'EM.

HOW DO I KNOW WE'RE GOING TO BOMB 'EM FROM THE NORTH POLE? BECAUSE I WORK IN A PLANE FACTORY, SEE? AND FOR THE LAST MONTH WE'VE BEEN PUTTING ICE DE-FROSTERS ON ALL THE WINGS. SURE, WE GOT A BOAT-LOAD OF 'EM GOING OUT TOMORROW NIGHT.

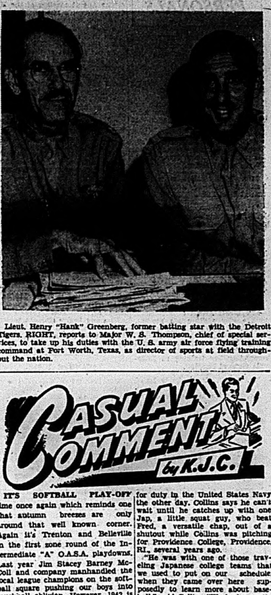
GREENBERG REPORTS TO NEW POST



Lieut. Henry "Hank" Greenberg, former batting star with the Detroit Tigers, RIGHT, reports to Major W. S. Thompson, chief of special services, to take up his duties with the U. S. army air force flying training command at Fort Worth, Texas, as director of sports at field throughout the nation.

IT'S SOFTBALL PLAY-OFF time once again which reminds one that autumn breezes are only around that well known corner. Again it's Trenton and Belleville in the first zone round of the Intermediate "A" O.A.S.A. playdowns. Last year Jim Stacey Barney McColl and company manhandled the local league champions on the softball square pushing our boys into mushball oblivion. However, 1942 is another year and the current Belleville champions (Army & Navy Vets.) are stronger in every department than Corbys A.C. were last fall. Skipper Gerald Barriage intimated today he would start Johnnie Bawden against the Trenton drugstore "Cowboys" here tonight and try to finish the series in two straight games with elongated Jim Hunter on the firing line for the return game. "Trenton have never seen Hunter and his fireball" Barriage pointed out as he predicted a Belleville win in successive games.

NOW THAT THE PROVINCIAL softball play-offs have started, the O.A.S.A. has issued strict warnings regarding the snappy continuance of all series. Quoting from the latest O.A.S.A. bulletin: "Everyone is aware of the unusual situation which prevails this year which necessitates the utmost economy in all activities, particularly the gasoline and tire restrictions and the fact that many men are engaged in war work, with loss of time being a serious setback to Canada's war effort. In view of this every secretary and manager of clubs participating in the O.A.S.A. playdowns is urged to save expenses. Squabbling over trivalities, unnecessary protests, and delaying of games, etc., must be done away with so that the necessity of replaying games will be eliminated as far as possible." To speed matters up the association will authorize Sunday games where Sunday playing is permitted and will also authorize games under the lights in places where the necessary illumination is available.

REMEMBER WHEN STAR Ruth, seven-year-old gelding by Star Elect, trotted to a new world record for seven furlongs at Randall track Cleveland 17 years ago today? W. R. Cox was in the sulky when the 1.45 3-4 mark was set. This mark was equalled the same year by Norman Gratton, a four-year-old gelding.

THAT'S QUITE A PICTURE OF "Wild Bill" Longson, the current wrestling titlist, published in today's issue But don't be deceived this fellow Longson is as tough and rough a ring personage as comes down the pike, despite his baby-face and good looks. Last week in Montreal Longson drew 14,000 fans into the Forum when it took the combined efforts of "Wild Bill" and his manager, Ray Steele, to finally beat Yvon Robert and the very next night Longson got the nod over Billie Watson in the Toronto Gardens. Longson had a formidable wrestling background with victories over such recognized heavies as Everett Marshall, Jim Londos, Bronko Nagurski, from whom he wrested the heavyweight title. Ali Baba, the Terrible Turk, King Kong Cox and others too numerous to mention. The Salt Lake City "mustang" has never tangled with the "Irish Bull," Jerry Monnahan before, so local fans are getting a break here Wednesday night, as Mister Tunney has lined up a perfect supporting card for his title go.

FRED COLLINS, FIRST BASEman for the Kansas City Blues in the American Association, reported for duty in the United States Navy the other day. Collins says he can't wait until he catches up with one Jap, a little squat guy, who beat Fred, a versatile chap, out of a shutout while Collins was pitching for Providence College, Providence, RI., several years ago.

"He was with one of those traveling Japanese college teams that we used to put on our schedule, when they came over here supposedly to learn more about baseball," said Collins "We had a pretty good team at Providence, and I was in pretty good form I would have had a shutout, but for this little yellow guy. He hit me for two home runs. I think I would know him if I saw him again I just want to get my hands on him."

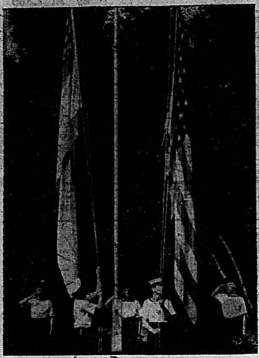
OUTFIELDER FRANK DEmaree was given his unconditional release by the Boston Braves while they were in Philadelphia last week. The veteran, who was playing his tenth season under the big top of baseball, was the Braves leading batter during the spring training period and whaled the spheriod for a robust .300 clip during the first month of the present campaign. Later, handicapped by injuries, his batting dropped to .224. Many of his subsequent 42 hits proved timely, as he nudged 24 runs across the plate with them. Demaree's greatest years were with the Cubs, whom he helped spark to pennants in 1935 and 1938.

He batted .325 in 1935, .350 the following year and .324 in 1937. The Coast flychaser took part in three World's Series, walloping one homer in the 1932 sweepstakes against the Yankees and two in the 1935 classic with the Tigers. He came to the Braves on waivers from the Giants, July 21, 1941.

JUST 69,136 TURNED OUT TO see Babe Ruth, Walter Johnson the Yankees and Senators at "the house that Ruth built," along the banks of the Harlem River. Apparently the Bambino still has drawing powers as the American League's Army and Navy Relief game netted over $80,000. The Yankees and Senators split a double bill, Big Ernie Bonham chalking up his 16th season win. Between games Johnson pitched, Ruth was at bat, Benny Bengough was catching and the veteran Bill Evans called 'em. Johnson's once-highly respected right arm worked with precision again. He pitched exactly 17 times, seven were called balls, three called strikes and two found their way into the upper right field stand after Ruth "got a hold of them." To add more color to the picture, Ruth trotted around the base paths amid the din and the roar of that 69-odd thousand. But then $80,000 isn't hay and the Army and Navy Relief funds well know that.

THIS AND THAT — Last week Claude Passeau, Chicago Cub pitcher, eyened his life's pitching average at 100 games won as against 100 lost. . . . Eddie Shrieder has been named as the Belleville umpire for the series with Trenton. . . . Which reminds this corner that the softball heads would be well advised to have the bases pegged down for these play-off tilts, that is unless they want a protest on their hands. . . . The Deacon gals practiced over the weekend in preparation for the opening of the girls' finals Tuesday. . . . Bert Gorman, a one-armed golfer from Toronto, made a hole-in-one over the Cliffside course yesterday. . . . And there are hundreds of golfers with two hands who can't come in the eagle class yet. . . . Toronto did well in their six games with Baltimore, winning exactly one game . . . and then Jack Hallett had to pitch a three-hitter for them. . . . Have one yourself.

WHERE TARS TAKE WELL-EARNED REST



With appropriate ceremony the British and American flags are raised at the Royal Navy rest camp, "Saker, 11, H.M.S.," located in a mountain section of New York state. Here British tars who have put in an extensive period of sea duty are sent for rest and relaxation before returning to action.

GETS TWO-BAGGER IN HIS FIRST TRY

Lovingly fondling a clip of ammunition here is a Canadian sergeant, (name unrevealed) who had the unusual experience of bagging two German JU-52's on his first operation flight in the North African desert. Activity in this area is now almost entirely confined to the air, with Allied planes continuing to harass Axis supply lines.

CRIPPLED SCOUT BOMBER REACHES NEST

An American scout bomber which crashed while landing on the flight deck of an aircraft carrier is shown as it ended up on the catwalk of the ship. Both pilot and gunner were removed from the plane uninjured. The accident took place during regular sea operations.

AT THE BELLE

"The Big Shot"

"The Big Shot" Warner Bros. new film which will open next at the Belle Theatre had a story and star combination that makes for sure-fire screen entertainment. It has an action-packed story which stars Humphrey Bogart as a one-time big shot gangster who is caught between two fires. He can't go straight because no honest person wants to bother with a guy who has been up the river three times. And he can't get into any more trouble because the next time it's life!

Hounded by his past, taunted by fellow gangsters as a has been, Bogart is driven to distraction. Finally (after all, a guy has to do something to make some dough) he consents to act as the "brains" for an armored car stickup. And anyway, the boys convinced him that nothing could go wrong because one of the underworld's cleverest mouthpieces (a role played by Stanley Ridges) was backing them. But plenty could go wrong, especially if the lawyer's wife happened to be your former sweetheart before you did your third stretch.

Newcomer Has Top Role

Irene Manning, an alluring newcomer to the screen, plays the top feminine role and advance opinion says that she is headed for a successful screen career. As Ridges' wife, she explains to Bogart, that she had to marry because she was financially desperate, but now that he was back everything would be all right, if he would only promise not to return to his career of crime.

On the night of the stickup, Irene prevents Bogart from going through with the job by keeping him in his room at the point of a gun. Despite this, a befuddled witness identifies him as the person who used her as a shield in making his getaway from the pursuing police after the holdup.

Someone tips off Ridges as to what's going on between his wife and Bogart and as a result he lets Humphrey take a lifetime rap for a crime he never committed. But Bogart plans a revenge that makes an exciting climax.

"The Big Shot" has a fine supporting cast made up of Richard Travis, Susan Peters, Chick Chandler, Howard da Silva and many others.

"The Mexican Spitfire's Baby"

Dealing with the complications that beset a young married couple and an older pair over the adoption of a "baby," the new Lupe Velez-Leon Errol story, "The Mexican Spitfire's Baby" announced as the added laugh feature is said to be the most uproarious of any in the "Spitfire" series to date.

Charlie "Buddy" Rogers makes his debut in the "family" as Carmelita's serious-minded husband Dennis, while Errol again has a dual role in portraying both the helpful uncle Matt and the bibulous British peer, Lord Epping.

The troubles begins when Uncle Matt, worried over the marital discords between his nephew and his fiery niece decides that if they adopt a baby things will be smoothed out between them The Lindsay's English friend, Lord Epping, is due to arrive soon for a business deal, and Uncle Matt cables him to bring along a French War orphan, but forgets to specify what war.

Carmelita, Pierre and Aunt Della join in investigating the affair, and the plot becomes progressively wilder and funnier in typical Velez-Errol style right up to the side-splitting conclusion.

Written to fit the mirth-making talents of its principals, "The Mexican Spitfire's Baby" crams plenty of laughs into its length. Elisabeth Risdon, plays the part of Uncle Matt's suspicious wife, while Marion Martin, Fritz Feld, Zasu Pitts and Charles "Buddy" Rogers have the other featured roles.

The Belle News of the Day completes the program.

AT THE CAPITOL

"Captains of the Clouds"

James Cagney takes off on his greatest role in "Captains of the Clouds" which opens today at the Capitol Theatre. In a career which has been studded with brilliant performances, his role as the daredevil flier in the new Technicolor picture emerges as the grandest of them all.

"Captains of the Clouds" is a story of the Royal Canadian Air Force, and it is a story of glory, a story of thousands of men who hourly risk their lives that democracy may survive. Magnificently directed and photographed, superbly acted and brilliantly written, the new motion picture is one of the most vital and enthralling entertainments the screen has provided in many years.

A large and able cast supports Cagney in the film. There is Dennis Morgan, handsome and virile young leading man, who more than fulfills the prophecies made for his success after his fine performance in "Kitty Foyle". Brenda Marshall, whose flashing brunette beauty is fully revealed for the first time by the Technicolor cameras, is completely believable as a flirtatious and vixenish French-Canadian girl who plays havoc with the hearts of the fighting pilots. Alan Hale, George Tobias and Reginald Gardiner as an Irish, Canadian and English flier, respectively, each turn in memorable performances.

The story of "Captains of the Clouds" deals with a group of pilots who make a difficult and dangerous living picking up freight and passenger jobs in Canada's northern woods and lake country. Immersed in their own romantic, financial and personal problems, they pay little heed to the war until one day they hear Winston Churchill's 'We Shall Never Surrender Speech'. With one accord they go to the nearest air field to enlist. They are somewhat chagrined to learn that they are considered too old to be fighting pilots, that the air force can use them only as teachers. Used to flying "by the seat of their pants," they find the rules and regulations trying, and Cagney, a rugged individualist, is finally put out of the service because his disregard of rules causes a near-casualty. At last, however, using the papers of one of his pals who has done his last power dive, he gets the chance he has dreamed of—to fly a bomber to England. On the way over, the unarmed squadron is attacked by a lethal Messerschmitt, and in one final and magnificent act of courage, he wings his way to glory.

William Holden and Frances Dee are co-starred in this uproarious comedy romance, "Meet the Stewarts" which is based upon Elizabeth Dunn's zestful magazine story. 418 Casualties Already Listed

OTTAWA, Aug. 24 — (CP) — Casualties officially reported by the National Defence Department since Canadians landed at Dieppe totalled 418 today with an indefinite number still to be listed.

The latest list, Sunday night, contained names of 183 men, 182 of them wounded and "one wounded and missing". This, together with four previous lists issued at the rate of two a day starting Friday night, brought total casualties suffered by the Canadian army in the Dieppe assault to 418 and swelled to 872 total army dead and missing officially reported since the war began.

Two more lists are expected to be issued today. It is not known definitely when the final list will be prepared.

In the five lists issued so far, 79 have been reported killed, 313 wounded and 26 missing, according to an unofficial tally by The Canadian Press. This count is subject to a slight margin of error because of possible duplication in previous lists.

Last night's list, 130th army casualty list of the war, contained names of non-commissioned officers and privates only. In the fourth, issued a few hours earlier, Brig. Sherwood Lett of Vancouver was reported seriously wounded.

In the two Sunday lists, Winnipeg was the hardest hit among Canadian cities with six of the men listed as killed and 25 of the wounded from the Manitoba capital. Many of the other casualties were from Ontario, Manitoba and Saskatchewan and a large number from Quebec province.

Little Benny's Note Book

Pop was looking at his paper and ma was looking at hers, saying, Well my lands of all things. William, do you recall my speaking of Mrs. Spiegelbrod, the mysterious stranger with a constant change of costumes who used to come in the Willing Wool and knit for soldiers and sailers and finally disappeared in the direction of South America? she said.

Why yes, good old Spiegelbrod, you had an idea she was a German spy, pop said, and ma said, And so she is, and here's the living proof of it in black and white print, just take a look at this picture in the paper.

Meaning a picture of a man and a lady, and pop said, According to this it's Senor and Senora Perez of Peru.

Yes, and also according to that, Senor Perez is attached to the Peruvian consular legation, or in other words Mrs. Spiegelbrod has managed to marry into high official Peruvian circles where she can learn military secrets galore and send them to Germany in code messages, ma said. I'd know that face anywhere, just look at those piercing eyes. What do you think I ought to do, William? ma said, and pop said, I think you ought to hold on for a few minutes. It says here Senor and Senora Perez are announcing the engagement of their daughter Consuela Maria Perez to an American naval officer. Take another look, he said.

Which ma did, saying, Well, it's true this woman has a suggestion of a double chin, and Mrs. Spiegelbrod had a retreating sort of face with barely even one chin. It's quite odd, it convinces me more than ever that Mrs. Spiegelbrod is a spy, she said, and pop said, For Peet sake how does it?

Because if this woman isn't Mrs. Spiegelbrod, it means that Mrs. Spiegelbrod has disappeared and been swallowed up without the slightest trace and if that doesn't fit into a proverbial spy's description what does? ma said.

Being the end of the subject with pop making sounds to himself behind the sporting. page

CHAPTER 8
Flight

"Oh, no!" Linda was dismayed. "We expected you to stay for dinner at least. It's Sunday, Greg."

"Sorry angel, but I have only a few days' leave from the lab. and I've got to hurry now to make up for lost time."

"Greg—" Linda struggled with a nameless fear. "You—you do like me, don't you?"

He caught her to him in a caress so sudden and powerful that Linda gasped.

"What do you think, beautiful?" he whispered ardently.

"I—I'm so glad," Linda was weak with relief. "I was beginning to think maybe I had just imagined that—that—"

"Imagined what?" bluntly.

Linda looked down demurely. "Well, everyone says you — you must be interested, or you would not be going out of your way just to see me."

"I—I can't forget that you're engaged to another man," Greg said soberly.

Linda wanted to tell him that she had decided to break her engagement, but she hesitated. Wouldn't that be rushing things just a little? After all, they had been together only twice.

"I—I have something to tell you," she murmured, "but it can wait. Will you write to me as soon as you get home, Greg? I'll tell you my secret them."

He nodded, opening his mouth to speak, and then bent abruptly and kissed her. "I won't see your parents again, so tell them goodbye for me, Linda. And thanks for everything."

After he had gone, Linda leaned against the door, happily reliving the evening's activities. It seemed like a dream now. Fantastic. Incredible. Only one thing stood out vividly in her mind. "I love Greg." She was exultant. "I love him—love him—and I'm not afraid of anything or anyone. I can't even feel sorry for Kyle now, because nothing matters but Greg and me."

Tiptoeing up the steps to her room, she paused outside her mother's door, aching to waken her —to tell her the exciting news. She sensed that behind that closed door her parents lay sleepless, wondering, but Linda checked her impulse. She wanted to treasure her happiness just a little longer. "I'll tell them tomorrow," she decided, "and receive the proverbial family blessing." There was little doubt in her mind that her parents, eager for her happiness, would understand her love for Greg Hollister once she told them all that was in her heart.

But Linda awakened the next morning to find her mother standing in the door, her face so pale that her eyes seemed enormous. Her outstretched hand clutched the morning paper and Linda sat up, puzzled and perplexed, the woman's hoarse voice cried:

"Linda—something dreadful has happened!"

Staring at her mother's white face, Linda felt an icy clutch at her heart. She beheld a vision of Greg speeding down the highways, reckless, devil-may-care . . . .

"Greg—" she whispered. "Something has happened to Greg!"

Scarcely had Linda voiced her fear for Greg's safety than her mother was shaking her head impatiently. "Not Greg," she exclaimirritably. "This—read it."

She held out the local newspaper, its pages turned to the gossip column and Linda read: "Gossip has it that Linda Phillips has definitely cancelled her trip to the altar with the Norman lad, in favor of a charming visitor to Prairievale. When is it going to be, Miss Phillips?"

A sense of relief swept through Linda. Her only thought had been for Greg's welfare as he sped toward Kansas City. The fact that her secret had been brazenly released to the newspaper failed to rankle.

"Is that all?" she said lightly. "I thought something terrible had—"

"All!" Mary Phillips was plainly angered by Linda's indifferent attitude. "How can you be so calm, Linda. Everyone in town will see this and believe it. If only I knew who was responsible! John must go down to the newspaper and demand they retract this statement now. Before it's too late!

Linda thought she had never seen her mother in such a temper. The women's face was pale and strained by days of brooding. Her breath came in short gasps.

Linda had sensed that despite her obvious acceptance of the facts Mary Phillips had believed she would dismiss Greg, as a brief infatuation, return to Kyle Norman and abide by his decisions. Her heart ached for her parents, but Linda said gravely: "It's already too late, mother. It's been too late since I first set eyes on Greg Hollister. I don't know who sent in that information, but everyone had to know the truth sooner or later."

"And what is the truth?" Mary Phillips asked with dread.

Linda smiled radiantly. She tossed her head with a gesture of pride. "The truth is that I love Greg Hollister, and I'm going to marry him."

Mary Phillips winced as though she had been struck a mortal blow. She moistened her lips, hesitating before she said weakly, "Th—then he's asked you to—to marry him?"

"Not in so many words," Linda answered cautiously. "Greg wants me to decide for myself. He won't make the decision for me, and," she confessed proudly, "so I've made it. I really decided in Chicago that my engagement to Kyle had been a dreadful mistake, but I wanted Greg to know me as I really am. When he asks me, I'll become Mrs. Gregory Hollister.

Mary Phillips collapsed on the bed. She seemed suddenly pathetically old and frail. "I—I can't believe it. You're like a stranger to me, Linda. My little girl wouldn't do such a thing. She wouldn't be so—so unfair to her parents, and to Kyle. Think how this must be hurting him!"

Compassionately Linda put her arm around the other woman. "I'm sorry, Mother," she whispered pitiously. "Truly I don't want to hurt you or Kyle, but after all, it's my life and I must decide things for myself."

"But you were happy before you met this—this Greg!"

Linda knew her mother had deliberately fumbled his name, but she felt so alienated from her parents by her new emotions, the emotions they could or would not understand, that she felt no anger at the snub.

"I wasn't happy," she said wisely. "I was in a rut. I had been growing more dissatisfied, more discontented every day, before I went away, until I had reached the point where I was beginning to hate Kyle. I was tired of seeing him around so much—of knowing he picked my friends and controlled my activities.

"I was—trapped, and I didn't know how to escape. I thought perhaps I was unhappy because we had been engaged for so long and had many disappointments, but I was wrong. When you're in love nothing else matters. There are no disappointments, no petty things can touch you. I know that now."

"Kyle is a good man and he loves you."

"Kyle loves himself and his own comfort above all else," Linda answered hotly. "I'm not afraid now to tell him that everything is over between us!"

But Linda was to find that casting off the old and taking on the new was not as easy as it had seemed. In the first place, Kyle was not easily daunted despite his noble words, and the fact that she had returned his engagement ring. Linda suspected that her parents had a great deal to do with throwing them together at every opportunity and she turned a deaf ear to his nightly entreaties for "another chance" until Kyle at last gave up his attempts to reconquer her love. Still, although he stopped coming to the house when she was there, Linda knew he paid a daily call on her mother, and the thought rankled in her heart.

Neighbors, too, tried in vain to make Linda reconsider the step she had taken. Nearly every evening when she came from the office it was to find someone waiting for a word with her, slyly put in some instances, bold in others, until Linda was almost at the breaking point.

"I can't stand it any longer," she said, in tears one evening when she had fled to Sally for sympathy and understanding.

"Linda, this may hurt," Sally said, taking a long breath, "but it's true and you've got to face facts. The people you're condemning as busybodies aren't like that at all. They are your friends. They've known you always, and they want to make sure you don't make a mistake that you may regret later."

"But it's my life," resentfully.

"Yes, it is your life, but everyone of these so-called busy-bodies has had a hand in it at one time or another. Why I'll wager your hope chest is filled with gifts from these very people."

Linda remembered the big chest in her bedroom, filled to overflowing with lovely linens and Greg," Sally assured her, "but you china—gifts to Linda and Kyle.

"It isn't that we don't like are so innocent, Linda. You have no idea what life is like outside of Prairievale and we don't want you to be disillusioned. Try to be brave Linda, and you can lick this thing if you want to."

Linda smiled through her tears. "I'll try," she promised, "but, oh Sally, I don't know how much longer I can bear it."

Despite her resolution, Linda's patience was short-lived. Nearly a week had elapsed since Greg's visit and she had heard nothing from him. This, coupled with her parents' continuous remonstrations caused Linda to break down.

"I can't stand this any longer," she sobbed. "I've got to decide things for myself. I'm not a child any more. You must understand that!"

"I can understand only one thing," her father returned stubbornly, "and that is this: You're making a foolish mistake, casting aside the love of a good man for someone you know nothing about, and mark my words, you'll be sorry."

"I think Kyle means more to you than I do," she whispered.

"Kyle has been like a son to us," he returned swiftly, " a good son."

"And I'm not a good daughter?" Linda was thoroughly aroused. "Is that what you mean?"

"A good daughter would have more consideration for her parents."

"Parents! Parents!" Linda flung the word angrily, her face losing color, her eyes flashing. "What of me? What of the life I want for myself? I've asked very little, after all, except kindness and patience."

"We've been too patient," her father said harshly. "That man should never have been allowed inside this house, and, by heaven he never will be again!"

"I'm going to Chicago. Tonight. I'll stay with Diane. I'll get a job there," she was talking wildly, angrily, but she couldn't stop. "I'll prove how wrong you've been. When Greg and I are happily married, I'll make you regret that you sent me away, and I'll not come home until you ask me. Then we'll see who was wrong. We'll see!"

∨ ∨ ∨ ∨ ∨ ∨

Linda was ready to leave for Chicago before she allowed herself to think of what she had done, and then she was assailed by her first feeling of misgiving. What had she done? What else, but to defy her parents, forfeit her job, and withdraw her savings from the bank. Now she was leaving home—leaving with bitterness in her heart because she had fallen in love at first sight with a handsome, redheaded young god!

"I can't be making a mistake," she told herself bravely, "and even if I were, I wouldn't back down now. I said I was going—and I am!"

Rationing Officials May Visit Homes

Ottawa, Aug. 24 —(CP)— The Canadian housewife who has purchased sugar for preserving purposes may receive a courteous letter one of these days asking when a rationing official may visit her kitchen and see what she has done with the sugar.

Wartime Prices and Trade Board officials said today that letters were being sent out, to housewives in different parts of Canada so that a check might be made on the use of sugar granted for preserving apart from the ration amount of one-half pound a person a week.

Officials said there was no evidence of widespread abuse of the special provision which allows the housewife to secure sufficient sugar for preserving needs, but it was essential that some check be maintained.

USE WOMEN IN MINES

least one Colorado mine is using women to fill job vacancies caused by men going into the army or to more lucrative employment. H. L. Tedrow, general manager of the London Mines and Milling Company, said six women have been hired in the ore sorting plant. Their job is to throw out rock from crushed gold and silver ore carried along on a conveyor belt.

WALL STREET

New York, Aug. 24 (AP)—Aircrafts and other selected stocks displayed mild progressive tendencies in today's market while many leaders found the going a bit difficult.

Fractions, however, were about the best favorites could achieve and these were eliminated in a number of cases and declines were plentiful near the fourth hour.

The Canadian section was quiet. Canadian Pacific held unchanged and Hiram Walker eased 3-8. Canada 4s were off 1-8 in the bond market.

Among stocks Sparks-Withington made further response to its first dividend in 11 years by edging into new high ground for 1942. ILSLEY APPEALS FOR FINANCIAL SUPPORT IN WAR

Says Now is Time for All Canadians to Stand Shoulder to Shoulder

PAYING WAR COSTS

Toronto, Aug. 24 (CP)—A black picture of the future of democracy in the event of a German victory in Russia was painted today by Hon. J. L. Ilsley, Minister of Finance, to more than 2,000 industrial and commercial workers of Toronto as he appealed for wholehearted support of the coming Victory loan drive and outlined the policy of the government to raise funds to prosecute the war.

"If the great steel centre of Stalingrad should fall and the enemy sweep through the Caucasus I hate to think of the consequences," he said. —"In all probability they would turn westward and attack Great Britain.

"Now is the time Canadians must stand shoulder to shoulder, and I say that with all the earnestness of my being."

"We must pay for the huge production which this war demands... We are now spending eight times as much in one year as we were prior to the war," the Finance Minister continued.

He urged all present, representing more than 200,000 workers in the Toronto area, to use their influence to assist in raising the $3,900,000,000 annual cost to run the war.

He said it was the belief of his government that the finest and most equitable way in which to raise money necessary was half by taxation and half by borrowing.

Mr. Ilsley warned against listening to subversive talk to the effect the government intended to freeze bank deposits, and that bonds will not be redeemed after Sept 1.

"These rumors are either put around through innocence, ignorance or by enemy agents, but if through innocence or ignorance the work of enemy agents was being done," he said

Largest Convoy From the U.S. Reaches Britain

With the U.S. Army in Britain, Aug. 24 —(CP)— Arrival in Britain of the largest United States convoy of the war, with vast quantities of war material and brack fighting units was disclosed officially last night.

A large proportion of the convoy was composed of men and material for the American Air Force, which already is active with Fortress bombers blasting the Nazi transportation system with precision bombing.

Many war experts are looking for an "aerial push" by the R.A.F. and the American Air Force designed to soften Germany on the ground and in the air for an eventual invasion.

Despite the great size of the convoy, which was unloaded at many ports, soldiers and munitions melted rapidly into the interior of England, where invasion armies are training.

During recent months engineers have been on a 24-hour-a-day schedule preparing for the handling of thousands of troops. Bases now are nearing completion and are able to absorb men and materials at a sharply stepped-up pace.

The air force is in a similar position and its striking power can be doubled and redoubled within an extremely short space of time compared to the months of preliminary preparations.

The convoy's arrival, coming almost simultaneously with the visit of Prime Minister Churchill to Moscow and the Canadian-led raid on Dieppe, was calculated to give Hitler something to worry about.

F. S. WINSER FOUND DEAD

Detroit, Aug. 24.—(AP)—Wayne County doctors performed an autopsy today on the body of Frank S. Winser, 59, a retired Canadian army major, who was found dead in his hotel room yesterday.

Officials of the British Air Commission here said he had been employed by the Commission for three months.

A son, Frank O. Winser, is believed in the Canadian navy.

Mrs. Katherine Winser, the widow, telegraphed from Cowansville, Que., to make funeral arrangements.

PERU EXTENDS RIGHTS

Lima, Peru, Aug 24—(AP)—Peru extended today to Brazil the rights of non-belligerency in the war with Germany and Italy.

The government also announced it would propose that other American countries hold a "permanent consultation" on collective measures for continental defence.

TOTAL NOW 99 REPORTED MISSING

Monday's List Brings Unofficial Count of Casualties at Dieppe to 520 of Whom 79 Are Killed

Ottawa, Aug. 24—(CP) — The number of Canadian soldiers reported missing as a result of the battle of Dieppe last Wednesday rose by 99 today with the issue of the sixth army casualty list since the battle.

The list contained 102 names. The other three were reported respectively wounded, suffering from shock and suffering from fatigue. Only one officer was on the list, Lieut. William Clement Dick, of Toronto.

Today's list brings the unofficial count of casualties reported from the battle to 520 of whom 79 are killed, 316 wounded and 125 missing. The count is subject to a margin of error owing to possible repetition of names in succeeding lists.

A total of 971 men now have been reported dead and missing by the Canadian army since the start of the war.

Artillery, Engineers, the Signal Corps, Western Ontario Regiment, Central Ontario Regiment, Manitoba Regiment, Medical Corps, Army Service Corps, Ordnance Corps, Provost Corps and Divisional troops were all represented in today's list.

Two Regiments Provide Bulk

The Central Ontario Regiment, represented in the fighting by the Royal Hamilton Light Infantry and the Royal Regiment of Toronto, and the Manitoba Regiment, represented by the Queen's Own Cameron Highlanders, of Winnipeg provided the bulk of the list.

The fact that thirteen members of the Medical Corps were reported missing indicated the men who care for the wounded were well up in the fighting area, looking after fighting men.

Eight of the men reported missing and one reported wounded were from Toronto, seven of the missing were from Hamilton, six of the missing and the one suffering from fatigue were from Winnipeg, five of the missing were from Montreal. The others were from smaller communities in various parts of Canada.

The fourth and fifth casualty lists since the Dieppe battle were issued Sunday.

BRITISH SUBS SINK AXIS SHIP

Another Probably Sunk in Action Off the Norwegian Coast

London, Aug. 24 (CP)—British submarines harassing Axis supply lines have sunk one merchant vessel in the Mediterranean and probably sent another to the bottom off Norway, the Admiralty announced today.

The vessel destroyed in the Mediterranean, a communique said, was a medium-sized ship which had been bombed and stopped by R.A.F. attacks. The vessel was said to have exploded and sunk immediately.

Off the Norwegian coast a British submarine attacked an Axis convoy and scored a hit on the leading vessel, which is believed to have sunk, the announcement said.

IF IT'S ABOUT YOUR EYES . . . SEE McFEE

Keen Eyes Watching for Enemy U-boats Prevent Ship Crash in Blinding Gale

Alert Young Torpedoman of Canada's Navy Has Big Role in Guarding Precious Convoy

By LIEUT. A. O. TATE, R.C.N.V.R.

Down in the warmth of the destroyer's mess decks a young Royal Canadian Navy rating is writing. Gently and rhythmically the ship rides at anchor. Relaxed and sleepy, the youth, turned war-time sailor, signs and seals his letter—sighs, yawns, stretches.

Fifteen minutes later he is in his hammock, sound asleep in a deep, dreamless sleep.

Before long, his mother, who might be the mother of any one of thousands of Canadian naval ratings, will read: "One day we got separated from the convoy during a bad storm. I had to do a trick up in the eyes of our ship—and believe me my eyes got pretty sore.—Give my love to Mary . . ."

For sixty minutes during that "bad" day at sea the lad maintained his look-out on the quarter-deck. From there he had gone forward to the peak of the forecastle for another one-hour vigil.

Whistle Up a Storm

With his hand stuffed in the deep pockets of his duffel coat, his big rubber boots clumping along the iron deck, this young man, a torpedo rating, strode aft to take up his watch. The destroyer was heaving along in a moderate sea and off to starboard the convoy looked precisely as it had each day for the past six. He began to whistle and abruptly stopped, thinking . . . "The captain jumps anybody who whistles . . . whistle up a storm . . . bad luck or trouble. ."

A spatter of rain strikes his face.

Suddenly and swiftly, gathering momentum and force across a thousand miles of open sea, comes the roaring northwester. With unbridled strength and violence, the opponent of all seafarers strikes. The great Atlantic's seas rise and across them a gale-driven downpour lashes in long, cutting streaks.

The ship pitches and bucks, rolls and corkscrews. In a surprise attack, a great sea coils and boils over the stern, high over the depth charge rails, and strikes out at the torpedoman. As the sea pounds against him, the cold water soaking him up to the chest ,he clutches the ammunition locker with both hands and hangs on tight. He is shocked by the force of the sea.

KEEP YOUR POWDER DRY—AND KEEP IT HANDY

From well-planned and carefully protected holds, ammunition is hoisted aloft by these members of a Canadian destroyer. On deck, this ammunition is stored in "ready-use" lockers, close to the guns and ready for immediate action. —R.C.N. Photo

What Happened? Nothing!

The torpedoman's teeth are chattering, as the pull of the water recedes. He toys unpleasantly with the idea of what might have happened had the sea knocked him to the deck and caught him up in its hissing, rushing backwash. The wind beating against his wet clothes is bitterly cold. He keeps looking-out across the ocean astern.

Thus ends the first 60 minutes. What happened? Nothing! Nothing more than one hour of looking-out. Nothing more than one hour of muscle-straining effort to maintain equilibrium, to retain life and limb.

He goes forward for his next hours' watch on the bridge. First, however, he quickly changes into a dry outfit. He borrows a dry duffel coat, dry balaclava, dry sea-boots, and scampers swiftly up ladders to take his post on the starboard side of the bridge. From this point, considerably higher than the quarterdeck, he can see more of the ships of the convoy.

Gale Scatters Ships

But within minutes, the merchant ship are completely obscured. In the wildness of the gale all are scattered. Some are hove-to. No two are pointed in the same direction as they all struggle to keep steerage-away .

Adventure in Storm at Sea Tests Courage of Fighting Sailor Just as Much as Battle

The torpedo rating hears his name called. "Everything happens to me", he murmurs.

He is told to go up to the peak of the forecastle where the port and starboard guardrails meet in a V. He lashes a square of canvas to the rails to protect his body from the wind.

Still rough, the ocean sends the occasional sea exploding over the forecastle. The salt spray whips at his face and eyes. It hurts. A strange, frightening sensation flashes through him. Instinctively he stabs an arm and an outspread hand over his head. His arm curves swiftly down until pointing dead ahead. A wraith of darkness, seen indistinctly in the dirty milkiness ahead . . .the instant his eyes registered the wispy shadow of a ship he acted.

Just in Time

Collision ahead? It is perhaps five seconds since he first stabbed an arm toward dead ahead, and already the destroyer is leaning into a sharp turn to port.

The merchantman, a great, long oil tanker, is now looming large. Her fog horn is sounding in frantic, rapid-succession blasts. She, too, is hard over.

"A miss is as good as a mile—I hope!" the look-out breathes, bracing and holding himself against the ship's heaving and heeling.

Steeper and steeper becomes the destroyers' leaning turn as she goes full ahead on her starboard screw. The destroyer and the tanker are almost abeam. The swiftness with which the two ships glide safely past each other gives men in both ships a graphic idea of what might have happened in a collision.

On the bridge the captain is saying: "Damn alert look-out down there, and it's a tough job with that spray. Better have him relieved".

A few minutes later, the torpedo rating comes into his mess. The burning in his eyes is disappearing as a soothing ointment takes hold Although tired and cold and hungry he is filled with pride, a feeling of adventurous accomplishment as a messmate remarks: "Nice work, kid, a lot of people might hve been killed".

BATTLE OF BEACH

Wall Lined With Troops

In ten minutes the long wall was lined with troops of the Essex Scottish and the Royal Hamilton Light Infantry. Some tanks had been landed by then but were having preliminary difficulty in getting a solid hold for their treads on the shale.

Heavy shelling and a torrent of small-arms fire prevented some of the troops from debarking from the tank-landing craft. German fire from the buildings along the promenade was strongly supported by Nazi artillery and machine-gun posts looking down from the tall headlands which rise up on either side.

The Hamilton battalion drove forward in force and finally captured the Dieppe Casino, a group of large buildings at the western end of the beach. Taking the Casino filled with Germans was one of the features of the main beach operation.

The Hamilton troops moved from the Casino into the main part of the town. Capt. Denny Whitaker, former Hamilton Tiger star football quarterback, led one detachment well into Dieppe proper and engaged in a terrific street engagement. There was hand-to-hand combat and at times the Canadians plowed into the Germans with bayonets. Whitaker was among the men who got back.

Reached Post Office

One of the other Hamilton detachments battling in the streets reached the post office near the heart of the town despite the exposure to Nazi snipers who were peppering away from rooftops and windows.

A number of the Essex Scottish also are believed to have broken into Dieppe and fought around the edge of the harbor. Members of Les Fusiliers Mont Royal who came back say a number of these tough French-Canadians smashed right through Dieppe to Basin Du Cana which is well back in the harbor. Their route took them clean thru' the town.

Street fighting is said to have gone on practically all over Dieppe amid ruined and blazing buildings which had been pounded by the R.A.F. and the navy.

Battle Raged for Hours

Ptes. Archie Liss, John Shart and Roy Wilkinson and L. Cpl. Pentice Sandy, all of Hamilton, and Pte. Bill Burman of Tillsonburg, Ont., all said street battles raged for hours.

"German dead lay all over some of the streets," said Liss. "Snipers really were the worst menace. But our officers were cool as ice and we fought a rearguard action out of the town during the withdrawal."

Despite the heavy, unexpected German opposition in Dieppe itself, the Canadians fought with such gallantry the Nazis never could take the offensive and counter attack on the beaches. The enemy was forced to remain hidden in their buildings and harry the raiders from those vantage points.

The battle of the seawall was one of the grimest of the entire operation.

One of the clearest and most graphic descriptions of the battle was given by Pte. Eugene Cousineau of 129 McDougal Avenue, Windsor. Ont., who joined the Essex Scottish when the regiment was mobilized at the start of the war.

Proved He Had Courage

"I was with 'A' Company commanded by Capt. Dennis Guest and in No. 9 Platoon," said Cousineau, a tall, husky lad who proved he had all the courage in the world.

"There were explosions around the boats as we were going in," he said. "We touched down and I was the fourth man out of the boat. We got to the barbed wire on the beach and cut our way through. Heavy fire was raking the landing craft. We made the seawall and had practically all our section with us.

"A pillbox to the right was taken out by the Royal Hamilton Light Infantry. We worked up the wall until we got opposite the tobacco factory. This was just 100 yards away over the promenade and at the corner of Verdun Boulevard and Rue Duquesne. From the tobacco factory and the other buildings around it we were getting artillery fire and machine-gun stuff. The Essex opened fire right away from the seawall on the buildings along the opposite side of the promenade.

TAKE 4 BATTLE OF BEACH etc

Gave Germans Plenty

"The gang I was with stayed there fighting from the seawall from six a. m. to 11:30 a. m. We couldn't move from there but we gave the Germans plenty to worry about even then. There was a castle on the cliff on the west headland and its machine guns walloped us a lot. Besides, German aircraft strafed the beach on the way back from a bombing raid on the fleet lying offshore.

"The fuzzies (soldiers' nickname for Les Fusiliers Mont Royal) joined us behind the seawall although they had come through hellish fire. Some of them got through into the town later.

"We stuck right there until the withdrawal order came through late in the morning.

"The morale of the Essex was high all the way. The officers were mighty grand. I remember particularly Lieut. Jack Prince, Capt. Guest and Maj. John Willis who I saw with us in the fight. Mr. Prince was running up and down the seawall encouraging us and being as brave as any man could be. The others were the same, fighting like the devil.

Stunned at First

"Our fellows crouched in firing positions at the seawall, smoking cigarets or pipes and joking and making bets on who'd get it next. We naturally were stunned when we first got to the seawall but steadied up and were away to the races.

"Our men stood by the Bren guns smoking and cursing the Germans with every curse they ever knew. We worked our way up and down the wall and wound up close by the Royal Hamilton Light Infantry on the western side of the beach.

"When we withdrew we laid down smoke with a mortar and some canisters. This smoke clouded the promenade and we rushed for the boats. We ran a couple of hundred yards down the beach under heavy fire. Bullets tickled through my clothing but never hit me.

One of Last to Leave Beach

"I was one of the last off the beach. I got behind the tank-landing craft grounded on the shore and there were quite a few lads there. The landing craft was coming and we waded out to our waists to get aboard her.

Every Essex who was there and who got it went down fighting. There wasn't any guy who wasn't battling like mad. And those of us who came back want only to get back and knock the hell out of the Nazis for what they did to our boys."

That wasn't just loose talk by Cousineau. His eyes gleamed and his fist clenched when he said it.

"An officer told me," he continued, "that he was five days at Dunkirk and that the fire there was nothing like that morning at Dieppe."

Proud of His Badge

Cousineau put his hand to his Essex badge on his balmoral. "I'm proud to show my badge anywhere now," he said.

Cousineau wore a small khaki skull-cap throughout the fight. "I carried it through—hell and high water and it's going with me for life," he said as he pulled it out of his pocket.

The sailors and provost fought with the infantry along the seawall and in the town. Tanks, after getting over the seawall, cruised up and down the promenade pasting the Germans in a building with their guns. One tank which had its tracks blown off wirelessed: "We've been knocked out but are still firing and staying right here. Incidentally, we are knocking hell out of a lot of Germans."

QUEBEC'S ANSWER TO HITLER

"There'll always be an England" was the slogan which expressed the feelings of French-Canadian shipyard workers Saturday when this corvette was sent down the ways at a Quebec shipyard. The new vessel is the latest of more than 200 combat ships which have been launched under Canada's gigantic wartime shipbuilding program. Two other corvettes were christened during the same ceremony and at another shipyard in Quebec province a fourth corvette was added to the day's launchings. Two more corvettes, making six in all, are scheduled to go down the ways during this week.

Referred to Cases

Mr. Conant referred in his communications to the recent cases under the regulations — the prosecution of Lt.-Col. George Drew, Ontario Conservative leader, and Rene Chaloult, Independent Liberal member of the Quebec Legislature for Lotbiniere. The Crown dropped its case against Col. Drew. Mr. Chaloult was acquitted.

The prosecution of Mr. Chaloult is discussed by Mr. Conant as an example of his complaint against lack of uniformity in dispensing justice.

"As Attorney-General of Canada you have, presumably, directed counsel to consent to prosecutions in two important and widely publicized cases, i. e., Rex v Drew and Rex v Chaloult," Mr. Conant wrote. "I presume that other prosecutions have been similarly instituted with your concurrence.

"Although the Drew case arose in this province, I did not direct counsel to consent to, and this department took no part in, the prosecution.

"In reading the text of the judgment of the court in the Rex v Chaloult case, I cannot avoid the impression that the interpretation and application of regulation 39A in that case differed materially from what has been and from what I am of the opinion would be the attitude of the courts of this province under similar facts and circumstances. In the Chaloult case the court acquitted the accused apparently on the grounds of 'good faith'; that he did not have 'guilty knowledge' and that the statements of the accused did not go 'beyond ....the limits of simple error of judgment.' "

Quotes Court of Appeal

Mr. Conant said that in the Rex v Stewart (The Daily Clarion) case in 1940 the Ontario Court of Appeal in a judgment delivered by Chief Justice R. S. Robertson, rejected all such grounds of defence and held with regard to the regulations in question that: " . . . their prohibitions are absoluble and that it is not a defence in a prosecution for their breach to say that what was done was done in ignorance or without intending any harm. The acts prohibited are to be stopped.".

"In the result," Mr. Conant wrote, "Regulations 39, 39A and 39B are not uniformly construed and applied in all the provinces. In other words the brand of justice dispensed in Ontario with respect thereto is substantially different from the brand of justice dispensed in some of the other provinces. This situation is, in my view, impossible and a distinct denial of the fundamental principles in the administration of justice."

Japs Fighting On Defence For 2 1-2 Months

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER

The Japanese have been fighting more or less defensively now for two and a half months. Unless they swing over to a strong offensive soon, one may well wonder at their inactivity since the Battle of Midway in June.

The trouble certainly is not that they lack military and naval power to strike. They have the men and equipment to attack Siberia today, if they want to do so. They have the ships and troops to make a thrust at India, Australia, Hawaii, Alaska or any of the islands guarding the United States-Australian supply line.

And until now they have had the will to fight always on the offensive. Belief in the attack has been their basic military tenet.

Two months ago—even two or three weeks ago—many well-informed military men would have laid a small wager that by this time the Japs would have pitched into the Red Armies in Siberia. One of Tokyo's traditional military aims has been to remove the threat of the maritime provinces from the Japanese homeland. Vladivostok is within easy bombing distance of Japan.

Must Act Quickly

Now military men are saying that perhaps this very danger of bombing has made Tokyo cautious. Significantly related to the inactivity in Siberia is the fact that in about four or five weeks the weather will make any military operations there almost impossible; so if the Japanese intend to act they must act quickly.

A few days ago reports came out of Australia and New Zealand that the enemy was believed to be marshalling a considerable naval force to smash the American fleet in the Southwest Pacific and isolate the marines in the Solomon Islands. But the marines in the Solomons are still there and their supplies are still going through.

It may be that as a matter of cold realism the Japanese admirals have learned not to plunge headlong into action with the full force of Allied might in the Pacific. Since early spring they have lost war and cargo ships heavily at Lae and Salamaua, New Guinea; at Gulagi, Solomon Islands; at Midway Island and at Kiska Island, in the Aleutians.

Hard to Replace Ships

The Tokyo warlords made good their conquest at Burma, but pulled back closer home the amphibious forces which threatened India after Brigadier-General James Doolittle and his bomber squadron proved that Tokyo was not isolated from attack.

More recently they started a campaign to secure their cities against attack from the Chinese mainland, but soon afterward American air forces in China went into action against Japan's continental bases. And today's news from Chungking is that Chinese forces, counter-attacking, have advanced well into Chekiang and Kiangsi Provinces to throw the Japs' war machine into reverse.

It seems to be generally accepted that the Japanese are capable of desperate action when a situation demands desperation. They have squandered men in China.

They can replace their slain soldiers with recruits. But the ships they lose in sea battles and any factories they lose by aerial bombardment cannot be quickly replaced.

Perhaps this has taught them to think twice before plunging into some costly new adventure. If and when they attack again it must be with full realization of the cost they will have to pay.

THE WAR TODAY

By De Witt MACKENZIE
Associated Press War Analyst

It looks very much now as if we should see a new and perhaps decisive front opened before long in the Egyptian-Middle-East theatre, and it's the toss of a coin whether this will be initiated by the Allies or by the Nazi dictator.

There's no doubt the Allies are actively preparing for this possibility. We see that in today's announcement of the formation of a new British command for Iran and Iraq under Gen. Sir Maitland Wilson, distinguished tactician. And that's only one of numerous recent developments pointing in this direction, including Prime Minister Churchill's unexpected visit to Egypt for a reorganization of the command there.

The fireworks might start in the Middle East, but it's much more likely they will be touched off in Egypt. Certainly we may expect either that Nazi Field Marshal Rommel will resume his effort to conquer Egypt and fight his way through to join his master in the Middle East, or that the Allies will strike at Rommel in an effort to knock him out and thus destroy one of the claws of the pincers which Hitler is trying to fix about that whole zone.

Of course, immediate establishment of a second front in Western Europe might affect the trend in the Middle East. It's unlikely, though that Hitler's attempt to capture Egypt and the Middle East would be scrapped, because the side which holds that strategically-vital zone probably will win the war.

By the way, speaking of a second front in France, it's to be hoped that the Commando show at Dieppe last week finally convinced civilians who have been shouting for such a front that the time of its inauguration is definitely a matter for the high command to decide. That was a magnificent display of bravery and skill at arms, and it demonstrated the continent can be invaded when the time is right.

However, it also demonstrated that a major invasion will be terrifically costly in men and material. That cost won't stop us when the job has to be done, but it ought to cool off those who are trying to push the high command into action against better judgment.

Hitler has perhaps two months of fine campaigning weather left. Should he in that time be able to fight his way past the Caucasian mountain range to the border of the Middle East, he might well attempt to continue his drive. Meantime the masterful Rommel would have attempted to get his own military machine rumbling eastward again.

But if the Russians are able to stop Hitler short of the southern Caucasus he will have to develop his middle eastern campaign differently. He then will attempt to strike from Egypt—if the Allies haven't smashed Rommel meantime—and will be able to throw men and equipment into the operation from the winter-bound Russian front while he holds there with a greatly reduced force.

Hell is going to pop in Egypt before long, unless the signs are all wrong. When the fighting stopped neither side was strong enough to conduct an offensive. Since then they have been waiting for reinforcements and further equipment, and the side which gets set first will be the one to strike. In this contest it may be that Rommel has had the advantage, despite the fact that the Anglo-American air force has superiority in the air and has raised hob with Rommel's communications.

The United States imported nearly one-third of the more than 3,000,000 pounds of henna produced in Egypt in the last season.

GREAT SEA AND AIR BATTLE RAGES AT SOLOMONS

NAZIS MASS TANKS FOR ATTACK ON STALINGRAD

Parachutists Add To Peril Facing Russ Stronghold

Divebombers Rain Tons of Bombs On Red Positions—Work Still Goes On

ADVANCE AT KLETSKAYA

(By EDDY GILMORE
(Associated Press Staff Writer)

Moscow, Aug. 25.— (AP)— The Germans massed large forces of tanks on the eastern bank of the Don before Stalingrad today while divebombers swarmed the skies and parachutists descended in the Don and Caucasus areas with anti-tank guns and motorcycles to menace further the already-precarious Red Army positions.

A front-line dispatch to Comsomol Pravda, paper of the Young Communist organization, said the Germans had been able to concentrate large masses of men and machines across the Don.

It said the Nazis brought up reserves during the night and attacked at dawn, tanks being followed by men with automatic rifles while planes rained down "many tons of bombs".

First Wave Turned Back

The first wave was turned back, but a half-hour later more bombers appeared and another charge began. In hand-to-hand fighting, the Red army stuck to its trenches and refused to break, this dispatch declared. Night fighting in that sector was featured by rocket and tracer bullets streaking across the sky while German siren bombs screamed.

An account to Pravda, Communist Party paper, said the parachutists at one place landed in sufficient strength to permit their transport planes to alight on an airfield and unload anti-tank guns, motorcycles and trench-mortars.

Groups of 100

In some cases the parachutists descended in groups of 100, it was declared, anywhere from 12 to 18 miles behind the Soviet Front lines. Nevertheless, they are not being used on the scale the Germans employed in the low countries or Crete, apparently because German transport plant strength has been weakened, Pravda said.

The Soviet Information Bureau communique said the Germans who had crossed the Don had succeeded in making an advance southeast of Kletskaya in fierce fighting, but that the Russians were repulsing new attacks and inflicting heavy losses on the heavily-supported Nazis.

The invaders also have driven to the Prokhladnenski area 85 miles northeast of the oil town of Grozny, but 200 men of a Nazi mountain detachment were killed there and an attack in "many times greater" strength was repulsed, the Information Bureau said.

Although the Germans are throwing in large forces less than 40 miles from Stalingrad, life in that industrial centre was reported continuing at a normal but fast tempo.

Factories Busy

Factories work day and night and barges of fresh supplies unload constantly, said Pravda.

(A Stockholm report relayed via Reuters News Agency said the situation before Stalingrad was most serious, with battles already raging thirty miles from the city. The German High Command reported progress in the drive toward Stalingrad, advances in passes of the Caucasus Mountains, and said the German war flag now floated over Mount Elborus, highest peak in Europe.)

(The Nazi arm pressing northeastward from Kotelnikovski was regarded by British military sources in London to be the most menacing to Stalingrad. These sources said Russian counter attacks were believed to be holding the Germans back in the Don Elbow and southeast of Kletskaya.)

1,451 AMERICANS, CANADIANS HOME ON S.S. GRIPSHOLM

Passengers Were Repatriated From Japan In Exchange for Japs In America

SEVERE EXAMINATION

By JACK SULLIVAN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Jersey City, N. J., Aug. 25—(CP)—The exchange ship Gripsholm, bringing 69 Canadians and about 1,382 others home from Japan and Japanese-occupied territories, docked here this morning and was immediately surrounded by a strong police guard.

Canadian and United States intelligence officers went aboard and it was indicated the vessel would be emptied slowly of its passengers. It was expected the debarkation would cover several days.

The Canadians are scheduled to leave by train tonight for Montreal. Four special coaches were waiting for them on a siding near the dock and it was understood that, under an arrangement between the Canadian and United States governments, they would not be permitted to communicate with persons outside their own group while on American soil.

Among the Canadians were E. D'Arcy McGreer, Charge D'Affair in Tokyo at the outbreak of the war in the Pacific; Col. E. Doughty, Canadian immigration officer at Hong Kong; Paul McLane of Vancouver, trade commissioner at Hong Kong and Mrs. McLane and V. B. Duclos, trade commissioner at Shanghai, his wife and their two children. Others were government officials, missionaries and business men.

Glad to Be Home

With a fervid expression of happiness to be once again upon the soil of his "beloved country," the U. S. Ambassador to Tokyo, Joseph C. Grew, stepped ashore first.

The diplomat fingered his glasses nervously as he told reporters in a prepared statement how he had awaited the moment of his return to America with "inexpressible anticipation."

Chinese Guerillas Stabbing Deep Into the Side of Japanese in China

Both Morris J. Harris and James D. White are returning to the United States from interment by the Japanese in China. Harris was Chief of Bureau for The Associated Press at Shanghai and White was correspondent at Peiping.

By MORRIS J. HARRIS AND JAMES D. WHITE.
(Associated Press Staff Writers.)

Aboard S. S. Gripsholm, At Sea, Aug. 25 (AP)—The Chinese guerillas are stabbing deep into the side of the Japanese in China today. They range the Japanese-occupied areas and front battlelines by uncounted thousands.

Without uniforms, with whatever arms they can beg, borrow or steal, these daring hit-and-runners daily take an appreciable toll of Japanese life and equipment in China. Their campaigns vary from sniping a single Japanese sentry on lonely lookout duty to formidable night attacks upon military establishments and communications lines.

Raids upon Japanese supply depots and wrecked military trains yield the major supply of arms and equipment for these fast-moving forces, who receive all encouragement from Chungking but little material support.

As Japanese craft pass along China's inland waterways such as the Yangtze, the irregulars frequently open fire on them with their prized artillery. A good many invading ships, both men-of-war and commercial craft or transports, have met their doom under these guns. When a ship is bagged, the crew likewise is in for tough going. The guerillas take few prisoners.

Shanghai is the major population centre under Japanese control, but even on the outskirts of this huge city which the Japanese have held since 1937, the irregulars are constantly raiding and keeping many Japanese troops busy.

ALLIED ACTION TO HELP RUSSIA SEEMS IMMINENT

Churchill's Return To England Suggests Possible Critical Campaign in Africa

PLANS HELD SECRET

London, Aug. 25 (CP)—Prime Minister Churchill conferred with War Cabinet members today on the results of his talks with Joseph Stalin and his visit to vital war bases in Egypt and Iran.

The feeling that spectacular developments soon may follow the Prime Minister's return grew among Britons with the disclosure that he had visited Iran and Iraq as well as Egypt during his three-week flight.

These visits both brought quick, unforeseen consequences —establishment of a separate military command for the Iraq-Iran area and the assignment of Gen. Sir Harold Alexander to succeed Gen Claude Auchinleck as Commander-in-Chief in the Middle East.

The questions British editorial writers asked were when and where Allied power would explode to help lift the burden from the Red Army and whether time was left to make it effective in disorganizing the Axis time-table of conquest.

Rumblings suggestive of a critical new campaign in North Africa and the day-and-night aerial bombardments in western Europe were taken as clues to the secret plans the smiling, joking prime minister was assured to have brought back from his talks with Premier Stalin.

It was disclosed today that Mr. Churchill paid a second visit to Egypt on his return trip from Moscow and he also visited Iran and Iraq, where a new British command has been announced.

British observers noted that one of the first to greet Mr. Churchill in London last night was Lord Louis Mountbatten, the commando chief who is preparing a report on the Canadian-led Dieppe raid which tested the possibilities of a continental bridgehead.

"Mr. Stalin and I have exchanged views which will be of utmost value to the Allied cause," the Daily Express quoted the Prime Minister on his return from a three-week, 14,000-mile flight.

Journey Prelude to Battle

Into Mr. Churchill's trip the Daily Telegraph read the certainty "that the journey is the prelude to

Lone Scouting Plane Causes Air Alert

London, Aug. 25—(CP)—An air raid warning, the first by daylight in exactly a month, sounded in London this afternoon, apparently caused by a lone scouting plane which approached the northern environs. Persons who were leaving work at the time ignored the alarm except for occasional skyward glances.

The all-clear sounded shortly after the first alarm. There were no reports immediately of any incidents.

Drastic Curtailment Faces Less Essential Industry, Occupations

Canada's War Industries and Armed Forces Will Require Over 250,000 Persons Before End of 1942 and Only 60,000 Are Now Unemployed — "Selective Service Will Start Things Next Week," Says Director E. M. Little Winnipeg, Aug. 25 (CP)—More than 250,000 persons are needed in war industries and the armed forces before the end of 1942 and —with less than 60,000 unemployed—Canadians face drastic curtailment "of many of our less essential industries and occupations," Elliott M. Little, Director of National Selective Service, said here today.

In an address which he defined at the outset as "straight talk," Mr. Little told delegates to the National Convention of the Trades and Labor Congress of Canada that "Selective Service will do things next week and will expect your support in doing things that neither of us would have tolerated a year ago."

Measures Will Inconvenience Most

He added that Selective Service measures "will annoy and irritate and inconvenience most of us."

"There will be increasing disruption, dislocation and inconvenience for both the individuals and for business. The road will get rougher as we proceed. Only by adequate planning can we keep the hardships to a minimum."

He added that "insofar as we possibly can the employee or his representatives will be asked for help and advice in planning the details —of the necessary dislocation."

Employable unemployed men will have to go to work whether they like it or not, the director said. An order will be issued shortly compelling such persons to go to work.

"We have had some difficulty in getting some fit unemployed males to accept any work. Voluntary unemployment in the present crisis is a luxury the country cannot afford."

(Other orders to be brought down shortly will provide for government control of advertising for help in "magazines, radio or other media," and for a "cooling off period" of seven days' notice for terminating employer-employee contracts.

Manpower advisory committees by industries are being set up, composed of employees and management representatives, to advise and make recommendations to the National Selective Service Director on manpower problems affecting particular industries.

3 Steps to be Taken

The problem of obtaining 250,000 persons needed for the remainder of this year will be met in three ways, the Director said:—

1.—By the more extensive use of women in essential services and production.

2.—By the curtailment of less essential industries and occupations so that workers may be released for more essential work.

3.—By the improvement in the efficiency in use of those already employed in essential industries.

Registration of Women 20 to 24

Registration of unemployed women in the 20 to 24 age group will be started Sept. 14, the director said. The information supplied by this registration will permit planning for the bringing of women into war industry at an increasingly-rapid rate.

Mr. Little told the Labor delegates that Labor "should demonstrate a greater appreciation of the difficulties which face management these days". He stressed the difficulties management has had to face in obtaining supplies, priorities, manpower and in developing on a huge scale and said "it has been no bed of roses for the employers".

Confidence in Management

Confidence in management was necessary unless the war effort was to suffer, and it was no mark of labor statesmanship in a national emergency to try to recruit new members by the attacks on management which undermine the war effort.

Explaining the fear some employers have of unions, he said that "many employers may not fully realize that there is nothing better than a trade union, properly led, but they think there are few things worse than a trade union poorly led.

BRAZILIANS MOVE QUICKLY AGAINST AXIS ENEMIES

Gov't. Seizes 17 Axis Ships and Closes Three Axis Owned Banks

U. S. TANKER SUNK

Rio De Janeiro, Aug. 25 (AP) — Brazil marshalled her military strength for the test of war and moved quickly against Axis enemies within her borders today as her South American neighbors acted to simplify and lighten her task.

Argentina, Chili, Peru, Paraguay and Bolivia granted their warring neighbor the status of a non-belligerent yesterday as Brazil seized 17 Axis ships and closed three Axis-owned banks with assets of nearly $35,000,000.

The granting of non-belligerent rights gives Brazil the unlimited use of airports and harbors of her neighbor as in times of peace.

The hunt for U-boats prowling the south Atlantic off Brazil was intensified and an authoritative source said three were sighted yesterday and one attacked with unknown results. A new dragnet was laid for fifth columnists and enemy radio operators.

The government announced the sinking of a United States tanker, the 5,480-ton Louisiana, bound for Rio De Joneiro with oil.

The Axis vessels seized included 13 Italian and four German ships with a total tonnage of 90,000. The largest German ship was the 16,662-ton Windhuk, which was sabotaged by her crew and now is being repaired.

Informed sources reported a gradual mobilization of the army would soon be ordered. Offers to serve came from reservists not yet called and others.

FIGHTING FRENCH COMMANDOS TELL STORY OF DIEPPE

First Time at Grips With Nazis on Own Soil Since France Fell

DID PART WELL

London, Aug. 25.—(CP Cable)—The forgotten men of the Dieppe expedition —the hand-picked body of fighting French Commandos whose job it was to help open the way into the town for the main Canadian raiding force—told their story today.

Until fighting French headquarters issued a statement quoting the Commander and other members of the French contingent on their part in the raid, there had been only official references to the participation of the battle-dressed Frenchmen. It was the first time they had been able to come to grips with the Nazis on the soil of their Motherland since the fall of France.

The Frenchmen, who wore naval caps with their khaki because many of them were drawn from the Marines, were not open to newspaper interviews since they observe the pledge of silence which applies to all Commandos.

The statement revealing that they had been permitted to tell their story to fighting French Press officers said they had received congratulations from British officers for their role in fighting everywhere along the beach above which Dieppe rises.

Believe Nazis Lost 4,000

R.A.F. BOMBERS BLAST FRANKFURT AND WIESBADEN

A "Strong Force" Makes First Night Raid Over Rhineland In Week

16 PLANES MISSING

London, Aug. 25 (CP)—A "strong force" of R.A.F. bombers smashed at Frankfurt and Wiesbaden and other objectives in the upper Rhineland last night in the first R.A.F. night attack on Germany in a week, the Air Ministry said today.

The exact strength of the force sent over Germany was not disclosed, but the announced loss of 16 planes indicated that some 300 planes took part, on the basis of a five-per-cent loss. However, bad weather over the continent last night may have contributed to the losses.

Frankfurst is on the Main river, 22 miles from its confluence with the Rhine at Mainz, and is an important German commercial industrial centre.

Machinery, electrical supplies and chemicals are its most important products.

Wiesbaden is best known as a fashionable "spa" but it is also a manufacturing city of some importance and a communications centre.

Besides the two cities, railway objectives were attacked in the Low Countries by planes of the fighter command and some locomotives were destroyed, it added.

The attack was the first at night by the R.A.F. on Germany since Aug. 18 when Flensburg, German shipyard and submarine-building centre near the Danish border, was bombed.

FORAYS MADE BY BRITISH

Cairo, Aug. 25—(AP)—Forays by British fighters and fighter bombers over the North African battle area were announced by the British headquarters-R.A.F. communique today.

On the ground, the front still was quiet except for artillery exchanges yesterday in the central sector and patrol clashes on the northern flank the night before, the bulletin said.

2 Jap Carriers, Battleship, Cruiser Reported Damaged

Transport and Cruiser Left Burning After Aircraft Attack—Other Cruisers are Damaged—Battle Started on August 23.

MAIN ACTION NOW IN PROGRESS

WASHINGTON, Aug. 25 (AP)—The United States navy announced today that the Japanese have counter-attacked American forces holding the southeastern Solomon Islands and that a great sea and air battle had developed in which the enemy had suffered more than half a dozen ships damaged.

The battle began developing on the afternoon of August 23rd. and already United States army and navy carrier-based planes have effectively bombed two Japanese carriers, one battleship, one transport, one cruiser, and an unspecified number of other cruisers which the navy described only as "several."

The transport and one cruiser were left burning fiercely after an aircraft attack on them north of Guadalcanal, August 24.

The main action of the battle, the navy communique indicated, now is in progress and the navy said that it was "a large scale battle" between American sea and air forces and a strong Japanese striking force which has approached the southeastern group of the Solomon Islands from a northeast direction.

Army and navy units backing up the American Marines in the Solomons had expected a violent attempt by the Japanese to recapture their lost bases in the Tulagi area, and so, the navy said, apparently were fully prepared to meet it.

On this point the navy said succinctly, "this counter-attack has developed and now is being met."

FOUR HITS ON CARRIER

As the navy related the developing battle action it said preliminary reports "indicate that the enemy striking force has been attacked by United States army flying fortresses and that our carrier-based naval aircraft are in action."

A large Japanese carrier, the name of which was not given, was attacked by United States army bombers which reported scoring four hits.

Navy carried-based aircraft were credited with having "severely damaged" a smaller Jap carrier, the Ryuzyo, a 7,100-ton vessel completed in 1933, which carried about 24 aircraft.

In addition to this damage, the navy said "several enemy cruisers and a battleship also have been hit by our carrier planes."

The navy referred to "our occupation of the important enemy base at Tulagi," suggesting that Tulagi harbor itself may have been completely captured by American forces.

ENEMY FORCE INTERCEPTED

In the preliminary phases of the battle on August 23, the navy related, a "strong enemy air attack" was made against Guadalcanal Island but was intercepted by American fighters and 21 enemy planes were shot down with only "minor" losses for the Americans.

'Asdic' Guides Corvette on Sub's Trail As Unerringly as Hound on Scent

Home after a trip to Britain and back aboard Canadian and British Corvettes, Frank Lowe, Canadian Press Staff Writer, has written a series of stories on the sub-chasing vessels, of which this is the second.

Passed By Censor
By FRANK LOWE
(Canadian Press Staff Writer.)

An East Coast Canadian Port, Aug. 25 (CP)—The "contact" flag fluttered at the masthead of the Canadian corvette. It meant battle, for danger threatened the convoy.

It meant the long ears of the "Asdic had reached out under the gray Atlantic waters like a doctor's stethoscope, picked up the faint sound of a submarine, and was guiding the eager corvette to it as unerringly as though it were following a blazed trail.

Soon the depth charges would be rumbling. A group of hungry sailors and one reporter, about to start on a stack of pancakes, ran for action stations. The alarm bells clanged.

We were east bound, with a convoy of merchant ships under the protecting wing of Canadian corvettes and destroyers. I was on the first leg of a two-way crossing of the Atlantic aboard convoy- escorting corvettes, and this was the first time the corvette was really showing its teeth.

Our vessel hurtled at top speed for a few minutes and then the skipper gave an order that sent five plump depth charges over the stern. Seconds later, the corvette jumped like a scared rabbit. The water astern quivered like jelly, and five jets spouted from the sea.

Back on her tracks the corvette plunged, shipping tons of water as she quartered the sea like a hound on the scent. A Calgary seaman stood at his post by the depth charge rack, soaked to the skin, and sang "why don't we do this more often."

He got the right answer. This time 10 cans of the deadly TNT were loosed, six over the stern and four catapulted over the sides to splash in the ocean about 40 feet off the ship. The sturdy hunter jumped as though kicked by a giant and reeled drunkenly. Down in the "glory hole" the stokers must have thought we hit a mid-Atlantic reef.

Dirt and dust rained down from the boilers; lumps of asbestos flaked and fell from the pipes, and glass gauges splintered with the shock.

But the last 10 charges apparently did the job. The "Asdic", that mystifying —device that probes out the hidden submarine, could hear nothing. But whether or not a sub actually was smashed may never be known.

Over on the other side of the convoy, other ships were mixing it up. All evening our ship trembled at intervals as one or another of the corvettes or destroyers let loose a load of underwater death.

The screen of darting warcraft and their thunderous depth charges kept the enemy at his distance. Not a ship was touched.

However, the pancakes didn't fare so well. Someone took advantage of the cannonading to slip into the galley and make off with the entire batch.

Lieut. Smith, who went overseas, was attached to District Headquarters of the Ontario Provincial Police here before enlisting.

"My husband has never sent me a cablegram before and it looks very much as though he was on the Dieppe raid and merely wished to assure us he had returned safely." was the only comment Mrs Smith had to make regarding the receipt of her cablegram.

YOUTHS APPREHENDED DEFACING TREES

Four teen-aged boys were apprehended by Constable Rathwell in the act of defacing trees and shrubs at Victoria Park this morning. The quartette of lads, ranging in age from 12 to 15 years, had a large rope and were playing Tarzan in the small trees, thus debarking the growing limbs. The boys were cautioned at the police station and liberated after being warned to refrain from such destructive play in the future.

THIEF STOLE CAR, WRECKED ANOTHER

A motor car thief stole one automobile and wrecked another in Belleville over the weekend. The stolen vehicle was subsequently found abandoned on Bettes St. Monday. Police ascertained that the same method was used in both cases, the crossing of ignition wires to start a motor car that was locked.

Mr. Alfred N. Foster, 15 Yeomans St., reported his 1929 Durant sedan stolen off Church St. on Sunday. This car was found abandoned on Bettes St. The other motor car was parked near the Belleville General Hospital, but although the would-be thief successfully manipulated the ignition wires and started the engine, the steering gear remained locked and the thief crashed the vehicle into a nearby tree, causing considerable radiator damage. The latter vehicle is the property of Gordon Holmes of Queensboro. Police are satisfied the same car thief was responsible for both cases.

POLICE BLOTTER

Crime of a serious nature has been a minus quantity in and around local police circles for the past few days. Minor offences, such as the violation of the L. C. A. and city parking bylaws have kept police busy, however.

T. A. Tucker, 12 Campbell St., reported his gasoline rationing book missing, but was unable to inform police whether it had been lost or stolen.

Employees at the Army and Navy Veterans, unit 201 Front St., reported the theft of a chair from their club rooms early today. The chair, chrome-plated with a leather seat, is believed to have been removed from the clubrooms some time last night.

May Mystify Crowds But Not the Police

He successfully mystified his audiences with wonders of magic and sleight-of-hand, but regardless Vincent Harrison, of the Trenton R.C.A.F. base, who is better known to the public as "The Great Gardini" couldn't mystify the police authorities, with the result he is behind the iron bars at the County jail here today. Harrison was arrested by Provincial Constable Gordon Hayes on charges of forgery and his hearing will be held Thursday.

For some months past Canadian National Railways officials have had an influx of alleged forged weekend railway tickets from Trenton to Montreal and return. Special Constable Hendricks of C. N. R. police investigated and found that numbers of weekend special rate tickets from Trenton to Cobourg were being purchased, the lettering Cobourg erased and Montreal, P. Q., substituted. Harrison was arrested Monday after R.C.A.F. service police and Provincial Constable Hayes completed the investigation commenced by the C. N. R. authorities. An additional charge of fraud is pending, authorities revealed today.

Plane Crashes, Three Killed

Winnipeg, Aug. 25 — (CP)—The No. 2 Air Training Command of the Royal Canadian Air Force announced last night that the pilot and two passengers, all believed to be officers, were killed yesterday when a plane from the No. 10 Service Flying Training School at Dauphin, Man., crashed near Wawanesa, Man.

The aircraft, a plane from the No. 10 school, crashed in a field one-half mile north of Wawanesa. Further details and names of the airmen were not available.

RADIO STAR KILLED

New York, Aug. 25 — (AP) — Mrs. Hattie Bloomgarden, 37, known in radio and musical comedy as Linda Lee, was injured fatally last night in a plunge from a window of her sixth-floor apartment, police said they found nothing to indicate the fall was other than accidental.

Training of Pilot in Last War Compared to Select Schooling Given Now Told to Rotary Club

Wing Commander A. J. Snetsinger Special Speaker at Luncheon

JOINED IN 1917

The Belleville Rotary Club extended its welcome to Wing Commander A. J. Snetsinger as the new commanding officer to No. 5 Initial Training School when he with Adjutant Flight-Lieutenant Smith, were guests at the regular weekly luncheon meeting at the Quinte Hotel.

As guest speaker Wing Commander Snetsinger, a veteran of the Royal Air Force of the First Great War, drew a comprehensive comparison between the training of a pilot thought sufficient in the 1917-1918 period and the thorough and intensive schooling which the potential combat pilot of today receives. He also explained present day training methods and outlined the work of the various departments of the R.C.A.F. training scheme.

"Only about 15 hours training was required during the last war before a pilot was permitted to fly solo", Wing Commander Snetsinger related. "Then after passing on to acrobatics, graduating to service machines, and taking approximately five hours advanced training the pilot went out into service."

"Today," he continued, "a pilot does from 200 to 300 hours in the air before he goes into combat service. The complexity of the machines and the tremendous speeds with which they travel demand the extra training."

Joined Air Force in 1917

Wing Commander Snetsinger related that he first became associated with the Royal Air Force in 1917 as the result of a bit of "gambling" blood that he had in his veins. He had envied flyers of that period while they were flying over France and a Frenchman overhearing his remarks, said, "Well, why don't you join, are you scared?"

His one and three-quarters years with the Royal Air Force, was "one part of his life he had never regretted," stated the speaker.

Initial training of that period consisted of engine work and plane constructional details being stressed. There were no special aptitude tests as today. The regular medical selection board test was considered ample.

Enlisted in 1940

Following the Armistice of 1918 Wing Commander Snetsinger related that he had enlisted with non-permanent Royal Canadian Air Force and after it had disbanded had joined with the Irish Regiment of Canada.

He enlisted with the Royal Canadian Air Force in 1940 and after taking administration course in Trenton was posted to No. 1 Training Command at Toronto, from where he came to No. 5 I.T.S. as commanding officer.

Wing Commander Snetsinger explained the rapid growth of the R.C.A.F. necessary to train the many thousands of airmen required on the various present day fronts. "For obvious reasons all elementary and service flying training schools of the R.C.A.F. and of the British Commonwealth Training Plan are situated in Canada. Only operational flying is now carried out in England."

Life at Initial Training School is no pink tea party for the trainees, Rotarians were told. A great deal of hard work and many long hours of study are required on the part of the student.

The course consists of eight weeks' training with four trades being emphasized. Here potential pilots, observers, navigators and bombardiers receive their initial training.

Mathematics Stressed

Mathematics with its relating subjects is stressed with navigation, meteorology and drill instruction being given. Trainees are also taught airmanship, theory of flight, armament and anti-gas tactics, pistol and rifle practice, signals and administration.

Aircraft recognition is fast becoming a subject of great importance, according to the commanding officer. "With the tremendous speed of modern aircraft, pilots must be able to recognize the many types of aircraft instantly," he said.

Link trainers are used at initial training schools, but only for picking out potential pilot material. No training is given on the Link trainers and the ultimate career of the students is selected by the selection board, which use the marks acquired during their course of training.

Emphasized Necessity of Drill

Wing Commander Snetsinger emphasized the necessity of drill and physical training in the training curriculum. "It plays a great part in building up the alertness needed by air crew," he stated.

In conclusion the speaker paid tribute to the residents of Belleville and district in their sympathetic attitude toward the airforce members taking training at No. 5 I.T.S. "The location of the school and the sympathetic attitude of the people of Belleville has had a great bearing on the morale of the students here", he stated.

The speaker was introduced by Orland Pinkston with Rotarian appreciation being expressed by Howard Clarke. Alec Gordon presided at the piano with Harry Moorman acting as song leader.

President Lloyd Hicks expressed his appreciation to the members of the club for their assistance last week during the carnival, and also expressed the appreciation of the club to the ladies assisting at the various booths. Appreciation was also expressed to the Mountain View, No. 5 I.T.S. and Trenton Air Force bands, and to the Belleville Municipal Band for parades staged in connection with the carnival.

Tupper's Great-Grandson

Col. Cecil C. Merritt of Vancouver, great grandson of Sir Charles Tupper, one of the founders of confederation, who took part in the battle of Dieppe. Several times in the heat of action, personally, he led detachments of three or four men to destroy machine-gun posts, demonstrating the same daring and toughness for which he was famous on the football field.

AIR CADETS START INTENSIVE DRILL

Two Dozen New Uniforms Purchased by Their Sponsors, The Rotary Club

Out of a total of approximately 55 potential regular members, 20 boys of the Belleville Rotary Air Cadet Squadron are receiving drill two nights per week at local Y.M.C.A., it was revealed last night at the regular drill meeting.

Instruction in knots and splices was the particular phase of training taken by the boys of the squadron last evening, with Bob Brown, former Scout Master, being the instructor. According to reports the boys took to their "knotty" problems like ducks to water and were in fine fettle for the short period of P.T. drill given by their disciplinarian, Sam Johnston. The alacrity with which the boys obeyed the sharply issued commands of their drill instructor proved that they are fast learning the rudiments of drill routine.

Already the boys have been issued with white sweat shirts bearing the official air cadet crest and with the words "133rd. Air Cadet Squadron" emblazoned across the front. Two dozen new uniforms and new officers' uniforms have been ordered by the squadron's new sponsor, the Belleville Rotary Club. The Rotary Club committee met the squadron committee last evening and sanctioned the purchase of the new uniforms.

Albert to Have Squadron

Much of the Air Cadet training curriculum is contained in the courses for boys at collegiates and at other educational institutions, although the cadet training course will emphasize navigational instruction as this phase of cadet training is not stressed in the collegiate courses. With the opening of the next semester the Air Cadet training will be tied in as much as possible at the Belleville Collegiate, and also at Albert College, where a cadet squadron is expected to be formed. The Albert squadron will train separately but will join with the Belleville squadron at parades and other functions.

A complete set of officers has now been appointed for the local Air Cadet squadron, with the commanding officer being Dawson Boyd; adjutant, Jack Wilson, and flight commanders, Tom Hetherington, Bert Simpson and Oscar Mangold. Disciplinarian is Sam Johnston and equipment officer, Clive Ryan.

Members of the Rotary Club appointed for the Air Cadet committee are Lloyd Hicks, Morley Duff, Jamieson Bone, Clare Morgan and Orland Pinkston.

There is still room for more applicants in the Belleville Air Cadet Squadron it was pointed out by squadron officials last evening. Boys within the age limits who are interested are asked to inquire at the Y.M.C.A. where their applications will be considered.

1,451 AMERICANS,

For the various United States diplomats and consular officials whose senior he is, the 62-year-old Grew said all were happy to return and expected to use their maximum efforts in winning the war."

Mrs. Grew had disembarked from the exchange ship earlier this month at Rio De Janeiro, Brazil, where her daughter is a resident.

The Ambassador declined to make any statement beyond his prepared one. He said he would go to Washington tomorrow to confer with State Secretary Cordell Hull.

The wharf was almost deserted when the Gripsholm pulled in. Few relatives of the returning groups were on hand and those who were faced a possible long wait.

In sharp contrast to the dull grey-painted ships plying ocean waters these days, the Gripsholm was painted white and carried "diplomatic" markings. She was the first neutral passenger ship to enter the port of New York since the German submarine blockade caused Portuguese and Spanish ships to travel farther south in July.

Diplomats, newspapermen, missionaries and business men and their families made up the general passenger list.

The white-painted vessel wearing large "diplomat" markings was the first neutral passenger ship to enter the port of New York since the German submarine blockade caused Portuguese and Spanish ships to travel farther south in July.

Only a few persons were waiting at the closely-guarded pier entrance when the ship docked. They face the prospect of a possible long wait since the government already has announced that a thorough examination by agents of the state and justice departments, army and navy intelligence services and customs would be conducted.

Carried Diplomats

The Gripsholm carried diplomats, including United States Ambassador Joseph C. Grew and his staff, the Canadian Charge d'Affaires, D'Arcy McGreer, newspapermen, missionaries and business men and their families.

The pier will be closed to the public during the examinations and passengers will be able to greet their relatives only after they have cleared inspection and are permitted to leave the ship.

Investigations were begun while the 18,134-ton liner still was at sea. Agents on board took fingerprints and began their questioning.

Fear Fresh Spy Influx

Some sources aboard the ship said it was feared the drastic clean-up of Japan's fifth column in the United States after the start of the Pacific war may have resulted in an attempt to send a fresh corps of agents.

In Washington Attorney-General Francis Biddle said precautions would be taken so that no enemy agents "whom we know to be well trained and clever" could enter the country.

Similar investigations began with the diplomatic exchange ship Drottningholm which arrived from Lisbon recently. A passenger, Herbert Karl Friedrich Bahr, convicted at Newark, N. J., yesterday on charges of conspiracy to commit espionage, was arrested at that time.

First to leave the ship will be American diplomats, followed by other diplomats, then American citizens and then aliens.

The passengers included 69 Canadians, 246 American diplomatic and consular officials, 33 United States newspapermen, 1,060 United States nationals and 40 Latin-American nationals and diplomats.

Sixty-one members of the Catholic Foreign Mission Society of America and 31 members of the Foreign Mission Society of St. Dominic, known as the Maryknoll Fathers and Sisters with headquarters at Ossining, N.Y., were among those returning from the Orient.

The Gripsholm, a Swedish vessel under charter to the United States and granted "safe conduct" by the belligerents, sailed from New York June 18, for Lourenco Marques, Portuguese East Africa, carrying 1,097 Japanese and Thai nationals.

At the Portuguese colonial port, the Gripsholm's passengers were exchanged for the Americans who had arrived on the Japanese liner Asama Maru from Yokohama and aboard the Italian liner Conte Verde from Shanghai. The exchange was accomplished late in July.

On its return voyage the Gripsholm stopped briefly at Rio de Janeiro, Brazil. The passengers from Japan had been at sea since June 25.

St. Thomas, Ont., Aug. 25 (CP)—One dog is dead and another seriously ill following attacks by poisonous snakes in the Mill Creek ravine here. Residents believe the snakes may be responsible for the disappearance of a number of cats.

2 JAP CARRIERS

That night enemy destroyers approached Guadalcanal and shelled shore positions. The following day United States aircraft hit the enemy transport and the cruiser north of Guadalcanal.

To its account of what has happened so far, the navy added the brief remark, "the action continues."

There was no indication in the communique as to where the Japanese force came from in its approach to the Solomons battle area in the South Pacific.

There was some speculation, however, that it might have been concentrated at Truk Island in the Caroline group which lies northwest of the Solomons and from there had approached the Solomons in a wide sweeping manoeuvre.

Truk is one of Japan's greatest naval bases and is only about 1,000 miles from the Solomons.

However ,the Japanese have other large bases in their mandated islands and might have concentrated the Solomons attack force at any one or more of them.

Japs Hit Hard

While the course of the battle for victor yor defeat could not be judged in the absence of information about damage to American units, preliminary estimates here were here that the Japanese were being hit hard where they could be hurt most, that is, in their aircraft carrier strength.

Up to today the United States navy had claimed six carriers sunk, including all of Japan's biggest-type floating air fields, one probably sunk and two damaged. Today's report raised the total of damaged to four. In addition the army reported some time ago having dropped a torpedo on the deck of a carrier in the Aleutians area.

The naval-air action resulting from the Japanese counter-attack is the second heavy engagement to occur in the Solomons and apparently is of fiercer nature than the first.

The first occurred on the night of August 8-9 when an enemy force of cruisers and destroyers attempted to attack the American transports and cargo ships landing the marine occupation forces. The enemy war vessels were intercepted by an American screening force of cruisers and destroyers and heavy fighting ensued at close range.

Both Sides Suffer Damage

Bith sides suffered damage—the extent of injury inflicted on the enemy being undetermined in the darkness—but the final victory fell to the Americans because the enemy retreated before reaching the vessels engaged in landing operations.

The Solomons invasion began on August 7th. and has been in progress two and one-half weeks.

The initial phases of the operations, first offensive action against the Japanese, apparently moved rapidly in favor of the marine amphibious attack forces for it was officially reportred that "vigorous enemy resistance was rapidly overcome" and after relatively few days the marines were consolidating their positions and beginning to mop up the enemy's land forces.

This was carried on under occasional minor harassment by enemy aircraft, destroyers and submarines which, however, had offered no serious opposition.

Committed for Trial On Manslaughter Count

Pembroke, Ont., Aug. 25 (CP) — Pte. Lazar Kaiser of nearby Petawawa military camp was committed for trial at the October Fall Assizes Monday in a manslaughter charge arising from the death Aug. 6 of Gunner Joseph Rancourt following a collision between an automobile and a motorcycle convoy.

Identifying Kaiser as the driver of the automobile which police said crashed into the convoy eight miles west of the camp entrance, Gnr. Henry Ray testified he was leading the convoy when he noticed the automobile about 100 yards away. Ray said he heard the automobile crash into the vehicles behind him shortly after he pulled over to the shoulder of the road.

Pte. Gordon Dick said Kaiser had obtained the car from him after the two had abandoned a plan to travel to Ottawa for a few days.

Vichy Reports Foreign Planes Fly Over Lyon

Vichy, Aug. 25 (AP) — French ground defences opened fire on a great number of planes which passed over Lyon at a height of six miles for 90 minutes last night.

French sources, recalling that recent activity of American flying fortresses over Nazi-held Northern France, expressed belief the planes were of that type, but did not say how this conclusion was reached and there was no independent evidence to support it.

(Lyon might be on the route of an Allied raid on Northern Italy but no such operation has been reported.)

Planes also were heard over Vichy.

The Lyon guns fired for half an hour. One anti-aircraft dud fell through a house but struck no one.

A report from Lille said seven French fishermen were wounded yesterday when their boat was strafed offshore.

Airwomen Take Over Duties In Newfoundland

OTTAWA, Aug. 25 — (CP) — Members of the Royal Canadian Air Force Women's Division who arrived at an R.C.A.F. operational base somewhere in Newfoundland recently as the first of the women's force to go on overseas duty are "forging ahead steadily" in their work, Section Officer Frances Douglas said in an article released here today.

"Airwomen are manning typewriters that click out important messages," Section Officer Douglas wrote in the fifth of a series of articles made public by R. C. A. F. headquarters. "The voice at the telephone switchboard is a woman's now.

"Many of the cars that careen through rain-filled roads have women's division drivers, taking to new left-hand traffic regulations with calm efficiency.

"Everywhere there is unexpected praise for the girls in blue."

Airwomen were working at a large and modern hospital built in memory of the late Sir Frederick Banting, who died in a plane crash not far from the base. The blue-smocked hospital assistants of the women's division had been welcomed at the hospital, but "welcomed with reservations."

"But the airwomen fitted in quickly and efficiently," wrote the section officer. "Watching them, the matron breathed a sigh of relief, allotted some of the arduous night shift almost immediately, and put others on the duty watch that takes over at noon."

Life at the hospital was not always pleasant, especially in the crash ward. But:—

"Theirs are the minor details of an up-to-date, smooth-running hospital, carefully supervised, willingly carried out.

"And they love it."

Male Help on Farm Decreasing Steadily

Ottawa, Aug. 25 — (CP) — The farmer's son and the hired man have marched away from the old homestead in the greatest exodus in the history of rural Canada, Federal Government figures revealed today.

A survey of the farm labor situation showed:

1. Male family help on farms between Jan. 1, 1940 and March 15, 1942, showed a net decrease of more than 141,800 or 13.2 per cent.
2. Male hired help at Jan. 15 was estimated at 148,900 compared with 247,800 on Jan. 15, 1940.

Although a selective service regulation issued in March was designed to freeze men on the farm to maintain production, officials said the farm manpower supplies were likely to be further depleted.

They recalled that Agriculture Minister Gardiner had warned of further probable losses to the farm labor brigade when he spoke in the House of Commons July 25 and said the 429,000 single men between 16 and 45 engaged in agriculture March 31 represented one of two pools of manpower from which more men could be drawn for military service if large numbers were required.

Meantime, farm workers are at liberty to leave the farm and join the forces if they wish—and they are doing it.

Officials said their figures covered earlier periods of this year and probably showed the farm labor picture in rosier colors than it actually was at present. The movement of men from the farm to the forces has continued steadily throughout the year.

The Economic Analyst, published by the Agriculture Department, said that Nova Scotia, Manitoba, New Brunswick and Saskatchewan showed the largest net decreases in male family help between 1940 and 1942, while the smallest decreases occurred in Quebec and Ontario.

ASKS CANADIANS TO SAVE AND CHECK SPENDING

Ilsley Also Asks Industrial Representatives to Assist in Raising Money

HIGH INCOME

Toronto, Aug. 25 (CP)—Canada's Finance Minister, Hon. J. L. Ilsley, yesterday urged 5,000 representatives of industrial and commercial workers in the Toronto district to use their influence to assist in raising the money needed to successfully prosecute the war.

Also, at the meetings and at a press conference later, he explained certain features of the new income tax provisions, stating that if people took the time to figure the new tax out they would find it not as heavy as they first thought. There were ameliorating features, including the offsets allowed in connection with the compulsory savings plan.

The government, he said at the press interview, would be lucky to get $100,000,000 from the compulsory savings plan whereas if there were no offsets, such as allowances for life insurance premiums and mortgage payments, it was estimated the plan would produce $250,000,000. However, he said, it was not democratically feasible to finance the war by compulsory savings alone.

Some Shirking Duty

"There were some people who were shirking their duty in the matter of savings in wartime, so we had to provide for compulsory savings," Mr. Ilsley said. "But they won't amount to very much, comparatively, not more than 10 per cent of what should be saved.

"I can't imagine a country like Canada with its type of population and the richness and variety of its resources being unable to meet the interest and payments of principal when they come due, not even if we were spending three times as much as now."

Answering a question at the meeting he said compulsory savings were instituted "because we thought it necessary to set a minimum for people to save in wartime."

He told one of his meetings that "it is a fight every day" to preserve the price ceiling against "certain antagonistic parties," but it was introduced for the protection of the citizens of Canada. Then at the press conference he admitted that the situation being brought about whereby under selective service more people were earning wages while at the same time the policy of the Wartime Prices and Trade Board is to curtail non-essential industry is a theoretical threat at the price ceiling.

Mose Money Available

More money was available for use in bidding for fewer goods. Mr. Ilsley said he also thought too much money would tempt people to attempt to break the ceiling. Also, if the government borrowed too heavily from the banks, the Bank of Canada in particular, the release of such large amounts of money possibly would blow through the ceiling.

In connection with tax and compulsory savings sources, Mr. Ilsley said it was estimated the National income at present was at the rate of $7,000,000,000 a year as against about $4,500,000,000 in 1939 and only $3,000,000,000 during the depth of the depression. However, it also was estimated that between 80 and 90 per cent of the salary and wage earners were in the lower brackets, earning under $2,500 a year.

THE WAR TODAY

By DE WITT MACKENZIE
(Associated Press War Analyst)

With the onrushing Hitlerites less than 40 miles from the great industrial city of Stalingrad on the Volga, this war is getting terribly close to our own homes and firesides.

What happens within the next six or eight weeks is likely to determine the course of the whole conflict. That's how near it's drawing to us here.

I don't mean that the fall of Stalingrad would be decisive, for it wouldn't. Still, it would be a mighty blow against the Soviet, since this namesake of Russia's war-leader is an integral part of her military and economic defence. Its capture would mean the cutting of the expansive Volga, that pulsating artery of transport which in major degree binds the Caucasus to the Russia on the north. The fall of Stalingrad would make much more difficult the defence of that all-important Caucasus where the Nazis also continue to force the gallantly resisting Reds back.

But the bloody drama of Stalingrad stands out starkly and needs no great interpretation. With this picture in our minds I should like to refer to a subject I raised more than a week ago —the fact that we havent yet got the "feel" of this conflagration on which our survival depends. I advocated that we be given more detailed accounts of our own fighting men in action to bring us closer to realities.

What we folk back home need is to be moved right into the middle of the conflicts with them—fight along side them, bleed with them, and die with them.

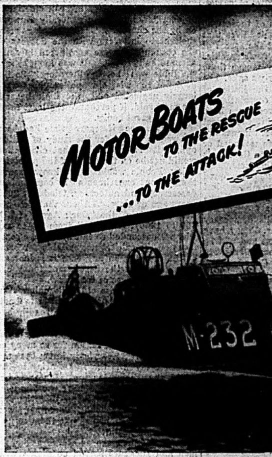
It's what we need. It's what would bring realization of our dangers, of the sacrifices our boys are making, of the other sacrifices needed from us, and it is a grand breeder of the fighting spirit.

Sure, I know all about censorships—worked under 'em in war and revolution in many countries—but the fact remains that military actions can be reported graphically and fully enough without disclosing anything which would assist the enemy.

Then there's another aspect to this situation. Quite apart from the value of such publication as a morale builder, the public is entitled to all the information which possibly can be provided. They tell us that this is a people's war—and that's right.

PAROLED PRISONERS HARVEST CROP

Sacramento, Calif., Aug. 25—(AP)—Six robust negro convicts from Folsom prison are on parole harvesting pears under guard at an Elk Grove ranch as the first step in a projected state-wide program to ease a critical farm labor shortage. If the plan proves a success at Folsom, officials said it would be extended later to San Quentin penitentiary and the Chino prison farm in Southern California.



R.C.A.F. "CRASH BOATS" to rescue fallen airmen; torpedo boats to guard our coasts against surface and underseas raiders — these and other sleek, fast-stepping motor boats have for months been quietly slipping down Canadian ways in quantity.

Typical of the new industries which have mushroomed to meet the needs of war are these young plants with their thousands of workers, and their insatiable appetite for motors, armament and raw materials from other plants and primary producers. All must have telephones — which is one reason new non-essential telephones are so scarce. All must command prompt, dependable service — which is why we urge all telephone customers to use their equipment more sparingly and more efficiently than ever before.

At Dieppe

Canadian troops who formed the majority of those taking part in the assault at Dieppe last Wednesday bore themselves like heroes and there showed the full measure of their devotion to the ideals which animate the democracies of the world. For some days news of casualties have brought grief and sorrow to Canadian homes in the loss of those who in that operation gave their lives that freedom might live and that the forces of wrong might be crushed. Their families and relatives and friends mourn these brave men who fell for liberty's sake. The nobility of their death and the justice of their cause are a great consolation to those who knew and loved them best. But still there will remain the great sense of loss. Many other homes are anxious for those who are wounded or missing. All these homes are on the hearts of the Canadian people at this time.

The whole nation feels profound sympathy with those who have lost relatives and friends for they gave themselves in defence of the ideals that have made life so pleasant in this democracy and in other free nations. They have suffered in the common cause and will be enshrined in the hearts of those dearest to them and in the memory of Canada. For those who bear the wounds suffered while fighting against the forces of the enemy there is the hope that they will soon be restored. Of those who fell and were wounded and of all who served there and will serve in the future days it may be said they were and are God's soldiers fighting against the forces of evil in the world.

Canada feels proud of her sons as she mourns the fallen and voices her prayers for the wounded and missing. Their deeds serve to intensify and hallow the resolution of every individual in this nation to go to the extreme limit of service in whatever capacity it may be given for the sake of victory and right.

Supporting the Cause

"Now is the time Canadians must stand shoulder to shoulder" were the words of Finance Minister Ilsley at Toronto as he asked a body of industrial and commercial workers for support of the Government in financing the war and presecuting it to a victorious finish. He mentioned the annual cost of $3,900,000,000 which will have to be faced and referred to the method of financing, half by taxation and half by borrowing, which the Government thought the most equitable method of raising the money, he said.

It is known that there will be somc ime in the future a new Victory Loan and people will be called upon to do their utmost to play their individual and united part in making this issue go over.

The mood of the Canadian people is such as to give every assurance that they will do their utmost in assuming the load which it is necessary to bear.

The Time Will Come

The barbaric crimes of the enemy perpetrated and systematically practised against the civilian population of the oppressed countries of the world have shocked civilization but the enemy continues in his cruel, brutal acts without shame or remorse. To these criminals President Roosevelt issued a warning the other day of the "fearful retribution" to come upon those who have been guilty of cruelties and atrocities.

A considerable length of time has passed since Prime Minister Churchill declared before the world that a record of the crimes of the enemy leaders would be kept and that they would face trial. Mr. Roosevelt said that information had been sent to Washington from Yugoslavia, The Netherlands and Luxembourg concerning the inhumanities of the enemy and that the United States would collect all the information possible in respect to the horrible deeds performed against the civilian peoples.

"The time will come," he said when those who have been guilty of monstrous acts will be faced in the courts of justice in the lands which have felt their oppression with the evidence of their awful guilt. The United Nations are collecting evidence of the crimes of the enemy and make proper use of it when they have achieved victory over the Axis.

OURSELVES AND OTHERS...

FALLACIES AND HERESIES

(Guest Columnist—Ex-Mayor Jamieson Bone)

To err is of course human and there are few if any supermen. In fact we human beings seem to live in a fog, more or less of our making. Naturally some of us are more foggy than others and youth is inclined to look on the aged, cautious and inexperienced one, as an old fogey. It is too bad that the wisdom of the ages, handed down to us in the philosophical writings and teachings of such old timers as Socrates, have been generally frowned on by the church. These teachings were thought to interfere with the dogmas of the church and were considered in some cases to be heresies. It was thought that the Bible was better literature. So the books of the wise old philosophers were largely neglected and the Bible became the most sold, if perchance the least read, of all the great books.

In any case, if more time had been allowed in school for the study of philosophy, it is probable that civilization would not be on the brink of the precipice today. People would have known something about experiments in communism, democracy and autocracy, tried out 2000 years ago or more. About that time we descended into the "Dark Ages." (A.D. 300 to 1300). Far be it from me to say why we descended so far, but I have some ideas on the subject not suitable for print at the moment. In any case it is increasingly true that the heresies of today are the commonplaces of tomorrow.

Bacon was a wise old philosopher even though crafty and a lickspittle to boot. He said "a man will the more readily believe that which he wants to believe." This is demonstrated every day on every hand and is the principal reason for so many of our fallacies. Everybody knew that the French army was the finest army in the world, that their Maginot Line was impregnable, that Singapore was the Gibraltar of the Far East and that the Jap navy was a washout. These supposed truths and many more like them turned out to be pure fallacies.

Yes, supermen are as scarce as honest men and Diogenes stayed up nights with a lamp looking for one. Needless to say he died of old age, still looking and looking. Honesty is the handmaiden of democracy, and thrift and enterprise are essential adjuncts. If these virtues are esteemed the country prospers, otherwise one false Santa Claus vies with another for democratic support on a platform of confiscation, smoke and moonshine.

Cost-of-living bonuses have been granted in many directions. Bonuses have been given to Western wheat growers and to certain manufacturers of essential products but no bonus and no consideration of any kind has been given to the owner of property. Politicians talk and talk about housing loans and other palliatives for the building industry, to make better homes for workers. Naturally we don't do it. Nothing on earth will persuade capital to go where it knows it will be destroyed. The C. C. F. should make a note of that, but it is not likely that they will. The "something for nothing urge" is inherent in the human breast and those who have messed up their own affairs take a special delight in messing up the affairs of others. Misery likes company, but it is a fallacy that works hardship on everybody.

Etiquette of Flag Flying Raised

Belleville, Ont., Aug. 23, 1942.
The Editor Ontario Intelligencer,
Belleville, Ont.

Dear Sir,—In the City and District News section of your Saturday edition is an item stating that the Chinese National flag was flown on the City Hall flagstaff beneath the Union Jack.

I did not observe the City Hall flagstaff on Saturday, but if the statement made in your item is correct, then the City of Belleville has permitted a flagrant breach of international etiquette. According to the rules of flag flying, each national flag must be flown on its own flagstaff. Never should the flag of a friendly country be flown beneath the Union Jack on the same flagstaff. According to the code this would indicate that China is our enemy and has been defeated in battle.

Maybe the etiquette of flag flying has gone by the board in these queer times during which we are privileged to live and I just haven't heard about it yet. But if the source of my information is still correct, then the city owes the Chinese an apology. Are not the Chinese our allies and our equals? We have no right to insult them by misuse of their flag.

Surely our city officials can exercise a little forethought. It is so easy a thing to check up when in doubt about the propriety of such matters as flag flying.

Yours very truly,
ALAN E. HAW

Editor's note: According to the Encyclopaedia Britannica, Mr. Haw is correct in his contention that the flag of a friendly nation should not be flown under that of the home country. Each flag should have its own staff. However, we are sure the City Hall officials flew the flags as they were on Saturday in a gesture of friendship to the Chinese Nationals here because of the Tag Day that was being held that day. Incidentally, $866 was donated to the Chinese relief, one of the largest sums ever raised here.

To Prevent Infantile Paralysis

As most cases of poliomyelitis occur toward the end of the summer or the beginning of the autumn weather, many theories as to why it occurs at this time of year are brought forward.

Some parents are apt to blame an attack on the summer camps, the public swimming pools, on swimming beaches near industrial plants. There is apparently plenty of evidence pointing toward camps and swimming places as causes.

However, many physicians believe that it is because children are tired from summer play that they are attacked by infantile paralysis as many of them are too young for camps or swimming beaches.

I have spoken before of the research work done by Dr. W. J. McCormick, Toronto, reported in Medical Record. Dr. McCormick pointed out that in all cases investigated it was found that the child ate too much starch food and did not get enough vitamin B1 in his food. In addition to improper diet, it was pointed out that these children had a history of over-exertion, of tiredness, previous to the attack.

As there was an epidemic of infantile paralysis in Winnipeg, Canada, in September, 1941, Dr. McCormick was given the opportunity of making a study of the diet and physical exertion in twenty-four cases in the Isolation Hospital.

In the Winnipeg cases investigated, the diet habits showed that the children did not get enough vitamin B1 in their diet, which diet was made up almost entirely of white flour bakery goods, white sugar, candy, boiled potatoes, and corn syrup, all of which contains on vitamin B1.

Further, in twenty-two of the twenty-four cases investigated there was a definite history of overexertion in the summer activities of youth — swimming, bicycling, dancing, rowing.

Infantile paralysis has been believed due to a tiny invisible organism although it was recently stated that a large organism—steptococcus—may be the cause.

Whatever the cause, in view of Dr. McCormick's investigations reported in Medical World, it would be good sense for parents, as they may not be able to cut down on their children's play, to at least see that they get plenty of rest.

Further that more foods rich in vitamin B1 be eaten —wheat germ, malted drinks, almonds, bacon, ham, peanuts, whole wheat bread, and whole wheat cereals.

MEMORIES

These are bits which I remember of the dim and distant past:
The notion hook and ladders and fire engines travelled fast;
The horses on the gallop and the wish that I might be
Some day the able driver of Hose Wagon Number Three;
My father's love for cribbage: I hear him now as then:
"It's fifteen two, and fifteen four, and three brave kings are ten."

These are bits from boyhood's pages the scalding tears we shed
O'er that grimmest of all tragedies—a pet dog lost or dead
The books we got for birthdays or the prize at Sunday School;
The picnic at the island where they'd built a swimming pool;
The noisy giant crackers — many a finger burned by them—
And July the Fourth, to shoot them, getting up at 4 a.m.

Sometimes alone and drowsy I go wandering back through time
To wonder if still standing are the trees I used to climb?
And what about the comrades and the girls I knew back then?
Has time dealt kindly with them; shall we ever meet again?
Has death destroyed the lilacs by the mother's kitchen door?
Is that the father counting: "Fifteen two and fifteen four?"

The days fly by so swiftly that by every one that dies
To a world entirely different from the one we left we rise.
Little joys we scarcely noticed in the years of long ago
By the magic touch of mem'ry into living splendors grow.
For although the years are many since he reached the golden shore
I still hear my father counting: "Fifteen two and fifteen four."

CHECKING CONGRESSMAN

Joseph W. Martin, Jr. a Representative from Massachusetts and chairman of the Republican National Committee, has proposed an amendment to the Hatch "clean-politics" act that would forbid the appointment to federal office of candidates for Congress within two years from the date of their candidacy.

The Massachusetts Congressman says he has received complaints that men have been urged to run for Congress with the promise of campaign funds and an appointment in case they are defeated.

He also proposed that members of Congress be barred from appointment to federal office during their service in Congress.

Making members of Congress ineligible to federal office during the term for which they are elected and for a certain period thereafter was proposed and debated in the Philadelphia convention that drafted the federal constitution.

Opinion among the delegates was sharply divided and the debate illuminating.

The Revolution was still fresh in the minds of most of the delegates, and General Washington was sitting on the dias as presiding officer of the convention.

James Wilson, of Pennsylvania, who knew how to make an emotional appeal as well as a good legal argument, very tactfully reminded the delegates that in 1775 when Congress was seeking a commander-in-chief for its army it found him among its own members.

George Washington had resigned his seat as a member of the Continental Congress from Virginia and led the American army to victory.

The result was that all drastic proposals to make members of Congress ineligible to federal office were rejected and a very mild provision adopted.

Article 1, Section 6, of the federal Constitution says:

"No senator or representative shall, during the time for which he was elected, be appointed to any civil office under the authority of the United States, which shall have been created, or the emoluments whereof shall have been increased during such time; and no person holding any office under the United States, shall be a member of either house during his continuance in office."

In 1907, when Philander C. Knox was a U. S. senator from Pennsylvania, Congress increased the salary of the secretary of state from $8,000 to $12,000 a year. Without appreciating the effect of this, in 1909 President Taft announced that he intended to appoint Knox secretary of state. Congress relieved President Taft of his embarrassment by immediately reducing the salary fo the office from $12,000 to $8,000 to make Knox technically eligible to the position.

USED FRUIT BASKETS HAVE SALVAGE VALUE

In some parts of Canada used fruit and vegetable baskets have salvage value. Local salvage organizations may be helped by contribution of these for resale, but enquiry should first be made from such groups or from salvage dealers to ascertain if they have a market for them.

In certain areas, namely within a 50-mile radius of Montreal, Toronto, St. Catharines, Hamilton and Windsor return to circulation has been made compulsory by government order if the baskets are in usable condition, that is, structurally sound, free from mildew and practically from from stain.

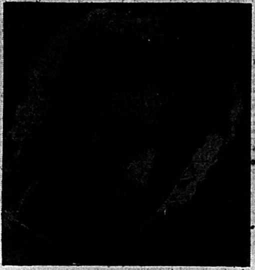
Beauty in New Hair Styles



Mary Beth Hughes likes the new short hair cut

By HELEN FOLLETT

FOREHEADS are not as bleak and barren as they have been. There's a reason. The sweet things started wearing rolls above the noble brow. Hats squashed 'em flat and many girls changed to bangs in the form of ringlets or soft fringes.

The straight back pompadour proved severe, so it is being pulled down in dips, precisely the way grandma wore her hair along about 1903. Grandma never dreamed there would be such a miracle as the permanent wave. She struggled with a curling iron for half an hour every day.

The all-around roll, parted in the middle, is the easiest arrangemen tthat has been modish for years. You take your hirsute mop, tress by tress, brush it over your finger and pin it. You can use tuck combs, if you like. When the hair is thin, silky and slinky, you'll probably do better with tiny bobby pins, almost as thin as invisibles. The thicker, longer ones are hard to manage when locks are not heavy.

With so many girls in uniform the long bob is waning. Looks too frivolous these serious times. Many a girl wept when she became a shorn lamb.

It's grand that we no longer have standardized coiffures. Hair stylists are offering many different arrangements. The short cut, done in thimble curls all over the head, is popular. You don't fold the hair into rolls, you sweep the comb through it and let it fly. One bad point; you have to have a permanent every four months, because the shafts are only three inches long. But you look cherubic, if that means anything to you.

The swirl remains correct for the older duckies—hair swept to one side at the back, sides filled in with rolls or ringlets.

Advice to the Lovelorn

Wants to Visit Boy Friend in Camp

Dear Miss Fairfax:

My boy friend is stationed several hundreds miles away from my home. I've known him over a year and he has visited in my home twice for a few days, and I have called on his mother. He had taken me to his home before he was drafted and I met all the family.

He's too far away to come to visit me often, but we correspond regularly and have become the best of friends in this past year. He wants me to come and spend the weekend in the town near his camp, as he cannot get a furlough. My family think it would be a disgrace if I went. They have nothing against the young man.

I want very much to go, but dislike doing it against the wishes of the rest of my family. What would you advise?

S.

If your family waive their objections and agree to your visiting the soldier in camp, he should make arrangements for you in advance at the guest-house. Unless you're engaged to the young man it's rather unusual for a young lady to be entertained alone at a camp guest-house. Maybe your mother could go with you or he could propose and be accepted before you make this visit.

Girls Like Him Only As A Friend

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I'm popular at parties, or where ever I go, with both boys and girls. I have loads of friends but no sweetheart. The girls all seem to be glad to be in my presence but when I ask for a date, all they say is, "Sorry, but not this time". I have a good sense of humor, a good job, a car and a fair education.

The only thing I can see which might make girls avoid me is that I'm a poor dancer; I just can't learn, although I've tried and tried. Do you think that is an important factor?

Wishful

As far as I can see from your letter, all of which I haven't space to print, your only social drawback is your inability to dance. Everyone can learn to dance. Just keep at it until you become fairly proficient. Go to a good professional teacher.

RUGS NEVER SAY DIE WHEN CARE IS GIVEN

"Boots, boots, boots, marching up and down again. . ." That's an old story to rugs. Rugs also know that when dirt is embedded in them the wear out very quickly.

Here are tips that will help those rugs and carpets last. Rather than going over a rug with the vacuum cleaner once a week for a long period, it is better to use it two or three times in the week for a shorter time.

Rugs and carpets should never be beaten; small scatter rugs shouldn't even be shaken. In doing this the fibres in the back of the rugs are broken.

Spots should be removed from rugs as soon as they are made. Rather than washing or shampooing a valuable rug, it should be sent to a reliable rug cleaning expert who knows how to give it the proper attention.

Rugs should never be laid on a rough uneven surface as it will cause them to wear out very quickly. A pad, or even newspapers, placed under a rug will lengthen its life.

Dr. Mayo Urges Removal Of Non-Cancerous Tumors

Tumors which develop into cancer are called malignant tumors and are removed without delay. There are, however, tumors which are dangerous, not malignant, and not cancerous. Doctors often suggest the removal of these non-cancerous tumors because they believe that at some time these tumors may become cancerous. Such a condition is found in tumorous growths called polyps—polyps frequently occur in the large intestine or colon, according to Dr. Charles W. Mayo of the Mayo Clinic.

When such a polyp is found in the colon, Dr. Mayo believes that it should be promptly removed and, in addition, that the entire colon be carefully examined with X-ray, and in other ways, to make sure that a cancer of the bowel is not present. Polyps, according to Doctor Mayo, frequently may become malignant or cancerous, depending on whether or not cancer runs in the patient's family and whether or not frequent and repeated irritation of the polyps occurs.

It has been noted that in about one out of every thirty-five persons who are examined with a proctoscope, polyps are found. A proctoscope is an instrument made up of a tube with lights which is employed to look into the lower part of the bowel. In about one out of every fifty-five persons who are examined with X-ray, polyps of the colon are found. It was also noted that about one-third of those persons who had cancer of the bowel also had polyps.

It would appear, therefore, that polyps of the colon occur very frequently. If one such polyp is found others may be expected to be present.

Polyps may be present in bowel without causing any particular symptoms. Occasionally there is bleeding, discovered by examinations of the stools. If, however, persons would have physical examinations made at regular intervals, including X-rays of the bowel, the occurrence of polyps might be discovered early in their course and properly treated before a more severe disorder develops. It is particularly important for those who are middle-aged or past middle-age to have such examinations, since the occurrence of polyps and cancer is more frequent in older persons than in younger ones.

If a person should be unfortunate enough to develop a bowel cancer, the advice of Dr. Mayo is that a large portion of the bowel be removed to get rid of any polyps which may be present and to prevent the occurrence of a second cancer.

MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

Knows Him Only Through Correspondence, Should She Date Him on His Furlough?

Dear Mrs. Beeckman,

A few months ago my girl friend and I received from a nice girl we know the addresses of two lonely soldiers. My friend wrote to one, and I wrote to the other.

The one I wrote to seems to be a very fine young man, as far as I can judge from his letters and from his photograph, which he sent me. Now he has written me that he expects to have a furlough soon and would like to come and see me. Do you think I am letting things go too far if I allow him to come? Since he doesn't know anyone in my city, I shall probably see him often.

Mother says she will allow me to go out with him, first because she can trust me, and second, because she thinks that he writes and looks (in his photograph) like a nice sort of person. Please give me your honest opinion.

Kitty

These are days when, more than ever, a girl is her own best chaperon. If your mother, who knows you better than anyone else, knows that she can trust you, then I am sure that the rest of the world can! Since your mother approves, I see no reason why you should not let this young man come to see you and takes you to simple-no-expense or inexpensive entertainments—movie, dances, and so forth.

Have the soldier come to your home, present him to your mother and to the other members of your family, and when you are going out, inform your mother where you are going and what hour you will return. In other words, show at once what kind of girl you are, what a good family background you have. Im sure that this soldier will be so deeply grateful to be included in such good companionship and such good hospitality that he will measure up to this honor that is being given him. As in all other circumstances, it is the girl who gives the key-note to the friendly relationship!

I am sure that your mother feels as I do—that you and she and the other members of your family have a fine opportunity to "serve", by bestowing friendliness and hospitality on a lonely soldier.

If the visit is as successful, your mother might write this young man's mother (or his nearest of kin) and give news of his visit and his well-being. That's a grand and rewarding thing for a soldier's hostess to do!

This visit can be your and your family's chance to contribute understandingly to the Canadian Way of warm-hearted friendliness and hospitality, two of the many Canadian qualities for which this soldier is serving to preserve.

Tip of Emergency Manners

We're hearing a great deal these days about emergency-this and emergency-that. But we've always heard of emergency manners. What you do in an emergency, social or whatever, reveals what you really are. Your habitual way of thinking and acting, kind or unkind, considerate or inconsiderate, generous or selfish, inevitably controls your thinking and acting in an emergency. And, happily, there are no priorities or limitations on the reconstruction job you can do on your behaviour habits.

Don't let yourself feel "careless"

When you're feeling tired, listless, "below par," you're liable to get careless, make costly mistakes. Such symptoms are often the result of incomplete elimination. Johnny Bawden Hurls 2-Hitter And 'Vets' Beat Trenton Rexalls 3-0 in First Game of Playoffs

Team Gives Excellent Support in Field and Trenton Unable to Dent Platter

3 HITS FOR GREEN

Behind Johnnie Bawden's two-hit twirling the Belleville Army & Navy "Vets" emerged victorious in the first game of the Intermediate "A" playdowns of the O.A.S.A. at the Exhibition Park last night, when they blanked the Trenton Rexalls 3 to 0. Although the game developed into a pitchers' duel, between Bawden and Louie Isted, on the Rexall mound, the local Vets. bunched their eight hits to count three runs, while Bawden and company were retiring the Trenton batters in order for six of the nine innings.

The Rexalls only got four batsmen on board the runways, Anderson walking in the third and going to third on Bowden's single. Anderson was an easy out trying to score on a subsequent passed ball, however, and Bawden died on second. An error got Austin to first in the fourth, while Barney McColl's single, Trenton's second and final base blow in the seventh, accounted for the fourth and final visiting batter to reach the initial sack.

Score in First Frame

Belleville scored in the initial frame after Jim Barriage walked, but was forced at second by Henn, who scored on Ethier's two-base blow. With one out in fifth the Veterans cinched the piece with a two-run attack after Cy Barriage walked and Bowden bobbled Ethier's infield drive. St. Louis forced Barriage and Green singled, his third bingle of the game, to score Ethier, St. Louis later tallying on a wild pitch. Henn and Loft hit in the bottom half of the sixth, but fast fielding on the part of the visitors kept the locals from the tally sheet.

It was a typical Trenton-Belleville sports battle with Johnnie Bawden firing stronger ball as the game developed. Johnnie struck out two in the fifth and repeated the dose in the sixth, while in the seventh he whiffed three, allowing one single. In the ninth Bawden struck out the side to finish the game in a blaze of glory.

The offensive [illegible] of the locals was headed by Murney Green, the Vets able receiver, who blasted Isted for three hits in four tries, as the locals collected eight hits as Bawden limited the visitors to two singles.

The second game of a best-in-three series will be played at Bayside Park in Trenton on Wednesday night, while at the same time the Oshawa and Belleville juniors will be engaged in the first round Junior O.A.S.A. playdowns here.

Sports Roundup

By HUGH FULLERTON, Jr.
Associated Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK, Aug. 25 — (AP) — What difference does it make if the Yankees are nine games in front and the Dodgers 6 1-2, did you ever see such a race as they're having in the American Association ... the standings (as of yesterday) show six games from first-place Milwaukee to seventh-place Indianapolis ... Count out Newark, and the International is almost as close—five games from second to seventh ... they're still hustling for a piece of the playoff change in several other minor leagues, too ... sidelight on a great athlete: when Babe Ruth was dressing after his first workout in years at the Yankee Stadium, Red Ruffing glanced over at the Bam, surrounded by admiring younger Yankees, and remarked, "Look at the guy; he still hangs up his uniform." ... no extra work for the clubhouse boy when the Babe's around.

The best policy

Note of refreshing frankness in a football handout from Texas College of Mines: "One reason that 'Sugar' Evans may be one of the best fullbacks in the border conference is that so many good ones are in the armed service."

One-minute sport page

Latest word on the hockey situation is that Madison Square Garden is preparing for 24 home games for the Rangers and none at all for the Americans ... wonder if that means the league is dropping a weak member or that Red Dutton is more interested in building air fields and such things up in Canada? ...... Mel Allen, who airs the Yanks games, likely will be the No. 1 talker on the world series broadcast this year ... busiest guy at the National Tennis Championships probably will be Eugene Falkenburg, who is only a week-end player. His two boys, Tom and Bob, are entered in the men's singles, daughter Jinx in the women's singles and Mrs. F. in the women's veterans event.

JOHNNY LOARING WANTS TO TEACH AFTER THE WAR

Navy Lieutenant and Track Star on Important Duty in England

IN GOOD SHAPE

By DOUGLAS AMARON
(Canadian Press Staff Writer.)

Portsmouth, Aug. 25 (CP)—Johnny Loaring, whose flying feet carried him to the front ranks of the world's trackmen, wants to be a school teacher after the war.

That's one reason why the fair-haired Windsor, Ont., boy who scored points for Canada in the last Olympic and British Empire games is happy about the job he's doing now on the instructional staff of His Majesty's signals school.

Loaring hasn't much to say about his present work—"the Germans would probably like to know something about it too," he explains—but it was important enough to get him a recall from the Middle East and has kept him on land for more than a year.

"I'm rather lucky to be doing this sort of thing," the young naval Lieutenant said. "I always wanted to be a teacher and the work I'm doing now should come in handy after the war. And what's more, I know a lot more now than when I first joined up."

Spent Hours in Water

Johnny is lucky in more way than one to be instructing. He was serving in the cruiser Fiji a year ago last May when she was dive-bombed and sunk during the Crete evacuation and spent three hours in the water before a destroyer picked him up.

Loaring was in his final year at University of Western Ontario, London, Ont., when war began and with every member of his class joined the Canadian navy. They came overseas together in May, 1940.

Despite two years of navy life, the young Lieutenant is running up to his previous standards.

"I don't think I've been in better condition since the Olympic games than I was at Epsom last month (July)," Loaring said.

Loaring was referring to an inter-services track meet in which he won the 440-yard race in 4 seconds flat and the 440-yard hurdles in 54.4 seconds, best times turned in for these events in England since war began.

Also Sports Officer

In addition to his instructional job, Loaring is sports officer for the Royal Navy barracks here and, although he says this doesn't involve much work, it gives him an opportunity to keep in condition. There's a cinder track near the barracks which isn't the best in the world but is good enough for training. He organized a track meet for members of the Women's Royal Naval Service earlier this summer.

The summer track season is just about over in England, but Loaring has one more big meet on his program before putting away his spikes. It's an inter-Allied services meet scheduled for early in September.

"I think we have enough good Canadian trackmen over here to win it, if we can only get them together," he said. He mentioned Sgt. Joe Addison, middle distance ace from Victoria who ran with him in the Olympic games, and Capt. Munro Bourne of Montreal, an Olympic swimmer who also is a handy man on the track.

"If we can get those two and another good quarter miler, and a couple of men for the field events, and...."

Wife Takes Hand

Loaring's wife, a pretty blond girl from Dutton, Ont., broke in at this point with a reminder that "I thought you said you were going to retire after those seven weekends and the Epsom meet."

Johnny shrugged that one off with one of his disarming grins and resumed—"I hear Joe turned in a 1.56 half-mile the other day..."

Somehow or other you got the idea there are too many good races left in Loaring's legs for him to retire just yet and that whenever there are any to be run he'll be out there showing his heels to all who think they can catch him.

TORONTO, Aug. 25 — (CP) — The 37-cent thoroughbred, Omar's Gift, won't go to the races again this season ... she suffered bad leg cuts during the British Columbia Futurity and her owner, Scotty Kennedy of Winnipeg, will tuck her away to rest up ... the filly's career has been a fairy story since she went to Kennedy for that ridiculous sum, and the way she responds to treatment will determine whether the yarn will be a short short or a serial.

Suggestion:

While hockey men are observing the closed-mouth policy with meticulous exactness in fear too much talk would queer the plans being hatched in Ottawa, constructive suggestions for the sports' future have been few and far between ... Al (Montreal Herald) Parsley has one that's worth consideration, and its quite a simple thing ... he recalls that in the International Baseball League a player subject to call for military service merely leaves his name and address with his draft board along with a copy of the league schedule ... when the call comes, the authorities can reach him in a few hours .... in hockey, observance of that policy would eliminate the passport difficulties that blighted some clubs, left others untouched, last season.

The expert says:

Bill (Vancouver Province) Dunford, on the news report that Lynn Patrick's wife had divorced him for cruelty: "He was mild enough at the party Ma gave for me when I was one year old."

Incidentally:

Jimmy Ripple has finally started to hit ... he was slugging for a thundering .184 until he got five for seven for Toronto Leafs against Rochester in a doubleheader last night ... The portly one usually bears down when the heat is on, and for Leafs the time is now .... Vince (Winnipeg Tribune) Leah reports that hockey sticks will be 51 inches long this season, instead of 54 inches, and will be manufactured in only six models for forwards and defencemen and two for goalkeepers ... coast reports have Jimmy McLarnin about to enter the United States navy ... McLarnin lives around Los Angeles now but keeps his ties with Vancouver, his home town ... he was contact man in Los Angeles and Hollywood for the Lions Gate Open last week, made sure the movie stars headed north in time for the big event ... Gordon Gelhaye, the gigantic Edmonton, Calgary and Vancouver football lineman, is still trying to crack the army or air force ... he turned out to one Winnipeg practice .... it would seem from reports that Bombers won't have overmuch trouble in fielding a good team in defence of their Canadian championship.

CARDINALS SLASH DODGER'S LEAD TO 6½ GAMES

Larry French and Two Other Hurlers Blasted for Seven Runs

LANIER ALLOWS FOUR

By JUDSON BAILEY
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

The St. Louis Cardinals may not have any more chance of catching the Brooklyn Dodgers than the slow train through Arkansas has of overtaking the Broadway Limited, but Billy Southworth has the throttle wide open.

His Redbirds tumbled the Dodgers 7-1 last night before an enthusiastic turnout of 25,588 fans who jammed Sportsman's Park at St. Louis for the first fracas of a four-game series. It was the tenth triumph in 11 games for the Cardinals and kept alive their still-throbbing hope for the National League pennant.

Actually it did no great damage to the Dodgers, who breezed into the mound city with a record of ten victories in their last dozen games and a seven and a-half game lead. All Brooklyn needs at St. Louis is an even split to make the September stretch serene. The Dodgers still have that chance.

They also have the comfort of knowing that the closing days of the season will be spent in the pleasant company of the Phils and the Boston Braves, from whom Brooklyn has won 25 out of 33 games.

To tear a really gaping hole in the Dodgers' padding at the top of the league the Cardinals would have to sweep the series and the Redbirds tackled the strenuous assignment last night with a full head of steam.

They blasted Lefty Larry French and two successors for a dozen hits, pulled off a double steal that scored a run, and adequately suppressed the Dodgers on four-hit hurling by Southpaw Max Lanier.

This was the only game scheduled in either Major League yesterday. The same rivals play another game tonight, then have twilight engagements the next two days.

ROWE FOR ROYALS

(By The Associated Press)

Schoolboy Rowe, twice a World Series hero and with hopes of making a third appearance in the fall classic, makes his international league debut for Montreal Royals tonight in a contest with Buffalo Bisons.

Proceeds of the game on the Canadian field will go to the fund for the purchase of sports equipment for service men.

Rowe was acquired by the Royals, a Brooklyn farm team, with the National League Club only some 30-odd games away from the World Series. Rowe, who went to Brooklyn from Detroit early in the summer, admitted upon joining his new Montreal mates that he was a bit disgusted with his turn of luck.

"I didn't like missing the World Series," he said. "I might never get another chance. It was a little rough being sent away."

Even without their new pitching ace the Royals entrenched themselves in second place last night by defeating the Bisons for a third straight time, 6-5, with Alex Kampouris' home run over the scoreboard in the fifth with a mate on base being the deciding blow.

Redmond Wins Stick Honors

The little infielder belted three hits in three trips to the plate but yielded the stick honors to Jack Redmond, Buffalo catcher, who belted four-for-four, including one homer.

A two-run eighth inning rally brought Jersey City a 5-4 verdict over Baltimore and lifted the Little Giants back into third place in the tight league race as Syracuse lost to the league-leading Newark Bears, 5 to 2.

Joe Johnson's long-distance hitting brought Newark its victory over the erstwhile third-place Chiefs. He slapped a homer in the sixth to even the score and then drove in two more runs with a triple during a four-run outburst in the eighth.

Toronto took both ends of a doubleheader from Rochester, outlasting the Birds for a 3-2 decision in the 10-inning opener and romping to an 8 to 3 decision in the nightcap on the hitting of Jim Ripple. The former Red Bird hit for the cycle—a home run, triple, double and single in four appearances at the plate.

It was the first time for the trick in the Toronto lot this season.

PUCK STAR MISSING

Port Arthur, Aug. 25. — Private Frank Parker, former Port Arthur hockey star whose feat of scoring 101 goals in 16 games as a midget league player several years ago attracted international attention, is missing in action with the Queen's Own Cameron Highlanders of Winnipeg, relatives here are informed.

Parker is believed missing from Aged 22, Parker played two seasons of senior hockey with Geraldton Miners of the Thunder Bay League before spending a winter with New York Rovers of the Western United States Amateur League two seasons ago.

YANKS BEAT SOLDIERS

Fort Dix, N. J., Aug. 25—(AP)—New York Yankees scored a 4-2 victory over the Fort Dix army baseball team in an exhibition game yesterday, but it took a dropped outfield fly to give the world champions their winning margin.

The score was tied at 1-1 in the third inning when Centrefielder Ed Longacre, formerly with Syracuse in the International League, muffed Joe DiMaggio's fly ball. The error, one of four committed by the soldiers, enabled Phil Rizzuto and Jerry Priddy to score.

The veteran Lefty Gomez pitched the distance for the Yanks, yielding four hits and single runs in the second and eighth innings.

CASUAL COMMENT by K.J.C.

ANYTIME BELLEVILLE AND Trenton hook up in a sports entanglement, regardless as to the nature of the engagement, look out for action and a battle royal. That's exactly what happened at the Exhibition Park last night when the Army & Navy Vets emerged victorious 3 to 0 over the Trenton Rexalls, and the score just about indicates the play as Belleville counted just one earned run. However, the Vets out-hit the Rexall "cowboys" eight to two, Johnnie Bawden firing a two-hitter and getting better as the game developed. Skipper Kiser's Vets are far from being out of the woods, as far as Trenton is concerned, yet, as the Rexalls are hard to beat on their Bayside Park diamond. Last night the Rexalls tossed Louie Isted against the Vets, and despite the fact he was nicked for eight bingles, Murney Green getting three, Isted gave a creditable mound performance and the Trentonians have Jim Steady to pitch on the home lot Wednesday.

NO DOUBT IT WILL BE Jim Hunter and Stacey in the second game and if the Vets give "Elongated Jim" the same fine support that was afforded Bawden last night the series should be over in two straight, but it won't be without an effort on the part of the locals. Just to show how strong Bawden was getting as last night's game progressed, he struck out two in the fifth, duplicated this feat in the sixth, whiffed three in the seventh and for good measure struck out the side in the ninth. The only two Trenton batters to touch Bawden for safeties were Barney McColl, their strongest hitter and Bawden's sizzler over short. Bawden struck out ten to Isted's two and walked one, while Isted saw four stroll to first via the four-ball route. It was Teddy Henn who paced the locals on the defence last night, while Anderson took care of considerable defensive work for the Rexalls at shortstop. Trenton only got four batters as far as first base and only had three left on the runways.

WITH ONLY TWO CLUBS, Belleville and Oshawa, in the Junior "A" category of the O.A.S.A. the team taking this round will also annex the Eastern Ontario junior softball championship and advance directly into the provincial semi-finals. Skipper Townsend's local Esquires have been idle for three weeks, but they swing out Wednesday evening at the Exhibition Park in the first game of the Eastern Ontario finals versus the strong Oshawa kids. Skipper Townsend may send Doug Adams to the mound with Graydon Rogers on the receiving end in hopes of gaining the first decision. For the past two years the Oshawa kids have pushed Belleville's teen-aged entry around, but the local heads feel it is "three times and out for Oshawa." In the meantime the Victorias have won the Kingston softball honors, while at Peterboro Jim Ellis' Plazas took the first two straight in a best-in-seven series. No dates for the district intermediate "B" playdowns between Deseronto and Frankford have been announced as yet.

THE ONLY REASON RAY Steele hasn't three cauliflower ears is simply because nature only provided him with a pair of those hearing organs, the same as any other ordinary human. However, Steele has two of the sweetest looking ears, obtained along his lengthy sojourn down Cauliflower Lane, this corner has ever lamped. Like in days of yore, when Jeem Londos was master (?) of all he surveyed in the grappling world, Ray Steele is back again acting as "policeman" for "Wild Bill" Longson, current titleholder de luxe. Wherever Longson wrestles you will find Steele lurking around the ringside keeping a fatherly eye on Longson's activities. If the Salt Lake City "mustang" is on the receiving end "policeman" Steele swings into action with gusto and even though Ray Steele or Peter Sauer or whatever he calls himself, is matched with Pedro Martinez (the mad Mexican) it's safe betting Steele will be around to protect Longson's interests when he tangles with that Irish bull of a Monnahan. There are more big wrestling names attached in Wednesday night's Hume Arena show than has ever graced the local sports palace before.

REMEMBER WHEN Lynwood (Schoolboy) Rowe, rangy Detroit pitcher, rang up his 16th consecutive victory for the Tigers at Washington eight years ago today, equalling the American League record which he shares with "Smoky Joe" Wood, Walter Johnson and Robert "Lefty" Grove? He lost his next game at Philadelphia and today is slated to be shipped to the minors by the Brooklyn Dodgers, where he has been used sparingly as a relief hurler lately.

WHEN QUESTIONED ABOUT next fall's World's Series, in which the Yankees and Dodgers are the likely contenders, Joe McCarthy, skipper of the Bronx Bombers, asks: "What series?" As manager of the Cubs back in 1929, McCarthy's team had an 8 to 0 lead on the Athletics as late as the first half of the the seventh inning. The A's scored ten runs in the second half of the seventh, and won, 10 to 8, and since then Joe has taken nothing for granted in baseball.

Expert track and field coaches seem to think there is a possibility that Cornelius Warmerdam, the high and mighty California pole vault expert deluxe, may yet soar over the 16 foot mark. And it was so many years ago that 14 feet seemed impossible ... what's this goofy world coming to, after awhile they'll be pole vaulting their soldiers overseas. At least it would prove a savings in some measure.

THIS AND THAT — The major baseball leagues have contributed around $517,964.00 to the Army and Navy War Relief Funds in the United States, with the Yankees topping the list with around $80,000., the Giants were only five G's behind in a smaller park ..... The Phillies bottomed the list with less than five thousand, but the clubs were all in their punching .... Yes, civilian sport has done its share, to date, towards war charities, but with Labor Day an open holiday here what's wrong with a field day among the men's and ladies' softball teams ... say a couple of abbreviated games, base running contest, ball throwing and other features ... Might be able to get the No. 5 ITS. trumpet band to lead the parade.....But Labor Day is only 13 days off, remember ... Toronto Leafs snapped a losing streak to win two from the Red Wings ... Jimmie Ripple hit for the cycle, a single, double, triple and home run ... It's the Zellers and Deacons in the first game of the gals' league softball finals tonight ... If winter comes, can spring be far behind?

HEPBURN URGES FULL-SCALE WAR EFFORT IN CANADA

Asks Canadians to Forget Party Affiliations for Time Being

RECALLS PREDICTION

Port Arthur, Aug. 25 — (CP)— Premier Mitchell Hepburn of Ontario said here that he criticizes Prime Minister Mackenzie King because "I don't believe the government has put its full effort into the war."

Speaking at the civic banquet tendered by two hundred businessmen of Port Arthur and district last night, Mr. Hepburn said the root of the trouble in Canada was said to be "money."

He, however, urged Canadians to forget their party affiliations and demand a full-scale war effort "rather than the Ottawa version now being perpetrated on the people."

To political leaders, he suggested Liberals, Conservatives and Co-Operative Commonwealth Federation members get together. He further suggested that Munitions Minister Howe, Defence Minister Ralston and Finance Minister Ilsley should forget their party affiliations and say they were for Canada.

"I want to say to the men of Ottawa . . . we can't carry on a policy of fooling the people with war clouds getting closer.

"I sometimes wonder whether Mr. King wants to win this war. Sometimes I have my doubts. He seems more concerned with staying in office than winning the war."

Mr. Hepburn said three years ago he tried to tell the people of the Dominion what was coming.

Laughed Out of Court

"I was laughed out of court."

He recalled that he had predicted 18 months ago that Russia would be over-run by Germany, that Japanese would attack "our coast" and that there would be sinkings in the St. Lawrence. "People laughed but they were not laughing today."

"I want to awaken the people if I can to the necessity of a total war effort. I hope it will not be necessary to have a physical invasion of the continent or a bombing attack to achieve my purpose . . . ."

The Ontario Premier warned that the war will not be won until the Allies march into Berlin. "That day is a long way off," he said.

Money was said to be the root of the trouble here, but Australia took money "by the scruff of the neck" by devaluing the pound and putting it to work to train an army of 100,000 men and build the ships and machines of war," he added.

Should Be Different Spirit

Over at Sault Ste. Marie the premier said, he saw 3,000 men parading in a demonstration strike and said there should be a different spirit as between labor and capital and, in fact between all classes of the people. "If Hitler came the country would be entirely enslaved and as slaves the people would present no menace to their rulers."

In Russia, he said, Hitler had captured practically every important industrial city with the exception of Stalingrad and had the chance of seriously compromising the British war effort on the Nile. If Germany started a big pincer movement with one prong around the Caucasus, the British Nile army might be forced southward, giving Hitler the opportunity to use the Italian and French fleets to advantage.

Premier Gives Warning

Mr. Hepburn warned that if the Germans were able to come into the open with the French and Italian fleets manned by Nazi sailors and with the enormous navy Germany has been building herself since the war began, "we may really see England with her back to the wall. We may see Germany slipping around by the north, capturing Iceland and making that long-looked-for attack against this continent."

At Sault Ste. Marie Negro American troops are guarding the Canadian side of the locks, a fact that after three years in the war "should make us hang our heads in shame," he said.

Mr. Hepburn recalled that before the war he had heard it said that a few drunken British Tars could burn down Tokyo with cigarette butts. "Those who said that did not know the striking power of the Japs.

"I want to say to the men of Ottawa—we have our men of Ottawa, just as France had her men of Vichy—that we can't carry on a policy of fooling the people with war clouds getting closer. I know I am not popular with a lot of the Grits, but I don't care. I care for this Canada of ours."

He urged members of the Liberals, Conservatives and C. C. F., to get together and demand a real war effort.

Little Benny's Note Book

Sid Hunt and Lucky Leroy Shooster haven't had their fight yet and us fellows are getting tired waiting, and this afternoon we were sitting on my front steps and Puds Simkins said to Sid Hunt, Hay, here comes Lucky Leroy now, why dont you have that fight with him and get it over with?

Just leave him start something and I'll make him wish he had a private hospittle, Sid said, and I said, Aw, that's the same thing he always says about you, that's libel to go on forever, this is the heckiest fight that ever got started.

You mean that never got started, Skinny Martin said. Hay Sid, suppose Leroy knocks a chip off your shoulder, how about that? he said, and Sid said, Just leave him try it. that's all I got to say.

Oh boy who's got a chip? Sam Cross said, and just then Lucky Leroy came up and Skinny Martin found a match stick and put it on Sid's shoulder, saying, Hay Lucky, Sid dares you to knock that off, he claims you're scared to.

Who, me? What. that thing? Good night I can blow that off with one hand behind my back, Leroy said.

And he put one hand behind his back and blew the match stick off Sid's shoulder, and Sid said, No sir, nothing doing, I said knock it off, not blow it off, just leave him knock it off, that's all, he said, and Leroy said, Aw, I'm tired of doing things to that match stick, leave him knock it off my shoulder if he's got the nerve

Okay, Sid, knock it off his shoulder, and no blowing, either, I said, and Sid said, Why what's a matter who said he's got all the blowing rights?

Nobody, only everybody's got to be original, I said, and Sid said, Okay, I'll knock it off with Shorty.

And he quick pushed Shorty Judge into Leroy Shooster and the match stick fell off, and Leroy offered to fight Shorty and Shorty wouldn't fight, claiming it was none of his business, the result being we're still waiting for the fight.

AT THE McCARTHY

"Meet the Stewarts"

Candy and Mike Stewart, that zestful pair of romantics whose marital woes have delighted millions of Ladies' Home Journal readers is now showing on the McCarthy Theatre screen in Columbia's smash new hit, "Meet the Stewarts," rated to be the year's comedy-howl of love and laughter. William Holden and Frances Dee are the carefree co-stars of the film which is based upon Elizabeth Dunn's stories.

In appearing as Candy, the bride without a brain in her head, Miss Dee makes what is said to be one of the most startlingly delightful reversals in "type-casting" of recent years. Hitherto confined to hoop - skirted characterizations, with lavendar and old lace literally or figuratively flowing all about her, the beautiful young star now appears as a zestful, refreshingly modern young woman, a girl who knows what she wants and goes after him with joyous disregard for consequences. William Holden, as the "him" in the case, is again able to chalk up an outstanding performance, according to advance report.

"Meet the Stewarts" describes the domestic difficulties of a young couple who hadn't a nickel in their pockets and a million dollars worth of love in their hearts. They try to live on a budget, but when the bride can't even boil an egg, she's bound to keep her husband in hot water! Complicate their married strife with her family, which thinks Mike is a fortune-hunter and his family, which thinks Candy is a man-hunter, and "Meet the Stewarts" automatically reaches a crescendo of hilarity particularly appealing to film fans.

In major supporting roles are such well-known comedy character actors as Grant Mitchell and Marjorie Gateson, who appear as Candy's wealthy parents; Ann Gillis and Danny Mummert, as her kid sister and brother; Anne Revere, as Mike's elder sister, who has her doubts about Candy's capabilities, and Roger Clark, who is seen effectively as the innocent cause for a free-for-all which finally resolves all difficulties.

"Sweetheart of the Fleet"

Also on the program, comedienne Joan Davis, beautiful Jinx Falkenburg and lovely Joan Woodbury in the musical hit, "Sweetheart of the Fleet," plus the short subject, "Inside Fighting China" make up a show of entertainment highly recommended to all movie lovers.

AT THE BELLE

"The Big Shot"

Bad guy Bogart returns to his rods and robberies in Warner Bros.' thrilling gangster film, "The Big Shot", which is now on the Belle theatre screen. The temporary reform he underwent for "The Maltese Falcon" and "All Through the Night" has not in the least softened him for his latest role. All the old cold-blooded terseness, ruthless action and sharp-tongued retorts still make Bogart the screen's number one tough guy no matter which side of the law he's on.

Irene Manning Has Charm

Appearing opposite Bogart is Irene Manning, who makes her film debut in "The Big Shot." Her charm plus her acting ability assures this young lady of a very successful screen career.

"The Big Shot" is loaded with action and suspense, coupled with Bogart's fine characterization of a three-time loser who is over-cautious against any future acts which will send him up for life. After much goading, he allows former cohorts to talk him into acting as the "brains" on a stickup.

Stanley Ridges, a lawyer, agrees to back up the gang in case of trouble. Bogart learns that his former sweetheart (Irene Manning's role) is now married to Ridges.

Get Life Sentence

On the night of the robbery, Irene keeps Bogart in his room at the point of a gun. In spite of this, a confused witness identifies him as one of the criminals and Ridges, who learns of his wife's love for Bogart, allows him to take a life sentence for a crime he didn't commit!

The pace of the film is rapid but never does its speed give you the feeling that anything has been cut short or left out. Its continuity flows smoothly and holds one's interest throughout. The dialogue is brisk and realistic, lending spice and color to the production.

Richard Travis (remember him as Bette Davis' boy friend in "The Man Who Came to Dinner"?), Susan Peters, Chick Chandler and Howard da Silva all give splendid performances in the supporting roles.

Lewis Seiler, who has many a film success chalked up to his credit, directed skilfully.

"The Mexican Spitfire's Baby"

Wherever gloom appears the "Spitfire" series of feature comedies declares war, and war it is under the able leadership of Lupe Velez and Leon Errol who are co-starred in the newest laugh riot "The Mexican Spitfire's Baby," which is the added laugh feature attraction.

With supporting roles ably enacted by Charles "Buddy" Rogers, Zasu Pitts, Elisabeth Risdon, Fritz Feld and Marion Martin, the hilarious RKO Radio offering deals with the explosive marital life of a staid advertising man and his volatile Latin bride when the husband suddenly falls heir to a beautiful French war orphan in her twenties.

The latest Movietone News described by Lowell Thomas will also be exhibited.

AT THE CAPITOL

"Captains of the Clouds"

James Cagney's newest starring picture, "Captains of the Clouds", a stirring story of Canada's heroes of the air is now showing on the Capitol screen. Dennis Morgan, Brenda Marshall, Alan Hale, George Tobias, Reginald Gardiner and Reginald Denny head the featured cast of the new picture, which was filmed by Warner Bros. in Technicolor.

Made with the co-operation of the Royal Canadian Air Force, "Captains of the Clouds" was filmed against the authentic backgrounds of the Canadian North Woodes and the R. C. A. F. training field at Uplands. Director Michael Curtis, the cast, and his crew of technicians travelled more than three thousand miles and spent nearly four months making the picture.

The story of "Captains of the Clouds" tells of the dare-devil bush pilots og the North Woods country who join the Royal Canadian Air Force, only to find that in spite of their years of flying experience they are not eligible to be fighter pilots because they are too old. Instead they are assigned to teaching jobs. Cagney, as the most individualistic of them all, finds himself constantly in hot water because of his disregard of rules, and his insistence that a good pilot flies "by the seat of his pants". In disgrace, he nevertheless achieves at last his ambition to fight his country's enemies in the sky, to the lasting regret of those enemies. Interwoven with the action drama is an unusual love story involving Cagney, Dennis Morgan and lovely Brenda Marshall.

Most moviegoers may fail to recognize him, but Canada's world-famous "Billy" Bishop, V. C., who shot down 72 German planes in World War 1, plays himself in Warner Bros'. "Captains of the Clouds".

CHAPTER 9

Chicago Again

Alone and friendless, Linda boarded the train. She had hoped against hope that her parents might appear before the train left the station, or at least send a message of forgiveness, but they maintained a frigid silence.

At the last minute Linda had abandoned the idea of telephoning level-headed girl might condemn Sally, as though she suspected that her hasty decision. "Everyone will read about it in the morning paper," she thought grimly, "and by then it will be too late."

Chicago, to the bewildered, heart-sick girl, was strangely frightening, but Linda scolded herself for a sudden feeling of nostalgia.

"You might as well learn to like it," she told herself firmly, "because this is your new home. Prairievale belongs to your dim past."

Having dispatched her trunk and suitcases to Diane's apartment, Linda embarked on a buying spree in the downtown stores, eager to appear as polished and well-dressed as Diane. Her determination to be natural was abandoned in favor of the artist's conception of how she should look.

"After all," Linda told herself philosophically, "I was happiest when I looked like a post-debutante. Perhaps the girls were right, and that was the real me."

For that reason, Linda's first purchase was an expensive and absurdly modern little hat, replete with veil and shining coq feathers. Next came a chic, black dress and a smartly-tailored black coat.

Wearing her new outfit, Linda studied her reflection in a department store mirror. Surely there was nothing in this beautifully dressed young woman to suggest the shy stranger who had approached Diane's apartment a scant fortnight ago.

Still she was becoming uneasy over her unexpected arrival. Perhaps Diane would be gone. Perhaps she would have other guests—other plans. What would the artist think when Linda's battered trunk appeared at her door! Linda had not even considered such a possibility! Then, remembering Diane's gracious invitation, Linda was comforted. It was too late now for anxiety. She hailed a cab, and with a little thrill of pleasure, gave Diane's address.

The familiar face of Diane's maid peered at Linda, following her sharp rap at the door of the artist's apartment. Louise's teeth flashed a welcome grin.

"I declare," she said, "if it ain't Miss Linda. Come in, chile, Miss Diane ain't said nothin' about your coming."

"She didn't know," Linda admitted. "I—I wanted it to be a surprise, Louise."

The maid glanced at a wall clock and said shrewdly, "Then you're goin' to surprise her before long, 'cause she'll be home in about an hour."

"Is it that late?" Linda asked anxiously. "Good heavens, I've so many things to do!"

While Louise took her things to the guest room, Linda sought the seclusion of Diane's bedroom. She looked up the number of Greg's laboratory in the thick telephone book, and with trembling fingers dialed.

When a man's voice announced that Greg had gone for the day, Linda hung up in disappointment, after leaving her name and address in the hope that Greg might return to his office.

She had no idea how to reach his apartment, and at last decided to ask Diane when the artist reached home. She amused herself by dwelling on what she would say to Greg. Should she tell him the truth, all at once, or be coy in explaining why she had come to Chicago, in order to keep him guessing for awhile? The latter idea was abandoned. Linda was sure that Greg would want all the details immediately. He was, she knew, far too honest, too loyal for sham and pretense. Hadn't he said that her engagement to Kyle made things—awkward? Now that she had severed all connections with her former life, it was becoming increasingly difficult for Linda to realize that she had ever fancied herself in love with Kyle Norman. Even his face seemed vague in her memory, and she was slowly forgetting her bitterness toward her parents.

"They were doing only what they believed was right," she decided. "And when they find out how happy I am everything will be straightened out satisfactorily."

She was sitting before the mirror, brushing her shining curls when Diane entered, looking pretty and vivacious in a coat of soft, grey fur.

"Linda!" She cried in amazement. "I couldn't imagine whose trunk was standing in the corridor!" and then, "Whatever brought you back to Chicago in such a hurry?"

Linda hugged the other girl with no trace of her former restraint. "A number of things."

Weak with surprise, Diane sank into a chair and stared at her visitor with perplexity written on her features. "I'm afraid I don't understand."

"Then how's this for a start?" Linda asked pertly, applying lipstick to her soft mouth. "I've broken my engagement to Kyle, given up my job, and left Prairievale for good!"

"Wa-ait a minute," Diane said slowly. "Let me get my bearings first, and then give me the gory details one by one.

"It's very simple," Linda began. "Cupid has socked me with an arrow. I'm hilarious. Delirious. In other words, Diane, I'm in love!"

She broke off as someone knocked lightly at the door, and Diane jumped to her feet.

"Are you expecting someone?" Linda questioned. "If you are, I'll be only too glad to—" She stopped short as a familiar red-headed young man appeared in the living-room, and a beloved voice called, "Hey, in there! Anyone at home?"

Linda stared. This was too good to be true! She had hoped Greg might call her, but to appear so promptly at Diane's apartment—

"Greg, darling!" Linda ran to him swiftly and in that brief instant comprehension dawned on Diane's face.

"Linda!" He stared at her as though he was seeing a ghost. She threw her arms happily around his neck and brushed soft lips against his cheek.

Did she imagine that he moved ever so slightly away from her caress? That a flicker of annoyance passed over his handsome features? For a moment Linda was taken back, but only for a moment, because he was laughing in Diane's direction and saying: "I thought I'd left her safe and sound in Prairievale."

"You must have dashed here as soon as you got my message," Linda regained her composure after a glimpse of Diane's amused expression.

"Message?" Greg frowned slightly. "What message?"

Linda faltered. "Then, you did not know I was here?"

Diane broke into the conversation, her manner friendly and gracious. "Greg often stops by on his way from the office to see if I've heard from you."

"Oh," Linda's face cleared. "I've so much to tell you, Greg, that I don't know where to begin."

"Let's save it until later," Diane suggested. "I'm famished and I know you are, too. Greg can take us out to dinner and you two can have a long, cozy chat afterwards."

Linda tried to hide her disappointment at not being left alone with Greg on this momentous occasion, and riding downtown between Greg and Diane her resentment at the artist's intrusion mounted.

"That's an adorable hat, Linda," Diane said, and Linda looked at her coldly. "Is that so strange—my having a good-looking hat?"

Diane frowned at this rebuff. It was unlike Linda to be short with anyone and Greg's features likewise were grim. He concentrated on his driving with hardly a glance toward his companions.

Greg wishes we were alone too, Linda told herself, and the thought was comforting.

When they were seated in a small, candle-lighted tearoom, Diane broke the news Linda had been saving to tell Greg when they were alone—the news of the reason for her trip to Chicago.

"Linda has broken her four-year engagement, Greg." Diane stated quietly.

Greg looked sharply at Linda, and despite her anger at Diane's presumption, she smiled coolly. Trustingly. "It was the only thing to do under the circumstances. You understand what I mean, don't you, Greg?"

Greg looked fleetingly at Diane's innocent face, and again Linda wished with all her heart that the artist had not insisted upon accompanying them. She sensed an undercurrent here — something she could not quite understand. Greg's next words ended the tension: "You're sure you're not making a mistake, Linda?" He looked rueful. "I'd feel like a heel if I thought—" How like him to be concerned with her happiness, Linda thought.

"I'm perfectly sure, Greg." There was a wealth of love and understanding in her words. Diane was forgotten as Linda stared steadily at him, until the artist said suddenly,

"By the way, Greg—I just remembered Brenda Jordon's wedding reception. You were invited, weren't you?"

"That's right," he exclaimed. "I had forgotten this was the day."

"Brenda?" Linda asked. "Did she marry that manufacturer?"

Diane nodded. "They were married in a private ceremony this afternoon and Jerry Coleman arranged for a reception at his family home so Brenda can dazzle her friends before the happy couple leave on their honeymoon," she said sarcastically.

Linda sat very quietly, her eyes on Greg, her ears straining for his words that would cancel his arrangements so that they could be alone together. There was so much she wanted to say to him away from Diane's sharp ears and sharper eyes, but,

"Why don't you come along with us, Linda?" he asked. "It would be pretty dull for you to knock around the apartment alone, while we pay our respects to the bride and groom."

"Couldn't — couldn't you stay with me, instead?" she murmured timidly. "There's so much—"

"Sorry, angel," Greg sounded hurried. "Jerry Coleman is a pretty important man to our organization and I've got to stay on the good side of him. Of course if you'd rather not go—"

"Of course she'll go," Diane put in firmly. "I insist!"

"If you're sure that I won't be intruding—"

The artist laughed. "Of course you won't be intruding. Everybody will be there tonight. This is a big affair."

v v v v

A big affair! That was what Diane had called the reception as simply as though these parties replete with caterers and famous orchestras were every-day occurences.

Linda gazed about her uncertainly as she stood in the mammoth ballroom of the Coleman mansion. The walls were banked with lilies and their odor was almost suffocating. A magnificent crystal candelabra directly overhead blazed with light so intense that Linda felt small and insignificant beneath its splendor. The room was crowded with dancing, conversing couples, but no one seemed to notice anyone else, and Linda clung to Greg's arm, finding comfort in his bigness and strength.

Greg pointed out Jerry Coleman to her and she was amazed. Could this lonely, rotund little man standing forlornly near the orchestra platform be Brenda's husband? She could see Brenda's blond head at the far end of the room, the girl surrounded by adoring young males, Linda felt a stab of pity for the forgotten bridegroom. He seemed so completely left out of things, despite the fact that his wealth and generosity was making possible this evening's entertainment for all the guests.

Engrossed in watching him, Linda was scarcely aware that Greg had excused himself for a moment and disappeared, until she felt eyes turned in her direction inquiringly, and a frown creased Jerry Coleman's forhead. Then, flushing a little for the rude way she had been staring at him, she hurried across the room to a less conspicuous spot near the wide, tapestry-hung windows.

She was watching zealously for some sign of Greg's red head when she sensed, rather than saw someone approach her, and a low, masculine voice said in her ear: "I've been watching you from across the room and you looked like a kindred spirit. May I talk to you?"

Linda turned quickly, her manner frigid. She was unused to having strangers address her, and something in the thickness of his speech warned her that the man was drunk. Drunk, but more than that, there was something suggestive in his manner. Something tense and frightening.

Quisling Drops Fight With Church On Hitler's Order

London, Aug. 25 —(CP)— Vidkun Quisling, Nazi puppet in Norway, apparently has dropped his fight on the Norwegian church on orders of Hitler, a Norwegian Government source reported today.

According to information from Stockholm, this source said, Quisling returned to Norway from a visit to Berlin "with instructions to come to an agreement with the clergy."

Apparently confirmation of this was given in a speech at Gjovik yesterday, it was added, in which Quisling, in sharp contrast with his previous belligerent attitude, declared:—

"People who organize illegal church movements are too unimportant for us to take measures against them. We will let them do as they wish. They believe they can play up German authority against us, but they are mistaken."

Hitler Cannot Count Time As Ally in Russia

By EDWARD E. BOMAR

But for the successful defence of Moscow and Leningrad, the doom of Stalingrad would appear almost inevitable on the face of discouraging reports from the Caucasus.

At two or more points the invaders have managed to ram armored spearheads across the Don River, forty or fifty miles from the vital Volga city and its last remaining natural defence line. Ahead of the Nazis is only the narrow corridor between the two rivers, sloping downward to terrain which is below sea level.

Already Stalingrad has been largely isolated, the single through rail connection with Moscow and the north having been severed by bombing, the Germans assert. Nazi planes are attacking shipping on the Volga.

Peril Recognized

Marshal Timoshenko's original southern army has in effect been cut in two while escaping entrapment, and the dire peril of the altered strategic situation has been duly recognized by the Churchill-Stalin conference and by the subsequent steps taken to bolster the Middle East.

This is only the seamy side of the picture. Actually it is definitely premature to count Stalingrad lost. The Germans themselves speak of the prospects in guarded language, venturing only a statement credited to a Government spokesman that "the great and decisive battle for Stalingrad has now begun."

Assuming that the Russians will be obliged to fall back after having checked the foe at the Don Elbow, the whole nature of the struggle for the Caucasus suggests that they are prepared to make a continuing, back-to-the-wall fight for Joseph Stalin's namesake city, perhaps matching in fury last year's defence of the capital.

Exposed though Stalingrad is, with its back to the Volga and only rolling open country in front, the Russians appear to have a better chance of holding it than of retaining the Grozny oil field and other threatened parts of the North Caucasus. At the Don the Red army has shown itself to be both strong and stubborn. There have been weeks in which to strengthen fortifications. Beyond the Volga is an unbroken, paralleling railway artery for arms and reinforcements.

Possibly of greater importance, there is some evidence that the Nazi war machine is losing much of its momentum. The original rate of progress eastward from Rostom would have carried the Germans all the way to the Volga early this month.

Nazi Progress Slower

Von Bock's armies have pushed eastward in two months more than 300 miles, an advance nearly as great as last year's drive through the Ukraine which recoiled at Rostov in late November. Now all the military difficulties of distance which played a major role in checking the invaders previously seem to be making themselves felt. Nazi progress has been notably slower in the last week or so. Beginning next month the fall rains of the Steppes are due, with their promise of slowing up progress still further.

Should Stalingrad's capture prove too difficult, von Bock retains the alternative of bypassing the metropolis and striking southward down the Volga toward its mouth at Astrakhan on the Caspian Sea. The seizure of Astrakhan is demanded by the purpose of overrunning the Caucasus and severing the direct southern route for Russian supplies from Iran.

Astrakhan, however, is another 250 miles or so further on and Hitler can not count on time as an ally.

WALL STREET

New York, Aug. 25. (AP)—The war news today received the principal blame for a moderately unsettled stock market.

Declines of fractions to more than a point predominated near the fourth hour.

Dome Mines and Lake Shore traded unchanged.

Stocks in the backward class most of the time included Union Pacific, Santa Fe, Atlantic Coast Line, U.S. Steel, Bethlehem, Chrysler, General Motors, U.S. Rubber, Anaconad, American Telephone, J.I. Case, Johns-Manville, Douglas Aircraft and United Aircraft.

Mess Room Chatter Of Canada's Airmen

With the R.C.A.F. Somewhere in England, Aug. 25.—(CP) —Bob Scott is one ground crew man who knows what the boys means when they talk of a "Shaky Do". He was on one.

Bob is a flying officer with Canada's famed "Moose" squadron. His job is squadron engineer. In other words he's top man of the ground crews, charged with seeing all planes are in proper shape. But he earned his wings back home and decided to see for himself what it's all about so he went off with the bomber men to Hamburg one night.

"That was a Shaky Do, all right," said Bob, a former engineer in Ottawa, Toronto and Kapuskasing, Ont. "The moon was at the full and after getting there we came home on one engine. I thought we'd spend the night in the drink but we got back O.K."

Scott is a graduate of the University of Saskatchewan and did a trick with the R.C.A.F. before the war. Then he went to Kapuskasing and used to fly some on Saturday afternoons with the Forestry patrol.

When Warrant Officer Norman Wallace Peat of Woodstock, Ont., flying an outmoded Lysander, beat off two German fighters it took only four or five minutes but he lived a lifetime in the interval. . . . There were only four bullet holes in his plane when he got back. . . .But the chances are he knocked one German down and damaged the other . . . And when he got home he said, "Oh boy, I'm sure going to enjoy my breakfast today".

Egg Prices to Retail Trade Show Decline

Toronto, Aug. 25—Egg prices to country dealers remained unchanged at previous levels on the Toronto open produce market Monday, while selling prices to the retail trade on top-grade eggs "A" large, and "A" medium and grade "B" eggs in the lower grade, declined a full cent. The market was quiet and draggy.

In The Globe and Mail produce report published on Saturday it was stated that grade "B" eggs advanced a cent to a cent and a half to 32 cents. The official prices for Friday contained that news in error and this office has been advised that the price did not go beyond 30 1-2 cents. The Monday report showing grade "B" eggs at 30 1-2 cents was correct but it was wrong in saying that this was a decline from Saturday. Actually the price was unchanged.

The butter market was firm under light offerings and a good demand which was fully sufficient to keep the receipts moving. Ontario No. 1 creamery butter solids sold at the previous level of 34 3-4 cents a pound.

The cheese market continued quiet and unchanged. The current white make was offered at the previous price of 20 cents a pound.

Montreal Produce

Montreal, Aug. 25 (CP).—Produce prices here Monday as reported by the Dominion Department of Agriculture follow:

Eggs—Graded shipments offering A-large, 39 1-2; A-medium, 38-38½; A-pullets, 34; B, 29 1-2-30; C, 25-25½. Receipts, 1,386 cases.

Butter—First grade, creamery prints, jobbing price 36-36½; first grade solids, jobbing price 35½-36.

JAPANESE LOSE 25 P. C. OF PLANES IN LATEST RAID

13 Enemy Planes Encountered Over New Guinea and Four Shot Down

FAIL IN PLAN

Allied Headquarters, Australia, Aug. 25 —(CP)— The second air battle in as many days in which the Japanese lost more than one-fourth of their planes and the Allies none at all was announced in a communique from Allied headquarters today.

Of 13 enemy fighter planes encountered over eastern New Guinea, it said, four were shot down, others were damaged. The only Allied casualty was one plane which returned to its base damaged.

This followed the announcement yesterday that 13 of 47 enemy planes were shot down Sunday over Darwin. Again last night, Japanese planes tried unsuccessfully to bombard the far northern Australian port. Their bombs fell in a swamp, the communique said.

Another failure for enemy aviation occurred over New Britain, it added, where two enemy Zero fighters tried vainly to intercept an Allied reconnaissance unit and one was last seen on fire.

In the first action reported aground in the jungle warfare on New-Guinea since Aug. 17, the communique said Japanese ground patrols were dispersed at Kokodo, the point where enemy forces which landed at Buna and Gona have penetrated deepest in the overland thrust toward Allied-held Port Moresby.

PREMIER FRASER IS VISITING U.S.

New Zealand Leader Has Reached West Coast and is on Way to Washington

Washington, Aug. 25—(AP)—The arrival of Prime Minister Peter Fraser of New Zealand in the United States was announced today by the White House.

Presidential Secretary Stephen Early said Mr. Fraser reached the American West Coast today and would proceed at once to Washington to be received by President Roosevelt, at whose invitation he made the trip from the South Pacific.

Early offered no details on the specific purpose of the journey nor on the probable duration of the visit. Presumably, however, it concerned United Nations strategy and problems in the war effort, particularly as they relate to the Pacific theatre of operations.

There was nothing to be said, either, on the route Fraser traversed or the means he used to get to this country.

His visit was the latest of a long series which have brought heads of numerous United Nations to the White House in recent months, including Prime Minister Winston Churchill of England.

REPORT HUNS EXECUTED 6

Grozny Centre Produces 10 P.C. Russian Oil

(By The Canadian Press)

Grozny, the North Caucasus oil centre toward which the Germans are driving, produces about 10 per cent of Russia's 216,000,000-barrel annual oil output.

The field has been listed for several years however, as past its peak. It first was worked for naptha in 1893 and under the Soviet Union was considerably expanded, with the most modern methods used for extraction of available oil.

Grozny oil is higher in paraffin content and lower in kerosene than the Baku oil which accounts for about 73 per cent of Russian production.

Bahr Found Guilty Of Espionage Awaits Sentence

Newark, N.J., Aug. 25. (AP) — Herbert K. F. Bahr, who chose to cast his lot with Nazi Germany as an espionage agent in the United States, his adopted country, awaited today a Federal Court sentence which may forfeit his life.

Bahr, whose stoical attitude during six days of trial on a charge of conspiracy to commit espionage was broken only when a jury of six women and six men returned its verdict last night, will be sentenced Sept. 2. He is liable to a maximum penalty of death or a prison term of up to 30 years.

The former Buffalo athlete's lips quivered and he dropped his head when his conviction was announced. His wife, whom he left behind when he went to Germany more than three years ago as an exchange student, collapsed a short time later, then said she had abandoned her plans to divorce him and would fight to win his freedom.

Nazi A.-A. Ship Reported Almost Certainly Sunk

The British ships suffered no casualties and all returned safely to port, a communique said.

PREMIER HEPBURN CRITICAL OF WAR EFFORT IN CANADA

Declares People Not War Conscious and Feel Sheltered Behind Britain

ON TOUR OF NORTH

PORT ARTHUR, Aug. 25—(CP)—Premier Mitchell Hepburn of Ontario criticized Canada's war effort in an interview, declaring "The people of this Dominion are not war conscious and still feel safely sheltered behind the American Eagle and the British Lion."

Looking tanned and fit, the premier stepped from a lake steamship Monday for his first visit to the lakehead in five years. He will be here two days and will address public meetings in Port Arthur and Fort William and see several delegations.

He saw delegations Monday from the pulp and paper companies, including management and employees' representatives regarding an increase in business for plants here and told them there was a strong possibility of a re-distribution of orders from the Thorold mill from which the local mills would benefit. Orders for the closing down of the Thorold mill had already been issued, he said.

In respect to the Steep Rock iron mine project he said the Ontario Government had conducted negotiations with a United States concern which proposed to carry out the development to the "entire satisfaction" of officials of the company.

"I can see nothing standing in the way of quick development," he said.

"There is no question of financing. Plenty of money is available."

Criticizing the Federal government, Premier Hepburn said "We can never fight a national and international war with a narrow-minded, bigoted party in charge at Ottawa. This is the Liberal party's war effort."

Not Using Manpower is Claim

"We had better stop losing the war before we talk about winning it," he said. "The hope of the Allied nations lies in the mass production of the United States. If that fails, this continent will face the fury of the Axis powers. We will then be isolated and alone."

Before the war, Canada was the fifth trading nation of the world, yet today the country was not using its manpower and production capacity to the best of its ability.

"We must have a much greater regimentation of manpower before we can say we have a war effort. We are still producing unnecessary consumer goods when we should be turning out machinery of war. We started to prepare for war 15 years too late and while we were investing in idleness, Hitler was investing in arms. The question is whether we started too late".

Hitler was using the "slave" labor of conquered countries of Europe and the war machines of France, Czecho-Slovakia and Poland. Economically Sweden and Turkey were his satellites.

Russia in Great Danger

The latest war news has shown that Russia was in danger of losing her supplies of coal, steels, oil and food. On the other side of the world the Japanese had taken the rich resources of the Philippines, Siam, Burma, Malay and parts of China and were using it for her own big war effort. And in the Far East India was not particularly friendly.

"There is a concerted effort at Ottawa to conceal the truth about the war," the premier said. "We are not allowed to know about the sinkings in the St. Lawrence. We do know that more than 400 ships have been sunk off the United States coast and this would indicate that losses in other parts of the Atlantic involving British and Canadian ships, must have been terrific."

Asked About Protests

The premier was asked about protests made here from time to time against the export of raw timber to United States mills. Those protesting, he was told, felt the timber should be processed here and in other Canadian mills.

"That's the old Tory idea of having your cake and eating it too," the premier replied. "The export of raw materials from Canada is provided for under the Hyde Park agreement and if we were to stop this movement, the Americans might retaliate by stopping the export of airplane engines and other essential war materials to Canada."

Stating that Dominion government approval had not been obtained for the Ogoki water diversion project in this district, Mr. Hepburn said "this latest blockage of premier King's is nothing new. He did the same thing with the Long Lac development, one of the greatest projects we ever undertook in Ontario.

Mr. Hepburn said the United States had consented to Canada increasing its diversion at Niagara Falls to allow the Hydro Commission to operate its three plants there at maximum capacity before the Ogoki project was completed. "It will be two years before the full effect of Ogoki will be felt at Niagara," he said.

The premier parried questions about rumors of a possible provincial election and turned questioner himself by asking the reporters what they thought. When one reporter said he did not care to express any opinion himself, the premier replied "And neither do I."

battle" and the Daily Mail that "action by the Allies at no distant date would appear inevitable".

Time, however, appeared to be a crucial factor in Hitler's race to strike home a decisive blow ahead of the Allies' gathering thunderheads. This was accented last night by Moscows' radio warning of great danger in the Caucasus.

The Russian Publicist Yemelyan Yaroslavsky said the threatened isolation of the south from the rest of Russia could have grave consequences, possibly new peril for Leningrad and Moscow, possibly the release of Axis forces for action in the west.

For the fourth time in eight days United States' Flying Fortresses were back over French territory in daylight yesterday.

The big bombers, escorted by fighters of the R.A.F., R.C.A.F., the U.S. Air Force and the Polish Air Force, reached their target—Nazi shipyards at Le Trait, on the Seine River near Rouen— and all 1. came home. The fighter screen at one time held off forty German planes which tried to intercept the bombers.

Two Planes Missing

Two escorting planes are missing but two Canadian pilots Sqdn. Ldr. Norman Bretz of Toronto, who recently took over from Sqdn. Ldr. R. E. Morrow of Ottawa, and Flt. Lt. E. Bland of Calgary—each bagged one of the two Focke-Wulf 190s shot down.

Bland came back with a head injury but waved aside help as he crawled from the cockpit at his base. "I'm O.K.", he told those who went to help him.

The R.A.F. which has specialized on the night shift of the round-the-clock air assaults, again showered western Germany with incendiaries and high explosives last night, apparently in considerable force, according to a German report.

Growing air activity over the Egyptian desert and persistent Axis efforts to get more men and machines across the Mediterranean were construed as pointing to North Africa as a potential major front again.

The weather is growing more favorable for desert fighting and, British observers have pointed out, Hitler could not ignore that southern claw if he has hopes of swift mastery of the trans-Caucasus.

BRAZILIANS MOVE

Citizens Pledge Support

Large groups of citizens visited the palace of President Getulio Vargas to express their support. Even Julio Prestes, the president-elect in 1930 whom Vargas ousted by revolution, sent a message from his farm applauding the government's action.

While granting Brazil non-belligerent status, Argentina did not move far, if at all, from her policy of "prudent neutrality" and in another move indicated she planned to avoid possible shipping difficulties with the Axis by re-routing vessels bound for the United States around the Straits of Magellan to the west coast. The State Merchant Fleet offices announced that the liner Rio De La Plata, scheduled to sail next month for New Orleans, would go to San Francisco instead.

However, the Argentine foreign minister Enrique Ruiz Guinazu, in a letter to the Brizilian ambassador in Buenos Aires, said Argentina "in solidarity with the united states of Brazil reaffirms once more her faith in a permanent regime of right and respect in the inter-relations of peoples . . . "

Argentine and Chile are the only South American countries still maintaining relations with the Axis. Chile was extremely cordial to her Brazilian neighbor, however, and Foreign Minister Ernesto Barros told the Brazilian ambassador that Chile would not permit "any kind of activities in the national territory or waters of Chilean jurisdiction which might harm" Brazil.

FIGHTING FRENCH

mander was identified only as a big Alsatian who worked in a New York bank before the war. He said he believed the Germans lost 4,000 men, including Air Force personnel, during the operation.

"We had groups at Varengeville, Dieppe and Berneval", said the Commander. "On the beach in front of Dieppe where the tanks landed the going was pretty tough. I think our men enjoyed themselves best at Varengeville where a German battery was silenced and an entire German garrison of 200 men was killed or taken prisoner.

"My adjutant can tell you more about Berneval because he was there".

The adjutant, a 27-year-old Breton lieutenant who joined the French navy as a cabin boy when 12, said he had been so busy fighting he had little time to observe what went on about him.

"I remember before landing we were told to put on steel helmets but my men asked to be exempt from the order and be allowed to wear their sailor caps so that the Boche could recognize the red French pom-poms.

"The men also were asked before setting out whether they wished to remove the 'France' flashes from their shoulders. It was explained that the Germans might shoot them on sight instead of giving them normal treatment accorded prisoners of war if they were captured. They refused.

A Thrilling Moment

"When we stepped on French soil it was a thrilling moment for everyone—but something special for us. Silly things flashed through our heads as we waited to jump from the boats. One of my men told me he was hoping to see a billboard advertising something in French.

"When a seagull screamed over my head I remember saying to myself 'that's a French seagull' and I almost cried. But once we set foot on the beach we had no time to indulge in such sentimentalities.

"Very fierce fighting developed on the sands. Three times we were repulsed and three times we reformed to attack. Of the actual fighting I can remember little. We faced a curtain of lead. I do remember that at the end when we were re-embarking I was waiting for one of my men, a tall, fair boy from Normandy who was staggering down the beach with a wounded British soldier over his shoulder.

"Machine-gun bullets were kicking up a minor sandstorm all around him. The soldier reached the boat all right but the Tommy was dead. We had to leave him behind."

Others among the Frenchmen who returned from their first strange visit home since they joined Gen. Charles de Gaulle's forces told stories such as the one described by the commander.

"Pte. Robert Z." set out for Dieppe with a 10-franc piece he brought back from Dunkirk.

"I fully intended spending it at Dieppe but somehow I never got the time," the private said, sorrowfully.

"The Germans fight hard but they're inclined to surrender quickly once they're cornered," he added.

Comradeship Perfect

Another Frenchman described the camaraderie between the British and French commandos as "perfect." He said the Frenchmen and the Canadians "got along very well — many Canadians spoke French far more fluently than English."

The sight of ships flying the Lorraine Cross and the Tricolor as they lay off shore and poured their fire into the Nazi defences thrilled all the French commandos. One of them said that when a French submarine chaser shot down a Nazi bomber there was a cheer "Vives les Free French" from the British troops.

The Fighting French newspaper "La Marseillaise," telling of the return of the Frenchmen, said their faces were "battle-stained and their battledress in disorder. Everything indicated a hot fight but the men were calm though exhausted and in their eyes burned joy beyond expression."

DUKE OF KENT, FOURTEEN OTHERS, KILLED IN CRASH

Germans Lunge Through Two Breaks in Russian Lines

NAVAL SUPREMACY IN PACIFIC MAY BE OUTCOME

Flying Boat Taking Party to Iceland Crashes in Scotland

Authoritative Sources Say Accident In No Way Due To Enemy Action

VISITED CANADA IN 1941

London, Aug. 26 —(CP)— All Britain, where the grievous message "killed on active service" has darkened countless households, offered understanding sympathy today to the Royal Family, bereaved by the death of the Duke of Kent, the King's youngest brother, on a wartime mission.

The Duke, fifth in succession to the throne, died in the line of duty yesterday when the Sunderland flying boat which was taking him to Iceland for the Royal Air Force crashed in northern Scotland.

Circumstances surrounding the crash of the four-engined, 20-ton flying boat were held in strict secrecy but an authoritative source said it was in no way due to enemy action.

The plane was believed to have crashed against a mountain.

The Lord Chamberlain announced that by Command of the King the Court would remain in mourning four weeks.

Fourteen Others Killed

Among those in the plane was Michael Strutt, the Duke's aide and son of Lord Belper. He is survived by his widow, the former Arielle Frazer, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Washington Frazer of Detroit.

Fourteen of the 15 persons in the plane were killed and their bodies recovered. The only survivor was the rear gunner.

The body of the Duke, who was the first member of the Royal Family killed in an airplane and its first to become a fatality of war in a century, was to be brought to London later.

An Air Ministry investigation has been launched into the crash which occurred in desolate country about 60 miles from the takeoff. Press reports said it was in an area where other planes have been wrecked. Semi-official sources emphasized that the pilot was one of the most capable in the R.A.F.

The 39-year-old youngest son of Queen Mary and the late King George V was the most air-minded of all the Royal Family.

His career in Britain's service began as a naval cadet, at his father's choice, before he was 14. But his interest turned to aviation and he served devotedly with the R.A.F.

One of his last official acts was to visit an R.C.A.F. reception centre last week with the Canadian Air Minister, Hon. C. G. Power. In 1941 he made an extended tour by air of the ever-growing Commonwealth Air Training Plan in Canada.

He bore the air title of air commodore and was attached to the staff of the inspector-general of the R.A.F. The names of his companions on the fatal flight were not announced immediately.

His death was announced in a brief communique just before midnight. It said:

Canadian Padre Returns to Beach To Be With Men

London, Aug. 26 —(CP Cable) —Under a heading "The Men of Dieppe," the News Chronicle told this story Tuesday:—

The raid was over. Loaded barges were pulling out of Dieppe. Suddenly on one barge carrying Canadian soldiers a man stepped to the side. On his battledress he wore the three pips of a captain and a deep purple ribbon.

He was the Presbyterian padre who had accompanied his unit on the raid and had landed with the troops, scaled cliffs and when the signal was given returned to the beach.

"I'm going back," the padre shouted to the men. "There are enough padres in England. Our fellows left behind will need help."

He dived overboard and swam ashore. Before the barge pulled out of sight he could be seen wading up the beach.

The identity of the padre can not yet be revealed. One of the men of his unit said "he was the finest guy in the regiment."

The padre is a 40-year-old Canadian Scot and had trained and lived with the men.

"And he was tough," said a Canadian soldier. "There was nothing of the armchair padre about him."

Hit Axis Convoy On Mediterranean, Batter Land Convoy

Cairo, Aug. 26 —(AP)— British planes scored direct hits on an Axis transport in the Mediterranean and attacked a land convoy moving reinforcements over the Salum-Matruh road toward the enemy front lines in North Africa, the army headquarters-R.A.F. communique said today.

Otherwise, however, the Egyptian front was quiet save for customary harassment of enemy patrols and working parties Monday night.

U. S. AND AUSSIE BOMBERS BURN 13 JAP PLANES

Hammer Jap Bases, Attack Landing Barges, Supplies and Small Convoy

JAP GUNBOAT SUNK

By C. YATES McDANIEL
(Associated Press Staff Writer)

Melbourne, Aug. 26 (AP)—Allied fliers had one of theri gusiest days yesterday with hard-hitting offensive and defensive blows while Allied sea and air forces were fighting off a powerful Japanese counter blow in the Solomon —Islands.

Observers, who may not be quoted by name, said today the sea battle 900 miles east of Australia may well write a decisive climax to the first act of the drama of the Solomons.

Medium and heavy American and Australian bombers delivered destructive low-level attacks on an enemy landing field in the Bungona area of New Guinea, burning 13 Zero planes on the ground; hammered key Japanese bases at Timor and New Britain; attacked landing barges and supplies southeast of Buna and a small convoy off the Tobriand Islands.

The attacks off the northeast shore of New Guinea on the barges and convoy indicated the Japanese were attempting to creep southeastward along the shore. The Trobiand Islands lie due south of New Ireland and 165 miles northeast of Buna. The convoy was escorted by warships, and one gunboat was sunk. An undetermined number of casualties was inflicted by machine-gun bullets which swept the decks of two transports. The Allies lost one fighter.

Commenting on the Solomon Island battle, the Melbourne Herald said today: "The news that a great sea and air battle is raging in the Solomon Islands confirms what has been fully anticipated. Japan could not accept the Allied successes on the islands without a major effort to reverse the situation. The consequences of the loss of the Solomons would be so serious to Japan and their capture of such importance to the Allies that it may be assumed that the greatest available naval and sea-borne air strength has been thrown into the battle from the beginning of the operations. Allied observers realize that the real test is yet to come.

"If we had allowed the Japanese to become settled and to fortify these islands, or if they get them back now, especially the Tulagi area, they might well be made impregnable and it might take 20 years to drive them out."

Canadian Raid on Dieppe May Point Way to Break West Front Deadlock

By FRANK FLAHERTY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA, Aug. 26 — (CP) —The raid on Dieppe a week ago today may prove to be a distinctly Canadian contribution to the technique of modern warfare as well as a contribution to the ultimate victory of the United Nations, in the opinion of some students of military history.

After appropriate study from all angles it may point the way to a break in the present deadlock in the West just as the trench raids, also invented by Canadians, proved a means of ending a deadlock in the First Great War.

Similarities between the present position of the German and Allied forces and that which prevailed in the fall of 1915 have been noted. Both then and now the two forces confronted each other without apparently, being able to get at each other except by big offensive operations which involved tremendous preparations, great accumulations of men and material and great losses.

Then it was the system of trench warfare which both sides followed which brought movement to a standstill. Now it is the stretch of water which separates Britain from the continent of Europe.

In November, 1915, the 7th Canadian Battalion, then under command of Victor Odlum of Vancouver, now a Major-General and High Commissioner in Australia, pulled off the first successful trench raid.

A way was found of getting into the enemy trenches. It involved careful preparation, rehearsals of the part each man was to play and surprise. On the first raid a handful of men broke into the German trenches, smashed things up, killed 50 Germans and brought back 12 prisoners at the cost of one man killed and one wounded.

The purposes of the trench raids which became standard practice throughout the British and French armies as a result of that experiment were to shatter the morale of the enemy, to damage his installations and to obtain information from prisoners and first-hand observation.

By this time the men who conceived and executed the raid probably know whether its results show the possibility of punching a permanent hole through which a mechanized army can march or a series of similar temporary holes for the purpose of harassing the enemy, and forcing him to tie up more men in the West while the Russians fight on in the East.

Tanks and Other Armored Machines Near Stalingrad

By HENRY C. CASSIDY
(Associated Press Staff Writer)

Moscow, Aug. 26 (AP).—Two successive German thrusts through Russian lines between the Don and Volga placed Stalingrad today in immediate peril of siege.

As the German tanks and other armored machines lunged ahead, thousands of workers from Stalingrad factories took up arms on the highest west bank of the Volga to help the Red army defend the great industrial city.

German vanguards had reached the flat, sandy plain extending to the Volga just northwest of Stalingrad and Russian tanks were fighting them in running battle, bringing them to at least a temporary halt.

Close To City.

Red Star said a German force which landed between two Red army units had "reached a district just northwest of Stalingrad" before it was halted, implying that the invaders were only a few miles from the city if not at its suburbs.

Russian lines re-formed behind screening tanks, the military newspaper reported.

"The situation in this sector has become complicated," the Soviet Information Bureau said.

Huge Enemy Army.

Russian troops, however, were reported still repulsing attacks by the vanguards of a 1,000,000-man German army both above and below Stalingrad.

Only in the sector below Krasnodar were Russian detachments reported to have fallen back and defensive fire and Soviet mines were declared to have accounted for seven more German tanks and thirteen infantry-laden trucks in that western Caucasian campaign.

The army newspaper Red Star said several Nazi tank divisions had crossed the Don bend to the 40-mile corridor between the Don and Volga rivers and a tense engagement raged near a settlement northwest of Stalingrad.

Advance Resisted Strongly

Russian tanks dispatched directly from their bases were reported to have checked the Germans in fighting still progressing. Russian gun crew, infantrymen and planes deployed to meet supporting Nazi artillery, motorized infantry and air squadrons streaming across the Don from the Cossack Steppes.

Field dispatches said a Red Army force cut sharply into a flank of the relatively thin German salient east of the Don, but the invaders resisted fiercely and continued to advance frontally.

Defenders of Stalingrad killed 1,350 Germans and blasted 53 tanks out of action in three engagements yesterday, the Soviet information bureau said, and destroyed 92 planes of the bombers fighters and aerial troop carriers which have swarmed against them in the last two days.

Still the Germans and their Axis allies—estimated at from 80 to 100 divisions—maintained the offensive in the attempt to seize industrial areas on the lower Volga, slash Caspian shipping routes and isolate the Caucasus.

Workers Take Up Arms

A dispatch from Stalingrad said the people of the city had taken up arms on the high west bank of the Volga as the German armored forces bore down from the breakthrough at the Don.

Izvestia's correspondent said thousands of workers from the factories, including the Stalingrad Tractor Works and the Red October Metal Works, had been trained under battle conditions to use rifles, automatic machine-guns and mortars.

"All these fighters are ready to join the ranks of the acting army," Izvestia said. Last winter, hundreds of thousands of workers helped turn the Germans back from Leningrad and Moscow.

A ray of hope amid the sombre military news was contained in a Red Star editorial which said "The battles in the south have entered a new phase" now that the Germans have reached the main barrier of the Caucasus Mountains.

The campaign previously has been on the broad plains and foothills.

"Natural conditions of the rough terrain of the North Caucasus have changed conditions in this sector of the front," Red Star said. The paper pointed out that the mountains had blocked German tanks and motorized infantry forces.

"By large and small battles of extermination and constant wearing down of the enemy, our units should make the enemy completely helpless in the mountains," Red Star said.

The German air force, however, was striking in force but dispatches said the Red Army had suffered virtually no casualties because they found ample cover in the rocky hills. But the enemy's planes prevented Red Army counter-attacks from pinning Nazi troops down.

R.A.F. IN FORCE CROSSES CHANNEL TO RAID NAZIS

Coastal Command Bombers Hit Two Ships in German Convoy

2 NAZI PLANES DOWNED

(By LOUIS V. HUNTER)
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, Aug. 26. (CP Cable)—The demon squadron of the R.C.A.F. bombed and damaged two enemy ships in a moonlight attack on a convoy off the Frisian Islands last night.

All aircraft returned safely after a brush with Nazi fighters protecting the convoy.

Wing Cmdr. A. C. Brown of Winnipeg, led the attack against the convoy, which consisted of four supply ships and five anti-aircraft vessels. The raid was executed in the face of intense flak from the escort ships and opposition of night fighters, R.C.A.F. headquarters announced.

As Brown swept down to bomb one of the ships, he saw a large column of smoke nearly 500 feet high pouring from a boat which had been attacked a few minutes earlier by P.O. Gord Walsh of Victoria. After Brown's attack another column of smoke rose from the convoy.

Chinese Announce Recapture of Tungsiang, 50 Miles to Southeast

RAILROAD CENTRE

CHUNGKING, Aug. 26 — (AP)—The counter-attacking Chinese have occupied a point 4 1-2 miles from Chuhsien and are developing a "concerted attack" on that strategic Chekiang provincial city from which Japan could be bombed, the Chinese High Command announced tonight.

Chuhsien is the site of the biggest air field in China, built by the labor of 200,000 coolies.

The Chinese attack upon it extends the Chinese grasp upon the Chepiang-Kiangsi railway to about 165 miles, 40 of them in a coastal Chekiang in a thrust from the west, the remainder in Kiangsi in drives from both east and west.

At one point in the present campaign the Japanese briefly held the entire railway.

The Japanese today were reported to be still drawing their forces toward Nanchang, their big invasion base in Northern Kiangsi province, following Chinese recapture of Tungsiang, 50 miles to the southeast.

SECRET WEAPON OF ALLIES WILL 'SURPRISE' HUNS

United States and British Production Can Equip Full-Sized Army Anywhere

TYPE NOT REVEALED

London, Aug. 26—(CP)—Brig.-Gen. G. M. Barnes, head of the United States Army Ordnance mission, said today the British and Americans both are producing a secret weapon which will prove "a great surprise" to the Germans.

Speaking after a tour of British munitions factories, he declared that United States and British armament production is sufficient both in quality and quantity for "the support of a full-sized army in any enterprise."

Gen. Barnes said some of the new British weapons now in production are "real eye-openers."

The General, 56, is chief of the U.S. War Department design section and an expert on the design and manufacture of heavy ordnance, particularly anti-aircraft guns. He arrived in London recently at the head of a technical mission to work with the British authorities in correlating Allied fighting material.

The type of the new secret weapon was not hinted.

Women in Arms Plants

"A three-week tour of British factories has convinced me that America has a lesson to learn in the employment of women in munitions making," the general said at a Press conference.

"We employ women, but we are going to have to employ many more. The British are using women in tasks such as boring guns, which in the United States is done only by skilled mechanics."

A spokesman for the Ministry of Supply, under whose auspices the General came to Britain, interrupted to say that in production of certain parts of a new British anti-tank gun, 80 per cent. of the work was done by women.

The spokesman said the ministry is considering sending a group of British munitions workers to the United States to instruct American women in certain types of work.

Ordnance Co-ordination

British and United States Ordnance already is rapidly being coordinated so that it can be used interchangeably by the two armies, Gen. Barnes said, and cited such devices as anti-aircraft artillery and gun mounts.

Jap Scheme for 'Greater East Asia' Not Working Out Says Writer

New York, Aug. 26 (AP).—The Japanese scheme for a "greater co-operative East Asia", their version of the Nazi new order, is not working out, either politically or economically, Relman Morin, Associated Press correspondent, said today.

Morin interned and questioned by the Japanese at Saigon, French Indo China, at the start of the Pacific war, returned yesterday on the exchange liner Gripsholm. Before going to Saigon, Morin had been AP chief of bureau in Tokyo, 1937-1940, and then began a roving assignment which took him to Malaya and the Netherlands East Indies.

"The scheme was never anything but a propaganda lure in any case," Morin said. "In some areas taken by the Japanese army during the last nine months—in former white colonies or territories—the native populations are co-operating almost 100 per cent with their new rulers. In others, Orientals not only fought to keep out the Japanese, but even today are resisting in their own quiet ways."

Conditions Develop Swiftly.

Chaotic conditions developed swiftly following the Japanese conquest of southeastern Asia, Morin said he had learned in talks with various American observers, doctors and economists, and the food problem was weekly growing more acute in Japan herself.

Vaughn Meisling, former Associated Press correspondent at Hong Kong, said the so-called Japanese co-prosperity hit the once rich British crown colony "like a desert wind". Hunger, looting and disease prevailed.

Morin, outlining the results of the Japanese attempt to win over the Oriental peoples, put it this way:

CHINESE—Probably 65,000 Chinese followers of the Wang Ching-Wei puppet regime served Japanese interests in and around Hong Kong before the war and acted as spies and fifth columnists. The remainder

Battle of Solomons Apparently Raging In Increased Fury

West of Islands Allied Planes Smash At Eastbound Japanese Convoy

JAPAN RISKING ALL

By JOHN W. WIGGINS
(Associated Press Staff Writer.)

Washington, Aug. 26 (AP)—The battle of the Solomons apparently was raging with increased fury in a widening area today as the Japanese rushed reinforcements for an armada seeking to recapture American-held shore bases.

Locked in sea and air engagements which may possibly determine naval supremacy of the Pacific, American forces inflicted severe damage on enemy warships and planes in the southeastern group of the Solomons while about 450 miles west Allied planes from Australia headquarters smashed at an eastbound Japanese convoy.

The entire picture of the spreading conflict was far from complete but scattered reports from the navy here and from Australian headquarters made it clear that Japan was risking a heavy portion of its fleet on a desperate effort to dislodge American marines from their hard-won positions in the Solomons

The counter-attack, fully expected by the United States navy, already has brought bombing or torpedoing of more than half a dozen Japanese ships in the Solomons plus the strafing of two transports and destruction of a gunboat off southeastern New Guinea.

Two Jap Carriers Damaged

The damaged vessels included one large and one small aircraft carrier. Only eight carriers were known to have been part of the enemy fleet before the war, although others may have been added secretly. Six Japanese carriers were sunk in previous actions, including four in the Midway battle, one probably destroyed, and three others damaged there and off the Aleutian Islands.

Additional punishment in the Solomons battle was inflicted by Allied carrier-based planes on a Japanese battleship and several cruisers. Aircraft left another enemy cruiser and transport in flames.

Thus far there have been no reports on the extent of American losses beyond the minor damage suffered at the opening of the conflict on Aug. 23, when 21 Japanese planes were listed as destroyed in an attack on Guadalcanal Island.

13 Jap Grounded Planes Destroyed

Approximately 150 miles west of the convoy action, Gen. Douglas McArthur reported destruction of 13 grounded Japanese planes and silencing of an anti-aircraft battery in two surprise attacks on Buna, on the southeastern New Guinea mainland.

ASK FOR EVIDENCE RESULTS PRODUCED BY MOSCOW VISIT

Several London Newspapers Comment Upon the Situation

EFFICIENCY OF EFFORT

London, Aug. 26 (CP).—Several London newspapers said today that Britain looks for concrete evidence that Prime Minister Churchill's trip to Moscow and the Middle East has produced results.

The Daily Herald, allied with the labor movement, declared: "The British public's taste for trivial gossip about the prime minister's missions is flagging and its appetite for real news—news of results—is approaching the famine point."

The editorial was considered significant because the Trades Unions Congress is to consider a resolution demanding a second front at its conference opening Sept. 7.

The Herald said Mr. Churchill's trips to Moscow, the Middle East and Washington "will become mere curios of history unless there emerges from them a coherent plan and common strategy for conduct of the war." The newspaper added that Britain is not yet "sufficiently assured that the goal of its efforts is solid and not illusory."

The Daily Mail asserted: "Among free people, apathy may become a deadly menace."

The Daily Mail proposed that Mr. Churchill visit British cities to give the people guidance and thus "deal with the apathy before it begins to spread."

Problems On Home Front.

The more restrained Times remarked that neither the Dieppe raid nor the bombing of Germany "has relieved the continuing sense of inadequacy in British military achievement at a time when our allies face a supreme crisis—a sense which translates itself in a demand not for premature or ill-considered action but for strengthening our military organization and its better adaptation to meet the present emergencies."

"Problems are looming ahead on the home front which . . . cannot be neglected without prejudice to the efficiency of the national war effort," the Times warned.

Political sources said Mr. Churchill's first public report on his mission to Moscow and the Middle East probably will be made to the House of Commons in about two weeks.

The diplomatic correspondent of the News Chronicle said it was "rumored that major changes in the whole organization and character of Britain's supreme war direction" might follow the prime minister's home-coming.

Churchill Confident.

Mr. Churchill's own comments in the Middle East before he boarded a bomber for the last, homeward leg of his three-week flight reflected confidence in the United Nations' situation in North Africa, potentially a crucial battlefield of the whole war.

"I feel that an historic, epic struggle in the desert will come to a victorious conclusion though the road may be long and there will no doubt be many pitfalls and disappointments," he declared.

He pledged Britain would do all in her power to safeguard the Nile valley against the axis and to supply everything that could be flown or shipped to the forces there.

DRIVER NOT AWARE VEHICLE WAS AFIRE

To see a transport truck afire with smoke rolling from beneath the tarpaulin covering the tractor trailer body and not be able to do anything about it was the experience of several pedestrians on the lower bridge Tuesday afternoon. The truck was proceeding westerly on Bridge Street when smoke was seen rolling from beneath the canvas cover, the driver apparently non-aware that his vehicle was afire. Whether the fire was discovered before extensive damage was done is not known but undoubtedly some passing motorist drew the attention of the truck driver to his vehicle.

Again Mr. Smith is trying to locate the man who is 54 years of age and five foot four inches tall and of fair complexion. If anyone can give any information about Young and his present whereabout, the adjutant should be informed, so that he may forward the facts to the S. A. headquarters in Toronto.

Mr. Howard Frost, 187 Ann Street, was the lucky winner of the dollar covered Rotary Doll which was drawn for at the Rotary Carnival last week—it was disclosed this morning by Rotary President Lloyd Hicks. The draw was made by a Vancouver soldier boy who chanced to be visiting the carnival the night the draw was made.

Charitably minded, Mr. Frost presented the doll to the young girl who sold him the ticket and turned over to the Rotary Club a sizeable amount of the $25 which was pinned on the doll to aid in the Rotary Fund for Crippled Children.

MRS. HENRY (McCANN) WICKETT
(Formerly of Foxboro)

The Rosetown, Sask., paper contained recently the following obituary of a former resident of Foxboro and Stirling. Old friends will regret to learn of her death:

The passing away of Mrs. Henry Wickett on Wednesday, July 29th, saddened the Rosetown-Idaleen-Glamis community. She was a devout Christian and possessed a beautiful, kind and sunny personality and immediately commanded the respect and esteem of all who came to know her.

She had been in ill health for some time and died on Wednesday of last week at the age of 68 years, 10 months and 3 days.

Mrs. Wickett was born at Stirling, Ont., daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Isaac McCann. She married Mr. Wickett at Belleville, Ont., on Oct. 18th, 1893, and they resided at Foxboro, Ont. She, too, was a real worker in the Red Cross Auxiliary and also gladdened the hearts of many soldiers overseas with Christmas parcels.

She is survived by her husband and two sons, Gerald and Norman, of the Idaleen-Glamis district, and four grandsons one sister, Mrs. Carlton Wright, Stirling, Ont., and one brother, Thomas McCann, Stirling Ont.

New Zealanders and Aussies Would Welcome Invitations To Homes on "Forty-Eight"

Being on leave in a strange country and in a strange town is not much fun if left to your own devices to find amusement. At least that is the experience of boys from New Zealand and Australia, members of their countries' air forces, who are at present taking training at Mountain View Bombing and Gunnery School.

Thousands of miles from their homes, these lads when on their "forty-eight" are either compelled to remain in barracks or should they seek diversion in town, must secure a room at a rooming house or at a hotel. Neither offer the same cheery atmosphere they have been accustomed to at home.

It is to offer these boys some measure of their accustomed home atmosphere that the Belleville War Services Committee is seeking the co-operation of residents in this city to open their homes for one or two of these fine lads over the weekend or while they are on leave.

The airmen from "down under" would appreciate the gesture and ties would be formed that would give Australians and New Zealanders a new conception of Canadian hospitality.

Congregation members of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church have recently extended this measure of hospitality to a new class of Australians recently arrived at Mountain View, but the committee in charge would appreciate having a waiting list of householders' names where the boys might be assigned.

Mr. Tom Hill, Y.M.C.A. War Secretary at the local "Y", would appreciate having the names of any Belleville householders willing to offer this accommodation to visiting airmen. He will take the names and assign the boys to the various homes as the occasion demands. Any family wishing to cooperate in this manner is asked to get in touch with Mr. Hill at telephone 2738.

Plans Made for Joint Campaign For Local V.O.N., "Y" and S. Army

Judge C. A. Cameron will be the honorary chairman for new joint campaign of the Belleville Y.M.C.A., the local Salvation Army and the Victorian Order of Nurses, scheduled to get under way on September 21st. for funds to carry on their home services work, it was decided at a special executive meeting held at the Y.M.C.A. on Monday evening.

Objective of the joint campaign has been set at $12,000, with the territory to be covered to include Belleville and the district served by Belleville.

Work of the war service organizations included in the campaign has been divided by Federal authorities into two phases, that directly connected with the war services in defence areas, and that of the home services. Expense of the former has been taken over but the service organizations concerned must campaign for the funds to carry on their home services.

Dates for the campaign have also been defined by Federal authorities with the stipulation that the appeal must be made in September or in the early part of October as the next Victory Loan is expected to start near the middle of October.

House to House Campaign

The executive of the local campaign has been quietly working getting the machinery into shape for the start of the drive which will continue from September 21st. until the 26th. Final decisions as to the nature of the campaign have not as yet been completed but it is expected there will be the usual house to house canvass of the city.

Central offices for the campaign will be in the salesroom at the Riggs' Motor Sales on Pinnacle St. and beginning the first of the month a full-time secretary will be employed. This will be the only drive for the three service organizations in Belleville this year and the executive feel confident of the usual fine response from district residents.

Following is the list of officers and executive for the local joint campaign:

Honorary Chairman, Judge C. A. Cameron, general chairman; Mr. Clare Morgan; vice-cairmen, Taytor Franklin (V.O.N.); Lorne McDougall (Y.M.C.A.), and Adjutant Smith of the Salvation Army. Mr. Jack McIntosh will head the special names committee; Mr. Morley Duff will be in charge of organization, and Mr. Ted Schwab will head the publicity and advertising department. The executive will include, Mr. J. B. Boyce, Mr. H. W. Ackerman, Mr. Morley Duff as treasurer and Mr. J. Shortt as secretary.

Permanent Ration Books Being Delivered Locally by Mailmen

Permanent ration books for use in the purchase of sugar, tea and coffee are in the course of distribution to local users with the mailmen now having delivered many of the books to local residents. The new books will come into use on September 7th.

Ration Book No. 1 differs from the temporary ration card which it replaces in that it is smaller in size and in addition to its cover of light cardboard consists of one page of red coupons designated for the purchase of sugar, a page of green coupons labelled "spare A" and set apart for the purchase of tea or coffee in two weeks' rations. There is also a third series of 13 coupons printed in blue and marked "spare B" and two series of 26 coupons apiece marked "spare C" (brown) and "spare D" (gray). There is also included a detachable postcard which is to be used by the holder six months' hence to apply for his second ration book.

The blue, brown and gray coupons are not to be used by the holder unless additional rationing is ordered as the board has indicated that at the outset only sugar, tea and coffee are to be rationed. For the present, it has been stated, no other commodities will be so treated.

Temporary Cards Still Valid

Toronto —(CP)— Although new ration books have been issued, coupons on temporary ration cards issued July 1 are still valid, representatives of the ration section of the Wartime Prices and Trade Board announced here today.

Officials said many card holders had thought temporary card coupons expired August 24th.

The "A B C D E" coupons for tea and coffee were valid on and after August 3rd, and could be used any time. Sugar ration coupons were valid on successive dates, the last becoming valid August 24th, but could be used any time after that date, ration officers explained.

Officials said no provisions would be made for farmers obtaining extra tea and coffee to serve help engaged in threshing but that extra sugar would be provided.

Gangland Guns Roar in Dimout

New York, Aug. 26 — (AP) — Gangland guns found two unwitting allies last night when under the double cover of a city-wide blackout and a lunar eclipse they spurted death from a speeding automobile that escaped in the confusion of darkness and wailing police sirens.

Four bullets fired from the car felled Salvatore Maggio, 36-year-old suit presser, as he stood near his parked automobile on a Brooklyn street at 9:23 p.m. — just two minutes before an army-ordered air raid alert set sirens awail.

Police cars were shrilling the warning for the surprise raid alert test when they received the alarm for the murder car, while at 9:01 p. m. the earth's shadow had begun blotting out the moon, almost as if in conspiracy with the slayers.

With pedestrians running for shelter, and both man-made and heavenly light blanking out rapidly, police missed the killers' sedan.

Kiwanians Hear Flt. Lt. Hinton

"A lack of understanding often causes misunderstanding," said Flt. Lieut. A. H. Hinton of No. 5 I.T.S. in speaking on the subject "A Measure of Victory" at the weekly luncheon of the Kiwanis Club held at the Queens Hotel on Tuesday. This officer before has addressed the club and his addresses are always thought-provoking and of an interesting character and yesterday was no exception. A new feature was also introduced, when Anthony Cekota gave a ten-minute preview of a world at war discussing the economic and political situation of the world in a most concise and interesting manner. It is proposed to have a discussion period after each resume and it is believed the members will be better able to understand and discuss the war situation with a better knowledge of the whole picture.

Jack Trudeau presided at the meeting with Jack White as sergeant at arms and Harold Carruthers leading in song. Leo B. Riggs was absent but the members sang without accompaniment and quite good too. Jack McVeigh, general chairman of the Karnival committee, reviewed the activities of his several committees, having each chairman explain in detail the plans so far advanced for the success of the Carnival. The member told his listeners that success must be a part of the Carnival this year as the organization was faced with a heavy responsibility in providing the funds to complete the payment on Kiwanis Centre, which is a credit to the city in general. The various contests, which will be run are progressing satisfactorily but the ticket sale has not been heavy and the members were asked to make a special effort on this phase during the next week. Booths will be opened in the downtown streets for the sale of tickets the latter part of the week.

Twelve Entries Received

Twelve entries have already been received for the Miss Junior Belleville contest under the direction of George Forhan, while the Miss War Worker competition is in the capable hands of Lorne McDougall. The Carnival will take place on Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday of next week and it is expected a large crowd will be in attendance during each night. The games committee under Frank Domenico have some new and novel games and all will be run and operated by the Kiwanis Club as in years past.

The speaker of the day was introduced by J. Owen Herity in his usual brilliant and capable way and Kiwanis appreciation was expressed by Ormonde Butler. Mr. Hinton showed that sometimes the most elaborate preparations for battle behind the bravest of leaders goes awry because the intentions of the enemy are not taken fully into consideration. He quoted examples of this in the battle between General Hooker of the Union Forces against Lee and Jackson. Although outnumbered, Lee and Jackson so arranged their small force and attacked with such vigor that Hooker's Army was defeated and sent back to Washington, crippled and immobilised. The speaker illustrated his point with the boy who was given a B. B. gun to kill gophers but had no success because every time he pointed the gun at the gopher it went down into its hole and his father admonished him with "that is no way to kill gophers, you must find out the way they act".

Bringing his talk up to the present war, he showed how Hitler, instead of assaulting the front of the Maginot line held by the flower of the British and French armies, went around the flanks and immobilized the whole line much to the consternation of General Gamelin, General Gort and Hore-Belisha, who possibly thought, that the line was impregnable. "In this case the British and French generals had the understanding of their commands but they misunderstood and that also is the story of Malay and Burma" said the speaker. "Complete understanding means victory and complete misunderstanding means defeat."

Eighty Airmen Donate Blood At Kiwanis Centre

"The best clinic since the opening of the Red Cross Blood Donor Clinic in the local Kiwanis Centre," was the way enthusiastic officials described Tuesday night's special clinic at which 80 airmen from No. 5 Initial Training School offered their blood.

"We were certainly delighted with the success of the venture and the whole procedure met with the entire approval of the donors," stated the clinic official this morning. Tuesday night's clinic was the first of several special clinics that will be held for airmen at No. 5 I.T.S., it was stated.

The entire procedure insofar as the airmen were concerned lasted approximately three hours with Wing Commander M. L. Barr, station physician, and two assistants being in charge. Red Cross nurses and the staff at the Kiwanis Centre however worker until almost two o'clock preparing the blood for shipment to Kingston for processing.

The next special blood donor clinic will be on Sunday when a considerable number of employees of the Bata Shoe Company at Frankford are scheduled to come in.

C.N.R. "Fag" Fund Gives Boys Overseas Real Er oyment

Letters of appreciation are pouring in to the President, Mr. A. H. Jones, of the C.N.R. Cig. Fund from the boys overseas thanking him and the association for tobacco and cigarettes sent them and are repeatedly urging the continuation of our cigarette fund and the shipment of cigs and tobacco.

Now that our fighting forces are limited to only five cigarettes a day per man, that means they need more help, our help and your help if the boys are to receive and enjoy their smokes. A letter received from a lonely soldier, reads:

Dear Mr. Jones,—I have no relatives in Canada. I never receive any cigarettes or parcels. Could you send me a few smokes because they are awful scarce and very hard to get over here? You have no idea how much I'll appreciate it. If it can't be done, just throw my letter away and forget me.

Well, 300 cigarettes are on their way to this boy, Somewhere in England, with best of luck and a hearty smoke.

Really a cig is a great comfort to a soldier when in battle.

In the past ten days $95 of smokes has been sent to our boys who are in the front line. Many thanks for the donations which made this gift possible. A total of 452,700 cigarettes sent to-date, acknowledged with thanks. Received from Mr. W. Steward, $3; Mr. F. Parsons, $5; Mr. G. Cherry, $10; making a grand total of $159.

POLICE COURT

For the second time within a week a Chinese native appeared in the Belleville police court charged with traffic violations. Last week it was a local Chinese who admitted he had violated the city parking ordinance. Today, however, Mark Foy, Trenton, laundryman, pleaded guilty to a charge of careless driving and was fined $5 and costs by Magistrate J. B. Garvin of Kingston. The charge arose out of an accident in front of the City Hall on Sunday when a car driven by Foy, struck Matthew Corby, Belleville, causing minor injuries.

Sidney Roberts, Kingston, appeared before the court on a charge of assault. "This count has been in the courts for some time and it has been hard to locate the complainant," explained Acting-Chief Harman.

"This man has been confined to jail for six days and right now is on military call," explained E. E. Follwell, local barrister, who appeared on Roberts' behalf.

Several citizens contributed to the court's coffers after being convicted of violating the city parking bylaws.

Trudeau Motor Sales
125 FRONT STREET—BELLEVILLE

ANNOUNCE The Purchase of the ROBOT
Specialized Wheel Aligning, Balancing Frame and Axle Straightening Equipment

Formerly owned and operated by the City Battery Service.

WITH THE ADDITION OF THIS EQUIPMENT THE TRUDEAU MOTOR SALES ARE NOW IN A POSITION TO OFFER COMPLETE SERVICE FACILITIES TO THE MOTORING PUBLIC.

A definite shortage of replacement parts and the purchase of tires stopped completely to a large percentage of car owners has clearly indicated the necessity of car conservation.

Haphazard Methods Must Now Be Discarded

After making a complete analysis of the automotive trade and advised by competent engineers, Mr. J. J. Trudeau immediately started negotiations to purchase equipment for WHEEL ALIGNING, BALANCING FRAME AND AXLE STRAIGHTENING.

Mr. Trudeau has again shown his sincerity in offering the best to the motoring public.

MR. RUSSELL SMITH, proprietor of CITY BATTERY SERVICE, extends his hearty thanks and appreciation to the motorists who have patronized his business in the past and is assured that they will receive the same efficient and courteous service in the future at TRUDEAU MOTOR SALES.

Increased War Work has forced Mr. Smith to relinquish this part of his business.

Duke of Kent Was to Have Been "Sailor Prince" But Lure of Flying Won out Over Family Tradition

LONDON, Aug. 26 — (CP) — The Duke of Kent, christened George Edward Alexander Edmund, was chosen by his father, the late King George V, to carry on the family tradition by being "a sailor prince," but he turned out instead to be the most air-minded of the four Royal brothers.

Born Dec. 20, 1902, he entered the Royal Naval Training College at Dartmouth a few months before his 14th birthday. He passed through as eight years with the Mediterranean and Atlantic fleets, the China Squadron and also did duty on the America and West Indies station.

But ill health and a not over-strong constitution forced him much against his own wishes to relinquish a naval career in March, 1929. He was then attached to the Foreign Office in order to gain knowledge of administration and the work of the Department of State.

First Civil Servant

Thus Prince George, as he was then called, became the first civil servant in the Royal family.

His duties at the Foreign Office were undertaken with the view of fitting him for the position of Governor-General of one of the Dominions.

But ill health again interfered with his plans and in July, 1929, he was given an indefinite leave of absence from the Foreign Office owing to digestive troubles.

After visiting Norway in December, 1939, to represent the King and Queen at the celebration of the 25th anniversary of King Haakon's accession, the Duke (still Prince George at that time) set out on one of the greatest adventures he had yet undertaken — an 18,000-mile tour of South America with his oldest brother, the then Prince of Wales.

On his return he made a series of tours through industrial Britain.

Toured S. Africa in '34

Early in 1934 he made a 21,000-mile tour of South Africa — Rhodesia, the Belgian Conga and Portuguese territory.

This was to have been followed by a visit to Australia for the Victoria Centenary celebrations but it was felt the strain would be too great notwithstanding that his physique had improved so much that while in South Africa he had climbed Table Mountain.

Instead of Australia he went to Yugoslavia and Greece, a visit which culminated in the announcement in August of his betrothal to Princess Marina of Greece.

First Duke of Kent Since 1799

A month before the marriage he became the Duke of Kent, Baron Downpatrick and Earl of St. Andrews—the first Duke of Kent since 1799.

The Duke and Princess Marina were married in November, 1934, in the outstanding social event of the year.

The couple have three children, Prince Edward, born in October, 1935; Princess Alexandra, born Christmas Day, 1936, and Prince Michael George Charles Franklin, born on July 4, American Independence Day, this year.

President Roosevelt is one of six godparents of the youngest child who is to be known as Prince George.

The Duke filled every moment of his time after the outbreak of war in the performance of a variety of official duties and personal visits to war victims wounded and bombed.

He was in personal danger many times from bombs, shells and machine-gun fire.

During his tours of British industrial areas the Duke took a great interest in the workers' welfare, especially the plight of the unemployed.

At a women's working party he visited at Plymouth, for instance, the Duke admitted he was "quick with the knitting needles but not a good knitter." He mentioned a large blanket he had knitted.

"Royal Corner" in Mine

Miners in a pit at Whithaven felt so honored after the Duke had dug coal beside them that they named the section where he worked "The Royal Corner."

He took up his war post as Rear Admiral when hostilities started and caused the cancellation of his departure to Australia where, in the autumn of 1939, he was to have taken over his duties as Governor-General.

Numerous stories are told of the Duke's calmness in the midst of the London "blitz."

Emil Davies, London County Council Chairman, was driven by the Duke through London Riverside districts for four hours during a heavy raid. Davies said afterwards that "as the Duke appeared oblivious of it all I did my best to look equally indifferent."

On another occasion a bomb exploded within 80 yards of the Duke's car, showering it with debris. The Duke stepped out unshaken and calmly talked with the people of the neighborhood.

Interested in Sports

The Duke was intensely interested in sports. He played golf well and in pre-war days frequently teamed with the Duke of Windsor on the course. He was a regular attendant at amateur and professional boxing matches.

The Duke was president of the National Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children, patron of the British Hospitals Contributory Schemes Association, vice-patron of the National Council of Social Services. He was elected president of the British Dairy Farmers Association in 1936.

His association with the army began officially in 1935 when he was appointed colonel of the Queen's Own Royal West Kent Regiment. He was appointed colonel of the Royal Fusiliers (City of London regiment) in 1937. Less than three months before the war the Duke headed the King's birthday honors list when he was promoted to rear admiral, major general and air vice marshal. He was personal aide-de-camp to the King for a time.

Married in 1934

More than 1,000,000 spectators lined the route to Westminster Abbey when the Duke and Princess Marina were married Nov. 29, 1934. The royal romance started five years earlier at Bled, in the picturesque Slovenian Alps of Yugoslavia, where the young couple were guests at the summer home of Prince Paul of Yugoslavia.

Loudspeakers carried every detail of the service, conducted by Most Rev. Cosmo Gordon Lang, Archbishop of Canterbury, to the huge crowd in the Abbey. The couple made their vows before three kings and three queens, other royal personages, members of the nobility, the diplomatic corps and the elite of the Empire's Government and social life.

King George V and Queen Mary and the bride's mother and father, Prince and Princess Nicholas of Greece, occupied places of prominence near the white-decked altar. Nearby were former King George of Greece, King Haakon and Queen Maud of Norway and King Christian and Queen Alexandra of Denmark.

After the return from the Abbey a second marriage took place in the palace chapel. This ceremony was according to the rites of the Greek Orthodox Church, of which Princess Marina was a member.

Broadcast throughout the world, the Abbey service was heard clearly by thousands in North America.

Travelled Widely

The Duke of Kent travelled widely. As Prince George he went on an official mission to South Africa in 1934 and the following year he was sent to join the British fleet on the China station.

His first visit to Canada was an informal one. He arrived from the Far East at Victoria on the Empress of Russia, Nov. 29,1926 and crossed Canada to Saint John where he sailed for Liverpool.

Prince George, the Prince of Wales (now Duke of Windsor) and Prime Minister Stanley Baldwin and Mrs. Baldwin visited Canada in 1927 in connection with the celebration of the 60th anniversary of Confederation.

Later they visited Montreal, Ottawa, Toronto and Niagara Falls and the Princes went across the Dominion to the Pacific Coast.

On June 5, 1939, while the Duke of Kent was Councillor of State during the absence of the King and Queen in Canada and the United States, a 45-year-old steel-worker named Ledwedge Vincent Lawlor fired the charge of a sawed-off shotgun near the Duchess as she left her home in Belgrave Square, London, to attend a theatre. The Duchess was not injured.

Two policemen overpowered the man who was later charged with "intent to endanger life or property." Lawlor, an Australian by birth, contended he had "no intention of harming anybody." The man was remanded for trial and after various adjournments the case dropped from the public notice.

Ireland Trip Postponed

The Duke and Duchess of Kent were scheduled to make a state visit to northern Ireland in March, 1939, but the trip was postponed indefinitely at the request of the northern Ireland government. It was stated the authorities had evidence the Irish Republican army was planning a series of bombing outrages.

The Duke of Kent in 1939 was elected Grand Master of English Freemasonry in succession to his great-uncle the aging Duke of Connaught. On July 19 of that year the Duke of Kent was installed in the office of his brother King George, in the presence of 10,000 Masons at the Olympia in London.

While in Canada on a military mission a year ago, the Duke of Kent officially opened the 63rd annual Canadian National Exhibition at Toronto, on Aug. 22.

During his three-day visit to Toronto he called at military hospitals and inspected various aircraft and other war production plants.

FLYING BOAT

"The Air Ministry deeply regrets to announce that Air Commodore His Royal Highness the Duke of Kent was killed on active service this afternoon, when a Sunderland flying boat crashed in North Scotland. His Royal Highness, who was attached to the staff of the Inspector-General of the Royal Air Force, was proceeding to Iceland on duty. All the crew of the flying boat also lost their lives."

The marriage of the Duke of Kent to beautiful Princess Marina of Greece in 1934 was one of the most resplendent royal occasions of the century. They had three children, Prince Edward, 6; Princess Alexandra, 5; and Prince George, who was born last July 4 and bears also the name of Franklin for President Roosevelt, one of his godfathers.

As soon as news of Kent's death was telephoned to King George and Queen Elizabeth, at one of their summer residences, the King sent a special messenger to break it to the Duchess at her simple Buckinghamshire House, The Coppins, and arranged for other members of the royal family to go there to comfort her.

The news reached the Queen Mother somewhere in the west of England and the Duke's oldest brother, the Duke of Windsor, in the Bahamas.

Messages from all corners of the world flowed into London. Editorials stressed the death as proof that Britain, from her highest family to her most humble, was in the war to the finish.

"He would not have wished for a better epitaph than that so concisely written for him in the Air Ministry communique, 'Killed on active service,'" said the Daily Sketch.

"This war has left no family unscathed," said the Daily Express. "The homes of the poor have been bombed. Buckingham Palace, too. The mothers and wives who have already lost their menfolk on active service will personally share the grief of the royal family."

Because of the wartime necessity for secrecy concerning the movements of the royal family, the funeral is expected to be private.

BATTLE OF

Southward, Allied fighters destroyed several beached Japanese barges and supplies, and at Japan's large New Britain bases at Rabaul and Gasmata, northwest of the Solomons, eight tons of explosives were dropped by bombers.

United States advantages in the possibility decisive sea battle were expected to lie in the fact that the marines have had time to dig in and consolidate their positions since they stormed ashore on the islands 2 1-2 weeks ago.

Supported by substantial navy and army sea and air forces, the defenders, as at Midway, had the advantage of being able to send land-based aircraft against a sea attack.

JAPANESE STILL

ports said was reoccupied Monday, became the 11th important point in east China regained by the Chinese in the one week since the invasion tide began receding in that area.

Like Hanghjao, the first to be wrenched from Japanese control, Tungsiang is a railroad centre.

In Chekiang Province, the Chinese were said now to be close to Chuhsien and some quarters here confidently awaited news that Chuhsien and Lishui, both potential "bomb Japan" bases, were back in Chinese hands.

Chuhsien is the site of the biggest air base in China. At one time 200,000 coolies labored to build the great field.

Fear of attacks on Japan from Chuhsien was presumed to have been the chief reason for the invaders' recent drives in the east.

Lishui, whose field is China's second largest, was reported by the Chinese last night already under siege.

R.A.F. IN FORCE

Goodman of Edmonton, said one of that plane's bombs landed aft on a medium-sized ship. Their plane, a Hudson bomber, was attacked by a Nazi night fighter as it recrossed the convoy to estimate the damage. When it returned to its base, rear-gunner Sgt. W. Wright of Kenton, Man., spotted a six-inch tear in the front of his turret, "which certainly wasn't there when we took off".

A Hudson bomber flown by P.O. C. A. M. Taylor of Vancouver, was attacked by three night fighters which chased him 20 minutes before he was able to lose them.

Had to Go Into Dive

Sgt. H. Collins of Vancouver, had to put his Hudson into a dive from 4,000 feet to 200 before a Junkers 88 gave up the pursuit. Sgts. Grant Fowlie, G. E. Greenwood and Joe Harrison, all of Vancouver, were in Collins' crew.

In Brown's machine were Flt.-Lt. Ed. Kendall of Vancouver, Flt. Lt. Dick Whalley, the "Flying Adjutant" from Sydney, N.S., and P.O.S. R. O. Worthington of Toronto and W. H. Brown of Amherst, N.S.

Single planes of the bomber command attacked targets in Western Germany and Holland by daylight yesterday, the Air Ministry announced today.

Following up the daylight attacks, Coastal Command bombers sought out enemy shipping and hit two ships in a German convoy off the Frisian Islands with bombs last night, the Air Ministry said. Docks and shipping at La Pallice, a port on the Bay of Biscay, were also bombed.

One bomber failed to return from these operations.

German airmen caused some property damage and a number of casualties at a south coast town today in a raid that cost them two Focke-Wulf 190's.

British fighters also made another cross-channel foray in daylight.

The German radio reported that Great Yarmouth and Ipswich, both in southeast England, had been bombed last night.

2 Nazi Planes Shot Down

Anti-aircraft gunners shot down the two German planes, fighters presumably assigned as bomber escorts, one crashed outside of the town and the other fell into the sea. The pilots of both were believed killed.

The British fighters returned from their actions against Nazi objectives on the continent soon after breakfast time, crossing the English coast at a low level between Folkestone and Dover.

No night activity by the R.A.F.'s bombers was reported, however, following Monday night's raid on Wiesbaden and Frankfurt. Bad weather over the continent kept the bombers grounded.

A small number of casualties and a little damage were reported caused during the night by German bombers which flew over East Anglia and bombed a few places near the coast.

Try to Ruin Crops

The Nazis pelted the countryside with incendiaries but quick action by rural fire guards saved crops ripening in the fields. Only a few small blazes resulted.

Farmers had been warned that harvest time was likely to bring renewed German efforts to fire the maturing grain. Restrictions had been placed on the grouping of haystacks and a close watch provided at danger points.

Five persons were killed when a small number of raiders unloaded high explosive bombs on a working class district in one East Anglia town.

Japs May Have Blundered By Taking Risks

By EDWARD E. BOMAR

The first impression from the United States Navy's announcement of the new air and sea battle in the Solomons is that the Japanese may have blundered by taking risks outweighing possible gains.

Against an expedition of marines which has had time to dig in, put one or more air fields into operation and is supported by substantial navy and army sea and air forces, the Japanese sent a vulnerable armada which counter-attacked without benefit of surprise.

First reports tell of the bombing of two enemy carriers and a battleship, along with a number of other warships and accompanying vessels, and the downing of 21 enemy planes in a single engagement. The hopeful suspicion is encouraged thereby that the Japanese were so intent on revenge and gaining "face" that they disregarded the Battle of Midway's lesson of the perils of a sea attack on an objective defended by land-based aircraft.

Expect Heavy Loss

The whole fight for the Solomons is still so enshrouded in secrecy, however, that ordinary caution advises that judgment be suspended until more returns come in. The onslaught obviously was made with terrific force. Information is lacking on our own strength. Official warnings were given at the outset to expect heavy losses.

The Japanese would not have attacked unless they believed they had a promising chance to accomplish at least one of three things—to retake the Eastern Solomons, inflict a crippling defeat, or divert American naval strength to this relatively remote area while attacking again toward Pearl Harbor, the North Pacific or elsewhere.

In at least one particular the Japanese possess an advantage which naval men deem important. Their fleet is operating several hundred miles nearer a major base than Vice-Admiral Robert L. Chormley's.

This attack, like the frustrated Coral Sea advance, seems to have stemmed from the island of Truk in the Caroline group less than 1,000 miles to the north, where the Japanese can obtain fuel, ammunition and reinforcements and make repairs.

Pearl Harbor, American headquarters for the Pacific naval war, is more than 2,800 miles away. The lesser bases of Pago Pago Samoa, Sydney and Auckland are all further from the scene than Truk.

Violate Own Principles

This naval advantage is offset perhaps decisively, by the foothold the marines have won in three of the Solomon Islands since the first surprise attack of Aug. 8-9.

The navy's communique implies strongly that the defenders of the Tulagi harbor area and near-by Guadalcanal Island were aided by land-based fighters, these being credited with Sunday's score of twenty-one planes. Other American aircraft were identified as carrier-based, or as army bombers. The Japanese are known to have had one or more airfields on Guadalcanal which the marines seized.

Odds seem to be that the hard-hitting army heavy bombers came from New Guinea, New Caledonia or the Fijis, all of which are within but near the limit of their range.

If it turns out the Japanese miscalculated, it was their second blunder in quick succession. Underestimating the marines soon after the start of the invasion, they lost an entire 700-man force despatched from the Northern Solomons in fast motor craft.

In that attack the Japanese violated one of their military principles. Admiral Ernest J. King, American Commander-in-Chief, had said that "they never send a boy to do a man's work."

Kent's Visits Endeared Him To Canadians

OTTAWA, Aug. 26 — (CP) — Prime Minister Mackenzie King's official tribute to the Duke of Kent will be echoed today by the thousands of Canadians whose affection for the King's youngest brother amounted almost to reverence.

The memory of the shy, handsome, air-minded Duke who drove his own automobile so fast his motorcycle escort couldn't keep up with him still is fresh in the minds of those who followed his spectacular tour of air training establishments in Canada last summer.

They remember how the 39-year-old Duke, forced to travel by train when his plane was forced down at Cap De La Madeleine, Que., by thick weather, sat with an aide in a day coach, passengers crowding around him; how he left his Quebec City hotel to attend a movie, unrecognized.

The man whose marriage to Princess Marina of Greece was one of the biggest social events before the war was flown from Britain to Canada in a Liberator bomber, thus becoming the first member of the Royal Family to fly the Atlantic Ocean.

Went From Coast to Coast

His visit to the Dominion took him from coast to coast visiting training establishments and meeting men from many parts of the Commonwealth schooling for fighting in the skies. His popularity mounted with each succeeding stop.

He arrived in Ottawa on the start of his tour and stayed at Government House as the guest of the Governor-General, his uncle, and Princess Alice. The visit was without formality.

While in Ottawa, the Duke inspected headquarters of the Royal Canadian Air Force, held an informal press conference, enjoyed a picnic with a Government House party in the picturesque Gatineau country north of here and flew for brief visits to Trenton and Camp Borden, Ont. Before returning to Britain, he visited President Roosevelt at the President's home in Hyde Park, N. Y.

Prime Minister Sends Cable

News of the Duke's death in an airplane crash in Northern Scotland while proceeding to Iceland on active service with the Royal Air Force brought an informal expression of tribute last night from the Prime Minister, who met the Duke several times in Britain and on two of his visits to Canada.

"I greatly admired him for his public service and his attractive personality," said Mr. King.

The Prime Minister sent cables to the King, the Duchess of Kent and Queen Mary expressing sympathy on his own behalf and on behalf of the people of Canada. He also telegraphed Lord Athlone, who now is in Newfoundland.

The Duke's first visit to Canada in 1926 was an informal one. He arrived from the Far East at Victoria and crossed Canada to Saint John, N. B., after paying a visit en route to Lord Willingdon, then Governor-General, and Lady Willingdon. In 1927, he visited Canada in connection with the 60th anniversary of Confederation, along with Prime Minister Stanley Baldwin, Mrs. Baldwin and the Prince of Wales (now Duke of Windsor).

FILIPINOS—There were probably fewer than 500 Japanese-owned Filipinos in all the islands before the war and the bulk of the people fought Japan throughout the desperate campaign which ended at Bataan and Corregidor.

THAI — Thailand is thoroughly enmeshed in the "greater east Asia" plan partly by choice, mainly by force of circumstances.

BURMESE — Many uniformed Burmese troops turned against their officers during the quick campaign last spring. The powerful Burmese priesthood apparently was Japan's means of winning over the peasants. Today, Burma is as solidly fixed as Thailand in the Japanese lineup.

MALAYA — Malay traitors were chiefly responsible for guiding Japanese troops through the jungles after they had landed on the coasts.

INDONESIANS — The independence movement among the Indonesians in the Netherlands East Indies was organized and well developed long before the outbreak of the war. Japanese agents had tried hard to link the Japanese "Asia for the Asiatics" movement with the aspirations of the Indonesians. But there was an almost total lack of success.

INDO-CHINESE — The Japanese have been in French Indo-China longer than in any other European colony. They came in force, in August, 1941, under the French-Japanese agreement. At first the main natives —Annamites, Tonkinese, Cambodians—were inclined to welcome them. After a year's experience with the Japanese they turned in the other direction.

Thirteen Killed In Sunday Crash Of Dutch Airliner

Port of Spain, Trinidad, Aug. 26 (CP Cable)—Four Netherlands government employees, a commander of Royal Netherlands navy and one woman were among 13 persons killed in the Sunday crash of a Klm (Dutch Airline) plane, it was announced today.

The passengers killed were:

Cmdr. George E. W. Van Notten, R.N.N.; Willem Verboog, Klaas Hakhof, Pieter Vaneeten and Harm Kinds, all government officials; Miss Alma Alwart, described as a domestic servant; Louis Vijzelman, Max Waaldijk, Otto Elmont and Paulus Mosterdijk, all of whom were otherwise unidentified.

The plane's three crew members were also killed. They were Piet Badings, the pilot, who fought against the Japanese with The Netherlands East Indies air force in Java and came to the West Indies only recently, Nicolaas Debruyn, mechanic, and Cornelis Vanoyen, wireless operator.

Bodies of all the victims were buried near the Piarco airdrome, only two miles from where the plane crashed during an electrical storm. The airliner had just taken off for Curacao, about 400 miles away in The Netherlands West Indies, when the crash occurred.

The passengers all were in transit for Curacao from an unannounced point of departure, with Trinidad an intermediate stop. Piarco airdrome is about 15 miles from here.

PRESS LEFT FREE TO ADJUST RATES ON NEWSPAPERS

Prices and Trade Board Removes Ceiling On All Publications In General

AD RATES ALSO EXEMPT

Ottawa, Aug. 26 — (CP) — The Wartime Prices and Trade Board announced today removal of the over-all price ceiling from Canadian and imported newspapers, magazines and periodical publications in general, leaving the Press "free to adjust rates and safeguard its revenues."

The exemption applies to newsstand and street sale prices and to subscription rates. Advertising rates already are exempt.

In announcing its decision, the board said a careful survey by the administrator of Publishing, Printing and Allied Industries showed that while larger revenues had offset higher operating costs in 1940 and 1941, revenues recently had suffered a "serious decline."

"There are too many variations of circumstances to deal with each case individually so as to maintain a control of price," the board said. "Accordingly, it has been decided to remove the over-all price ceiling and leave the Press free to adjust rates and safeguard its revenues so that the freedom and independence of the Press may be preserved.

Conforms with U.S. Policy

"This decision brings the Canadian regulations into conformity with those of the United States, where newspapers, magazines and periodicals were from the outset exempted from the price ceiling."

Certain economies were believed possible in the publishing field and all publishers were being urged "individually and collectively" to keep prices down and conserve materials and labor as far as possible. Publishers were expected to try to maintain service at existing prices where possible, although it was recognized that economies were not always possible or did not afford any great saving, particularly in the case of rural newspapers and weeklies.

But competitive conditions within the industry, the announcement said, "make it highly unlikely that price adjustments can be made in any unreasonable manner."

In outlining its reasons for removing the price ceiling, the board said it was impossible to establish a common measurement of value for all publications or any general principle governing price increases.

Death of the Duke of Kent

The people of Britain and the Empire and of other nations offer their sympathy to Britain's Royal Family, bereaved by the death while on active service of the Duke of Kent, youngest brother of His Majesty King George. Though the tragedy which carried fourteen others of the party on the Sunderland flying boat which crashed in northern Scotland while on its way to Iceland was in no way due to enemy action, it occurred while the Duke was on a war mission. So the war's results have touched deeply the Royal household as it has touched so many millions everywhere in the world. As the London Daily Sketch says, "he would not have wished for a better epitaph than that so concisely written for him in the Air Ministry communique, 'Killed on active service.'" The Express pointed out that the war has left no family unscathed or unaffected, rich and poor have been bombed, the homes of the poor and Buckingham Palace, and mothers and wives who have already lost their menfolk will personally share the grief of the Royal Family.

The Duke, an Air Commodore in the R.A.F., and most air-minded of the Royal Family, served Britain and the Empire with all the zeal of his enthusiastic nature. Like his brother, the Duke of Gloster, who was wounded in France, he has been tireless in every cause that would strengthen Britain's and the Empire's effort. His visit to Canada last year endeared him to the hearts of the Canadian people.

Gifted with charm of personality and unique talents, these he exercised in the service of his King and Country.

In this hour which reveals the unity of heart, spirit, service and sacrifice of all for the cause, profound sympathy is felt for Their Majesties, for the King's brothers and sister, for Queen Mary, mother of the Duke, and for the Duchess of Kent and her children and all other members of the Royal Family.

At Brookwood, Surrey

At Brookwood, Surrey, on Sunday Canadians laid to rest forty-one of their comrades who had suffered in the assault on Dieppe on Wednesday and had died either on the field of battle or succumbed to wounds after they were brought back to England. It was fitting that these gallant men who gave all for Canada and the Empire and democracy should rest in Surrey in a Canadian cemetery in a grove of pines in three common graves over which were strewn small green maple leaves brought from Canada by airplane. There they rest, blest in the hearts of their people across the Atlantic. Catholic and Protestant lie side by side in their burial. Comrades who had gone through the raid with them were there and three volleys were fired by members of the seven heroic regiments which were engaged in the operation.

The plaintive music of Scottish pipes in "The Flowers of the Forest" and "Lord Lovat's Lament," sounded a fitting farewell.

The scene is one that will linger in the memory of Canadians and thoughts of this will call many to a rededication of their lives to the service of the nation at this time.

National Day of Prayer

On Sunday September sixth Canada will observe a national day of prayer. It was on September 3rd, 1939, that the war began between Britain and Germany.

In three years the war has caused many changes in the lives and activities of people, their labor and their service and more changes are to come. But the only change in the spirit of the people has been intensification of the effort to battle for the right and for democracy. In all earnestness Canadians can observe this occasion for the cause they wage is a true and holy cause. In this Canada is thrice armed because she is in the right in the quarrel which is being decided by the arbitrament of arms and by the spirit and the principles which the United Nations including Canada maintain.

Canada's sons and daughters are enlisted in a righteous fight against the powers of darkness. In her armed forces are relatives and friends of practically every person in Canada. Well may Canada pray for enduring peace after victory.

OURSELVES AND OTHERS...

by

SUPER-SENSES

The heavy clump-clump of a fly stalking across the table aroused the old man from his reverie . . .

An opening paragraph like that in a mystery story would get you all set for a new kind of fantasy. But it could be true—and a lot more with it.

At a recent New York dinner the guests were shocked to learn that under the feel of a truly accurate touch sense the peach bloom smoothness of a young girl's cheeks felt about as smooth as the barnacles on an ocean liner.

The touch sense robot was only one of five mechanical geniuses which had honored places at the table, where Dr. Walter Mikelson, of the General Electric Laboratories, presided. In competition with five pretty girls these scientific robots brought a continuous stream of ohs and ahs as they exhibited their abilities.

Man always has conceded grudgingly that his friend the dog has a sense of smell seven times better than his own, but the smell machine whiffed things that even a bloodhound would miss.

A sight machine showed it had abilities far exceeding anything in nature, even the nocturnal-loving eyesight of cats and owls.

It was during one of the usual dinner hushes that the guests received their rudest shock. Suddenly the loud clump-clump of marching feet was heard from the sound detecting machine. The only moving thing in sight was a fly trotting across the banquet table. The machine, which is far removed from any living competition, can pick up the sound of a cat walking across a deep-piled Chinese rug.

To get an idea of what our scientists are doing picture how closely they could approximate man if they combined all these super-senses in one unit . They'd have a creature which could out-see, out-smell, out-hear, out-taste and out-feel anything in nature. They could then add a "memory," and the machine that creates speech—the voder.

The voder, says Dr. J. O. Perrine, of the American Telephone and Telegraph Laboratories, not only can talk in the tone of a human—in any language, accent or pitch and electrically break up and rebuild speech—but it can sing, change music into words.

Imagine walking up to a box-like affair, pressing several buttons and hearing something like this:

"Non-inter-communicability has its disadvantages."

Quite a mouthful even for a brain-propelled set of vocal chords. But the voder has said just that, many times, and never once showed the slightest variation.

The memory machine is a device that definitely invaded the province man likes to think is purely and completely his own—the power to retain or discard impressions once they are absorbed.

The radio-like gadget stores away as many as four items for as long as the operator desires. The remembering, J. E. Hancock, of General Electric, says is done either in series or individually and at any given time the memory machine will discard one or more of the items to make room for new ones.

Whenever it is unable to remember a particular item it flashes the message, "I forgot," to the astounded onlookers.

The wartime adaptations of these and related inventions and experiments are far-reaching. The voder and memory machine both may be used for military purposes: the voder in coding the ordinary spoken word and then decoding it instantaneously whenever desired; the memory machine as a super-filing cabinet.

Another outgrowth of this extra-scientific exploring is the discovery that color-blindness is an aid to wartime aviation.

Just as color blind persons see through camouflage, totally blind persons can hear around corners—an ability which defied analysis for many cenutries.

The tests, more than 1500 of them, showed that the really blind persons stopped a little sooner than did the blindfolded subjects—but "the sixth sense of the blind" was present in all four.

At the University of California, a specialist has developed the symballophone, a super-ear aimed at supplanting the stethoscope in the hearing of human sounds such as the murmur of a faulty heart. And in New Orleans an oculist has announced perfection of a plastic eye that moves in conjunction with the good eye. — Chester Hope in the Philadelphia Enquirer.

The War of Nerves

New York, Aug. 26—In the field of propaganda, our enemies are waging a not wholly unsuccessful campaign. Let us see what this campaign is.

It has been noted time and again that the European Axis has been putting out peace feelers for this fall. These have a double purpose: actually to achieve, if possible, a truce highly favourable to the Axis; and, second, so to confuse relations between the Allies that our own plans are influenced.

The campaign is unsuccessful in putting into our minds the possibility of making peace without victory. But it is not so unsuccessful in making us believe that the one or the other of our allies might do so.

There was a time when rumors were spread that the Chinese might make peace — after the Burma Road was cut, augmenting China's isolation. It was some time before it became obvious that China would stand by.

Now there is a possibility that our supply roads to Russia may be diminished. And for some weeks the Germans have been spreading the rumor—via Vichy, via so-called "neutral sources" and via Nazi sympathizers among White Russians—that Stalin, almost beaten, is flirting with a separate peace with Hitler.

Repetition of 1941

This is a repetition of last year's late-summer war of nerves: the Russians are collapsing; aid to them is wasted; anyhow it will be too late; and the more the Western allies send, the better for the Germans, who will inherit it.

Last year the propaganda was quite successful. It was late before we began shifting help to Russia, and undoubtedly public opinion was greatly influenced by the German viewpoint.

Again, today, the Russians are in peril. It is possible that they will be cut off from their main oil sources and that the Caucasian Army will be separated from the Russian main army. Without minimizing the dangers, we must remember that, even in that event, nine-tenths of the Russian armies would still be intact.

Yet, certain circles are again influenced by the idea that Russia may return to a pact with Germany. The old slogan is repeated: You can't trust Stalin.

Would Alter Plans

It is obvious that a general who is calculating with a separate Russian peace will favor other plans than he would were he certain Russia would stay to the end. For at the same time, the Nazi turn to Russia and say, "You can't trust the British Tories," or, "You can't trust capitalist America."

Even if they fail in diplomatic manoeuvres, they induce a timidity which produces hesitancy and fumbling.

Now, the question at issue is not whether one trusts Stalin. In the seventeenth century, when personal quarrels and affections between dynasties created a similar feeling of mutual distrust, diplomats used to say: Interests don't lie.

So the question is: What are Russia's interests? What conceivable peace could Stalin make with Germany?

First of all, the situation of Russia is not like that of France. France fell immediately, without really conducting the war. And there is no one in Russia with the nineteenth century mentality of Marshal Petain who could think of this war as though it were 1870. Both Russia and Germany have spilled rivers of blood and billions of wealth in this fight. The campaign against Russia is only superficially against Communism and actually is against the whole Slavic world as the unspeakable treatment of Poles, Czechs, and Yugoslavs reveals.

Couldn't Make Peace.

Under these circumstances no Russian leader depending upon mass support, could make peace with Hitler and live for an hour.

But presume there were another Russian leader. What would Hitler be compelled to demand as the reward to his own people for their unspeakable suffering?

A minimum would be the Ukraine—the richest part of Russia. A minimum would be the loss by Russia of all influence in the Baltic or in the Slavic countries of Europe. And a minimum would be a Russian agreement to disarm. For Hitler could still not wage war against the West with a reorganized Russian Army in his rear. Hitler saw this the first time.

The idea is that Russia would be allowed to exist as a vassal state. But Stalin, who is nobody's fool, knows it would be no safer than a Czecho-Slovak protectorate after Munich. And so Stalin thinks as he would were he called Czar instead of Comrade.

And Russia has a hedge against a sellout by reactionary forces in Allied countries, should the victory in the end fall into our hands. Her protection against this is the masses of the people in the Allied countries who are pro-Russian, whatever their leaders may be. These masses are not Communist at all, but they are pro-Russian and anti-Tory.

Therefore, as long as he has an army, Stalin can afford to fight or stand by, no matter to what part of Russia that army may be driven, and Hitler can offer him nothing that any one of sense would take.

So let us stop playing the game of our enemies by lending an ear to rumors about Russia.

The most successful campaign of the Axis so far has been to sow distrust among the Allies, and any one who assists this campaign, even if he be named Reynolds and be head of the Military Affairs Committee of the Senate, is a public menace. — (Released by the Bell Syndicate, Inc.)

Allergy—Sensitiveness To Various Substances

The word allergy is so commonly used today that practically everybody knows that it is simply being oversensitive to various substances—food, pollen, fur, feathers, dust and others. Formerly allergic symptoms usually referred to urticaria (hives), hay fever, asthma, and perhaps some disturbance of digestion. Today it is known that other symptoms and ailments are caused wholly or in part by allergy.

In discussing the symptoms of allergy Dr. Bret Ratner, New York in Hygeia, The Health Magazine, says "People who have allergy manifest their symptoms in one or more of several ways They may have hay fever, which produces symptoms in eyes and nose. They may have asthma which presents symptoms in eyes and nose. They may ahve asthma which presents symptoms of suffocation due to a spasm of the muscles surrounding the air tubes. They may have eczema, a chronic skin condition which presents various disturbances of the skin or uticaria (hives). A variety of disturbances of the stomach and intestine may result from allergy. Even migraine (one-sided headache) and temporary paralysis and blindness have been attributed to allergy.

When we think of all these different organs being disturbed and causing such various conditions by allergy, it would seem that the explanation would be hard to find. Dr. Ratner states that the explanation is rather simple. The tissues in all these disturbed parts of the body are the smooth muscle cells which make up the involuntary (not under the control of the will) found in the lung tubes, in the bloodvessels of the skin, in the mucous membrane (lining of the nose, eyes, and intestine.

In other words, it is the "surface" muscle tissue that gets affected in the various regions and because this type of tissue is found in these parts, all these organs are affected. Most physicians believe that heredity is the main factor in causing allergy, but the form of allergy in the child may not be the same as that in the parent. Thus some families have what is called the asthma-hay fever-eczema complex in which a grandparent had asthma, the parent hay fever, and the child eczema.

The treatment consists in trying to remove the offending substance. In food allergy the offending food if discovered, is removed from the diet entirely and then given in small amounts until the ability to withstand this food is developed.

Sometimes a food that causes allergic symptoms in the raw state causes no disturbances when throughly cooked. Some of these are wheat, meat, and vegetables. Milk (boiled for half an hour) causes no symptoms in many who are allergic to milk.

COMMANDS MARINES

This photo of Major-Gen. Alexander A. Vandergrift, who commands the United States marines operating in the Solomon Islands, was made when he was a colonel. He reached his present rank only last March. General Vandergrift entered the marine corps as a second lieutenant in 1909. Since then he has served in Cuba, Panama, Nicaragua, Mexico, Haiti and China.

MME. COLONEL

We are standing at attention and saluting with a snap,
But it's curious to remember we once sat upon her lap.
Oh, I wonder is it fancy years ago beside the bed
She used to stand in silence while our evening prayers were said?
There's an eagle on her shoulder
and a cap upon her brow,
For mother is a colonel in the women's army now.

There are medals on her bodice where our foreheads used to rest.
She is every inch the soldier when in uniform she's dressed.
Though the time was she forgave us every little fault and sin.
Now in military fashion she is all for discipline.
Now she's early up o' mornings,
dressed and ready for a row.
For mother is a colonel in the women's army now.

She's got father taking orders and saluting when she comes,
The only thing we're missing is the rolling of the drums.
Her voice once sweet and gentle has acquired a service tone
And we're sure when dinner's ready soon a bugle will be blown.
When the food is on the table it is spoken of as "chow."
For mother is a colonel in the women's army now.

YOU'D BE SURPRISED!

THE FARM BLOC

The term "farm bloc" was first applied to a group of American Congressmen about 1921.

"Bloc" is merely the French version of the English word "block." Literally it means simply a lump, or a mass. The term has long been used in English in the phrase "en block," signifying in a lump, as a whole, or in one piece instead of separate sections.

In several European countries before the first World War, and particularly in France, "bloc" was applied to a combination of two or more political parties working together temporarily for a common objective.

France did not have a two-party system and the French senate and house of deputies were split into a bewildering number of small parties that reflected many different shades of political opinion. No important measure could be passed unless enough of these parties joined to form a majority bloc. This situation accounted for the frequent fall and reorganization of French cabinets.

Soon after the first World War a number of U. S. Senators and Representatives from states with dominantly agricultural interests formed themselves into an informal group to work for farm legislation irrespective of party lines. It was a sincere effort to remove farm problems from partisan politics.

About 1921 somebody dug up the old French term "bloc" and applied it to this group in the U. S. Congress. At the time some people objected to the term on the ground that it was an undesirable alien in the English language. But "farm bloc" was a short, convenient name, handy for headline writers, and it stuck.

The farm-state representatives in Congress learned that if they stuck together they could get through legislation for agriculture that wouldn't otherwise have a chance, and as the farm bloc increased in numbers it became an important factor in general as well as legislation directly affecting agriculture.

The farm bloc is not a tangible organization of particular members who have agreed to work for specific measures. It is an elusive, ever-changing group of senators and representatives from states and districts with dominantly agricultural interests.

Members of the so-called farm bloc are too numerous and represent farm interest too diverse to see eye to eye on every proposal relating to agriculture. The farm bloc itself is split into many sub-farm blocs; for instance, the corn bloc, the wheat bloc, the cotton bloc, the dairy bloc, the peanut bloc, and a dozen others are chips off the old farm bloc.

WEDDINGS

HOWES—WICKENS

A very pretty wedding took place in the Presbyterian Church parsonage, on Saturday August 22, of Vera Frances Wickens, daughter of John Henry Wickens of Bayside, and Allan Lorne Howes, son of Robert H. Howes of Belleville. The Rev. W. H. V. Walker officiated in the presence of immediate relatives and friends.

The bride looked lovely in navy sheer ensemble and accessories to match, and wore a corsage of sweet peas and fern.

Miss Olive Howes, sister of the groom, was bridesmaid, and wore teal blue sheer dress with white accessories and wore sweet peas and fern.

Mr. Elmer Wickens was groomsman.

The groom's gift to the bride was a gold locket; to the bridesmaid, a signet ring; to the groomsman, a gold collar pin and tie holder.

The young couple left amid showers of confetti and good wishes for a short wedding trip to Toronto.

ACKERMAN—VANSKIVER

On Saturday, August 22, at ten a.m., the parsonage of the United Church at Milford, was the scene of a very pretty wedding when Alva Carl Ackerman, son of Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Ackerman, South Bay and Keitha Ruth VanSkiver, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William VanSkiver, were united in marriage by the pastor, Rev. M. S. Lehigh. The bride was attended by her niece, Miss Gladys VanSkiver, and the groom was supported by Mr. George Ackerman of Milford.

The bride wore a lovely floor length gown of white satin lace, Juliet style cap with finger-tip veil and a wreath of orange blossoms. She carried a bouquet of gladioli and fern. The bridesmaid's dress was Queens blue triple sheer. She carried a bouquet of mixed flowers.

The bride's travelling dress was of Symphony blue with hat to match. The bridal couple left for Toronto and other points west.

JOHNSON—CULBERTSON

At half past three Saturday afternoon, a wedding of considerable local interest was solemnized in Christ Church, Tyendinaga, when Lavina Georganna, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Culbertson, Belleville, became the bride of John Thomas Johnson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Johnson, Belleville. The Rector, Rev. Rural Dean Pringle, officiated.

To the strains of Mendelssohn's Wedding March, the youthful bride entered the church with her father, who gave her in marriage. She was attractively gowned in blush pink sheer over taffeta, and wore an off-the-face hat and veil in harmonizing shade, and carried an arm bouquet of gladioli.

The bridesmaid was Miss Luella Keller, Belleville, who wore a pretty frock of mist blue sheer over taffeta. Pte. W. B. Johnson, R.C.O.C., Kingston, was his brother's goromsman.

Immediately after the ceremony, the bridal party and guests left for the bride's home in Belleville, where a bountiful wedding dinner was served. The bride was a former resident of the Reserve, and was a member of Christ Church choir, president of the Junior Auxiliary of the W.A., and a Sunday School teacher. The many handsome and useful presents on display attested the popularity of the young couple; and their many friends here and in Belleville will unite in wishing them many years of happiness together.

HAWES—BRANT

A quiet but pretty wedding took place at Christ Church, Tyendinaga, Wednesday afternoon, at three o'clock, when Canon C. E. S. Radcliffe, of St. Mark's Anglican Church, Deseronto, in the absence of the Rector, Rural Dean H. Pringle, united in marriage Evelyn Eileen Brant, daughter of Mrs. J. L. Brant, Eagle Lake, and the late J. L. Brant, and Calvin Raymond Hawes, son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Hawes, Belleville.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her oldest brother, Donald, was becomingly attired in a gown of white crepe with a wreath of orange blossoms in her hair and short veil and carried a bouquet of pink rose buds and baby's breath. She was attended by her sister, Velma Pearl Brant, attired in deep rose crepe with flowers of same shade in her hair. She carried an old-fashioned nosegay.

The groom was attended by his brother, Christopher, of Belleville.

Following the ceremony, dinner was served for the immediate relatives at the home of the bride's mother, Mrs. J. L. Brant. The young couple will make their home in Belleville.

A reception was held at the Council House, Wednesday night, the bride receiving in a gown of pale pink crepe and the bridesmaid in powder blue. Mrs. L. Henshel of Toronto, aunt of the bride, was the guest of her sister, Mrs. Brant, for the wedding.

Checking On Diet Becomes New Game As Nutrition Color Chart Is Issued

Would you like to know whether you're getting exactly the right amount of vitamins every day? Of minerals? Of calories and proteins? You can check up on yourself by learning to play a new game. It's called "Check Your Foods by the Color Test", and you can get it by writing to your provincial department of health.

This is the way it's played. Each important food element has its own color: red for calories, yellow for minerals, blue for proteins, and green for vitamins. Everything you eat has traces of all four elements, but some foods are particularly rich in one or more elements—vitamins and minerals, for instance. So rich that one serving gives you a substantial part of all the vitamins and minerals you need for one day. A food that is rich in all four elements — vitamins, minerals, proteins, and calories—is a four color food.

All right, now what did you eat today? A glass of milk for breakfast? That's a four-colored food. On your score card mark one point under red, one under blue, one under yellow, and one under green. Dark cereal? That's rich in calories minerals, and vitamins; so you get a point under red, yellow and green.

At the end of the day, total your score. Are there as many yellows as reds? No? Then you didn't get enough minerals. Better eat more spinach, liver, lean meat, whole grain cereals, or other mineral-rich foods. Were there as many greens as reds? Good, that means you're getting enough vitamins to balance your consumption of calories. Were there at least four blues? If not you.d better be sure to have meat or fish tomorrow, and perhaps soup made from dried beans or peas. Were there at least eight greens? All right, you're safe on vitamins.

You may be surprised at your score. If you can't answer "Yes" to all the questions, your meals are not correct for health-protection. But you can soon improve your score by following the colored food-chart. It tells you exactly what you should eat for more calories, more proteins more minerals or vitamins.

Conditions Affecting Prospective Mother Influence Dental Health of Children

Decayed teeth in children, it is thought by many, may be due to eating too much sugar, and are more likely to occur in children whose mothers have bad teeth. These are the conclusions drawn from an interesting study recently made by Dr. Huldah E. Thelander, of the University of California Medical School.

Doctor Thelander made her study by carefully examining 78 children at regular intervals for a period of five to six and a half years, starting early in life and continuing until the baby teeth were lost. In this way the information she gathered was collected as the child grew, instead of being obtained from the mother's memory, which often may be inaccurate.

No changes were made in the diet of the children except an attempt to keep the amount of sugar low. The mother's teeth were examined and a statement obtained as to whether or not her teeth tended to decay easily. An effort was made to determine anything which might have affected the mother's health and nutrition during the time she was carrying the baby, such as the kind and amount of food eaten, and evidences of toxemia or poisoning with vomiting.

A visit was made to the homes of the children to determine the economic situation of the parents and the care with which suggestions as to diets were carried out in the homes.

At regular intervals examinations of the teeth were made by a dentist. The children were divided into three groups, depending on the extent of tooth decay and the number of decayed teeth they had.

From this study it was found that the things which seemed to affect tooth decay were, first, the condition of the mother's teeth. If the mother's teeth decayed easily, the child's did also. Poor health during pregnancy and conditions during childbearing, such as overwork, also were factors in producing tooth decay in the baby. Children of elderly mothers also suffered from tooth decay more easily than did other children. Conditions affecting the mother during pregnancy, such as poor diet, interference with nutrition due to vomiting, and toxemia or poisoning, also led to tooth decay in the children. Poverty, poor hygiene in the home and faulty child care were other factors leading to tooth decay.

It was interesting to note that a low intake of vitamins A and D apparently did not affect tooth decay to any great extent. However, when sugar intake was excessive, tooth decay seemed to have occurred more easily.

Heredity is apparently an important factor in tooth decay. When the mother's teeth decay easily, it can be expected that the child will suffer from a similar condition. Hence, in those families where tooth decay develops rapidly, frequent visits to the dentist by the children would seem especially important so that decayed teeth may be detected early and repaired. Of course, all children should be taken to the dentist at least once every six months for examination of the teeth so that faulty conditions can be corrected.

Thorough Home Shampoos

Anna Neagle advices thorough rinsing after a shampoo

By HELEN FOLLETT

MANY WOMEN who used to hang around beauty shops and have a grand time find that they no longer have the leisure for these delightful indulgences. They can get along without facials but the old head has to be laundered. There's no ditching that chore. Well, what do they know about shampooing if they've never done it? Not much. Getting the soap suds on is easy enough; getting it out is something else again.

Here is the right method that will make the silky threads lustrous and shining; it is especially recommended to the woman whose hair is oily.

Friction of the Scalp

Begin with a brisk brushing, throwing the hair forward, brushing upward from the back of the neck. Spread fingers and thumbs over the scalp, friction well to loosen dead scales that may be present.

Use the spray in the bathtub, turn on a strong current of water. Starting with a spraying, much of the surface dust is removed. Holding the head over the tub, pour on melted soap. Use plenty of elbow grease. The first soaping may not fluff up well, so rinse again and put on some more lather. This time it should be as firm as the beaten white of an egg.

A Thorough Job

Another rinsing will follow, a third soaping is in order. The last rinsing should be prolonged with the hair being lifted all the time.

Start combing the hair at one side, then around the nape line and the other side, doing the top portion last. That is the best way to get out the tangles without breaking the shafts. A freshly done permanent may make the hair difficult to comb.

If you use metal curlers or do the ends in pin curls, start at the left side, work to the right, do the top portion last. The wave set lotion should be of exactly the right consistency. If too thin the curls won't stay in, if too thick the strands will be slippery and difficult to arrange.

How to Say Goodbye to Hostess or Host Gracefully

A good many letters have come to this column from young men in different uniforms, who have been entertained well in some of the town's best houses. As one wrote to me: "My invasion is O.K., my retreat a dismal fall-back. How does a fellow get away from these parties without making a boob of himself? I'd almost rather stay in camp".

These boys in uniform are told not to be discouraged and stay away from parties, where they not only will have a good time, but may meet the "One and Only". Saying goodbye gracefully is not entirely the problem of the young and inexperienced; the elderly and revered sometimes make a botch of farewells. I've actually seen dignitaries sputter over it and make a lame withdrawal.

A distinct social achievement, that of being able to say goodbye courteously, crisply, and find yourself on the other side of the door. Some people never learn the trick. They linger, fail to see the hostess' extended hand, remember something they've forgotten to say, listen to someone's yarn in another part of the room, and when they finally leave, it's as if a calamity had passed.

Sometime ago I read a humorous essay about how to say goodbye politely in record time. Sorry I can't credit the author or the magazine, in which this first aid to the halting leave-taker appeared. Both have slipped my memory, but the points of departure ran something like this:

No. 1—Stand up. Sounds easy but sometimes seems difficult as facing a bayonet charge.

No. 2—Hold out your hand and refrain from saying anything banal like "Well, so long". Better say: "Thank you for a good time", or "Such a nice party", or "It was good of you to have us". Your hostess will understand the signal of standing up, if she's a civilized person and won't detain you.

No. 3—If your hostess is engaged in saying goodbye to half a dozen people at once, she may not have seen your hand. Very well, let it drop, and get by with a smile and your thanks.

No. 4—Go to the door. If you find the door surrounded by persons who can't make up their minds to go out, this will require a bit of finesse. Squirm around them politely and make for the knob. Open the door and you'll find yourself on the street. The street may seem like an escape from the enemy on a dark road, or evading a torpedo if you're a sailor man. Be a good sport, go back another time and do it all over again, and you'll be surprised at your social progress and how easy this most difficult of retreats—how to say goodbye gracefully—has become.

Fashion Flashes

Every gal's favorite, the beret, is here again, prettier than ever. A smart version is a softy draped profile beret in silver gray fur felt with a turban back of orange-red silk jersey.

Easy to wear is the casual yet well-tailored shirtwaist dress of woollen. An autumn model is in purple woollen with amethyst stones studding the purple suede belt; amethyst studs and cuff links too. Tucking and peg-top pockets on the skirt.

Here's something that isn new. A new bag of black suede, with butterfly ruffles on either side, has for its clasp a photo frame of the suede enclosing two 25-cent war stamps.

Three cheers for the designer who has come through with a new piece of costume jewelry. It is a 4-inch "map" of South America done in brilliantly colored stones. Products of the various lands—palm tree, fruit, coffee, tropical birds—are set into the "map" in additional stone. A real "conversation piece".

Back to leather gloves now that fall is on the way. Brand new is a six-button model in coffee brown doeskin with red and green wooden beads holding slashes in the flared cuffs.

In keeping with the times and as a smart gesture, many dress houses are offering street-length and floor-length versions of dressy designs. One such number, available for late afternoon or for formal dinner wear, is a black velvet frock with shoulder yoke and melon cuffs of heavy white Venetian lace embroidered with tiny seed pearls and brilliants. The colarless yoke ties with velvet drawstrings.

HEAVY RAID ON HELSINKI

Helsinki, Aug. 25 — (AP) —Forty Russian planes subjected Helsinki last night to its biggest air raid since the summer of 1941, but anti-aircraft fire was reported to have driven off the attackers. Five persons were killed, 10 injured, and some buildings damaged, a Finnish communique said.

The attacking planes were believed here to be part of a large air force being concentrated by the Russians at Kronstadt and on the islands of the Finnish Gulf for defence of Leningrad.

Over 800,000 Children, Enrolled In Junior Red Cross in Canada And Newfoundland, Do Fine Work

With over eight hundred thousand members in 27,239 branches across the Dominion and in Newfoundland the Junior Red Cross organization brings the very young into active participation in works of thoughtfulness for others not only in times of war but in peaceful days. One of the major enterprises of the juniors, and the cause to which they faithfully contribute coppers is the Junior Red Cross Crippled Children's Fund and during the last fiscal year 1,544 crippled children were treated through this fund. In that period branches in Canada contributed over sixty-five thousand dollars to this cause.

Study Health

Another phase of Junior Red Cross work is the study of health. The greatest contribution that pupils in Elementary Schools and students in High Schools can make to their country in time of war or of peace is the practice of the essential rules of health for their own protection and that of others. It is this promotion of personal health that is undertaken so successfully by the Junior Red Cross.

Besides the fostering of a fund to help crippled children the Juniors have been most enthusiastic in other types of service by raising money for war purposes and in providing clothing for the victims of bombing in Britain.

Good Citizenship

The ultimate goal of the Junior Red Cross is good citizenship. The young person who has learned to protect his own health and that of others, and to give his unselfish service where it is needed, has learned the essentials of good citizenship.

Junior Red Cross members in Canada have sustained a great loss in the recent death of Miss Cory Taylor, supervisor of the Toronto Junior Red Cross. She was greatly loved by the school teachers and members of the Junior Red Cross and had created a fine spirit of co-operation and good work in the schools she had visited.

Ask Donations of Honey

In the Red Cross rooms yesterday it was pointed out that there is much demand for jam and honey to be sent overseas.

"Local groups wishing to make a donation to this cause can help provide honey", it was pointed out. "A local honey manufacturer has made a most generous price offer on cans of honey and his name can be obtained by getting in touch with the Red Cross headquarters here. Any organization can arrange to make a contribution towards this and the honey goes overseas as a treat for those ill in military hospitals. Some of our own Canadian boys wounded at Dieppe may enjoy such a treat through the thoughtfulness of a Belleville group. Honey is also sent to children's homes, convalescent homes and to hospitals".

Children Delighted

The appreciation of those overseas for the jam and honey being forwarded is seen in a letter from the director of the Queen's Nursery, Circencester, Gloucestershire: "There are forty little children all under five, whose homes have been blitzed, living in this residential nursery, and they have just received a lovely and exciting present from the Canadian Red Cross Society. This was some beautiful peach jam, and we thank you for it. In a nursery like this your gifts make it possible for us to give the children those occasional treats which mean so much to a little person but which need rather a lot of thought in the ordinary way, these days.. We all thank you most sincerely".

Re-Knitting Department

In the knitting department at the Red Cross headquarters, experts are busy repairing knitting which does not come up to specifications. There are some knitters who do not follow directions and the result is that members of the inspection department must spend extra time going over the article, ripping it out and re-knitting it.

"Look at this seaman's sock. . . It started off all right but that foot wouldn't fit a ten-year-old", was an exasperated comment.

In the sewing department the rooms were busy with Tuesday's group of workers industriously getting out the sheets for Russia. This group has completed fifteen sheets every Tuesday. About three hundred and fifty sheets were packed and shipped to Toronto yesterday. It is estimated that 2,772 sheets of the 4,000 quota are on their way to completion.

Considerable Interest Evinced by Citizens In Total Eclipse of Moon

Considerable interest by many residents of the city was evinced in Tuesday night's total eclipse of the moon which was viewed from ten o'clock until after one in the cloudless southern part of the heavens. Shortly after ten o'clock the moon entered the shadow of the earth, the eclipse being first noticed on the lower left partion of the moon's surface. Gradually the shadow crept over the moon until only a narrow crescent of the moon was visible at eleven o'clock. Then the narrow rim disappeared and only the faint outline and main body of the moon was visible as a dull red glow.

The outline of the moon did not disappear even at height of the eclipse shortly after eleven o'clock. After passing through the earth's shadow the moon reappeared as a brightly outlined crescent with the lower left portion being first visible. The moon had passed completely out of the shadow at approximately 1:30 o'clock this morning. Last night's eclipse was the most clearly seen in this district in many years.

Deacons Spring Real Surprise In Knocking off Zeller's Lassies In First Game for Loop Title

Although Outhit Winners Play Snappier Ball in All Departments

SCORE IS 11-6

Snappy fielding as a team and better running on the base paths was the contributing factor in Deacon's taking the first game in the local girls' final softball playdown series at the Agricultural Park last evening, when they defeated Zeller's 11-6 in what turned out to be a rather many hit ball game.

Deacon's now lead one to nothing in the best-of-five series for the city championship and on their last night's performance seem in a fair way to wrest the championship from Zeller's, winners of the pennant for the past two consecutive years. The series will continue on Thursday evening.

Inability to hit when hits meant runs paved the way for Zeller's defeat in the first game of the money series as they were limited to three hits and no runs by "Stewie" Stewart for the first four innings.

Deacon's got to Bessie Doolittle steadily for safeties and although they were outhit 16-9 over the nine inning route had built up a four-run lead before Zeller's were able to shove two runs across in the fifth. Deacon's steadily widened their margin, however and a four-run splurge by Zeller's in the eighth, when they hit safely seven times, failed to close the breach.

Missed First Sacker

Zeller's sadly missed their regular first sacker, Helen Garrow, and although Pete Haslip did yeoman service in covering the initial bag, the losers missed Helen's "heavy stick work at the plate. The team as a whole kicked in with several miscues, that helped to mount the score, but the feature of the pastime was the winner's fielding in the pinch and their snappy baserunning to take advantage of opposition errors. A double play by Deacon's in the first inning headed off a sure Zeller run and put the team in fine fettle.

"Pee Wee" Colden and Wilma Clarke led all hitters of the night with three singles apiece, while Bessie Doolittle helped her own cause with a timely double in the fifth. "Dot" Hansey, who covered herself with glory in the field, conked out a triple for the winners as did G. Samain who drove in one of her team's runs in the seventh.

Bessie Doolittle slightly outshone her rival on the mound limiting Deacon's to nine safeties, while Zeller's got to "Stewie" for a total of sixteen hits. Bessie struck out five, while "Stewie" fanned two.

Lineups — Zeller's: Colden 2b; Clarke rf; Haslip 1b; Douglas lf; Bennett 3b; Boyle cf; Donovan ss; Flindall c; and Doolittle p.

Deacons: Stewart p; Samain ss; Corneal 1b; Sharpe lf; Woodhouse c; Sword 3b; Moreland rf; Hansey cf; and Freeman 2b.

SPORT SHORTS FROM BRITAIN

By ALAN RANDALL
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, Aug. 26 —(CP)— The war's biggest tennis crowd—3,000—saw first class play when Britain's Peggy Scriven (now Mrs. F. H. Vivian) beat Chile's Anita Lizana (now Mrs. R. Ellis), 6-4, 9-7, in a Red Cross match at Bournemouth.

Five years ago, playing on the same court, Anita beat Peggy in the Hard Courts Championship Final. The Chilean girl, who couldn't speak English when she came to this country but who now talks with her husband's Scottish accent, tried hard to repeat the performance. But she couldn't match Peggy's speed and accuracy.

More news for women fans. Vera Ellery, 15-year-old London girl, clipped 13 1-5 seconds off the British half-mile swimming record of 12 minutes 43 2-5 seconds.

More women swimmers came to the rescue of a Canadian army water polo team scheduled to play a London Fire Force team. Because of the rubber shortage the Canadians couldn't buy headgear, so the girls loaned them their swimming caps.

Two sprightly youngsters in the 100-yard veterans race at a White City Athletic festival were Charlie Cook and A. E. Huddleston. Both are more than 80!

It took Vic Oliver, stage and screen star husband of Sarah Churchill—the prime minister's daughter, nearly a year to do it, but he's finally won a horse race. His Indian Tea won the Apprentice Handicap at Newmarket—and paid a nice 100-7 at that.

British track fans who still consider their Sydney Wooderson the world's best miler sat up and took notice at the four minutes three seconds mile recorded by George Campbell, 18-year-old Australian, at Sydney. That's 3 2-5 seconds faster than Wooderson's recognized outdoor record even if it was made on a track measured with a cloth tape instead of a steel one.

And now for some figures. The Red Cross have sent British prisoners of war: 4,500 soccer balls; 600 rugby balls, 600 hockey sticks, 2,400 pairs of boxing gloves, 1,800 cricket bats, 2,400 cricket balls, 4,500 tennis balls, 7,200 pairs of football boots, 9,000 sets of football outfits, 250,000 packs of cards, 1,500 dartboards, 3,000 shove-halfpenny boards, 1,50 sets of dominoes, 4,000 checker boards, 3,000 chess boards, 5,000 table tennis bats and 18,000 table tennis balls.

ST. LOUIS FANS JUBILANT OVER TEAM'S SUCCESS

Cards Defeat Dodgers in 14 Frames to Whittle Brooklyn's Lead

BROWNS NOW THIRD

By JUDSON BAILEY
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

The cup of cheer—for St. Louis baseball fans is brimming over today with the Cardinals chopping away viciously at the Brooklyn Dodgers and the Browns installed in third place in the American League.

In the past the people of the metropolis on the Mississippi have shown they could take their baseball or leave it alone. But evidence of the spirit among them now is the combined turnout of 58,848 for two successive night games with the Dodgers this week.

They set a record for a night game in St. Louis Monday night with 25,588 and last night 33,260 jammed into Sportsman's Park to set a new mark—and to see one of the most breath-taking baseball battles of this or any other season.

For 12 innings the struggle was a scoreless standoff between those master hurlers, Whit Wyatt of the Dodgers and Mort Cooper of the Cards. Then things started happening fast. Manager Leo Durocher and Coach Chuck Dressen of the National League champions were banished from the field during an argument with the umpires. In the 13th Brooklyn broke the spell with a run off Cooper and the Red Birds relaliated by tying the score against Wyatt.

French Suffers Loss

Larry French, the veteran southpaw who hasn't been beaten by any club except St. Louis, smothered the rally, but in the 14th he and rookie Les Webber were victimized for the deciding run with the Cards getting a 2-1 triumph on a close play at home plate.

It was the second straight success for the Cardinals in their flourishing bid to overhaul Brooklyn and reduced the margin between the clubs to 5 1-2 games, but it was rivalled by the big stride of the St. Louis Browns far away in Washington, where they captured a twilight-night doubleheader to move into third place in the American League.

Al Hollingsworth and Dennis Galehouse combined in a seven-hit hurling job to stop the Senators 8-1 in the first game and George McQuinn set off a rally in the 11th inning with a single to win the nightcap 3-2.

Red Sox Beat Indians

The St. Louis spurt was helped by the Boston Red Sox, who clamped down twice on the Cleveland Indians 4-3 and 5-1 during a turbulent doubleheader in which the first game went 11 innings. Manager Lou Boudreau and two Cleveland players were expelled between games for arguing with umpires, and Ted Williams was booed for going hitless in both contests. This also cost him the league batting leadership. The Indians dropped to fourth place, 1 1-2 games behind the Browns.

The New York Yankees were held to seven hits by Johnny Humphries and scoreless for six innings, but the defence of the Chicago White Sox collapsed to give the world champions three runs in the seventh and Joe Gordon homered with one aboard in the eighth for a 5-3 verdict. Gordon had three hits altogether and passed Williams in the batting race.

At Cincinnati, the eight-game winning streak of Carl Hubbell was broken as Johnny Vander Meer pitched the Cincinnati Reds to a 3-1 victory over the New York Giants, scattering eight hits and fanning 11.

Truett (Rip) Sewell held the Boston Braves to three hits, all of them by Tommy Holmes, and scored his fifth shutout of the season for the Pittsburgh Pirates 6-0. The Philadelphia Phils outhit the Chicago Cubs 15-12 and won 6-4 on the strength of a five-run second inning blast against Bill Lee.

NOTED HORSEMAN REPORTED KILLED

Capt. Erskine Robert Eaton, 27, of Les Fusiliers de Mont Royal, who has been reported killed during the Dieppe raid. Capt. Eaton was a well known horseman. After being commissioned as a second lieutenant in the Governor-General's Body Guards, Toronto, he went to Europe as a member of the army horse show team, representing Canada at Olympia, London and Dublin. He had been living in Montreal for several years prior to the outbreak of war. He is a son of Col. and Mrs. R. Y. Eaton, Toronto.

Toronto, Aug. 26 — (CP) — The Montreal report on moonlight golf played there has raised a mighty unrest among the hard-working men and women in this world who devote Sunday after Sunday to summer-fallowing hundreds of golf courses, and hardly ever hit a ball.

Moonlight golf is a foul blow at public morale. It is a sneer at the hopes and dreams of we members of this soul brotherhood of golfers who get more distance out of divots than golf balls, who list a slice along with death and taxes in the old maxim.

We resent this travesty on the game; caddies with flashlights, yet. My regular caddy wears a crash-helmet, but flashlights, no.

How do those Montreal professionals think we feel, losing an average of one ball every three holes, year in, year out, and in daylight, when we read about them playing well in the dark? How do they think we feel shooting 120 day after day, week after week, with a par once a decade, a birdie once a lifetime? We feel awful.

The thought of moonlight golf is undermining my spirit. It almost makes me regret the day I bought a golf bag, three good balls, a driver, a spoon, a jigger, a five-iron and a putter for four dollars and took up the game.

Incidentally:

If Toronto Maple Leafs hadn't started to win this week, Burleigh Grimes would have been ready to try moonlight baseball to snap them out of it ... Herb (Winnipeg Tribune) Manning reports that Blue Bombers' veterans disapprove the T-formation tried out in workouts by Coach Reg Threlfall .... Toronto Balmy Beach has had some success with the T-formation but it requires ultra-expert ballhandling ... perhaps this year, with many players inexperienced, it would be better to stick to more orthodox methods ... Vancouver race regulars shed copious tears for Tat Larson, who missed cashing two $222 double tickets because he played the Good Samaritan ... it appears he was approaching a wicket to exchange two first-half double tickets when a pal asked him if he had a drink for someone, who had just fainted ... Larson hadn't, but rushed around so long finding one that he was late reaching the wicket and was left standing there with one hand gripping a drink and the other holding two tickets which would have been placed on the race's ultimate winner ... well, it's a good thing he had the drink, with that horror to contemplate.

New York, Aug. 26 — (AP) —The war almost wrecked the United States National Tennis Championships, by taking what the pros left—Don McNeill, Bitsy Grant, Jack Kramer, Joe Hunt, Frank Guernsey and several others — but the army and navy are making a pretty good contribution to the entry list .... the soldiers are Lieuts. Russell Bobbitt and C. Alphonso Smith, Sgt. Ralph Adair, Cpls. J. Gilbert Hunt and Gilbert A. Hunt, and Pte. Marvin P. Anthony ... navy men are Ensigns Ronald Edwards and Robert Kerdasha and Lieut. Gardnar Mulloy.

Sportpourri

Tough training: Two of the sailors who helped middleweight Fred Apostoli train to whip Saverio Turiello at Norfolk the other night were Joe Maniaci, former Chicago Bears' halfback, and Chet Gladchuk, ex-Boston college centre .... if Red Cochrane can get leave from the San Diego naval base to fight on the USO card at the Garden Sept. 10, Fritzie Zivic may finally get that return fight he's been itching for ever since Cochrane took the welter title away from him.

Dat's all, brothers

Jimmy Hines, who supervised that "remote control" golf tourney for a big insurance company, analyzed the cards of 11,039 golfers who played on courses over 5,800 yards ... he came up with the news that the hardest hole to score on was the first, which required an average of 5.5 strokes, and that they needed 5.3 strokes on the 18th .... maybe they were just trying to make both ends meet.

FORMER MATES ON DETROIT TEAM IN MOUND SCRAP

Schoolboy Rowe Bested by Floyd Giebell of Buffalo Bisons

LEAFS WIN ANOTHER

(By The Associated Press)

Two years ago rookie Floyd Giebell and Schoolboy Rowe were the toasts of Detroit, Giebell for besting Cleveland's Bob Feller in the game that gave the Tigers the American League pennant and Rowe for his 16 mound victories.

Giebell and Rowe met again last night, this time as International League rivals with Giebell, now with Buffalo Bisons, spoiling the league debut of Rowe at Montreal, 4-0.

A three-hitter was unreeled by Giebell as his mates bunched three of the five hits allowed by Rowe along with two walks and an error in the second inning for all their runs.

The meal ticket of the Syracuse mound staff, Charles (Red) Barrett, hurled his 19th victory as the Chiefs defeated Newark Bears 5-4 in 10 innings.

Syracuse was trailing, 4-2, going into the ninth when hammering Hank Sauer blasted a two-run homer off Emerson Steve Roser to tie up the game. The Chiefs won out in the 10th on a walk, two sacrifices and an error. Al Gerheauser who relieved Roser was charged with the losses.

Nick Strincevich tossed a five-hit 8-1 victory over Rochester Red Wings as Toronto Maple Leafs pounded Ira Hutchinson for 15 hits.

Burgess Whitehead, Al Rubeling and Jim Ripple led the attack with three hits each. Chuck Aleno of the Wings had four hits in four trips to the plate.

The Jersey City Giants won their second straight from Baltimore Orioles as they defeated the Birds, 6-3, behind the six-hit pitching of Hugh East.

Galloping Swedes May Perform In The United States

New York, Aug. 26—(AP)—Gunder Haegg and Arne Andersson, the galloping Swedes, have accepted the invitation of the National Amateur Athletic Union to compete in the United States this winter—if a way can be found to bring them here.

Haegg and Andersson, both of whom ran a mile in the world record time of 4:06.2 in the past two months, cabled their acceptance to Dan Ferris, Secretary-Treasurer of the A.A.U.

The Swedish athletic governing body, Svenska Idrottsforbundet, requested that Erik Lidman, fourth in the 1936 Olympic high hurdles, be permitted to accompany the athletes as manager.

Ferris said he had no idea how the athletes could be brought to the United States from Nazi-surrounded Sweden unless they were flown over the Atlantic.

CASUAL COMMENT by K.J.C.

DID YOU KNOW—THERE ARE two Belleville brothers now in the Dominion's armed services who had brilliant sports careers ahead of them as they enlisted....They are Leo and Vern Goyer, sons of Frank (Soup) Goyer, who himself was a star in his own right as a hockey and baseball player in another era ....Leo is overseas while Vern is in the navy at Kingston, both of these lads had brilliant hockey and softball before them, having commenced what appeared to be starry careers after serving useful juvenile apprenticeships....Only last winter Vern Goyer received a tryout with the Oshawa Generals....Looks as though the Detroit Tigers are out to eclipse their error record of 1901, when the Bengals booted the spheriod for a total of 425 miscues ..Today the Tigers lead both major loops in errors....There is no .400-hitter looming on the major league horizon such as Ted Williams was last year....Nor has there been any record-breaking streak of hitting in consecutive games as that of Joe DiMaggio's last summer....The reason is said to be attributed to a deader baseball....Red Townsend has asked the O.A.S.A. to appoint two Belleville umps. for tonight's Oshawa at Belleville Eastern Ontario junior final softball game at the Exhibition Park....And also two Oshawa umps to work the return game...."Both clubs will get good umpiring and the clubs will save money," points out Skipper Townsend....Yes, they've got umpires like Tip Miller, Reg Fair and Frank Kellar available in the Motor City, while Eddie Schrieder and Harold Bawden could easily handle the game here with satisfaction to all....High in hopes of making it two straight over the Trenton Rexalls, the Army & Navy Vets leave for Harry Moore's adopted town this evening....The two Jims, Hunter and Stacey, will likely be the opposing moundsmen and another typical Belleville-Trenton sports tangle is promised....However, the Vets enjoy a win, while the Rexall "cowboys" face elimination in defeat.

WITH A GALAXY OF ROUGHhouse ring rogues like "Wild Bill" Longson, Jerry Monnahan, R. Steele, Pedro Martinez, John Katan and Rolend Kirchmeyer all arrayed on one card there should be more excitement at the Hume Arena this evening than has reigned in the local sports palace in years. Every wrestler on the card is a pugnacious ruffian in his own right and the old arena should just about bust open at the seams before hostilities even commence. Aside from the fact "Wild Bill" Longson will defend his world crown against that roughest of all unorthodox wrestlers, "Irish Jerry" Monnahan, the presence of Ray Steele fighting Pedro Ignacio Martinez is another feature not to be overlooked. Steele is a veteran of over 2,000 wrestling bouts and despite the fact he is a chronic prankster outside the ring, Steele has more tricks up his proverbial wrestling sleeve than any man in the business. The savants and sages of the grunt and groan business do not hesitate to say that no man, except possibly Ed "Strangler" Lewis, could beat Steele in his prime.

LOCAL PUCK FANS WILL well remember that swashbuckling hard-hitting defenceman from Peterborough, Archie Weir. Recently Scribe Fred Craig paid the fearless Archie fitting tribute in the following paragraph. "Another Peterborough boy, long a familiar figure in sports here has signed up for the bigger game of beating Hitler and Company. Archie Weir, for years an outstanding performer in hockey and softball, has enlisted with the Canadian artillery, joining the Western Ontario battery of which Capt. Ackhurst, formerly of the 4th Battery here is second in command. Weir, who started his hockey with the St. John's junior O.H.A. team here played with Niagara Falls when they won the junior O.H.A. championship, his work with St. John's having attracted the attention of Cataract scouts, and afterwards played senior and intermediate hockey with the Petes. For a number of years he was coach of the Peterborough junior squad. In softball he played outfield for the Sugar Bowl team, perennial City League winners a few years ago. A host of friends here will wish Weir all kinds of luck in his army career."

CONTINUING WHERE THEY left off in the league semi-finals, "Stub" Barrett's Deacon A.C. lassies wended on their merry way towards the dethroning of the Zeller gals as champions of the gals' softball loop. Chuck Barnett's lassies gave out with an abundance of base hits last night, but Barrett's "beauties" made their base knocks count with steady hitting at the most opportune time. The Deacons gave "Stewie" Stewart splendid support in the clutches, as the league champions just couldn't connect when base hits meant runs. Today the Deacons are one up in a best-in-five series that continues Thursday night. Skipper Barnett contends his squad was weakened by the absence of Helen Garrow, but the Deacons are torrid and have proven their present position with some classy softball in their past few weeks' performance.

REMEMBER WHEN HELEN Wills Moody defaulted to Helen Jacobs in the final match for the United States women's tennis championship at Forest Hills, N.Y., nine years ago today? On the verge of collapse and with the third set 3 to 0 against her she relinquished the crown which she had won seven times.

LOOKS AS THOUGH THE FALL fairs, at least those still in the running, will get a break this year insofar as harness racing is concerned. Both the Kingston and Belleville fair boards are looking for large entries in their racing meets which will doubtless be a boom all around.

THIS AND THAT . . . It was with regret we learned of the death of George W. Morrison of Brockville . . . A cigar store proprietor the late George Morrison was a staunch supporter of sports in Brockville, notably so when the "big six" puck loop was in operation in the early 20's . . . Johnnie Evers, the middleman in the famed trio of Tinkers-to-Evans-to-Chance combination, is fighting another battle in an Albany, N.Y., hospital . . . Schoolboy Rowe did report to the Montreal Royals after all his quibbing . . . "Cupboard" Barriage says it's better than an even money bet that the "Vets" end their Trenton series tonight . . . The Chicago Bears are a husky lot, their total weight is something like 7,625 pounds . . . Twenty-three of their 37-man squad weigh over 200 pounds . . . Gratefully, bow.

Chinese Press Urges Offensive Against Japs

Chungking, Aug. 26 (AP) — A against the Japanese was urged by the Chinese press today to thwart an apparent Japanese move to shift forces in China for an attack in another direction.

The influential Chinese newspaper Ta Kung Pao said the Japanese were withdrawing from Chekiang and Kiangshi Provinces to prepare "another thrust in some more useful place." An attack on Siberia, India or Australia would be more to Japan's advantage than to waste troops on unprofitable enterprises in China, the paper said.

The Chinese high command announced the recapture of Linchwan (Fuchow), second largest Japanese base in Kiangsi Province last night and said another Chinese force was within 30 miles of Nanchang, main Japanese base in the province.

An army spokesman said the Chinese had advanced within six miles of Chuhsien, an important base in Chekiang Province for prospective bombing expeditions against Japan.

In Kiangsi Province, the Chinese hase reoccupied Juihung, 30 miles east of Nanchang, the spokesman said.

He estimated that the Japanese were withdrawing between 50,000 and 60,000 troops from Chekiang and Kiangsi Provinces and transferring them to their original stations in East China.

The China Times expressed the belief the Japanese had revised their strategy to launch an attack on India or the Chinese Province of Yunnan bordering on Burma and urged the Allies "not to sit still waiting to be attacked."

Informed circles here agreed that some large scale revision of Japanese plans prompted the invaders to yield territory which they apparently had planned originally to hold indefinitely.

AT THE CAPITOL

"The Silver Stallion"

Breaking completely away from the usual formula for any type of animal picture, Monogram's "Silver Stallion," starting next at the Capitol Theatre, stands out as one of the finest outdoor adventure films ever to come out of Hollywood.

It has long been held that simplicity is the keynote of true art, and there can be no better proof of this than "Silver Stallion." Taking the elementary story of a boy and his horse, producer-director Edward Finney has welded a compact, powerful and dramatic protoplay that will more than hold its own in any company.

Although there is a colorful background of western action, the picture primarily is the story of "Thunder," the horse, and his battles against the wild animals that threaten his herd and family. It is through "Thunder" that the outlaw boy, played by David Sharpe, finally is shown the error of his ways and gives up his career as a horse thief.

Highlight of the film is the ferocious battle between "Thunder," fighting to protect the leadership of his herd and family, and a wild stallion that threatens his domain. Seldom has the screen seen such savage fury as in this elemental struggle between the two horses.

Almost equalling this for sheer drama is the scene in which "Thunder's" mate fights off a pack of wild "killer" dogs to protect her colt.

Photographed in Arizona and the San Jacinto mountains of California, "Silver Stallion" is laid against a locale of rugged grandeur that does much to enhance the production values of the picture. Marcel A. LePicard is credited with the fine photography.

A veteran of many pictures David Sharpe makes an excellent impression in his first featured role. He is ably assisted by LeRoy Mason, Chief "Tonto" Thundercloud, Thornton Edwards and Janet Waldo.

On the same program at the Capitol next in "Night Train to Munich."

AT THE McCARTHY

"Meet the Stewarts"

When a boy without a dime in his pocket marries a girl without a brain in her head, and they try to live on love and a budget, the end result is bound to be appealingly human. "Meet the Stewarts," Columbia's new romantic comedy at the McCarthy Theatre, is exactly that, a zestful joyously refreshing merry-go-round of love and laughter.

Co-starring William Holden and Frances Dee, with a splendid supporting cast and directed by Alfred E. Green, "Meet the Stewarts" captures all the gay warm-heartedness which held the enthralled attention of Ladies' Home Journal readers when Elizabeth Dunn's glowing "Candy" stories first appeared in that magazine.

Supporting Holden and Miss Dee are such veteran character actors as Grant Mitchell, Ann Gillis, Roger Clark, Marjorie Gateson, Anne Revere and Danny Mummert.

The Stewarts—Candy and Mike—find themselves in one financial jam after another. A daughter of wealth, Candy is unable to live within her new husband's exceedingly limited means; he, on the other hand, discovers that two cannot live as cheaply as one, even if they do have twice as much fun. And so Candy goes to work, too, to repay some of the many debts she has managed to run up in virtually no time at all.

Candy's experiences as a career woman are of lesser importance to "Meet the Stewarts," although they do culminate in a climactic disruption of the Stewarts' domesticity. Mike barges off on his own; his return, months later, is heralded by a free-for-all of epic proportions in which both he and Candy come off second-best. They wind up in jail and, ultimately, in each other's arms.

"Meet the Stewarts" merits its critical raves.

"Sweetheart of the Fleet"

With a perfect cast of musical comedy stars headed by comedienne Joan Davis, beautiful Jinx Falkenburg and lovely Joan Woodbury, the second feature attraction, "Sweetheart of the Fleet," is one of the most delightful screen treats of the season. The McCarthy program also presents the four-star short subject, "Inside Fighting China," a screen tribute to the valor of a people who for five years have fought a powerful enemy with little more than their courage. Here is a triple starred program of comedy, musical romance and pictorial valor you will enjoy. Don't miss it.

AT THE BELLE

"The Big Shot"

Humphrey Bogart and Irene Manning are co-starred in "The Big Shot", a thrill-packed romantic adventure story now at the Belle.

Leon Errol, Lupe Velez and ZaSu Pitts are featured in "Mexican Spitfire's Baby" the added laugh feature.

The latest Movietone News described by Lowell Thomas completes the program.

"My Favorite Spy"

Laughter is the keynote of Kay Kyser's latest picture for RKO Radio, "My Favorite Spy", which is coming to the Belle theatre, to offer plenty of excitement and several catchy new songs in addition to its hilarity.

In the film, Kyser is just married when his country calls him. After some comic mishaps, he lands in the intelligence service, is assigned to help in exposing an enemy spy ring, and ordered to keep his mouth shut; he can't tell even his bride about his job. However, when an attractive blonde operative is told to work with him, and the new Mrs. Kyser finds it out, things begin to happen to Kyser's domestic life.

The climax comes when the ring traps Kyser in an empty theatre. Because of her jealous interference, his bride is caught also. With both of them facing disaster, Kyser ingeniously turns the tables on his captors, and single-handedly rounds them up in one of the funniest sequences in years.

Ellen Drew as the bride, Jane Wyman as the blonde and Robert Armstrong as the spy-ring leader, have principal supporting roles and handle them brilliantly. Ish Kabibble, Sully Mason and Harry Babbitt of Kyser's band with Trudy Irwin and Dorothy Dunn, vocalists, and the band itself, likewise are excellent and so are Helen Westley, Una O'Connor, William Demarest, and Warren Hymer.

Produced by Harold Lloyd, who here has made clever use of suspense technique he formerly employed in the endings of his own starring vehicles, and directed by Tay Garnett, "My Favorite Spy" ranks with the best comedies of the year. It's grand entertainment.

New "Falcon" Film Thrilling

George Sanders again brings that debonair detective, The Falcon, to the screen in "A Date With the Falcon," a new and thrilling exploit of Michael Arlen's fictional sleuth, with Wendy Barrie once more sharing top honors as the Falcon's impatient fiancee, announced as the companion feature.

The strange disappearance of a noted inventor, who has devised a method for making artificial diamonds, forms the basis of the plot. On the verge of going to the altar with his intended bride, The Falcon postponed the wedding in favor of investigating the matter—especially after an attractive mystery girl reveals herself as involved in the affair.

Comedy has been injected into the plot to an exceptional degree, and the engaging quality of The Falcon's activities makes the offering distinctive among mystery films.

Sanders and Miss Barrie are teamed for the fifth time, the latter having played opposite the tall British actor in three "Saint" vehicles. James Gleason plays the police inspector and Allen Jenkins The Falcon's nervous aide, while Mona Maris is the gang's "lure" to entrap The Falcon.

The use of ten per cent. of manioc flour in wheat bread has been compulsory in the colony of Guadeloupe.

Little Benny's Note Book

Pop was smoking and thinking and ma said, I know you have an inbred aversion to cats, William, but there's nothing more appealing than a 3 weeks old kittin.

I suppose there's nothing more appealing to their mother, but naturally she's prejudiced, pop said. I understand their father, whose outlook is much broader, completely ignores them, he said, and ma said, Maud Hews's red cat has 6 of the darlingest kittens, in fact one of them is such a complete darling that I lost my heart to him, and Maud was nice enough to offer to let me have him.

Yee gods, pop said, and ma said, It's the softest, most cuddly little thing you can imagine.

It wont stay soft, or little either, pop said. It'll get as hard as gangster and as big as a big pain in the neck, and if you try to put it off your favorite chair so you can sit down and read, it'll turn on you and scratch you from stem to stern, he said, and ma said, It just loves to be petted, it purrs like a perfect little engine.

It'll get fat and puff like a locomotive, unless it happens to be snarling, pop said. There's nothing more selfish than a cat, except another cat. It just —lives for itself alone. It wants you to make a fuss over it, but if you disappeared and never came back, it wouldn't even know you were gone. You tell Maud Hews you're very grateful but it's a case of choosing between that kittin and me, he said, and ma said, Why William what a silly remark, I wouldn't dream of bringing that kittin home.

Well then why all the sales talk for Peet sake? pop said, and ma said, I dont know what you mean, I just mentioned how adorable it was. Cats are the death and ruination of your best furniture, I wouldn't think of having one in the house, she said.

It's a womans world, you win, pop said.

UNCERTAIN DESTINY

CHAPTER 10

Steve

Linda glanced wildly up and down the room for some avenue of escape from her unwelcome visitor, but the man only chuckled at her frightened face.

"Don't be afraid. "After all, you are a stranger to me, too, and I'm not afraid of you."

Linda saw an amused twinkle in his eyes that was reassuring. He was young and undeniably handsome, with a bronzed face flushed by too much champagne and narrowed blue eyes. His dark hair was tousled; his hands were thrust deep in his pockets like a small boy's and Linda admonished herself for being needlessly frightened. This person was obviously lonely and wanted to talk.

"All right," she said gently. "What is it you want to talk about?"

"About this." He waved his hands to take in the panorama of lights and laughter and color. "This sideshow."

"I think it's beautiful."

"All right. It's beautiful," he said eagerly, "but it doesn't mean a thing. Do you know what it's for? It's a reception for the blond beauty in the corner and the little man by the orchestra platform. Well, the beauty is getting intoxicated on champagne and flattery. She's having a great time, but is the man enjoying it? No! That's because he knows it's a beautiful and expensive fraud."

He paused for breath, and Linda said uncertainly, "I don't know what you mean. They are married, aren't they?"

Linda's companion laughed. "Of course they're married. All Jerry Coleman had to do was to wave a few thousand-dollar bills in Brenda Jordon's face, and—pouf! They're married!"

Linda stared at the man curiously. His eyes were bitter as they rested on the crowded room, his firm, handsome mouth was drawn down distastefully.

"Why are you so cynical?" she demanded. "Just what does this have to do with you?"

"Haven't you heard the gag about Steve Baridon and the little girl who threw him over. It's Chicago's favorite bedtime story."

Understanding dawned on Linda. This man was Mary Baridon's brother. Linda said, gently:

"So you're Mary's big brother—Steve."

"Yeah."

Linda felt a sudden surge of anger at his manner. "The very idea," she said, aloud, "of a grown man going around feeling sorry for himself just because he can't have everything! It seems that I've heard of your writing talent. You have your work, haven't you?"

Linda paused. She thought, suddenly, "What right have I to lecture a stranger? What will he think of me?"

Steve Baridon was looking at her rudely. " Who are you?" he said.

"Linda Phillips is my name."

He looked closely at her. "Linda Phillips—the Prairievale Queen?" he blurted out; then, seeing her hurt expression he floundered awkwardly. "Oh, I'm sorry, Miss Phillips. I didn't mean—"

"It's perfectly all right," she answered stiffly.

"But — don't misunderstand—" He was embarrassed.

"I said it was all right!" Linda was near tears. Who had given her that ridiculous title? She had a sudden suspicion that Brenda might be responsible. Somehow Linda had felt an instant dislike for the new bride the day they met, as though Brenda was not to be trusted.

She looked up gratefully as Greg and Diane appeared. After speaking briefly to Steve they bore her away between them.

"What was he saying to you?" Diane queried when they were safely out of earshot of the disgruntled suitor. "Your face was scarlet."

Linda told the story and Diane frowned. "That sounds like someone's idea of a very funny joke," she said, "but don't take it to heart, honey. Steve Baridon is usually a perfect gentleman—one of the grandest men I know. I can't say I blame him for getting tight tonight, with his ex-girl friend strutting her stuff as Mrs. Jerry Coleman right under his nose."

"But why did he come here, then?" Linda pondered. "I'd think under the circumstances he'd prefer to stay far away."

"That, my dear, is one of nature's odd quirks," Diane answered soberly. "There's something about loving a man or a woman that drives you to the point where you can't stay away from them, no matter how they've treated you. In fact, in many instances, the worse they treat you the more you love them, and Steve Baridon is only human."

"Well, if it isn't Linda Phillips!" A honey-sweet voice said. Linda looked up to see Brenda Coleman smiling maliciously at Diane. "Back so soon, Linda?"

"Linda is visiting me," Diane said.

Brenda's dark eyes were half-closed and she was swaying a little on her feet. Looking at her Linda experienced again the strange distrust this sleek, beautiful girl aroused in her.

"Congratulations, Mrs. Coleman," she said hesitantly. "I hope you'll be very happy."

"Thank you," Brenda replied without glancing at her. She was smiling wickedly at Diane. "You must come and visit Jerry and me sometime when you're in town."

"Oh, but I—" Linda started to explain her new plans, but Diane broke into the conversation. "Another time, Linda," she said impatiently. "It's getting late and Greg is anxious to leave."

As they walked across the room Linda looked back over her shoulder at the bride. Brenda had not moved. She was watching them, smiling a strange, secret smile . . .

Riding back to the apartment, Linda slipped one hand through Greg's arm, feeling a thrill of satisfaction at his nearness. Diane answered Linda's questions in monosyllables.

"What's the matter, Diane?" Linda asked at length. "Aren't you feeling well?"

"Of course. I'm just tired, I guess."

Dreamily, Linda murmured, "It was a lovely reception, but I felt so sorry for Steve Baridon. I wonder why Mary wasn't there?"

"Mary and Brenda aren't speaking now," Diane returned. "Mary is devoted to her brother and she blames Brenda for everything that has happened to him."

"Everything that has happened? What do you mean?"

Diane shrugged, carelessly. "Steve had the idea he would write a book and make so much money from it that Brenda would stick with him after all. He quit his job and started writing in earnest, but in the meantime Brenda met Jerry and broke her engagement. That's about all there is to tell. Steve's been so broken up over the whole mess that he hasn't written another word. His career seems to have gone smash and he doesn't give a darn what happens to him."

Linda shivered. "How dreadful. I can't imagine how he could have so little pride that he would go around telling everyone he had been jilted."

"It's just that he's lost all confidence in himself," Diane said. "He needs a good lecture, but he won't listen to anyone. Mary is heartbroken. Her mother died when Mary was born and since her father is away most of the time, Steve has been her whole family."

The car stopped before the apartment house. Diane jumped out. Standing on the sidewalk she said, "I'll run upstairs. You two must have a lot to talk about."

When she had entered the lobby Linda said eagerly, "I have so much to say, Greg. But first—will you drive to our parking spot overlooking the lake?"

Greg frowned, but obligingly started the engine and headed for the place they had sat during their first night together.

Linda felt a rosy glow of contentment. "Diane is a grand person to understand things."

"Understand?" Greg looked at her quickly. "What do you mean?"

"I mean—about us," Linda said uncertainly, because Greg's quick look had seemed to demand an explanation, soon she was pouring out the story of her parents' distrust, of the gossip in Prairievale and Kyle's insistance that she forget Greg.

"I couldn't stand it any longer," Linda said huskily, "so I packed up and left without saying goodbye."

"But what will you do in Chicago?" Greg was perplexed. "Where will you stay?" He parked the car on the small knoll overlooking the lake. In the late November moonlight it appeared cold and sullen. Linda shivered and moved closer to Greg. He was tinkering with the raio, and presently soft strains floated through the car.

"I'll stay with Diane," Linda answered. "She invited me to visit her when I was here before."

Greg looked at her. "But you can't—" He broke off suddenly and Linda was struck by the strange, savage way he had spoken, almost as though she were not wanted.

"Doesn't — doesn't Diane like me?" Pitifully.

Greg made an impatient gesture. "Of course, Linda. It's just that—well, what will you do for money?"

"I'll get a job," she assured him happily.

"Jobs don't grow on trees," Greg was blunt.

Linda felt hurt by his attitude. A new thought struck her and she whispered plaintively, "You are glad to see me aren't you Greg? I wanted it to be a nice surprise."

Greg hesitated for a moment, before he said casually, "Of course I'm glad, but I wonder if it was wise. If I'm responsible for anything—"

"You're responsible for a good many things." Linda brushed his cheek with her lips. "All of them nice. You're responsible for making me realize how drab my life really was—for keeping me from making the dreadful mistake of marrying a man I didn't love."

Greg held her in his arms. Tenderly. "I hope," he said thickly, "that you won't be—well, too disappointed in me, Linda."

Planned Pacific Raid

THE WAR TODAY

By De WITT MACKENZIE
(Associated Press War Analyst)

Today in the far southwestern Pacific among the Solomon Islands Allied and Japanese forces are locked in a great sea and air conflict.

A Japanese victory might take the Nipponese a long way towards achievement of their announced ambition of dictating peace in Washington. That would mean the transfer to this continent of the torture chamber, the wholesale murders and rapings and the insufferable militaristic repression which exceeds even Hitlerism in its brutal arrogance.

This is indeed a fateful moment for the Allies. Not only is the wheel of fortune whirring in the Orient, but over in the milling Russian theatre Hitler is throwing into the decisive battle of the Caucasus every ounce of striking power he possesses in an effort to make a kill. The position of the Red armies is one of dire peril, though it isn't by any means hopeless.

In perhaps eight weeks or so that wheel of fortune will stop spinning and the little ball will drop to tell us what our luck may be. Our great concern, of course, is Hitler. He must be stopped before snow flies. If we can keep him away from fresh resources and preserve the Red fighting machine from destruction, then we shall have our grasp on sure victory, for we can handle the Japanese once we have stopped Hitler.

Still, the Japanese and the Germans can't be considered as separate units at this juncture. The battle of the Caucasus and the battle of the Solomons are interlocking in their effect.

Japs Gambling With Large Fleet

We haven't enough facts about the engagement in the Pacific to say that it will have decisive effects. We don't know the size of the forces engaged and that is essential to our calculations.

However, from the meagre information at hand it would appear that the Nipponese are gambling with a large section of their grand fleet.

If the Japs are risking a great naval fleet, besides air power, then we have in the conflict all the elements for a decision which may be a sure guide to the outcome of the war with Japan.

The United States appears to have the advantage of being able to meet the Japanese warships with land-based bombers, and that in itself might spell disaster for the Mikado's forces.

If America can inflict on the Japanese a further heavy naval loss, without itself suffering severely, then she probably shall have settled the supremacy of the Pacific in the Allies' favor. That won't be one but a whole handful of nails in the Jap coffin.

Japanese Quite Persistent

Why should the Nipponese make such an attack?

In the first place the Japanese is a persistent devil and one of his characteristics is that he won't take a punch in the eye without returning to try to restore his standing in society. Beyond that, however, the islands which the marines now hold by right of bloody combat represent a base from which the Allies can strike at the other Japanese conquests in that area and so threaten Indonesia. United States possession of these islands also deprives the Japanese of an invaluable base for operations against Australia and weakens the barrier they erected across American communications with Australia.

Then again, so long as the Allies hold the threat of these bases over the head of the enemy, he is handicapped in his operations against China, in any scheme for attacking Russian Siberia and in any attempt to invade India. Now is the crucial time when Hitler needs the support of his ally and the Japanese want to be free to act according to their light.

WALL STREET

New York, Aug. 26 — (AP). — Stocks worked lower today against a generally unfavorable news background.

Factors held accountable for a moderate preponderance of selling in the leaders included the threatened Fall of Stalingrad and United States Treasury proposals for an excess profits tax of 90 per cent on corporate income and a combined normal and surtax rate of 55 per cent.

Financial circles regarded the Treasury program as somewhat bearing in spite of provisions for a 12 per cent post-war credit.

Prices were down from the start but losses exceeded a point in only a few instances near the fourth hour.

Dips were widest for Bethlehem, Steel, General Motors, Santa Fe and American Telephone. Declines ranged from minor to sizable fractions in U. S. Steel, Goodrich, Montgomery Ward, Douglas Aircraft, Boeing, United Aircraft, Westinghouse, Southern Pacific, Great Northern, Western Union and Texas Co.

There was little interest in the Canadian section. Canadian Pacific and Dome Mines traded unchanged. Canadian Government 4S were unchanged in the bond market.

Steel issues were mildly weak and other industrials held fairly steady.

ELITE JEWELRY STORE ENTERED, LOSS IS $1,000

Robber Throws Stone Thru Window and Snatches Diamond Rings

PASSES UP WATCHES

Belleville's second smash-and-grab jewelry robbery within three weeks resulted in a $1,0000.00 worth of diamond rings being stolen from the window of the Elite Jewelry store, operated at 301 Front Street, by Mr. I. Lindenberg, early Wednesday morning. The robbery was discovered by a passing milkman, who raised the alarm.

In the same manner in which McCurdy's jewelry store was robbed just three weeks ago, the bold robber crashed the Elite store window with a large stone and reaching inside stole around 25 diamond rings and one locket, Mr. Lindenberg informed The Ontario Intelligencer today. Police investigated and are of the opinion that the same person responsible for the McCurdy robbery returned to Belleville last night and duplicated his work. As in the former case the loot consisted of diamond rings and marriage sets, the robber passing up valuable gold watches in both robberies.

Large Stone Used

A much larger stone was used to shatter the Elite store window, than was the case in the McCurdy robbery. The modus operandi is rather simple, the robber merely walking up to the store window and shattering a large section at the bottom and reaching inside to snatch as much jewelry as possible and escape before the alarm can be raised. What puzzled police was how the robber reached fully four feet inside of the broken window to remove some of the diamond rings from the show boxes.

"There were about 15 diamond rings just inside the window and within easy reach through the shattered hole, but how any person reached to the far north side of the window without cutting his arm is what I can't understand" remarked Mr. Lindenberg.

Family Lives Over Store

The Lindenberg family rseide in an apartment above the jewelry store and Miss Vera Lindenberg sleeps in the front room directly over the store entrance. Miss Lindenberg stated this morning she heard no undue disturbances during the night. However, there is a metal manhold in the centre of Front Street that rattles loudly, when passed over by a vehicle and which creates sufficient noise to detract from any shattering of a window, explained Miss Lindenberg.

The Lindenberg family reside in an adjoining apartment, told The Ontario Intelligencer, she was awakened by a thud-like noise but put no thought to the matter as passing trucks sometimes awaken her.

Patrolling Area

P.C. Wright was patrolling the area behind the block, where the Elite store is situated ascertaining if all rear doors were secured. He was the first officer to arrive at the scene to find the large stone inside of the broken window. The window was intact, when P.C. Wright examined the front of the store only a short time previously.

Similar smash-and-grab jewelry robberies have been reported at Kingston and Port Hope during the past month, this being Belleville's second within three weeks. District police are of the opinion a lone robber, who operates shortly before sunrise, is responsible for the robberies, explained Acting Chief Harman.

Duke Visited Trenton Air Station Aug. 2, '41

His Royal Highness, the Duke of Kent on his tour of air stations in Canada in the summer of 1941 visited the Trenton Air Base on August 2nd and made a two-hour inspection where he inspected the establishment and reviewed the command. He travelled from Ottawa to Belleville by air and left for Camp Borden.

Trenton was the first large air station which the Duke had visited up to that time of his sojourn in Canada.

Fires Bren Gun From Hip, Downs Two Nazi Raiders

London, Aug. 26 —(CP Cable)—Two Focke-Wulf 190's destroyed by ground defences during a raid on a south coast town today were reported shot down by a sergeant using a Bren gun, firing from the hip in commando style.

The raiders were flying so low that one of them rolled over on its back and crashed immediately after the sergeant opened fire. The identity of the marksman was not disclosed.

(On Aug. 8 it was announced that L. Cpl. Ronnie Plant of Jarvie, Alta., shot down a Nazi fighter-bomber in this way, using a magazine and a half of bullets. He shot the tail off the plane, which crashed a few miles away.)

One report described the sergeant as a Canadian who was quoted as saying, "they were flying so low I couldn't miss them and when I opened fire one turned on its back and fell."

Another of the aircraft which crossed the Sussex coast crashed in a ditch outside of Eastbourne.

Nazis Concentrate On U-Boat Building Say London Circles

LONDON, Aug. 26 — (CP) — Despite heavy aerial attacks on U-boat yards and bases, German undersea raiders still constantly menace Allied shipping, official circles said today.

"The output of German submarines remains large and the Allies must depend on anti-U-boat devices to protect shipping," a source said. "The submarine threat is still very grave and our attitude toward it should recognize this fact."

The comment followed reports of increased sinkings of U-boats in the Atlantic and a reduction of Allied shipping losses on the sea lanes off the American coasts.

The Germans are devoting their entire naval building program to the construction of U-boats and therefore can afford material losses, the commentator said.

"The loss of submarine crews is the important thing to Germany," he added. "The Nazis particularly feel the loss of U-boat commanders, who must have experience to be successful."

VITAL BATTLE FOR EGYPT SEEN IMMINENT

Russians Smash Nazis in Central Front, Recapture Villages

JAPS PAY HEAVILY FOR NEW GUINEA LANDING

Reinforced Armies On Both Sides Of Battle Line Ready

Allied Airmen Begin To Peel off Thin Veneer of Calm On Western Desert

MAORIS STORM SEGMENT

CAIRO, Aug. 27 — (AP). — Allied airmen already have begun peeling off the thin veneer of calm on the Western desert, too crucial a battlefield to stay quiet long, and rested, reinforced armies on both sides of the Alamein line are ready to lock in what may be a supreme battle of the war.

The two-month lull may erupt into another major struggle when the brightness of a full desert moon begins to wane tonight or the break may come tomorrow or later.

But whenever it comes, British authorities are sure of three things—it won't be long, they and their American Allies are ready, and Prime Minister Churchill has promised them every aid possible to put up a fight as though for Britain's own soil.

One portent of a developing new battle on which may hinge mastery of the Mediterranean and Hitler's hopes of closing a giant nutcracker on the Middle East through Egypt and across the Caucasus was the growing scale of Allied air activity.

Long-range R. A. F. fighters raked enemy transport columns west of El Alamein Tuesday, killing or disabling hundreds of Axis troops and destroying 20 vehicles headed toward the front lines loaded with soldiers.

New Zealanders Storm Segment

(That night, a British exchange telegraph report in London said, New Zealanders stormed an Italian-held segment in a moonlight reconnaissance raid and brought back a number of prisoners.

In the first air operation on this front four Axis air bases in the Sidi Barrani and El Daba areas were raided.

Well-placed informants in London, who could not otherwise be identified said they had no knowledge a new battle had started but that considerable movement behind Field Marshal Erwin Rommel's lines indicated he is about ready to try to drive the last 80 miles from El Alamein to Alexandria.

Aim at Youth In Leadership Says McNaughton

Somewhere in England, Aug. 27 (CP Cable)—Lt.-Gen. A. G. L. McNaughton used a forestry term in referring today to himself and others of the older officers in the Canadian army

"Those of us who are older are a cover crop. We are simply trying to give the younger man the background," he told a group of visiting Canadian editors.

"Most definitely we shall continue to aim at youth in leadership within the army. Unless you have youth and physical fitness you haven't endurance, which is absolutely necessary.

"All one needs do is study Dieppe to see that young officers can obtain and keep the confidence of their men and handle themselves cooly in the toughest situation."

13th Casualty List of Active Army Issued

Ottawa, Aug. 27. (CP) —Three men were reported killed and eight wounded in the 13th Canadian (Active) Army casualty list since the Battle of Dieppe issued at National Defence headquarters today.

Two majors and a lieutenant were reported killed in action and the wounded included two captains and two lieutenants.

The 13th list brought the unofficial count of Canadian casualties in the raid on the French port to 650 with an even 100 reported dead, 426 wounded and 124 missing. It brought the army's losses in dead and missing since the start of the war to 990.

The 12th list issued last night contained the names of 32 Canadian soldiers.

Three of them were reported killed in action, one died of wounds, one dangerously wounded, one seriously wounded, twenty-five wounded and one admitted to hospital suffering from immersion.

One of the wounded, Acting Lance-Corporal Frank Joseph Weaton of Salisbury, N.B., now is reported safe after being reported missing in a previous list.

King and Queen Return to London

London, Aug. 27 (CP)—The King, in naval uniform, and the Queen, wearing black, returned to London today for the funeral of the King's youngest brother, the Duke of Kent, who was killed Tuesday in an air crash on active service.

A special train also brought back the Duke and Duchess of Gloucester for the funeral. A small, bareheaded crowd gathered at the station when the Gloucesters' train arrived.

6 KILLED IN BOMBAY

Bombay, Aug. 27 — (CP) — Six persons were killed today when troops fired on a crowd of demonstrators attempting to set fire to private property.

Forces Overseas Outward Expression Of People of Canada — McNaughton

By CHARLES BRUCE
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Somewhere in England, Aug. 27—(CP Cable) — Lt.-Gen. A. G. L. McNaughton told a group of newsmen today that "if anyone thinks we are going to sit here back of the ditch, which is this channel, he has another think coming."

Gen. McNaughton was welcoming a group of visiting Canadian editors and other correspondents to army headquarters and naturally talk at the Press conference centred on Dieppe.

"The lessons of Dieppe are still being studied," he said.

"In combined operations it is necessary for each of the forces concerned—land, navy and air—to assess and correlate information obtained. And after that not to tell the enemy all that has been learned."

The General said long training was necessary for Dieppe but did not rule out a quick succession of raids if that should be decided upon.

"Matters were gone at thoroughly," he said. "We had to develop and learn technique. But just as in industry, when you have the first models it grows easier.

Officers and Men Praised

"There is one thing that should be said—this raid proved the alertness and coolness under fire and the absolute devotion to duty of Canada's young officers and the confidence the men have in them.

"And it proved the three separate services can co-ordinate and carry out an action of that kind."

He said he believed the fact the enemy had moved its dispositions into forward areas did not necessarily indicate advance knowlege of this specific raid.

"It probably means he had a feeling that something probably would be done somewhere and made preparations."

He added, "A great deal of useful information on enemy dispositions was obtained before the raid was made."

U.S. ARMY PLANES START LARGE FIRES AT LASHIO, BURMA

Direct Hits Scored On Runways and Fighters Strafe Town With Machine-Guns

CHINESE PRESS DRIVE

Chungking, Aug. 27. (AP)—United States army planes raided the Japanese base at Lashio, Burma, yesterday, shooting down two enemy fighter planes and probably destroying two more, Lt.-Gen. Joseph W. Stilwell's headquarters announced today.

All planes returned safely, the announcement said.

"Two large fires were started in the centre of the city and a number of hits were scored on the airdrome runway", the War Bulletin said.

The raid was carried out by bombers with a fighter escort. The fighters strafed the town and airdrome.

Lashio, near the southwestern border of China, is at the head of the rail line running from Rangoon, on the coast, through Mandalay. It was at Lashio that the famous Burma Road, over which supplies were trucked to Free China, began.

Yesterday's raid was the first by the United States fliers since August 11, when Yochow, in Hunan Province, and Nanchang, in Kiangsi, were attacked.

Today's communique was the first by the U.S. Army Air Force in China since it started operations July 1. Its only other officially-recorded attack outside China occurred August 9, against Haphong, French Indo-China.

Says Remark Made Seven Years Ago

New York, Aug. 27—(AP) — A BBC broadcast heard today by CBS quoted Joseph Stalin as saying, "The military situation remains very serious; history has perhaps never known so gigantic a battle," but the official Soviet Radio Monitor in London said the remark was made seven years ago in a political speech. The Monitor added the BBC apparently was misled by the fact it was quoted in today's issue of Pravda, Communist party paper.

Soviet Troops Slash Westward in 15-Day-Old Drive to Break Salient

Principal Objective is Rzhev, Which, if Taken, Will Relieve Pressure on Moscow and Also Threaten Hitler's Southern Army — Action Develops on 70-Mile Front and to Date Nazi Casualties Are Listed at 45,000 Dead

NAZIS DRIVE NEARER TO STALINGRAD

By EDDIE GILMORE
(Associated Press Staff Writer)

Moscow, Aug. 27 —(AP)— While Stalingrad battled doggedly for its life, Russia's central front armies slashed at the German-held Rzhev-Vyazma railway 120 miles west of Moscow today and fought for footholds within the streets of Rzhev in a newly-announced offensive that has pushed back a Nazi salient 25 or 30 miles.

Although the situation of Stalingrad, industrial city on the lower Volga, was conceded to be critical, the Russians described it as "no worse" and counter attacks were developed.

German gains in the central Caucasus, however, drew expressions of concern. A tank-led task force fought its way to Mozdok, 30 miles east of the Prokhladnenski battlegrounds and a jumping-off point for thrusts toward the oil fields of Grozny, 55 miles to the east, and the Georgian military highway terminal at Ordzhonikidze, 40 miles to the south.

The 15-day-old Russian drive on the central front was intended both to eliminate a long-standing German threat to Moscow in the Rzhev-Gzhatsk-Vyazma triangle and provide a diversion against the German offensive to the south.

The break into heavily-fortified Rzhev, on the upper Volga, 130 miles northwest of the capital, was reported made from the north.

(Reuters News Agency reported the Germans were throwing fresh reserves into the savage battle for Rzhev but were compelled to retreat with heavy losses as the Red army thrust westward.)

Hundreds of Germans were declared added overnight to a previously-announced toll of 45,000 Nazi dead in the Russian drive and one Soviet formation captured a fortified position, the Soviet Information Bureau said.

"In another sector", the mid-day communique announced, "our troops destroyed three heavy German tanks and killed about 400 enemy officers and men. Booty was captured and prisoners were taken."

The army newspaper Red Star declared Soviet vanguard had reached the Rzhev-Vyazma railway, a Nazi north-south supply line 120 miles west of Moscow and that heavily-fortified Rzhev was under attack.

70-Mile Front

While this action developed on a 70-mile front, the Russians said the Germans had landed thirty miles closer to the Grozny oil fields in the Central Caucasus, but indicated Stalingrad's position was essentially unchanged.

Red Army Tank crews, artillery and infantry were reported outnumbered at some points as much as three-in-one in fighting against the German pincers closing upon Stalingrad steel city of the Lower Volga named for Russia's premier

"A few German tanks succeeded in penetrating the depth of our defences, but they were destroyed by hand grenades and incendiary bottles", it was announced.

Although the effect upon Germany's southern drive was still problematical, the government announced that Russian shock troops under Gen. Gregory Zhukov had hurled Nazi lines back 25 or 30 miles in the Rzhev-Gzhatsk-Vyazma salient during the last fifteen days and captured 610 communities.

Battle Near Rzhev

Fighting was reported in progress on the outskirts of Rzhev, a Nazi-held stronghold on the Upper Volga 130 miles northwest of Moscow, which was by-passed in the Red Army's winter offensive

The Russians mingled counter attacks with static defence operations before the gates of Stalin-

FRENCH WRITER SEES VAST POWER OF ALLIED NATIONS

People of Unoccupied France Deeply Stirred by Article in Figaro

U. K. HEART OF EMPIRE

Vichy, Aug. 27—(AP)—A newspaper article by Jean Lecour de Grandmaison, President of the French Catholic Federation, in which he said the United Nations have great reserves of strength to throw into their war effort caused a stir today throughout unoccupied France.

The article, on the front page of Figaro this morning, stated, "America, protected by distance, remains almost intact as a reservoir of men and materials."

Another of Grandmaison's observations was that "the British Isles remain the heart of the British Empire."

"Russia," he asserted, "can continue more or less effective resistance from the depths of Siberia," and he believed it was evident "Japan will not suppress China."

Grandmaison concluded that "it is hard to see, in the present state of things, how force alone can bring the war to an end.

69 CANADIANS BACK FROM JAPAN START FOR HOME

Group Includes Diplomatic Representatives, Commissioners and Missionaries TREATMENT FAIR

Montreal, Aug. 27 (CP) — Obviously weary after 18,000 miles of travel, but just as obviously glad to be back on Canadian soil, 69 Canadians from Japan and Japanese-occupied territory scattered to their homes throughout the Dominion today.

The group, including diplomatic representatives, trade commissioners and missionaries of various religious denominations, reached Montreal late yesterday following debarkation the day before from the diplomatic liner Gripsholm at New York.

Besieged by questioners as they arrived at Bonaventure Station, they refused to discuss reports of atrocities on prisoners of Nippon and described their treatment at the hands of the Japs as "polite." Most of them had been under guard since Japan struck at Pearl Harbor last December.

3 GERMAN SHIPS, 1,500 TONS EACH HEAVILY DAMAGED

Hurricane Bombers of R.A.F. Attack Five-Ship Convoy Lying Off Dieppe

TAKEN BY SURPRISE

London, Aug. 27 (CP)—Three German ships of 1,500 tons each were damaged severely and a smaller vessel was hit today by Hurricane bombers which attacked a five-ship convoy lying off Dieppe, the Air Ministry announced.

The bombers were escorted by Spitfire fighters.

All planes returned safely despite intense anti-aircraft fire.

"We seemed to take them completely by surprise," said a squadron leader. "We flew across at sea level and attacked out of the sun. We each chose a ship and went in firing."

German night raiders again scattered incendiary bombs over parts of the East Anglian countryside last night in an apparent effort to destroy crops.

High-explosive bombs also were dropped and three persons were killed in one town when a bomb hit a shelter.

Bombs also were dropped on a southeast coast town early in the night.

For the second successive night there was no R.A.F. attack on Germany, apparently because of bad weather over the continent.

The roar of planes and chatter of aerial machine-gun fire, however, indicated that an air battle was being fought at high altitude over the southeast English coast this morning.

TIRES TO THE RATIONING BOARD

Seattle, Aug. 27—(AP) — Police tried to have an auction, but it was too successful.

"How much am I—" began Sgt. Harvey O'Brien, holding up one of seven unclaimed tires. "I bid $7," yelled a woman. "Wait, there's a ceiling. I can't accept more than $4.45."

"To hell with the ceiling," a woman shouted. "I bid $7.10."

Police called the whole thing off and gave the tires to the Rationing Board.

Brockville, Ont., Aug. 27.—(CP)—A four-months-old Brockville infant found out about Wartime Rationing Regulations today when its application for a ration of tea was refused by Regional Offices of the Wartime Prices and Trade Board here.

British People's Energy and Work In Production Shown by Lyttelton

London, Aug. 27—(CP) — Oliver Lyttelton, Minister of Production, asked the people of the United States today to look upon the United Kingdom as a partner "whose energy and work in the field of production are at least equal to yours—and I could hardly think of a higher form of praise."

Inaugurating a new series of broadcasts in BBC's North American service, Lyttelton said that, making allowances for the difference in population, the United Kingdom in the first quarter of this year produced a little less than two and one-quarter times as much as the United States and twice the weight in aircraft.

In the second quarter on the same basis, the United Kingdom produced twice the weight in combat aircraft and one and one-half times as much munitions, he said, but the comparison for the present quarter would be less favorable to the United Kingdom, "and that is a great source of satisfaction to us."

Lyttelton disclosed that when the United States first was threatened with air attacks, Britain rushed planes, ack-ack guns and barrage balloons across the Atlantic to reinforce America's defences.

Submarine chasers also were dispatched from British flotillas to help in the battle against U-boats off the Atlantic coast and in the Caribbean, he said.

Troops and Planes Of Allies Battle Landing Force

Enemy Transport, Six Landing Barges Destroyed and Cruiser Probably Sunk

LANDING ANTICIPATED

By JOHN H. WIGGINS
(Associated Press Staff Writer.)

Washington, Aug. 27 (AP)—The furiously-spreading battle of the southwest Pacific rolled closer to the Australian mainland today as Japanese invaders paid heavily with ships, troops and planes for a savagely-contested landing on the southeastern tip of New Guinea.

While American air power put one enemy invasion fleet to flight off Guadalcanal and inflicted mounting naval losses on another in the strategic Solomons, Allied ground troops and planes 600 miles to the west joined battle with a force of Japanese marines that landed from a small convoy at Milne Bay.

Heavy Allied air action, Allied headquarters announced from Australia, destroyed an enemy transport, six landing barges and battered a cruiser probably sinking it. Medium bombers and fighters also raked other Japanese barges and supplies, strafed landing troops and started many fires.

Action Termed Encouraging

The United States navy department at Washington, meantime, termed the continuing action in the southeastern Solomons "encouraging" with at least 13 Japanese ships damaged in the vain effort thus far to recapture the bases held by United States marines.

Japs Circle Mountains

The enemy landing in New Guinea, circling around the mountains that had barred an overland advance southward, obviously increased the threat to the Australian mainland, less than 500 miles distant. The landing was not unexpected for Allied observers believed the Japanese would attempt the manoeuvre to get at Port Moresby, the strongest Allied New Guinea base, 230 miles to the northwest.

Buna Raided

Establishment of a strong air-sea base at the Milne Bay site would facilitate Japanese bombardment of a string of Australian mainland industrial cities across the Coral Sea to the south, and serve as a centre for further counterattacks on Allied positions in the Solomons.

Buna, apparent springboard for the advance of the small Japanese convoy, was attacked by Allied air forces with six Japanese fighters destroyed and two damaged. Thirteen enemy fighters were destroyed in surprise attacks Tuesday.

Establishment some weeks ago of the Buna base on New Guinea was of no avail to the Japanese in their apparent drive for Port Moresby. Invading ground troops were stopped 60 miles from their goal by the towering Owen Stanley range. Consequently, they were forced to sweep Milne Bay.

Outcome Indefinite

The Japanese convoy was attacked while en route two days ago by Allied airmen who sank an enemy gunboat and machine-gunned two transports inflicting an undetermined number of casualties. No detailed account of Allied losses has been released.

In the Tulagi-Guadalcanal Island zone of the Solomons, a navy communique yesterday said the sea battle still raged with the outcome still indefinite.

Since renewal of the conflict five days ago, American bombers have set two enemy destroyers on fire and pounced upon transports, cruisers and destroyers of one invasion fleet forcing it to withdraw from approaches to Guadalcanal.

Another Japanese naval force, operating to the northeast, is still involved in a major sea battle in which airplane carriers and warships are the target of bombers and fighters.

NEW HOUSING PLAN ANNOUNCED BY J. L. ILSLEY

Will Create New Housing Accommodation by Making Loans to Owners

PLAN OUTLINED

Ottawa, Aug. 27 (CP)—The Federal government has taken a new step to meet Canada's growing housing shortage by drafting a home extension plan aimed at creating new housing accommodation by loans to householders in all towns and cities where the deficiency is caused directly or indirectly by war activities.

The new plan, announced last night by Finance Minister Ilsley will be in operation by Sept. 1, and is one of several methods adopted by the government to meet the housing shortage which has developed from war-time booms in many Canadian municipalities.

Mr. Ilsley's announcement said specifically that the plan is "solely for the purpose of assisting owners to improve or repair the homes which they now occupy." Otherwise, it is similar in most of its essentials to the old home improvement plan.

The new plan is based on an item placed in the supplementary estimates during the closing days of the last sitting of parliament which was to enable householders to divide their homes into self-contained duplexes or apartments by a limited government guarantee of loans being provided. The total amount of loans which may be guaranteed must not exceed $2,000,000.

Handled Through Banks

Under the scheme, loans will be handled through the chartered banks, with the maximum rate of interest at a discount rate of 3 1-4 per cent for a one-year loan payable in 12 equal monthly instalments, and proportionate rates for other periods.

"This is equivalent to an effective interest rate of 6.32 per cent a year," said Mr. Ilsley. "Loans must be repaid in not more than 60 monthly instalments and the minimum payment is $15 a month.

Loans may be made for the full cost of construction, provided they do not exceed $1,500 for the first new housing unit provided, $1,000 for the second new unit, and $750 for the third and each succeeding unit. Units must be completely self-contained. Loans can be made only to the registered owner of the dwelling in which the additional self-contained housing units are to be created.

69 CANADIANS

E. D'Arcy McGreer, charge d'affaires at the Canadian Legation at Tokyo and leader of the party, said that as far as the diplomatic corps was concerned, the Japanese had laid down various restrictive regulations but allowed them to take daily walks under a protective guard.

There was no special war fever noticeable in Tokyo, he said, until U.S. planes carried out their bombing raid. Of the effects on the raid he said nothing but observed that "they seemed to be deeply impressed by it."

Saw Only One Plane

Although the English-language newspaper in Tokyo made impressive claims of the number of planes shot down in the raid, Mr. McGreer said ". saw only one plane, which I believe was American, flying low, which might possibly have been in difficulty."

Col. E. S. Doughty, Canadian immigration officer at Hong Kong, stoped long enough to remark "I was never so glad as to get away from Hong Kong," and then went dashing through the crowd in search of his wife. He said he had heard nothing about the treatment of Canadian troops after the fortress fell.

To W. H. Poy, for 14 years in the service of the trade commissioner at Hong Kong, "repatriation" was not quite the right word to describe his arrival, for it was his first visit to Canada. An Australian-born Chinese, he arrived with his Chinese wife and their two children.

The Canadians put up a stubborn fight at Hong Kong, he said, and "their record as wonderful fighters will long be remembered." The general feeling in Hong Kong had been that "everything was done that could be done to defend it under the circumstances."

William E. Clare Makes Last Run Before Retirement

When William E. "Warpy" Clare, veteran engineer, drove No. 16 express train into the Belleville Canadian National Railways station, shortly after two o'clock this morning, he received a surprise he will remember for years to come, because awaiting him were a large number of his railway contemporaries to wish "Warpy" health and happiness in future years. It was "Warpy's" last run as today he is enjoying his 65th birthday and entered upon his retirement from active employment with the Canadian National Railways.

William E. Clare, who resides at 56 Baldwin St., entered the service of the old Grand Trunk Railway as assistant agent at Ernestown in 1895. Two years later he transferred to the maintenance department as sectionman and from 1898 until 1903, he was section foreman at Ernestown.

In September of 1903 Mr. Clare entered the service as fireman and was classed as an engineer in 1909 in the days of the old "hand stokers". For the past two years he has been at the throttles of the engines hauling the fast passenger service trains from Belleville to Toronto and Brockville and was considered one of the top ranking drivers on the district runs.

In his final run "Warpy" Clare left Belleville driving the crack No. 5 passenger train and returned on No. 16 early today, when he was welcomed and surprised by a delegation of his railway associates upon completing his last run.

Entire Personnel No. 5 ITS. Takes Part in Parade

Route March Headed by Wing Commander A. J. Snetsinger

Swinging with traditional Royal Canadian Air Force smartness, the entire personnel of No. 5 Initial Training School, approximately 750 strong, paraded through Belleville streets shortly after eight o'clock this morning on one of the periodical route marches that marks part of the training schedule of the station.

Headed by Wing Commander A. J. Snetsinger, commanding officer of the station, the airmen swung down Highland Avenue and Bridge Street and arrived at the intersection of Front and Bridge Streets just before eight-thirty when the morning traffic was at its lowest ebb. Considerable number of pedestrians lined the main thoroughfares marking the route of the parade, however. The route march took the airmen up Bridge to Charles Street, then to Victoria, to Front, west on Bridge and down Coleman to Dundas West and thence on to the R.C.A.F. station.

The station trumpet band, marching between flights of airmen, provided a militaristic bearing to the parade as traditional martial music provided accompaniment to the marching feet of the airmen.

Provincial Constable William Milton provided motorcycle escort along the route of parade while P. C. Arnott of the city police force directed traffic at the intersection of Front and Bridge Streets during the arrival of the parade.

POLICE COURT

Written pleas of guilty accompanied by the customary fines were heard in several traffic cases before Magistrate J. L. Lloyd at the County Police Court here Thursday.

Ronald Young, Campbellford and Robt. J. Moore, Belleville, paid $7.50, including costs, upon being convicted of driving on the highway with truck loads too wide for the safety of traffic. Everett Dillabaugh, Trenton, paid a similar amount after being convicted of speeding in a restricted area.

Cpl. Vincent Harrison, Trenton R.C.A.F., pleaded guilty to four charges of making a false document with intent to defraud the Canadian National Railways. Crown Attorney B. C. Donnan, K.C., introduced several witnesses in support of the charge that the accused man had purchased short distance railway tickets, erased the original destination and printed therein "Montreal." The railway alleged that Harrison had defrauded them out of $374.00 in a period of less than three months in this manner. He was selling the tickets, they claimed. His Worship remanded Harrison for sentence when the latter intimated he would like to have an opportunity to make restitution.

A Children's Aid Society case terminated the proceedings. Mr. Timothy Rigney, Crown Attorney for Frontenac County and Kingston was present in today's court, acting on the C.A.S. hearing.

Kiwanians to Hold Beauty Contest At the Carnival

Pulchritude in copious quantities will be exhibited at the Kiwanis Carnival, when that organization sponsors the "Miss War Worker" contest. Already an entry list of fifteen girls from the various manufacturing firms in the city have signified their intention to compete and a local photographer spent a busy afternoon the other day taking their pictures, which will be on exhibit in a local store. Cash prizes of $50 will be given the winners and Miss Alexandrine Gibb of the Toronto Star with Ken Soble, who conducts a radio program in Toronto will be the judges and these will be assisted by the Commanding Officers of Trenton Air Station, Mountain View Station and No. 5 I.T.S. Their task will not be an easy one as Belleville is noted for many beautiful girls.

Lorne McDougall, who is chairman of this contest, has received applications from several firms and the girls to take part are: Bristol Aircraft Products Ltd.— Kay McCormick, Jean Palmer and Doris Reid; Reliance Aircraft and Tool Co., Ltd.—Gladys Herrington, Dorothy MacLennan and Donna Drohan; Belleville-Sargent Co., Ltd.—Grace Campbell, Eileen Sager and Ruth Latchford; Deacon Brothers Ltd.—Georgina Dunne, Bernice Thomas and Joyce Woodhouse; Corbin Lock Company of Canada, Ltd.—Verna Reid and Bernice Maracle; J. and J. Cash Inc. — Hilda Jackson and Bernice Urch.

The Carnival will be held on Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday of next week and the Kiwanis Club is taking this means of raising the needed money to complete the payment for remodelling the Kiwanis Centre on Dundas St. East., which is now being used for the Red Cross Blood Donor Clinic and which is doing a most useful work in providing a blood bank to be used for the wounded soldiers overseas. Other attractions are being provided by the committee and these will be announced before Carnival time.

Flintoff and Bean Hook 20-Pounder In Muscote Bay

"They only come about once in a lifetime," proudly asserted Steve Flintoff, manager of the local Bowra Electric Store, as this morning he exhibited to local angling enthusiasts a beautiful 41-inch 20-lb. 12-ounce 'lunge captured off Goose Island in Muscote Bay on Wednesday afternoon. Steve lays claim to the actual hooking of the big fellow, but Jack Bean, co-hort of the afternoon's fishing expedition, claims the 'lunge first whetted his appetite on his plug.

The two local fishermen were trolling for bass when Jack first had a strike and after reeling in discovered to his dismay, that his plug had disappeared. Minutes later the big fellow took Steve's spoon and the battle was on. For full twenty minutes the 'lunge defied the efforts of his captor to reel him in.

"I sunk the gaff into him to finish him," quoted Jack this morning, but we sure had a lot of fun."

That's Jack's story but another local angler who said he viewed the battle from a near-by boat declares the gaff was torn out of Jack's hand by the fury of the 'lunge's struggle and that it remained for Steve to bring his fish in with the line.

Just which story is correct cannot be vouched due to conflicting reports, but the fact the fish was "caught" is correct. Today he reposes in a refrigerator at Steve's electric appliance store on Front St., mute testimony to the battle.

Wartime Information Board Created by the Government

Charles Vining, Veteran Newspaperman, Appointed as Chairman

OPEN 3 OFFICES

Ottawa, Aug. 27 —(CP)— Organization of a new federal agency dedicated to the concept of information services as an "essential activity of war," was in progress today as the government's answer to insistent demands from public and official groups for an extension of Canada's public services.

The new "Wartime Information Board" will be directed by Charles Vining of Montreal, 45-year-old newsprint administrator and veteran newspaperman upon whose recommendation the board was created. He will be responsible only to Prime Minister Mackenzie King, who announced Mr. Vining's appointment yesterday after a long meeting of the war committee of the cabinet with which the new board will work.

Mr. King also announced that Hon. Philippe Brais, K.C., of Montreal, government leader in Quebec's legislative council and Quebec cabinet minister without portfolio, will be vice-chairman of the board and will resign his seat in the Quebec cabinet. Other appointments are expected to be announced shortly.

While the board is being organized, the present Bureau of Public Information will continue to function under G. H. Lash. Mr. King said he would want Mr. Lash to serve as a member of the new board.

To Have Three Offices

Board headquarters will be in Ottawa with offices in Washington and New York and possibly other cities. It will handle only war news and information.

CHARLES VINING

Early this summer, Mr. Vining conducted an investigation into possibilities of wider distribution of Canadian information in the United States. While the report was never made public, Mr. King said the recommendations had been adopted "without reservation."

"Mr. Vining's recommendations are based upon a conception of information services as an essential activity of war," the Prime Minister said. "In this view the war is regarded as one of mind and spirit as well as of physical forces."

The Bureau of Public Information, superseded by the new board, has a staff of approximately 15 working on information and picture production at a net outlay of about $50,000. The entire government information service, exclusive of clerical assistants but including some working overseas, employs about 112 working at aggregate salaries of about $325,000.

SOVIET TROOPS

grad in an effort to break a potential stranglehold by the plane-supported pincer columns of Field Marshall Fedor Von Bock. They were officially reported to be "holding the enemy onslaught and wearing down his manpower."

A German gain was recorded in the central Caucasian campaign, developing its bloody pattern in the Terek River valley almost 350 miles south of Stalingrad.

While Russian gunners wiped out an enemy bridgehead on the Terek or a tributary in the Prokhladmenski area, it was announced that a Nazi force had driven to Mozdok, 30 miles to the east and just 55 miles short of the oil-rich city of Grozny by road and 20 minutes as the bomber flies.

Near the Black Sea coast, German tanks and infantry were reported heavily engaged by the Russians south of Krasnodar. The Soviet Information Bureau said Red Marines, recently routed the Rumanian 5th Cavalry Division in that sector, killing, wounding or capturing more than half its effectives.

The midnight communique emphasized German losses in the battle of Stalingrad, developed by simultaneous Nazi thrusts from the northwest and the southwest within the narrow corridor between the Don and the Volga.

An armored formation destroyed 13 tanks and killed about 500 Germans, it said. Russian fire in one sector was said to have accounted for 62 tanks.

A rifle detachment was credited with repulse of five consecutive attacks in which the German survivors abandoned 11 damaged tanks along with their dead.

"On a neighboring sector," it was announced, "one of our artillery batteries barred the way to an enemy tank column, destroying 14 tanks. In an attempt to avoid this battery, the Hitlerites came under the fire of our anti-tank riflemen and lost another four tanks."

A Special Report

The Russian seizure of the initiative before Moscow was disclosed in a special report last night which credited organization for the offensive to Gen. Zhukov, who turned the Germans from the capital last fall, and Col-Gen. Ivan Konev.

Heavy losses were declared inflicted on the Nazi 1st and 5th tank divisions and the 328th, 183rd and 78th infantry divisions and nine other divisions were reported routed.

"Up to Aug. 20," it was stated, our troops have liberated 610 populated places, including the towns of Zubtsov, Karamanovo and Pogoreloye-Gorodischche."

Captured or destroyed German war equipment was reported in preliminary lists to include 574 tanks, 1,100 field guns and 4,620 motor vehicles. Soviet airmen and ground gunners were credited with shooting down 250 enemy planes and 296 more were declared destroyed or damaged on German airfields.

Stress Number of Men

All dispatches stressed the numbers of men and machines assigned by Hitler's High Command to the Rzhev-Gzhatsk-Vyazma salient, its tip maintained for months less than 100 miles west of the capital.

Violent fighting marked many areas over a 1,375-mile line from the wooded, rolling hills of Rzhev to the approaches to the Georgian military highway in the Caucasus, where Soviet troops fought defensively against enemy tanks and motorized infantry.

Highways from Mozdok lead both eastward to Grozny and south to Ordzhonikidze, 40 miles away, the northern terminal of the military road leading over the mountains 132 miles to Tiflis.

A mid-day summary of the Battle of Stalingrad said the frustrated tank penetration was achieved from the northwest by the remnants of a large armored force which struck in the wake of an artillery and aerial bombardment.

Soviet shells put 18 of the tanks out of action and the Grenadiers accounted for others, it was announced.

"Northwest of Kotelnikovski (95 miles southwest of Stalingrad) enemy tanks and infantry attempted to advance but were hurled back by powerful artillery fire," the communique said. "One of our cavalry units penetrated the enemy rear and inflicted heavy losses on the Germans."

London, Aug. 27 — (CP). — Military commentators described the Russian counter-offensive in the Rzhev-Gzhatsk-Vyazma sectors of the central front today as "good work" but an informed British source said it would be unwise to expect the assault to result in a major strategic victory.

It is unlikely, this source declared, that the Russian assault will develop to the point where they will be able to roll up the German line from the north or have any immediate effect upon the situation at hard-pressed Stalingrad.

"Stalingrad is several hundred miles from the scene of the Russian attacks and it is doubtful that the Germans would be able to switch units from that front to meet the Russian attacks even if they wanted to," the source said.

The fierce resistance the Red Army is putting up in the face of savage Nazi attacks appeared likely, however, in his opinion, to prevent any sharp turn in favor of the Germans.

REINFORCED

Great rewards await the Allied forces if they can smash the enemy's striking power in North Africa the Daily Mail emphasized.

"It will be possible," it said, "to recover command of the Mediterranean—and that will be the turning point of the whole war .... Imperial forces will then be able to begin the gigantic but essential task of closing in on the enemy.... Will be able to hit Italy harder, more often and at closer range."

Await Supreme Test

New strength in manpower, new weapons, new confidence and a new commander, Gen. Sir Harold Alexander, await the test on this side.

The old desert campaigners are rested, the recent arrivals are eager for action and any despondency or weariness left from the defeats in Libya and the long withdrawal to El Alamein is gone.

But the enemy, despite losses from constant aerial strafing of his supply line across the sea, also has large reinforcements of men and supplies ready.

Parachute troops, both German and Italian which have been serving as elite infantry for several weeks, are reported to have disappeared from the front, probably waiting for the moment to reappear from the sky.

Inflict Heavy Losses

The British Headquarters-R.A.F. communique today reported a prisoner-seizing assault on Axis lines in the central sector Tuesday night and attacks by long-range fighters on enemy supplies being trucked over the coastal road.

British and United States airmen co-operated in attacks ranging from Tobruk and other German-occupied desert posts to shipping in Suda Bay, Crete and the Corinth Canal in Greece.

The Crete and Greece raids were directed mainly on shipping. The extent of the damage there was unknown.

Japs Further Withdraw

Chungking, Aug. 27—(AP)—Further Japanese withdrawals in Chekiang and Kiangsi Provinces were reported today as Chinese troops pressed a determined counter-offensive to regain vital bases whence the Allies migt launch air attacks upon Japan.

Dispatches from the front said the Japanese already had removed the bulk of their forces from Sungyand in Chekiang Province and from Lishui, 25 miles to the east, giving rise to the belief here they are about to abandon both towns.

Chinese troops also were reported within four and a half miles of Chuhsien in Western Chekiang, site of the biggest air field in China and some quarters expressed belief its fall likewise is imminent.

The Japanese were said to be setting fire to all towns and villages in a 200-mile-wide belt as they retreated northward from the 450-mile Chekiang-Kiangsi railway which for a brief time they held in its entirety.

Masses of Ruins

"The once-populous towns of Shangjao, Kwangfeng and Kiangshan are now masses of ruins," said the Central News. Wilful destruction and incendiarism is being ruthlessly carried out everywhere."

The same source reported the invaders also were destroying all food supplies and equipment which they were unable to take with them as they fell back.

A military spokesman said fighting was under way in the outskirts of both Chuhsien and Lishui.

He said there had been no indication that any of the Japanese troops withdrawn from Chekiang and Kiangsi Provinces had been transferred outside China.

Reports have reached here of troop movements in the direction of China's Unnan border from the Myitkyina region to northern Burma, but these apparently were on a small scale. The monsoon season in Burma however, is coming to an end soon.

The spokesman said some Japanese troops had been shifted to Yochow, in northeastern Hunan Province, but he added "there are no symptoms that a fourth battle for Changsha is in the making."

Warning is Given

Those who spread false stories of prospective rationing are going to feel the action of the Prices Board. That is the warning which has been issued. Such reports have an unsettling and disturbing effect which tends to complicate conditions. The Board has declared that "we can give positive assurance that critical shortage of any essential of life is in sight," and this assurance should be sufficient to everyone without listening to empty stories from persons who have no knowledge and who circulate what is untrue. Some of the stories have been absurd but this only shows how unwise people are to listen to such tales and how unjust and wrong it is on their part to spread them thoughtlessly.

One of the results of such untrue reports is that some persons may be inclined to hoard which is most undesirable, not only, because it may upset the balance by unnecessary buying but also because it is so manifestly unfair. In fact, hoarding is just trying to secure an advantage over others.

What rationing there is in Canada is proving successful and is being accepted cheerfully. This is in sugar, tea and coffee which receive an equitable distribution.

People who start or keep false stories in circulation are doing the country a great disservice and rightly deserve to be reprimanded.

Such rumor-mongers are running counter to the law and wild unfounded tales which are capable of mischief will be traced and the offenders prosecuted.

Nazis 'Find' Ancestors

The Nazis can create a genealogy with great agility and dexterity if without foundation. It is said they have been busy proving that both the Italian, Mussolini, and Napoleon Bonaparte, the Corsican, came of German descent.

In the case of a military leader like Bonaparte biographers might have some excuse for trying to find ancestry but these German genealogy hinters are not biographers.

Napoleon Bonaparte (originally spelled 'Buonaparte') owed his name to a Florentine who lived after the middle of the thirteenth century. This man was a member of the dominant party during the times of the wars of the Guelphs and Ghibellines and took the name "Buonaparte" meaning that he belonged to the "good" or true "party." Buonaparte had to flee Florence and found his way to Tuscany where his descendants lived for several hundred years. It is said that a Buonaparte lived in Ajaccio, Corsica, in 1529, where he had come in contact with the race of people descended from the Phoenicians, Romans, Vandals, Saracens and others. That is the true genealogy.

But not so the modern Nazi says. He finds that there is another genealogy, that Napoleon is descended from one named Bonapert, which is said to have been known, according to Nazis, in Germanic Lombardian language. This Nazi genealogist now says that as far back as 923, just a mere matter of a little over a thousand years ago, Napoleon's ancestors carried around names like Konrad and Ermengarde—German of course.

This is just Hitlerian propaganda. It is well known that Hitler has been intrigued by the military genius of Bonaparte, for there are evidences that he has tried to follow in part in the way of Napoleon in his sweep to the east and in his thought of attacking Britain just as Napoleon thought of invading the British Isles and never did and in his (Hitler's) visit to the tomb of Napoleon in Paris. The story of Napoleon had evidently got deeply into his mind. But to think however of making a German out of Mussolini the boaster, that can hardly flatter the Nazis and certainly does no honor to the Italians. What about trying to make an Italian out of Hitler and something out of Goebbels!

But such Hun tracings of family trees will never win acceptance anywhere.

This is true philanthropy, that buries not its gold in ostentatious charity, but builds its hospital in the human heart.—Harley.

Let us have faith that right makes might and in that faith, let us to the end dare to do our duty, as we understand it.—Lincoln.

OURSELVES AND OTHERS...

BY

IT COULD HAPPEN HERE . . .

Each boy who leaves Salem, N.D., to fight for his country is sent away as if he were MacArthur. Out there on the prairies, all soldier boys start this war as heroes.

Salem is a small place of about 1,200 but it is the largest town and county seat of McCook County. All men inducted from the county leave for camp from Salem. The townspeople sent 56 young men to the army the other day. They got the same thriling send-off as the hundreds of boys who preceded them in the draft.

One night shortly before they left, the county council of the American Legion invited all the boys and their dads to a party. The state commander of the American Legion spoke. There was a big supper for these always hungry small town and farmer boys. It was a man's party but a clean one.

Business Stops

Then came the day of departure. From surrounding farms and small towns came the selectees. Mothers, fathers, brothers, sisters and friends poured into Salem with them. They jammed the city's less than a year old paved streets.

An hour before the train was scheduled to leave, every businessman pulled down his shades and locked his doors. Mayor Ralph Sarlette, young and energetic, hurried from his little shoe repair shop. He stopped at home to dress up for the speech he was to make and to pick up his bass horn. The band was to play and Mayor Sarlette is a mighty good bass blower.

World War Veteran Pierre Kugener, whose long military service included time in the Orient, was just closing his butcher shop when a housewife rushed up breathlessly. She needed some pork chops.

"Sorry lady," Pierre said, moving toward his car. "The boys are leaving for the war and I got to get down to see them off."

"Oh! Yes, yes," she sputtered. "I must go along with you." She jumped in beside Pierre and they hurried to the courthouse.

Joined the Parade

There the 56 young men had assembled for final instructions from army officers. Then, with legion color guards and bands ahead, the boys were piled into fire wagons and automobiles for a gay parade through the streets. A mammoth flag hung over Main Street, suspended from a rope stretched across the street. Emblems decorated store windows.

People lined the street. They cheered wildly as the boys rode by. Then they fell in behind and all marched to the depot.

The train was taking on water. There was lots of time for the thousands of relatives and friends to shake hands with the boys. The throng milled around the little depot. They jammed the waiting room and restaurants and spilled over onto the platform.

Her and there, sweethearts stood off in a corner, holding hands clandestinely. Occasionally, when they thought no one was looking, they sneaked a kiss—a kiss infinitely sweet for all its quickness.

It was hard on the mothers but they stood up bravely. Fragile images of long ago—of chubby hands against their faces, of hurt fingers and stubbed toes—rushed back from almost forgotten days, bringing tears to many eyes. Mothers flicked their eyes quickly to hold in the drops but sometimes they got away and raced down flushed cheeks. No one let on he noticed.

Time slipped away. The conductor sang "All Aboard." In a final moment of confusion there was a hug, a kiss, a gripping handclasp for each boy. Then a scramble for the train. The bands struck up a spirited tune. The long train chugged away.

In due time these folks with the open heart and hand will be back at the depot to welcome their boys home again as conquering heroes. But in the meantime they'll keep sending them away as though each was General MacArthur.

For mercy then we'll vainly plead.
Compelled by bayonet and gun,
We'll do the bidding of the Hun.

Success

Success is nothing more than this:
Providing aid a friend might miss;
Lightening life's care with song and mirth;
Thus making this a happier earth.

Epitaph

Here lies the robe of flesh he wore,
Which could withstand life's pain no more.
Worn out by care, it fell a clod
And gave the spirit back to God.

Unto thy faith and light be true.
From scorn and failure never shrink.
Do always what seems best to do.

Axis Powers Do Not Control The Initiative

By EDWARD E. BOMAR

The Axis, which up to recently has not had much cause to worry, is beginning to squirm in suspense over the likelihood and direction of Allied counter-blows.

Berlin and Rome uneasily recognize that they no longer completely monopolize the initiative, that the United Nations' potential striking power is mounting to a point where second fronts can be threatened elsewhere than on the French Channel coast.

The resultant rumors, guesswork and fishing for information recall France in the winter of 1939, when the most burning question was where the Nazis would strike.

Italy, says a report received by way of Berne, now is eyeing Allied concentrations of transports and warships at Gibraltar and in West African ports, suspecting preparations for an attack "somewhere in the Mediterranean Basin" like the surprise Dieppe raid.

Guess at Tunisia

Maybe, it is speculated, the destination is French Tunisia, where the Allies would be at the back of Rommel's Western Desert army threatening Egypt. Elsewhere in the Mediterranean the Italians profess to believe the Axis is well prepared for eventualities.

Whether there actually is such a naval concentration can no more be confirmed, of course, than its purpose. The Berne report does, however, serve as another tow in the strong war undercurrent tending just now toward the South Atlantic and thence to Egypt, the Middle East and India.

A wonder is that the Axis speculation did not send the reported fleet toward Dakar, the strategic African base closest to the Western Hemisphere, which Britain and the Fighting French failed just two years ago next month to wrest from Vichy's hands.

Brazil's entry into the war puts the United Nations for the first time into position to take decisive measures to clinch control of the South Atlantic, providing a base on the western side of the 1,600-mile waist of the South Atlantic which can be used to full advantage in any offensive operations to crush the present campaign of U-boats and surface raiders.

Two-Edged Sword

Brazil's Vice-Admiral Alvaro Rodrigues de Vasconcellos reminded the foe immediately that Dakar could be a two-edged sword.

Berlin and Rome are on formal notice that enemy control of Dakar will not be suffered. Well before the attack on Pearl Harbor, President Roosevelt specifically named the key West African port along with Atlantic islands whose control by the Axis he said would menace the security of the Western Hemisphere.

Only four months ago he advised that "the United Nations will take measures, if necessary, to prevent the use of French territory in any part of the world for military purposes by the Axis powers."

With the northern gateway to Russia all but closed and events in the Middle East rapidly building up to a crisis, the South Atlantic is more than ever a vital artery.

In view of the recurrent and persistent reports that crop up from time to time that Dakar has been used by U-boats with the connivance of the fettered French, possibly it suits the Axis to have a minimum of public reference to this particular point of geography.

VIKING VESSELS

When the present war began in 1939 Norway had more merchant-ship tonnage in foreign trade than any other country in the world.

At that time Norway had about 4,800,000 gross tons of shipping, a tonnage exceeded only by Britain, the United States and Japan.

With 2,000,000 gross tons of tanker tonnage, Norway was exceeded in tanker tonnage only by Britain.

A great number of the 1,024 Norwegian ships escaped the clutches of the Nazis in 1940 and are now doing valiant service for the United Nations.

Although Norway remained neutral throughout the first World War she lost 49.3 percent of her 1914 tonnage—a larger percentage than any other nation in or out of the war.

About 2,000 seamen on Norwegian vessels sunk by German mines and submarines lost their lives.

During the first World War Norway lost 896 cargo ships with a gross tonnage of 1,299,663. Thirty other merchant ships suffered war damage.

In 1905 Norway dissolved the union with Sweden and deposed King Oscar II—who had been king of both countries—as its king. That was the first time since 1319 that Norway was completely independent of all other northern countries.

Many people in Norway wanted a republic, and when the crown was offered to Haakon VII—then Prince Carl of Denmark—he declined to accept it until after a referendum was held to determine the wishes of the people.

In the plebiscite the people voted 259,563 in favor of a monarchy and 29,264 against.

Prince Carl was then unanimously elected king by the Norwegian Storthing and he was crowned in 1905 as Haakon VII of Norway.

King Haakon, who now carries on his functions in England as the head of the Norwegian government in exile, is a brother of King Christian X of Denmark, who is a virtual prisoner of the Nazis.

Their mother was Princess Maud, daughter of King Edward VIII of Great Britain and granddaughter of Queen Victoria.

In 1919 Norway adopted prohibition against all beverages with an alcoholic content of more than 15 percent, but this limited prohibition was completely abandoned in 1927.

Norway, after becoming completely independent in 1905, had no outlying possessions except Spitzbergen, Bear Island and adjacent islands, Jan Mayen Island, between Greenland and Norway; Bouvet Island, in the southern Atlantic and Peter I Island, in the Antarctic Ocean.

Early in 1939, however, Norway proclaimed sovereignty over a vast area in Antarctica to insure bases for the Norwegian whaling fleets.

This Was Once A German Tank

This mass of junk was once a German MK III tank. It fell victim to the fire of a U.S.-made General Grant tank in the fighting near El Alamein, Egypt. Royal Engineers of the British forces completed the demolition to make sure that the tank would never be of any use to the Nazis—even if they succeeded in recapturing it.

Trenton Rotary Club Sponsors Formation of Air Cadet Squadron

Rotarian Carnival Staged for First Three Nights of Next Week

NEWS OF TOWN

Trenton, Aug 27 (Special)—At the regular meeting of the Rotary Club in the Gilbert Hotel on Monday evening a motion was unanimously passed whereby the club is to sponsor an Air Cadet Squadron. Flt. Lt. Curry of No. 1 Command, Air Cadet Office, Toronto and P-O. Douglas of Toronto were on hand to give the members firsthand information and instruction on how to organize the new squadron, of Air Cadets. Local R.C.A.F. officials who attended the meeting and were of special assistance were Wing Commander Ford and Squadron Leader Walsh of No. 6 R.D. and P-O. Kirk of the South Station.

A committee of Rotarians was formed to take charge and begin organization work immediately. This committee has as its convener Mr. Alex Hill, secretary Mr. O. Newton, with other members for the present being Mr. W. G. Spencer, Mr. Fred Collins and Mr. C. Saylor.

Officers for the squadron are to be chosen at an early date and it is hoped and expected that all citizens will give this most important work their assistance and support. It is vitally necessary that the young boys of our town be trained and equipped at once as a Cadet Squadron, in order that they may be fully air minded in the future.

Through the courtesy of Group Captain W. H. Simmonds and fellow officers of 6 R.D. the members of the Trent Rotary Club were taken on a conducted tour of the 6 R.D. station on Thursday afternoon.

Trenton Rotary Carnival

Everything is in order and ready set for the biggest and best yet of Rotary carnivals to be held in Trenton next Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday nights August 31st, Sept 1st and 2nd. The committee in charge have worked hard on this program and have left nothing undone to make it bigger and better than ever. It is to be held on Front Street between the Dominion Store corner and the Bank of Toronto. Games of all sorts are to be played and many very fine prizes given. In addition tickets are being sold on lucky prizes which will be drawn for at the close of the carnival. First prize is to be a Chesterfield suite valued at $145.00 or $100.00 Victory Bond; second $100.00 Bedroom suite or $75.00 Bond; third $70.00 Breakfast room suite or $50.00 Bond. The tickets are being sold at 25c or five for one dollar, and all the proceeds from the carnival is to help in Rotary work among Crippled Children and promoting sports among the children.

A most enjoyable party was held at the summer home of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Blakely on the Bay of Quinte on Tuesday evening in honor of Mr. Leslie Hearts of Midland who is visiting friends in town. Mr. Hearts was formerly organist of King Street United Church, Trenton, and his many friends took this opportunity of welcoming him back in their midst.

Mrs. A. L. Shelfoon, McGill St. and Mrs. Douglas Mitchell, Marmora Street are visiting friends in Ottawa.

Miss Maude Foster of Toronto, is visiting her mother, Mrs. R. M. Foster, King Street, and other relatives in town.

Mrs. James Cox and son Donnie of Dundas Street West spent several days this week in Toronto visiting the former's mother, Mrs. J. Scott.

Young Boys Reprimanded

During the past few days police have received numerous complaints of lights on danger signal barricades on Dufferin Ave., having been tampered with and the lights extinguished. Drains are being dug along the east side of the highway for some distance and the removal of the lights on these barricades makes driving most dangerous.

Two young boys one eight and the other seven years of age were found to have been playing and had extinguished the lights on two different occasions. The parents of the boys were notified and the children reprimanded by them.

Magistrate J. B. Garvin of Kingston presided over Trenton Police Court on Tuesday with County Crown Attorney B. C. Donnan K.C., prosecuting. C. Gregg appeared on a charge of taking a sum of money from his employer and was given suspended sentence on payment of $50.70 costs and making restitution. He was brought back to Trenton from Toronto by local police Ewart Guay paid $10.00 and costs for being intoxicated.

James Powers for driving through a red traffic signal was assessed $2.00 and costs.

A very valuable Irish terrier the property of Mr. Jack Shurie, Marmora Street, was allegedly poisoned by some person or persons on Tuesday. Dr. Jones, veterinary, was called but nothing could be done for the animal. Another valuable pet a chow belonging to Mr. Howard Langdon was struck and killed by a motorist on Dundas Street West near Dr. Farley's residence.

Repairs are on under way now on the Trent theatre and although all the latest equipment which was at first hoped to be used in the alterations are not at present available owing to war conditions, still it is understood the theatre is to be modernized in every way possible and it is expected it will be air-conditioned.

WOUNDED COMMANDO AFTER DIEPPE

A wounded British commando is carried ashore in England as the commandos return from their biggest operation: an invasion of Dieppe, France, covered by an umbrella of planes. Taking a large part in the "reconnaissance in force" were Canadian forces. With them were British commandos and a detachment of U. S. Rangers. The Royal Navy also participated.

Whitehall Notebook

By DOUGLAS AMARON

Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON, Aug. 27 — (CP) — Parliament received its oldest and youngest visitors of the year the same day when the 93-year-old aunt of a member and the 12-year-old son of a peer attended sessions of the Commons and Lords respectively.

The aunt was Mrs. M. Radclyffe of Brighton whose nephew is G. L. Reakes, Independent member for Wallsaey.

Her reactions to a Commons debate: "I enjoyed it but my word, they do talk a lot."

The boy was Rodney, son of Lord Elton. While the Lord Chancellor, Viscount Simon, spoke to assembled peers, Rodney, bare-legged and wearing sandals, sat on the steps of the Throne, absorbing every word.

You would think M. P.'s would get away from lectures during the summer recess, but not Andrew McLaren, R. R. Stokes and Will Cove. They spent two weeks lecturing at the I. L. P. summer school at University College, Bangor . . .

R. S. Hudson, Minister of Agriculture, has few admirers more ardent than Lord Woolton. "I think he has done a marvellous piece of work organizing the farmers of this country," the Food Minister said, using this rather unusual comparison to emphasize his admiration:—"You may have lived with your wife for many years and it's a good thing to tell her now and again that you love her. I feel that way about Mr. Hudson."

The government, which since its formation has always gained a substantial majority of votes in the House of Commons, was defeated 26 votes to 13 in the House of Lords on the question: "Should home guard officers travel first or third class?"

The vote, of no national significance, followed a boisterous debate in which good natured speeches were devoted chiefly to the anomolies created by the government's insistence since the home guard was created that there should be no financial differentiation between officers and members of the ranks and that all should travel third class when in uniform.

Canadian soldiers are leaving their mark on Big Ben. The white walls inside the famous clock bear the names of thousands of Dominion soldiers who have used them as a visitors' book on their tours of the Palace of Westminster.

Appointment of Evelyn Baring as Governor of Southern Rhodesia at the early age of 38 is viewed in political circles as an excellent sign of the revitalizing policy of the Colonial office. Baring, son of the First Lord Cromer, had experience in the Indian Civil Service but was called from business to his present post.

The parliamentary committee set up to suggest machinery for a wartime election, should one be necessary, has almost completed its inquiry, but its findings are not likely to be used except in an extreme political crisis.

Prime Minister Churchill, it is reported, has decided against any such election and one of the first things parliament will have to do when it reassembles is to extend its own life by another year. This has already been done twice.

Sir William Jowitt, Paymaster General, has set an example in economy the rest of the country might well follow. Feeling the pinch of clothes rationing, he went through his wardrobe and found an Inverness cape more than 20 years old.

He seldom wore it, for soon after he bought it capes went out of fashion. Now he is going to wear it again—as a coat and vest which his Savile Row tailors are fashioning from the old but still good cheviot cloth . . .

FORCES OVERSEAS

"Training operations were carried out on the British coast on two occasions and there was great improvement between the first and second of these. Every leader had full knowledge of what he had to do."

Welcoming the Canadian editors, Gen. McNaughton spoke feelingly of the army.

"We have a lot of young men and women over here who have been away for a long time and we feel that personal contacts with the homeland should be kept up," the army commander said.

"There is always anxiety that when we get away from home we get out of touch and thus out of sympathy. But there is a spirit here that our people back home should know about. We are an outward expression of the people of Canada.

"If people are told what is going on we can leave it to them to get this war won. We went into it, as democracies do, without preparation. We have hardly come to grips with the foe and we are still going through the phase of preparedness, but it will be won."

The general was enthusiastic about industrial war production in Canada and said that "in equipment Canadian manufacturers had to cut the teeth on existing types."

"In an almost extraordinarily short time the prototypes started coming back to us for experiment," Gen. McNaughton continued. "Canadian weapons and equipment are of the finest in the world; by that I mean in quality of steel, precision and so forth.

"The search for design, of course, is a continuing problem and on that we still have to pull level with the enemy and pass him. As long as there is a chance for improvement we must seek it and I know Canada is alert to the need. It is an everlasting struggle to experiment and invent."

In answer to a question, Gen. McNaughton said "I most definitely do not regard the threat of invasion of the United Kingdom as over."

On the manpower question, he referred to his statement on his visit to Canada at the year-end that transportation across the North Atlantic has been the only limiting factor.

All he would add was that "While we have been pretty nearly running up against limiting factors we have not actually done so."

WEDDINGS

BERRY—FOSTER

Gladioli and garden flowers formed a brilliant setting for the wedding in Wellington United Church Wednesday afternoon at three o'clock when Theda Eleanore Foster, Reg.N., daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Merrick Arnold Foster, Bloomfield, R.R. 2, became the bride of LAC. Ernest Wilbur Berry, R.C.A.F., Rockcliffe, Ont., son of Mrs. Leo Ernest Berry and the late Leo Ernest Berry of Tillsonburg, Ont. The ceremony was performed by Rev. J. F. Lane.

Miss Velma Vandewater, Wellington, presided at the organ, and Miss Marian Dudley of Belleville General Hospital, was soloist, singing during the signing of the register, "Still as the Night" and "Because".

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was charming in her wedding gown of white with floral lace forming the shirred bodice, finished with sweetheart neckline and short puff sleeves. The double skirt was of silk net over taffeta with pleated ruffle. Her white fingertip veil was held with a coronet of white roses and blue cornflowers and she carried a shower bouquet of Briarcliffe roses and baby's breath.

Miss Euna Gene Foster, sister of the bride, in sky blue, and Miss Marie Berry, Tillsonburg, sister of the groom, in pale pink, were bridesmaids. Their gowns were floor length taffeta models with matching turbans and they carried nosegays of pink and white asters. Rev. David Gray conducted the ceremony which took place on the verandah beneath an arch of white crepe paper, banked with gladioli. The "Bridal Chorus" from Lohengrin was played by Mrs. W. J. Symons, Belleville.

The bride given in marriage by her father looked lovely in her street length frock of heaven blue crepe with matching accessories. She carried a bouquet of Talisman roses. Miss Irene Haynes, Corbyville, cousin of the bride, was bridesmaid in a dress of beige with brown accessories. She carried Sweetheart roses. Mr. Ray Hall, Trenton, was groomsman.

At the reception following the ceremony, the bride's mother in navy sheer, with corsage of American Beauty roses and the groom's mother in navy sheer with similar corsage, received the guests. Luncheon was served by friends of the bride.

Mr. and Mrs. Shortt left on a wedding trip to Kingston and points east, the bride wearing a navy suit and hat with touches of white. Upon their return they will reside in Peterborough.

Out of town guests attended the wedding from Belleville, Bloomfield, Combermere, Corbyville and Foxboro.

THOMSON—LOCKE

An evergreen arch banked with gladioli formed the pretty setting for a late summer wedding at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Jesse Locke, Seymour East, at noon on Saturday for the marriage of their younger daughter, Doris Elizabeth, to Mr. Fred Thomson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Andrew H. Thomson, Bonarlaw. Rev. Donald McKay of Burnbrae Church officiated.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was gowned in a floor length heaven blue chiffon over taffeta with high neck line, embroidered bodice and long sleeves. Her finger-tip veil of embroidered tulle was caught with a halo of flowers. She carried a cascade of Briarcliffe roses and white larkspur. Miss Josephine Locke was her sister's bridesmaid and she wore a floor length gown of dusty rose chiffon over taffeta with V neckline and she carried a bouquet of Talisman roses and blue cornflower. Mr. Clarence Thompson assisted the bridegroom. Miss Doreen Pollock played the wedding music and during the signing of the register Mr. Bruce Barnum sang "In The Garden of To-Morrow", accompanied by Mrs. Donald McKay at the piano.

Following the ceremony a buffet luncheon was served to about thirty guests and Mrs. Locke received wearing a blue sheer redingote with corsage of red roses. Assisting her was the groom's mother, Mrs. Thomson, who chose a blue sheer over printed crepe. Among the many messages of congratulation and best wishes was one from the groom's brother, Mr. Ross Thomson, Nova Scotia, and from Mr. and Mrs. Harry Anderson, Toronto. The bride's bouquet was later divided between the two grandmothers, Mrs. E. Chaplin of Campbellford and Mrs. S. McKeown, Bonarlaw.

For travelling the bride donned a two-piece self trimmed suit of dusty rose crepe with corsage of Talisman roses. Following a honeymoon in Toronto and Niagara Falls, Mr. and Mrs. Thomson will reside in Seymour East.

SWITZER—KELLAR

A pretty wedding took place at the Manse, Thomasburg, on Saturday, August 22, at ten a.m., with Rev. A. S. Doggett officiating, when Shirley Fay, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Kellar, Fuller, became the bride of Alton Wesley Switzer, Prince Edward County.

The bride wore a street length dress of Queen's blue crepe with matching hat. The bridesmaid, Mrs. Herbert Kellar, sister-in-law of the bride, wore a blue dress and rose hat. Mr. Carman Kellar acted as best man.

After lunch was served the young couple left for Niagara and other points.

UNIONDALE W. I.

Mrs. Hugh Badgley very capably gave a paper on the topic "Home Economics". Thyra Rose sang a solo with guitar accompaniment, Correspondence was read and a discussion followed re ways of making money. A motion was carried that a donation be given for school fair work, and that sufficient funds be given sick committees to carry on their work. "God Save the King" was sung. The tea hostesses served sandwiches and tea.

GOOD MANNERS

MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

Furlough Marriage

Dear Mrs. Beeckman,

My fiance is to have a furlough soon, and we are planning to be married.

1.—Are invitations necessary to a church reception for close friends when the date is uncertain?

2.—Who pays for the flowers at an informal wedding? I am to have only a matron of honor.

3.—Does some one have to give the bride in marriage in a Protestant Church?

4.—Is it customary for the bride to give the matron of honor a gift?

B. T.

1.—For most furlough weddings, and particularly for informal ones, the guests are invited by telephone or by notes sent special delivery or air-mail, and very often by telegrams. If the wedding is to be formal, the invitations are often engraved with the line for the date left vacant, to be written in when the date is set.

2.—The bridegroom customarily gives his bride her bouquet and usually the bride or her family supplies the flowers for the bride's attendants. The flowers for the decoration of the church and of the reception-place are supplied by the bride's family.

3.—The bride and her mother should consult with the minister of the church about this requirement.

4.—Yes, the bride gives her attendants gifts.

Best Man's Expenses

Dear Mrs. Beeckman,

Would you please itemize all the expenses of the best man at a formal church wedding?

E. R.

According to custom the best man has many duties as far as the bridegroom is concerned—he is "guide, philosopher and friend" to the bridegroom and is at his beck and call on the wedding day until the couple leave on their wedding trip . . but he is not expected to have any financial responsibilities. His two special duties as far as the ceremony is concerned are to take care of the wedding ring and the fee or gift to the minister.

Naturally the best man like all the other close friends of either the bride or bridegroom sends a wedding present to the bride-to-be. But contrary to some foreign customs in America the best man does not provide the bridesmaids' flowers or assume any other wedding expenses.

Courtesy Tip

Do your feathers bristle when someone. . .a member of your family, your boss, or a friend . . tries to give you some advcie? If you aren't open to advice, you're stunting your growth. Your success—social or business or professional—may sometime depend on your enthusiastic acceptance of that very piece of advice.

Fashion Flashes

WOMEN ARE WANTING hard-wearing, inexpensive furs that are handled to simulate the finer furs. One favorite is American opossum, dyed in sable or beaver shade, and worked in let-out treatment or with the skin separated by ribbon strips, to give an expensive look.

A new high is attained by the crowns of some of the new hats. A charming high fez, worn back off the head, is of black brocade velvet. It is trimmed with bows of aquamarine grosgrain, placed so as to simulate hair ribbons bows on either side of the head.

First favorite for next season, judging by shop orders, seems to be the wool coat of gray Persian lamb. The plastron, broad at the throat-line, where it is held by two big fur buttons tapers to a slim waist and then broadens out to become a wide panel at the hem.

It's nice to dress up a suit, or coat that has seen service. Well-chosen accessories will often give a new look to a garment. A beauty of a bag is made of soft grayish-to-pink feathers placed under a transparent plastic windowpane. The tips of the feathers, at top are left loose to float over a brown suede-covered-tube frame. Both sides of the bag have the same feather and plastic cover treatment.

Women at work seek dressy frocks when they climb out of uniform overalls and work slacks. Lustrous satin in street-length date dress is popular. A typical model has a deep square neckline with the fabric gathered into a soft bow at one corner, which is balanced by the skirt drapery drawn into a hip bow.

Armed Forces Must Be Served First

Ottawa, Aug. 27 (CP)—Beef wholesalers and packers will have to fill contracts with the armed forces before selling to the general public under a new order issued by the Wartime Prices and Trade Board.

ertain packers and wholesalers have reported inability to fulfill contracts to the armed forces, because they sold the meat on the civilian market, said J. G. Taggart, co-ordinator of the Foods Administration Branch of the Board, in explaining the reason for the order, issued Tuesday.

(In a story yesterday, The Canadian Press ehhoneously reported the order applied to retailers. Supplies of beef —to retailers and to the general public will not necessarily be affected by the move, which will, however, ensure delivery of supplies needed by the armed services.)

My Baby Was Born in Moscow

By DOROTHY GODFREY

(B. B. Press Service)

Although my husband and I are both English, our son was born in Moscow in 1936. You see, my husband is a radio-engineer and he worked for some years in the Soviet Union as a manager in a factory. We went to Moscow in the hard difficult days of 1931, and we stayed seven years after that. About 1935, I remember Stalin using a phrase which became universally popular: "Life has become better", he said, "life has become happier". So I was glad when I knew I was to experience a special side of this better Soviet life. I was to test their maternity services. Like our own they are national services. I'd always heard they were excellent in Moscow, but I hadn't known any foreigner who'd experienced them. All Soviet women have the right to free treatment in a maternity hospital. Medical services are under the joint control of the Local Authorities and of the Commissariat of Health. In each Five Year Plan, money is put aside for this, under the heading "Public Health Protection".

Moscow is divided up into several districts, and most people go to their own district maternity home, but some months before my baby was born I arranged for a bed in the home which is known as the very best in Moscow. There are several hundred beds there.

I began to go to the ante-natal clinic straight away—monthly at first but later more frequently. I was examined by several doctors and they told me which doctor would be in attendance at the actual birth. When it was time to go to the hospital—it was about half-past one in the morning I remember, we 'phoned for a taxi. There's a special service always available for expectant mothers. When I arrived a nurse just whisked me away through a glass door; then I was examined and they said "Yes, you can stay". They gave me a shower and stripped me of all my clothes; my husband had to take those home again. They do that in most hospitals to avoid infection; relatives take away your clothes until the time you are coming out again, and you're left with just a tooth-brush, face cloth and soap and a hair-brush and comb; and then they give you a voluminous white nightgown, a dressing gown and slippers and a white cloth to cover up your hair—they're very keen on your hair being tied up. And after that I was taken into what they call a 'labour ward': there were quite a dozen beds in there—in fact the place was so crowded that one or two women had to sit on stools. All the hospitals in Moscow were very crowded at that time; there just wasn't enough accommodation. Doctors and nurses were constantly in the ward and when the time came patients were moved to the 'birth' room, or, in rare cases to the operating theatre.

At long last I was told I had a son, and I immediately named him Jim Ericovitch. But my husband wasn't allowed to see his small infant until we went out through the glass doors and met him in the hall again, twelve days later. In Soviet maternity homes no one, not even your husband, is allowed to come and see you—the idea being to avoid infection—and it seems successful.

Well, I was moved into a charming ward with pale-pink walls and big windows, and about eight other new mothers. There was a table beside each bed with a telephone and earphones for the radio. The first day I was quite excited about having a telephone by my bed and thought it great fun. But by the next day I got a little tired of its ringing and by the time I was due to go out I was really glad to get away from it.

I didn't miss having visitors—the day was so busy, what with being washed and fed and so on, and then feeding times—they were most amazing. We only saw the babies at these times, when they were wheeled along the corridor in amusing long trolleys, each holding about two dozen identical cocoons. The Russian babies don't have their arms and legs free at first, and all you see until you go out of the maternity home is their heads! Their heads seem so large when they're tiny that when you first unwrap your baby to put it in its own little garments to take it home, it's really quite a surprise and very exciting to see its tiny body. When my bundle was handed to me I used to hasten to reassure myself by his nose or something that it was really my offspring! But there's no danger of getting anyone else's baby really, as they all have their names on a band round their wrists and on a cord round their neck. The nurseries were far away, down the corridor, so that we mothers could rest undisturbed. Every day the nursery doctor would come and report each child's progress to its mother. The doctors were mostly women—and they were always willing to discuss any point which worried you.

And then, there was the exciting period in the evening when visitors or relatives downstairs sent you up messages, and fruit and flowers. They had to wait in the hall provided for the nurse to take them a reply. And then the talks—you know how Russian women talk—they tell you their whole history, and you naturally respond; and they were specially interested in me, as I was a foreigner; why I had come to the Soviet Union, and what it was like in England. There was an Armenian woman—a vivacious dark-skinned girl who was the wife of a young Armenian sent up to study at a Moscow University. She made the long journey with him and was very proud to have had her black-haired, black-eyed baby in Moscow, the Mecca of all the Soviet peoples. As soon as she could she intended to put her baby in a day nursery and then go on with her studies, for she was a student too.

Every morning a physical training teacher came, and the patients allowed by the doctor would be put through special exercises in bed to tone up their muscles. The exercises were more strenuous each day as the patient grew stronger. In hospital we all had masks of muslin and were told to put them on when we were feeding our babies, if we developed the slightest sign of a cough or cold. Occasionally in the afternoon a doctor would give a lecture in the ward on infant hygiene and the mothers asked questions. These little lectures were extremely interesting and very valuable.

Many patients were allowed to go home after seven or eight days (they usually reckon about a fortnight over here). When you remember that scarcely a generation ago Russian peasants frequently gave birth in the fields and began work again in a few hours, this short time isn't surprising. In the Soviet Union the natural feeding of babies is greatly encouraged. I saw several cases where much time and trouble was taken so that the mother could do this.

There are nurseries attached to most of the big factories where mothers can leave their children and go and feed them at intervals. Supposing there wasn't a nursery at the factory they'd go to a local district one and for this they'd be given special time off. Many mothers do this.

A day or two after I got home again a nurse, from the local clinic, came to see me. Every time a child is born a notice is sent to the local clinic when it's going home, and the district nurse visits it and sees it's O.K., and tells the mother of the arrangements for attending the clinic. When Jim was very small I took him about once a week to the clinic, because I didn't know anything about bringing up small children. Usually you have your mother to help, but being over there with no relatives, made it rather different; I hadn't always approved of the way the Russians who shared our flat brought up their children. For one thing, they nursed the children a great deal too much, and some of my neighbours used to be horrified when I put Jim out in the pram in the garden and left him maybe for two hours. I knew he was all right but they'd ring my bell and say "your baby is crying". They called me very hard-hearted when I refused to pick him up, but after two or three months they used to come and say "what a marvellous child he is: how quiet and contented by himself". I tried to explain to them that it was the initial training; but they found it very hard to leave a child without responding to its lightest cry.

One end of the big room where we used to wait to see the doctor at the clinic was railed off, and here the toddlers played with all kinds of exciting toys. I noticed there was a tall woman there, chatting to the mothers, and I was told she was a psychologist. She studied the children's mental progress, told you what toys they should be encouraged to play with, and advised you how to correct little faults. Any abnormalities were quickly noticed and they'd take steps to put them right.

After a few months the doctor advised me to discontinue nursing Jim. There are no patent foods in Russia, but in each district of Moscow there are what are known as "Milk Kitchens". When the child is very small you get its entire diet in this way; each child's diet is put in individual tabulated bottles, and you go for it every day. It's a very cheap way of feeding children because these bottles of food cost only a few kopecks each and quite often you'll get things—like cream—that you might not be able to get on the ordinary market. There's a very interesting building in Moscow, called the Central Institute for the Care of Mother and Child. It's a sort of advisory bureau for all the clinics all over the Soviet Union, and any questions may be referred to it and they send advice and help.

One day my son had the snuggest little outfit sent him from Canada. Everyone on the boulevard admired it and at the clinic too, because they'd never seen anything like it before. It had a little hood attached to a sort of sleeping bag—pale blue fluffy woollen material, ornamented with white bunnies. Wrapped in a shawl and tucked into this you can imagine Jim was safe from the bitter cold of a Moscow winter. The doctor at the clinic saw it and was very taken with it, because normally their babies are wrapped in special little eiderdowns and hands and toes sometimes come out of them. So when the warmer weather came I gave it to the doctor and she handed it over to the Institute. Next winter I was very intrigued when I saw these outfits in the shops and the children wearing them. Admittedly they hadn't any bunnies on and were of more serviceable colours, but they keep the children's toes and fingers warm. It seems such a tiny point but it does show how the Institute is always on the look-out for the smallest item which will further its care of the mother and child.

Maybe you're wondering where all the snags are. Personally, I didn't find any in the maternity services or in their care of the children. Of course, I did see the best—naturally Moscow has the best services. The only thing is they need more and more maternity homes. There were snags in having to look after a baby in one room in a communal flat. And you couldn't have, for instance, all the dainty children's clothes and trifles, but the essentials were there, and if you did live more simply it wasn't necessarily less healthy.

My Jim's proud he was born in Moscow. And as he grows older and understands better the tremendous courage and self sacrifice the Soviet people are showing in their amazing struggle against the forces of Fascism, so I'm sure will his pride grow.

Sees Most Unfair Discrimination Against Many Municipalities Under Federal Housing Policy

Hon. T. B. McQuesten Claims Condition is Not to Credit of Federal Government

ADJUSTING SERVICES

Toronto, Aug. 27 (CP)—Expenses of candidates seeking election should be limited to 10 per cent of the salary they would draw. This was the suggestion made Tuesday by Mayor W. S. Beaton, Sudbury, to delegates at the anual convention of the Ontario Municipal Association at the City Hall.

"Spending money to coax people to come out to vote is a violation of the principles of democracy," he declared.

"Changes must come—there must be a new order," he added, reading his seven points for a fuller life, outlined by the new Archbishop of Canterbury. "Social reform must touch the life of every individual."

Hon T. B. McQuesten, Ontario Minister of Municipal Affairs and Highways, told delegates: "Many of our municipalities are being most unfairly discriminated against as a result of the Federal government's housing policy. There is nothing in the way of community advantage to be gained from any government housing which has been undertaken. It is all loss to the municipalities, and yet they are called upon to accept a lower rate of tax revenue than is contributed by the other householders. This is unfair, unreasonable and not to the credit of the Federal government."

From April 1, 1935, to March 31, 1942, Ontario paid additional assistance of $57,563,000 to municipalities, under the headings of subsidies maintenance of indigent patients in sanitoria, township road subsidy, King's Highways, county roads, Old Age Pensions and Mothers' Allowances, he said.

"It will be noted, however, that reduction in municipal taxation in that period does not equal that amount," he told them.

Total municipal taxes levied for that period had been $809,775,000, an average annually of $115,682,000, compared to the 1934 levy of $118-257,000.

Had the 1934 levy continued, the total taxes levied would have been $813,799,000, so that notwithstanding all the efforts of this government only $4,025,000 or approximately 7 per cent of the total additional assistance was passed on to the taxpayers.

"In the same period the total municipal debt had been reduced from $483,952,000 to $353,575,000.

"Surely the reduction in interest and sinking fund charges could have been reflected in the general rates levied," he said.

Had the grants and the savings in debt charges and relief expenditures been applied to reduce municipal taxation, the mill rates in many cases should have been within the 25-mill levy which he had previously suggested should be the maximum on real property, he said.

"Closing of non-essential industries, shortage of manpower and of electrical power would mean lesser revenues to municipalities. Surely then municipal councils, boards and commissions should economize by adjusting their standard of services to face the post-war period in a sound financial position," he concluded.

'DEMOCRACIES' CAUSE IS EGYPT'S CAUSE

Cairo, Aug. 26 —(AP)— Premier Nahas Pasha, broadcasting today on the sixth anniversary of the signing of the Anglo-Egyptian treaty, said "the cause, of the democracies is Egypt's cause.

"We have given and shall continue to give the democracies all the aid in our power."

The anniversary was a public holiday.

"Time for Us Indians to Take Country Back"

Fort William, Aug. 26 (CP). —Chief Chebaw-Tik, "Turbulent Waters", was the name conferred on Premier Mitchell Hepburn by the Fort William Ojibway Indians band at a colorful ceremony at Chippewa Park last night before a crowd of 500.

"Because of your aggressive spirit and unflinching determination we liken you to the white waters of a river that is ever in action", declared Arthur Widnall, city parks superintendent who as Chief Great Thundercloud is honorary Ojibway chief, in welcoming the premier into the band at the pow-wow.

While the tom-toms throbbed, Chief Bannon, elective chief of the Indian band, placed the headdress of feathers on the head of the premier, proclaiming him by his new Ojibway title.

As the pow-wow dance waxed faster, with braves and squaws participating, Mr. Hepburn joined the dance with Mayor C. M. Ross and Rev. Dan McIvor, Liberal member of parliament for Fort William.

After the dance, Premier Hepburn addressed the Indian band.

"It is a very fitting title," he said. "I have floated along the turbulent sea of life for sixteen years. It is time for us Indians to take the country back and run it for ourselves."

Esquire Juniors Easily Defeated In First Game of Provincial Playdowns by Oshawa "Aces"

Winners Had More Defensive Ability and Pounded Apple in the Pinches

SCORE IS 12-2

Fielding a better-balanced defensive ball club on the night's play and demonstrating more offensive ability at the plate, Johnny Trott's Oshawa "Aces" easily defeated the local Esquire Juniors in the first game of the provincial junior softball playdowns at the Agricultural Park last evening as Red Townsend's boys got a poor game out of their system to lose out by a 12-2 score.

For the first several innings of the game the locals appeared jittery, fielded their positions poorly as a team, and committed errors of omission, that resulted in Oshawa piling up runs. Offensively the locals could not seem to get to Morey on the Oshawa mound for the needed safeties and failed to hit in the pinch as they were held to six hits, one a triple by Ethier which developed into Belleville's first run of the game.

Adams started on the Belleville mound but was nicked freely by the Oshawa kids. This coupled with loose playing afield by the locals netted the visitors runs in every inning up to and including the sixth, when Waite relieved to blank the opposition for the last three frames.

On the night's play it appeared as though Townsend miscalculated on his choice of pitcher as Adams was nicked for an even dozen safeties in the five and one third innings he worked. Waite held the visitors to two hits for the balance of the game and seemed to go well although slightly wild, walking two while Adams walked the same number and fanned one. Morey for Oshawa walked six and fanned four.

Build Up Long Lead

Oshawa had built up a nine run lead going into the last half of the fifth before the locals got their first run of the game. Ethier tripled and scored as Gannon lofted one to centre with Ethier crossing the plate after the catch. York, plucky little Oshawa catcher, dropped the ball on a close play at the plate. Their second and last run came in the eighth after Symons doubled, advanced on Callaghan's single and scored on a passed ball.

Ethier was hurt in a forced play at third starting the sixth and was forced from the game being replaced by Tomaso.

Oshawa batters frequently caught the locals out of position afield with McInally being most consistent at the plate, walloping the ball for a homer in the third and connecting for two other singles. Dawson in left also hit for the circuit with two aboard in the fifth, while York, Barker and Morey got a brace of singles apiece. Yerrow with two singles was most consistent for the locals, getting two singles, while Ethier hit for a triple, Symons a double and Gannon a single.

Sports Roundup

By HUGH FULLERTON, JR.)
(Associated Press Sport Writer)

New York, Aug. 27. (AP)—If the Yankees should decide to break up their No. 1 Farm Club at Newark, there'd be $160,000 in it for them. . . . The Dodgers are supposedly ready to pay $50,000 for George Stirnweiss, who is more likely to wind up playing third base for the Yanks. Other unofficial estimates on what the Bears would bring are $25,000 each for Pitcher Tommy Byrne and Shortstop Bill Johnson and $20,000 apiece for Infielder Hank Majeski and Outfielders Russ Derry and Hud Metheney. . . . It's an even trade for golf in Atlanta. Capt. Bobby Jones, now on duty with the Army Interceptor Command, has been house-hunting in Jacksonville, Fla., but Johnny Bulla, who gave up pro golf to become an airline co-pilot, has settled in Bobby's home town. . . . Maxie Shapiro, who fights Cleo Shans at the Garden tomorrow, wanted to be a ball player until Bill Terry told him he was too small for the big leagues.

Red Sox Scouts are interested in Angelo Bertelli, the Notre Dame quarterback who passed up a pro hockey career for college football. He hit .350 for a Springfield, Mass., semi-pro team this summer and more than half his hits went for extra bases. . . .Bobby Specht, National figure skating champ who turned pro to join the Ice-Capades, took the step because he didn't see any use waiting for the next Olympics. . . .

Service Dept.

Lieut. Dick Starks of Midway, Ky., who managed to get his Flying Fortress back to England, with the aid of his bombardier after Starks had been wounded and the co-pilot killed, was a member of Midway's State Championship Basketball team in 1937 and later boxed at Kentucky U. and Duke.

Last Laugh

When the Milwaukee players raised a howl about poor lighting in the Columbus Ball Park recently. Prexy Bill Veeck of the Brewers carefully refrained from saying a word . . . But the next night he appeared in his box with two kerosene lanterns.

LONGSON TAKES JERRY MONNAHAN IN STRAIGHT FALLS

World's Champion Helped in First Fall by Short Count of Referee

STEELE WINS BOUT

"Wild Bill" Longson, the Salt Lake City adonis and world's heavyweight wrestling champion, is still titleholder, insofar as Belleville wrestling fans are concerned. As a matter of fact nearly 3,000 addicts of the grunt and groan business were quite happy about the whole thing at the Hume Arena last night when Longson finally triumphed over "Irish Jerry" Monnahan, the former Masked Wolf, but to be truthful Longson had somewhat of a slight assistance from Referee Phil Lawson, of Toronto, who collected extra remuneration for handling a title bout.

Monnahan made the mistake that usually terminates in the downfall of ring villains — he pugnaciously attacked the champion early in the struggle and thus drew upon his brow the wrath of his opponent, the official in charge and practically every patron in the local sports palace. Longson lived up to his ring reputation and proved an agile grappler; as a matter of fact his agility kept him from getting into trouble that wrestlers shun on the mat.

Wrestle Outside Ring

All of a sudden both main-bouters decided to settle their grievance outside the squared circle, and was Referee Lawson happy about the whole thing? Anyhow, while the gladiators were hauling and pulling each other about with abandon, Headman Lawson was tolling the count. Perhaps here's why Longson is champion — he hopped back into the ring just in time to hear Lawson toll ten and was declared winner in a count that would put the Chicago-Dempsey-Tunney toll to shame.

Losing that first fall didn't leave Mister Mask — pardon, Jerry Monnahan, in a very fair frame of mind, so in the second round Monnahan tried to prove to the ring skeptics he had been "jipped" and promptly applied, what the groaners call a "pile-driver". Monnahan was well on the way to equal matters with the champion, when that arch-villain of any sport — the official, moved into the picture. Again Referee Dawson cautioned Monnahan and before you could say —"I'll meet you in Shannonville", Champ. Longson reversed matters and pinned Monnahan with a press, much to the satisfaction of all present. However, the boys will return to the Hume Arena next Wednesday and bet your bottom penny, they'll give us more surprises than enough.

Martinez Disqualified

In the semi-final bout Ray Steele, who has been advertised as the "perfect wrestler" up and down the North American continent these many years, proved to a Belleville wrestling audience his press agents were too far off the beam. Steele showed the Hume Arena patrons more holds and counter-holds than they've ever seen, that was before his opponent, Pedro Martinez of Mexico, became too ambitious and in his anxiety was disqualified for illegal tactics.

In the preliminary scrap John Katan was so surprised at being the fans' favorite, he forgot to pin the villainous Roland Kirchmeyer the latter centring his attacks upon Referee Cliff Faux, who handled the first two bouts in as capable a manner as has been seen locally in some moons. Official Faux gave a good account of his efforts despite the fact he had four of the roughest men in what's advertised as modern wrestling—count 'em, here they are: Martinez, Steele, Kirchmeyer and Katan, all tipping the beam over the 220 mark and villains of the first water to handle.

HANDYMAN

Ray Mueller who catches practically all the games for Sacramento, also is the club's leading hitter.

Canadian Sport Snapshots

By SCOTT YOUNG
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Toronto, Aug. 27—(CP)—Heroes make the grade the hard way in Timmins, Ont. Last week when a little righthander named Mike Cherevaty pitched four wins for Hollinger Mines, Vic (Timmins Press) Copps commented: "Cherevaty is probably the most underrated pitcher in the north, in the opinion of opposing hitters." If that's what the under-rated lads up there can do, let's have a line on one of your stars, pal.

Dreamville, B.C.:

Duffers dream every night about drives like those Stan Leonard showed the boys in the Lions Gate open at Vancouver Shaughnessy. On the 495-yard fourth one day he blasted one 345 yards and pitched on with a seven iron. In the same round his drive on the 515-yard eleventh was 352 yards. He made the green with an eight-iron.

Incidentally:

Joe Cooper told Eddie (Winnipeg Free Press) Armstrong he'll be the 20th professional hockey player posted to the Ottawa district when he reports there to the R.C.O.C. . . . If that rate is maintained, only the 20-goal men will make a spot on the Ordnance team. . . . Harry Mendel, Tony Galento's manager, told Elmer (Montreal Herald)) Ferguson that Galento was signed to meet Pat Comiskey, but Comiskey flew the coop. Said Mendel, sadly: "Imagine anyone running out on Galento."

Two athletes named Eddie Bush are stationed in Ontario with the armed forces. . . . LAC. Eddie Bush, the Detroit Red Wings defenceman, is at Manning Pool in Toronto with the R.C.A.F. and Pte. Eddie Bush at Stratford in the army. . . . Pte. Bush pitched a no-hitter for Stratford Nationals in the senior inter-county baseball league's final game against Galt. . . . Milt (Stratford Beacon-Herald) Dunnell writes that fans who watched the game were just as tired as Bush when it was over. . . . The suspense was terrific. . . . Infielders were knocking down liners and bouncing them to first, but making the putouts. . . . Bush loaded the bases in the eighth on an error and two walks. . . . Then Galt's clean-up man smashed a liner that was caught and turned into a double play.

'Vets' Defeat Trenton Rexalls In Second Straight Game Of OASA Provincial Playdowns

Team Plays Good Defensive Ball and Hit in the Pinches to Score 9-3 Win

NOW MEET KINGSTON

With only two lapses in their defence and applying the willow, when hits meant runs, the Army & Navy "Vets" softball team in the O.A.S.A. provincial playdowns disposed of Trenton Rexalls in two straight games by taking the second contest of the series in Trenton on Wednesday night by a 9-3 count and will now meet Kingston in the next round, the first game being played in this city on Monday night with the return engagement in Kingston the following Thursday. The "Vets" gained ample revenge for the licking the Belleville entry took last year, when they were eliminated from the playdowns, by a Trenton entry in the third game of their series.

The Vets are entering the playdowns with two good pitchers, ample reinforcemnts at every position, as was evidenced last night, when Mike Whalen went to second in place of the injured Henn, and turned in one of the smartest fielding jobs of the season and a will to win with perfect harmony among the members of the team standing out. Jim Hunter, who was given the hurling assignment, showed what can be done with a ball team behind a pitcher, by handcuffing the heavy stickers of the Trenton team, when hits meant runs. He received excellent support in the field with Jimmy Barriage supplying the fielding feature of the game when he snared a torrid liner only to see it pop out of his hands but retrieving the spheroid before it fell to the ground. In the infield Mike Whalen and "Shud" Ethier played their positions perfectly both players having six assists and everyone of them were made to look easy.

Behind the steady hurling of Hunter was a team, that jumped on Steacy, the Trenton flinger, when base blows were necessary, and in this department Phil Loft, the fast rightfielder led his teammates with three rousing blows one being for two bases, that practically cinched the pastime. "Speedy" St. Louis, who has been around the sports arena for a long time, is playing the best ball of his career and under a handicap of a severe "Charley Horse" conked two hits, one being a double and they figured in the run scoring. Steacy who put the Belleville entry out last year, was just another hurler to the Vets on Wednesday night. Jim Hunter started the team on their way in the second frame, when he knocked home the first counter and from then in, it was just a question of how many. The team really went to town in the fourth and with the help of the Trenton squad, who really kicked the apple around, scored four runs and the game was "in the bag." To make matters sure, when Trenton threatened, the boys put on another powerhouse drive and scored three runs in the ninth.

Hunter struck out four and walked but one man, while Steacy whiffed the same number but issued six walks, some of which were turned into counters. Barny McColl, ace slugger of the Rexalls, proved he is a batsman to be feared by poling a triple and double but his defensive play allowed Belleville to score a run, when he dropped a high lifter. This can easily be accounted for as all the fielders are at a disadvantage in the Trenton park because they have to judge fly balls in the face of a glaring sun. The series with Kingston will be looked forward to as many fiercely contested games have taken place between these two rivals with Belleville having a slight edge. Johnny Bawden is ready for Monday night with Hunter also willing and ready to give the Vics a battle in Kingston. The box score:

CARDS WHITTLE DODGERS' LEAD TO 4½ GAMES

Take Three Straight From Champions in Crucial Series in West

BOSTON MOVES UP

By JUDSON BAILEY
Associated Press Sport Writer

St. Louis Cardinals have shown the rest of the National League they aren't kidding about making a finish fight for the pennant which Brooklyn Dodgers confidently thought they had cinched.

A tremendous stake rested on today's twilight finale of the four-game series, because the Redbirds needed to take it to get the Dodgers really tottering. But win or lose the Cardinals are making good their truculent claims they would battle till the schedule runs out.

A few weeks ago Brooklyn had a 10-game lead, yet the feat of the Cardinals in sweeping the first three installments of their four-game series with the National League champions in St. Louis has helped whittle this down to 4 1-2.

The Cardinals are waging a lone fight, for although they have won 11 and lost eight against the Dodgers this year, no other club has given Brooklyn as much as an even battle in the season's series.

This has not daunted the Redbirds, as proved by their capturing a second straight 2-1 extra inning decision over the Dodgers yesterday for Johnny Beazley's 16th success.

Meanwhile the St. Louis Browns still have time to cause some commotion in the American League.

Yankees' Lead Shaved

Joe Cronin's crew has won nine straight games and 15 of the last 16 to shave the lead of New York Yankees to 7 1-2 games.

Boston humbled Cleveland Indians again yesterday 4-1 on the three-hit hurling of Bill Butland, who permitted two of the Tribe's blows to come in the first inning for a run.

Meanwhile the Yankees dropped a 5-3 affair to Chicago White Sox, who were making their final appearance of the year in New York and had not won a game before in the Stadium. Their victim was rookie Hank Borowy, winner of 12 games and unbeaten on his home field. They pounded Borowy for 10 hits, including two homers, in the first three frames.

Tigers Close Gap

In the only other American League action Detroit Tigers threatened Cleveland's berth in the first division by taking a doubleheader from Philadelphia Athletics 1-0 and 4-2. Virgil (Fire) Trucks outpitched unlucky Russ Christopher in the twilight tussle, although giving six hits to five. Don Ross singled across the winning run in the ninth. Then Lefty Hal White pitched a five-hitter in the night game. This lifted the Tigers within two games of the Indians.

The third place New York Giants of the National League snapped their five-game losing streak by battering Cincinnati Reds for 15 hits and an 11-2 triumph credited to Bill Johrman, the nemesis who has beaten Cincinnati five times this year.

The Phils and Chicago Cubs divided a doubleheader with the tailenders taking the first game 3-2 in 11 innings and the Cubs capturing the nightcap 3-0 on the five-hit shutout hurling of rookie Bill Fleming. Danny Litwhiler's four singles and a double were the deciding factor in the opener.

OTTAWA JOURNAL SAYS UNION WILL POSSIBLY FOLD

Strong Possibility Football Loop Will Close at Least for This Year

FORM CITY LOOP

Ottawa, Aug. 27—(CP)—The Ottawa Journal said in a sport-page story today that unless an unexpected change in plans develop, Eastern Rugby Football Union will not operate this season "and may even fold up for the duration of the war."

"A change in the attitude of officials in Toronto regarding the proposed entries from Air Force and Army has brought about the change in plans, according to the latest news received here," the Journal said.

At a recent meeting in Toronto, officials of three teams in the union—Toronto Balmy Beach, Ottawa Rough Riders and Montreal Bulldogs—decided to continue to operate and announced that entries from other teams had been invited. Toronto Argonauts decided to withdraw from the league.

"Now," the Journal said, "faced with the almost certain withdrawal of Air Force and Army teams, Rough Riders, Balmy Beach and Montreal are also ready to quit."

"In the event the Eastern league folds up, and at the present the odds are 10-1 that it will, plans are under way to form a senior city football league here this fall to replace Rough Riders. The idea is to have perhaps two entries from the Air Force, one from Rockcliffe and another from Uplands, compete in a circuit with at least two civilian teams. The league would mean the revival of the Quebec Rugby Football Union which operated here and in Montreal several years ago."

CASUAL COMMENT by K.J.C.

BELLEVILLE SOFTBALL interests gained sweet revenge over Trenton by pushing the latter into O.A.S.A. oblivion in straight games this year and it's on to Kingston for the next round after a decisive 9 to 3 win at Bayside Park last night. The "Vets" out-scored, out-hit and out-played the Trenton nine last night, while the latter squad kicked in with seven errors, that in no way helped their own cause. Jim Hunter hurled steady ball and was given exceptionally good support by Mike Whalen, at second and "Shud" Ethier at third, while Jim Barriage kicked in with one hair-raising catch of Austin's high lifter in the third. Jim Stacey went to the hilltop for the homesters, but his slants failed to mystify the locals in the same manner as last year, Belleville collecting ten lusty hits with St. Louis, Loft and Jim Barriage leading the way in this department. Trenton's reliable Barney McColl conked out a single, double and triple for the homesters and was about the only threat the home nine presented.

IT WASN'T MUCH COMPETITION when Johnny Trott's Oshawa juniors walloped our Esquire lads 12 to 2 last night. The locals kicked the ball around for many costly errors and Doug Adams, Townsend's starting moundsman, was hit freely and had to be replaced by "Lefty" Waite, who fared much better, as he blanked the Motor City kids for the three frames he labored on the local hilltop. However, the better team won on the night's play with McInally in centrefield playing strong defensive ball and added to his prowess with three hits, including a fourth inning circuit blow. In fairness to the Esquires, however, it might be pointed out that Skipper Townsend's nine haven't played a game in over three weeks and the lay-off naturally did them no good. The second game of the series will be played in Oshawa next Wednesday.

CURIOUSLY ENOUGH, POINTS out John P. Carmichael of the Chicago Daily News, seldom does a major league batting champion come coupled with a pennant winner.

"In more than 35 years, Ty Cobb, Al Simmons and Joe DiMaggio have been the only American leaguers to combine their personal achievements with club triumphs," notes Carmichael. "Since 1911, only Paul Waner (Pirates of '27), Chick Hafey (Cardinals of '31), Edd Roush (Reds of '19) and Pete Reiser (Dodgers of '41) of the National loop have been identified with World's Series outfits.

"Indeed, there's the case of Dale Alexander, '32, who played with Boston and Detroit the same season, the Red Sox finishing eighth and the Tigers fifth. The Phils of '33 finished seventh, although Chuck Klein won the swat crown. Washington was sixth in '35 the time Buddy Myer had clinched the title.

"If, perchance, Reiser makes it two straight crowns and gets no higher, say, than .345, he will be credited with the third lowest mark in 23 years of National League endeavor. Roush hit .321 in '19 and Ernie Lombardi .342 in '38".

BELLEVILLE WRESTLING FANS saw their first world's heavyweight wrestling champion at the Hume arena last night when "Wild Bill" Longson, that Salt Lake City adonis won over the pugnacious "Irish Jerry" Monnahan. Actually the first round decision that went to Longson made the Chicago-Dempsey-Tunney long-count look like nobody's business. It was a long count in Chicago, but as far as the count in Belleville was concerned Referee Lawson apparently couldn't count much above the fingers on one hand. Of course the skeptics didn't go for that, but most everyone agreed that Ray Steele stole the show in the second bout. That fellow clamped more holds on Ignacio Pedro Martinez than the towering "Mex" had experienced in quite some time, although the Mexican had to revert to questionable tactics in order to save himself from defeat. The type of wrestlers being provided by Skipper Tunney can't help but click in our local sports arena, and they say they'll try it again next week.

REMEMBER WHEN MARVIN Nelson, the "Iowa Flash", won the 15-mile Canadian National Exhibition marathon swim at Toronto 12 years ago today, setting a record of 7:43:36 1-5 in choppy Lake Ontario waters? Nelson reduced this time by nearly 43 minutes in 1933 when the race had been moved to calmer waters inside the breakwater.

WHEN CLAUDE PASSEAU, Chicago Cubs' good righthander, defeated the St. Louis Cardinals for his sixteenth National League victory of the year last week, he had another distinction. By beating the Mound City nine for the second time this year he completed his second "Round the Horn". In other words, he has now defeated each club at least twice, which is considered an accomplishment in any man's league.

CONNIE MACK, veteran Philadelphia baseball authority, says the Major Leagues and perhaps two or three class AA leagues will function in organized baseball in 1943. Mister McGillacuddy is of the opinion the majors will have to depend on veteran players and minor leaguers unfit for military service, however.

THIS AND THAT — Tonight's wrestling card at the Maple Leaf Gardens carries practically all of the boys who appeared here last night. . . . Promoter Tunney says he'll continue the British Empire eliminations just as soon as Earl McCready returns from his father's sick bed in Regina. . . . The Cardinals are blowing hot in the National League these days, having won their last three starts against the Brooklyn Dodgers. . . . No doubt Durocher and company will be glad to hop the rattler out of the Mound City tonight. . . . Rumours are out that the Yankees want Chet Laabs and a deal is in the offing between the Bronx Bombers and the St. Louis Browns centring around Laabs. . . . Eddie Bush and Doug McCaig, of the Detroit Red Wings, are the latest N.H.L. players to join the R.C.A.F. . . . Even if transportation is not available next winter, Belleville puck fans and the Hume Arena sit pretty insofar as hockey is concerned. . . . With the three district R.C.A.F. bases so close by a strong local league would prove as attractive a hockey set-up as could be desired. . . . Try again.

Grimes' Men Pilfer Six Bases to Virtually Steal Contest

CHIEFS BEATEN

(By The Associated Press)

Big Pete Center of Baltimore may not be the only "ladies' man" in the International League but he had 19,988 women talking about him after yesterday's pitching performance against Jersey City Giants.

That many feminine fans were in the crowd of 25,853 which turned out at Jersey City for a special "Ladies' Day" honoring Mary T. Norton, New Jersey Congresswoman.

Center humiliated the Giants before their feminine followers, holding them to three hits as he hurled the Orioles to a 4-0 shutout. He walked only two men and struck out three, permitting only three Giants to get as far as second base and none any further.

Adrian Zabala held the Orioles to one run until the ninth inning when they knocked him out of the box with a three-run blast.

The league - leading Newark Bears downed Syracuse Chiefs, 5-1, in a night game, although the series went to the Chiefs, three games to two.

Joe Abreu of the Bears and Woody Williams of the Chiefs shared a perfect evening, each with four hits in four trips to the plate.

Toronto Maple Leafs defeated Rochester Red Wings, 6-2, to sweep a four-game series. Toronto virtually stole the contest, for in addition to making the most of five Red Bird errors, the Leafs swiped six bases.

FOOTBALL UNION WILL NOT OPERATE COMING SEASON

Jimmy Dolan, Secretary, Says Only Three Teams Ready to Play

ARGOS OUT EARLY

Toronto, Aug. 27 (CP)—Jimmy Dolan, Secretary of the Eastern Rugby Football Union, said today that the league will not operate this season because only three teams were entered in the circuit.

Mr. Dolan said the matter had been under discussion for the past 10 days and he had received a letter from the Montreal Football Club this morning saying it was entirely satisfactory to them that the league suspend operations.

He said Ottawa Rough Riders and Toronto Balmy Beach had signified previously they were in favor of the suspension because only three teams had made their entries in the loop.

Toronto Argonauts made known their decision to withdraw from the league at a meeting here on Aug. 11 and at that time the E.R.F.U. had determined to carry on. The Argo decision was prompted by so many players going into Active Service.

"We thought that we could get an army or air force team to fill in to make it a four-team group," said Mr. Dolan today. "But we haven't had any applications from either of them and the Ottawa, Montreal, and Balmy Beach Clubs decided to suspend operations for this season."

Ab Box, President of Balmy Beach, said today he had just come back from a bout of sickness and had heard nothing of any decision to suspend operations, but added that in his opinion, "it would be unwise for a three-team league to operate," because the expenses involved would not justify operation.

TED SCHROEDER RISING STAR

Tennis Player Picked by Experts to Win Amateur Title

(By GAYLE TALBOT)
(Associated Press Sport Writer)

New York, Aug. 27. (AP)—Young Ted Schroeder of California, who was just a promising if slightly erratic doubles specialist a year ago, will find he has made an astonishing rise in the tennis firmament when the United States Amateur championships begin today at Forest Hills.

He will find himself playing the first day's feature match right in the big stadium, itself against Lieut. Russell Bobbitt of Georgia. A year ago Ted needed a guide to locate the remote outlying court on which he played his first match.

It is not that Ted's tennis has improved so sensationally in the last 12 months, but that the players who overshadowed him a year ago are gone, either into the professional ranks or into the armed services. Ted is seeded No. 1 in this year's championships and is favored by a majority of students to win the crown relinquished by Bobby Riggs.

In two other feature matches, Lieut. Gardnar Mulloy meets Arthur MacDonald and Sidney B. Wood warms up on James Brink.

Says Dieppe Raid Shows Importance Naval, Air Cover

London, Aug. 27 (CP Cable) — The Dieppe raid, in which the losses of ships from air attack were small, emphasized the importance of adequate naval and air cover, it was said authoritatively today.

Compared with heavy losses in Norway, Crete, Greece and elsewhere, where ships were operated in narow waters without strong air support, an authoritative source said, the ships and landing craft engaged at Dieppe were able to remain nine hours close off the French coast with only small losses.

This was due, he said, to strong air support given by R.A.F., R.C.A.F. and other Allied groups

AT THE BELLE

"My Favorite Spy"

The troubles which beset a popular band leader when he is detailed by the government to run down enemy agents who are utilizing his orchestra to transmit military information, forms the basis of RKO Radio's "My Favorite Spy," starring Kay Kyser, now on the Belle Theatre screen.

Kyser's activities throw him into close association with a beautiful woman secret service operative, and his bride innocently betrays him into the hands of the very men he is trying to unmask.

How he escapes their trap and encompasses their capture provides thrilling action and high tension. Music and hilarious comedy is skillfully mixed with the breathtaking complications of the film.

Ellen Drew is cast as the jealous wife and Jane Wyman plays the lovely spy. Helen Westley, Robert Armstrong, Ish Kabibble, William Demarest, Una O'Connor, Sully Mason, Harry Babbitt, Trudy Irwin, Dorothy Dunn and the Kyser Band are in the feature line-up.

New Falcon Film Thrilling

Action, danger and comedy are intermixed in "A Date With the Falcon," RKO Radio's latest filmic exploit of the debonair detective, announced as the added feature offering.

The story revolves about the mysterious kidnapping of a noted inventor. The Falcon, about to march to the altar, postpones his marriage to investigate the affair, thereby infuriating his bride-to-be, as well as plunging himself into deadly peril when his investigations lead him to the criminals' retreat.

The exciting film was directed by Irving Reis, and Allen Jenkins, James Gleason and Mona Maris have important roles.

Walt Disney's latest color fun cartoon complete the program.

AT THE McCARTHY

George Formby

The King of Comedy, George Formby, comes to the McCarthy Theatre screen next in his latest hit "Turned Out Nice Again." Extras on the program include "Five Men From Australia," which is a close-up of our hard-hitting, courageous "cobbers" from down under. While they live the southern star will shine. A clever musical jamboree entitled "La Cucaracha" and a technicolor comedy cartoon, "Tricky Business."

Foto-Nite

This is Foto-Nite at the McCarthy with two offers, first, $175 and second, $20. Last Thursday Mrs. M. Taylor was called and this evening will receive a cheque for $175. A splendid screen program, "The Sweetheart of the Fleet," featuring Jinx Falkenburg, Joan Davis and Joan Woodbury. Also William Holden and Frances Dee in "Meet the Stewarts" are both exceptionally fine laugh-loaded feature attractions and in addition the four-star short subject, "Inside Fighting China" completes a program highly recommended.

AT THE CAPITOL

"Silver Stallion"

Heralded by preview critics in Hollywood and New York as the finest animal picture since "Sequoia," Monogram's "Silver Stallion," a film about the wild horse herds of Arizona, now playing at the Capitol Theatre.

The picture introduces a newcomer to featured ranking, David Sharpe, former stunt man who has been given his first screen opportunity by producer-director Edward Finney. Others in the cast include Chief "Tonto" Thundercloud, LeRoy Mason, "Thunder," the horse and "Captain Boots," police dog.

"Silver Stallion" tells the story of "Thunder," leader of the wild horses and his battles against the many dangers that threaten his family and herd. An exciting undertone of western action keeps the picture whipping along at a smart pace.

The added feature now at the Capitol is "Night Train to Munich," starring Rex Harrison and Margaret Lockwood.

The story is centred on the activities of the German Admiralty who succeed in kidnapping from England a famous Czech inventor whose skill is essential to the rearmament plans of both countries. Harrison found the role required the fullest use of his versatile capabilities. He had never sung on either screen or stage before taking the role. But in an important scene he appears as a comedy song-plugger, singing all kinds of maudlin melodies about love-sick females and love-lorn laddies. In other scenes he portrays a high Nazi military official, boasting cropped hair and a monocle and had to adopt a gutteral German accent. Only once during the entire film does he appear as the nonchalant, easy-going British secret service agent that is actually his character in the picture.

"Night Train to Munich" is a fascinating thriller and has many delightful comedy and romantic scenes. Local moviegoers are advised to attend the early showings if possible.

CHAPTER 11

Heartbreak

Linda was pirouetting before the mirror late the following afternoon when Diane returned from her studio. Exhausted by a week of continuous worry, topped by a sleepless train ride to Chicago, she had slept until noon and been served a combination breakfast and lunch in bed.

She had written a brief note to her parents, telling them of her arrival, the rest of the afternoon had been spent in experimenting with new hair-do's and make-up effects, in order that Greg would be proud of her.

When Diane walked into the bedroom she found Linda, clad in the white and silver dress she had worn that night several weeks ago when she first met Greg.

"Hello, Diane," she greeted the artist, happily. "I just donned my finery for an evening with Greg. He promised to take me sightseeing and I want to look my best. Is everything all right?"

Diane did not move. Her fingers dug into her palms, hard.

"I—I have something to tell you," she said, ignoring the query. Her voice was strange to her own ears.

Linda was spraying scent on a filmy handkerchief, and without looking up she laughed lightly. "Is it the hair-do? I had a dreadful time getting the top curls combed out, so don't hesitate to tell me the truth."

Diane winced. All afternoon she had been framing this speech, going over it in her mind; and now Linda was unaware of the urgency in her voice or of her tense face.

"Linda, look at me," she commanded.

Linda glanced up casually and then, catching a glimpse of Diane's white, set face she cried, "What is it? . . . Is it Greg?"

Diane nodded.

"He's been hurt." Linda was frantic. "That's what you're trying to say. Something has happened to Greg."

"No, no. He's all right!" Diane said hastily. "But—well, he's not coming here tonight. He's never coming here again. Greg has gone."

For a moment Linda was unable to believe her own ears. "Greg? gone?" she whispered. "I—I don't understand, Diane. Where has he gone? Why?"

Diane had gripped her hands together. The words she had planned so carefully were forgotten now. She was conscious of Linda's puzzled, stricken eyes. Her waning color. "Please try to follow me, Linda. Greg has gone away for awhile. He—he doesn't want to see you again."

"Doesn't . . . want to see" Linda broke off. Dazedly she looked at her hands, touched her misty dress. Pathetically she whispered, "I don't know what you mean. I came to Chicago to be with him. Why—why did he go away?"

All her life Diane would remember the way Linda looked in the moment she learned the truth. Her face was white.

"Greg has gone," Diane uttered harshly, "because you love him and he wants to escape from you and your love."

Diane went on hurriedly. "He doesn't condemn you. He blames himself for allowing you to misunderstand. To Greg it was merely a flirtation. When he stopped over in Prairievale to see you, he never dreamed you'd take him so seriously that you would break your engagement; and when you came to Chicago and he learned that you expected eventually to marry him, Greg didn't have the nerve to tell you the truth."

Slowly, Linda sank on a bench, her eyes fixed dully on nothingness. "But—" she said finally, "why did he send you to tell me? Why do you know so much about it?"

Diane took a long breath. It had taken courage to tell the first news. This required even more determination. "That," she said, "is the rest of a very sordid story. You see, it has been a—an understanding for the last two years that Greg and I—well, that we would someday be married."

Linda started, color rising swiftly in her face, but Diane went on gently:

"Greg has never been what you might call—dependable. No one knows that better than I. He indulges in his little romances, of course, but eventually he comes back to me and I—" she laughed "I forgive and forget. It has always been like that."

Then torn by sympathy she cried, "I'm sorry that you had to learn it the hard way, Linda, but it's true."

"I—I don't believe you," Linda whispered dully. "If you knew the things he said—the things he wrote in his letter! And he never mentioned you, except to say that you were a friend."

Diane nodded wisely. "I've come up against this sort of thing many times. Greg is like that—impulsive, headstrong, completely selfish. But when he's through—he's through. Why, when he came up here last night it was to take me to dinner, not because he knew you were here."

Suddenly Linda's face turned scarlet and her eyes grew hot with anger. "I don't believe you," she cried. "This is a trick! A neatly-planned trick all your own!"

"But it isn't, Linda. Greg left this morning with a group of scientists for South America. He won't be back for six months. Does that look like a trick to you?"

Linda ignored her, rushing on heedlessly, blindly. "You love Greg and you despise me because Greg loves me. You want to turn him against me, but you can't, and I'll tell him the truth. I'll tell him everything you've said!"

"Oh, Linda, why don't you face facts?" Diane cried despairingly. "I've told you everything. Ask Mary Baridon if you distrust me, or ask Brenda, or — yes, Steve Baridon can tell you. Everyone knows."

"Everyone knows?" Linda was crushed. "Everyone knows Greg Hollister is a philanderer; that he swept a little girl from the sticks right off her feet?"

She laughed mockingly. "What a joke that must be among your sophisticated friends. Think of it! Greg, your fiancee, making a play for a visitor in your own home. A country girl you pretended to befriend. You know that he had been out with me, and you didn't say a word. I suppose it amused you to see him making a fool of me—ruining my entire life."

Linda's voice broke and she glanced down at her dress. "To think that I accepted your hospitality! Even the dress I'm wearing belongs to you!" Roughly she seized the fragile tulle between her fingers.

"This is what I think of you and your hospitality," she sneered, and before the horror-stricken Diane could intervene she was ripping and crushing the beautiful gown to shreds. Then she stamped defiantly on the tattered remains.

"Now," she said grimly, "get out of here. Get out." She pushed Diane from the room and then closed and locked the door.

Diane was speechless with amazement. Surely this girl so beside herself with frustration, so hurt and bewildered, was not soft-spoken, gentle Linda Phillips. Diane pounded on the bedroom door, pleading with the girl to admit her but only silence answered her entreaties. Then, when Diane thought she could stand that grim silence no longer, the door was flung open and Linda emerged, clad in her hat and coat. Her face was pale.

"Linda!" Diane clutched the girl's arm, but Linda jerked away. "Where are you going?" And, again, "Answer me, Linda. Tell me!"

Silence met her pleading. Diane cried out again as Linda moved toward the door, leading to the corridor. "You have no money. No friends here! Linda—where will you go?"

"Does it matter?" She had reached the door and jerked it open. "Does anything matter now? You have had your amusement. Your friends can chuckle over this all winter." There was a final harsh sob, a chocked, "Does anything matter . . . now?" Then the door closed.

Linda Phillips was gone!

How long Diane stood staring across the room she would never know. She was conscious only that Linda had been hurt — so badly hurt that anything was possible now. Anything!

Suddenly there was a rap at the door and she sprang to answer it, crying hopefully, "Linda?"

But it was Stephen Baridon who stood on the threshold. His expression changed from one of polite boredom to quick concern at the stark terror written on Diane's face.

"What's the matter?" he asked.

Diane cried, pathetically: "It's Linda. She's gone."

"Gone? Where?"

"I don't know. I wish I did. I told her about Greg and me. At first she didn't believe me, and then she ran away."

"Maybe she'll cool off and come back," Steve suggested in a vain attempt to soothe her obviously over-wrought nerves.

"You don't know Linda as I do." The artist was sobbing hysterically now. "She's never been like this before. Oh, Steve — I'm afraid!" She clutched his arm with trembling fingers. "If you had seen her face—the dying look in her eyes, as though she didn't care what happened to her any more . . ."

"But where could she go?" Steve was plainly worried.

"I don't know, I tell you. She doesn't know a soul in Chicago and she didn't have any money." A new thought struck her. "She didn't even take a bag with her, just ran out into the night—"

Diane stopped short, for Steve had dashed toward the door.

"W—where are you going?" she asked pitifully.

Steve's words left her trembling with a new and unnamed fear.

"To find Linda Phillips," he said as he raced down the corridor, "before it's too late."

Little Benny's Note Book

I was talking and arguing with Puds Simkins on his front steps, and some man stopped going passed saying, I wonder if I could trouble you boys for a glass of water?

Being a little man with a big stummick and a watch chain on his vest and looking like somebody that might give you at least a nickel reward for a glass of water, and I thought, Heck, why couldn't we of been sitting on my steps? And I said, I dont live here but I'll run over to my house and bring you a glass.

Well, I wouldn't want to put you to all that trouble, the man said, and Puds said, I live here, I'll get you a glass.

I'll go in and help him, I said.

Which I did, going back in his kitchen with him and turning the spikkot, Puds saying, Hay, dont forget this is my house and my glass and my water.

Probably meaning in case of a reward, and he took the glass out and the man drank it all without stopping, Puds saying, Do you want another one?

No thanks, one is ample, the man said. Well, I hope you boys are enjoying the vacation months. But dont forget that education is a fine thing. I wonder if you can name me some of the advantages of school? he said, and Puds said, Sure. It teaches you history and spelling and all different things, he said, and I said, I can tell you some, too. It teaches you to read so you can enjoy books all your life, I said.

Very good, very good, the man said. And he kept on going with all his money, and Puds said, Aw heck, I wish I'd told him it was good because no matter how bum anything else is, it makes it seem better by comparison, and I said, I wish I'd of told him it was good because it makes you appriciate vacation. Which it does.

Used Milk Can To Hold Gasoline; Man is Fined

In county police court here today (Thursday) Douglas Kimmett, Lennox County farmer, was charged under the War Measures Act with having used a milk can for other purposes than holding milk or cream, to wit, using it to contain gasoline. He pleaded guilty and was fined five dollars and costs by Magistrate Lloyd.

Crown Attorney Donnan immediately had two policemen carry the can containing the five gallons of gasoline out of the county building. It was at once removed to the lawn of the court house on account of the nature of the contents.

"Farmers, milk producers and any person coming in contact with such cans should not use them for anything else but milk or cream. It is contrary to the War Measures Act," explained Magistrate Lloyd as a warning to the public.

Conant Refuses To Give Consent To Prosecution

Toronto, Aug. 27 — (CP) — Attorney-General Conant today refused to consent to prosecution of Charles Copping of Toronto who appeared in court here on two charges laid under the Defence of Canada Regulations.

Mr. Conant had previously warned he would not give permission for the prosecution of further charges in Ontario under the Defence of Canada Regulations and said such charges were for Dominion Government jurisdiction.

The case was adourned to Sept. 3.

TORONTO STOCKS

Toronto, Aug. 27. (CP) — The Gold stocks registered a little improvement today in the early action and the industrials showed slight losses.

Dome gained 1-4 to 13 3-4 and prices were up narrowly for Pickle Crow, Kerr-Addison, Hollinger and Pioneer. In the Base Metal group Steep Rock and Smelters gained narrowly while Ventures and International Nickel chalked up light losses.

Trading was dull in the Industrial Section. Brazilian, Burlington Steel and Dominion Stores weakened small fractions and Dominion Bridge dropped a point to twenty-one.

THE WAR TODAY

By De Witt MACKENZIE
Associated Press War Analyst

Disclosure of the heavy — and thus far successful — new Russian offensive in the important sector northwest of Moscow, and a forecast by the Soviet army newspaper Red Star that the Bolshevists will halt the Nazis on the Caucasian mountain line, are an invitation to examine the possibility the Hitlerite tribe may have about reached high water and be ready to ebb.

One approaches this idea with the utmost caution, because of the obvious dangers of the Russian position in face of the terrific striking-power being exhibited by the Germans. Still, as I have indicated previously, this is the time at which many military experts have thought the Muscovites might be able to stem the Hitlerite flood, namely, when the battle lines backed up against the towering Caucasian mountains.

Of one thing we are certain — the battle of the Caucasus is still anybody's fight. Despite the Nazi gains over the bodies of Hitler's wholesale human sacrifice, the Fuehrer is by no means the certain winner. On that basis, and having dissociated ourselves from wishful thinking, let's examine the situation.

Red Offensive at Rzhev

The Red offensive in the Rzhev sector northwest of Moscow has been under way 15 days already. The Reds announce an advance of 25 to 30 miles, the capture of upwards of 600 communities and the slaughter of 45,000 Germans. This drive has been undertaken for two reasons:—

(1) To compel the Nazis to withdraw strength from the Stalingrad front and thus ease the fierce pressure on that strategic city, and (2) to eliminate a German salient and thus strengthen the defences of Moscow.

The point about the Moscow defences is this: If Hitler should be successful in capturing Stalingrad and crushing the Bolshevist resistance farther south, he likely would make another supreme effort to capture Moscow before winter shuts in. His idea would be to make his position impregnable as far down as the Caucasus range so that even if he didn't succeed in forcing the mountains he would be able to hold his lines easily during the winter while devoting his energy to other pursuits — quite likely development of the Egyptian campaign.

New Phase in Caucasus

As to the fighting in the Caucasus, Red Star says the battles have entered a new phase now that the enemy has reached the mountain barrier. The sweeping plains over which Hitler's tanks have been racing are giving way to mountainous terrain where these steel monsters operate with difficulty or not at all. Also, inside the mountain range it is virtually impossible for airplanes to operate.

The Germans have been depending heavily on their tanks and warplanes, and a vast weakening of these two fighting arms may indeed alter the picture. However, the Nazis have demonstrated that they are no mean mountain fighters, and only time will determine the issue.

I should say that a great deal depends on the outcome of the siege of Stalingrad. That is a tough nut to crack and the Nazis are concentrating all available forces for the assault. The Bolshevists are expected to put up a fierce resistance, but it mustn't be overlooked that they are handicapped by the fact that this great industrial city is on the west bank of the Volga river. That means they must fight with their backs to the river instead of having its broad reaches in front of them for protection—a position which any defending commander would avoid if possible.

Should Stalingrad fall quickly, it would release many Nazi troops for the fighting farther south. Naturally that might alter the whole show, but since that point is reached by hurdling a lot of "ifs," speculations isn't very profitable.

While all this is going on in the Russian theatre, we mustn't relax our watch on Egypt. A great and crucial battle is likely to erupt at any moment between the Allies and Nazi Marshal Rommel's forces, which represent one claw of the pincers that Hitler is trying to clamp on the whole Middle East.

Maximum Wholesale Prices Set For Eggs

Ottawa, Aug. 27 (CP)—An order setting maximum wholesale prices for eggs, based on prices set for 11 Canadian cities which serve as main distributing points, was announced last night by the Wartime Prices and Trade Board.

The order effective today, establishes zone price differentials designed to maintain uniformity of supplies in all parts of Canada and sets maximum retail mark-ups.

Only maximum prices are established by the order and normal fluctuations below the top levels are expected to continue through most of the year.

Following are the highest prices wholesalers may charge at each point for Grade A large eggs: Montreal 50 cents a dozen; Toronto 49 1-2; Winnipeg 48; Regina, Saskatoon, Edmonton and Calgary 47; Vancouver 49; Saint John, N.B., Halifax and Sydney N.S. 50 3-4.

These ceiling prices the Board said, represent a wholesaler's delivered costs, including all his packing costs except cartoning. Eggs packed in dozen or half-dozen cartons by either wholesaler or retailer may not be increased in price more than two cents a dozen.

At points not designated in the order, the Grade A delivered price must not exceed the price at the nearest designated point plus normal freight charges. Lower grades and sub-grades must be sold at appropriate levels below prices set for Grade A. Usual quality premium prices may be maintained, but must not exceed those of the 1941 basic period.

A retailer may add his regular mark-up to the wholesale price, not exceeding 20 per cent of his selling price or eight cents a dozen, whichever is lower.

Prices on Top-Grade Eggs Decline Cent

Toronto, Aug. 27—Prices to country dealers and selling prices to the retail trade on top-grade eggs, A large and A medium, declined a cent to a cent and a half on the Toronto open produce market Wednesday, while the lower grade eggs remained firm at previous levels. The market was quiet with receipts ample and showing some accumulation.

The butter market was firm under light offerings and a good demand. Receipts were scarce and not sufficient to meet the demand. Ontario No. 1 creamery solids sold at the previous price level of 34 3-4 cents a pound.

No sales were reported in cheese and the market continued dull and draggy. The current white make was offered at 20 cents a pound.

Montreal Produce

Montreal, Aug. 27—(CP) — Produce prices here Wednesday reported by the Dominion Department of Agriculture, follow:

Eggs: Graded shipments offering, A-large, 38c; A-medium, 37c; A-pullets, 33c to 33 1-2c; B, 29 1-2c to 30 1-2c; C, 25c to 25 1-2c. Receipts, 1,369 cases.

Butter: First grade creamery prints, jobbing price, 36c to 36 1-2c; first-grade solids, jobbing price, 35 1-2c to 36c.

Russian Girl, Famed as Sniper, Visits Washington

Washington, Aug. 27 (AP)—Junior Lieut. Lidmila Pavliuchenko, attired in full regimentals of the special Red Russian Army Corps and wearing two medals on each breast as awards for her deeds as a Russian sniper, arrived here today as a delegate to the International Student Assembly.

The young woman is credited officially with having shot and killed 309 German officers and men and trained 80 other snipers who killed some 2,500 Axis invaders in the Sevastopol sector.

She speaks no English but talked to interviewers through an interpreter. After the war is won, she said, she expects to go back into history research, in which she was engaged at the University of Kiev before the war.

HEROIC COMMANDOS RETURN TO ENGLAND AFTER SUCCESSFUL RAID ON DIEPPE

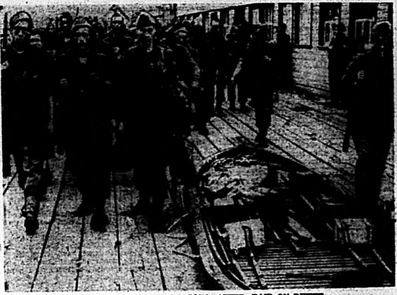
This British commando, face still blackened, stands on a compartment of one of the invasion barges, and shows how a leg of his trousers had been shot away during the raid on Dieppe, France. This unusual photo shows how the men looked when they returned. There is little laughter, and many a weary, drooping eyelid. In the background is another invasion barge, its camouflage plainly visible. The biggest raid of its kind, it was called a great success.

FIRES BURN AS COMMANDOS APPROACH DIEPPE

A photograph of historic import, shows smoke spiralling from the strategic German-held city of Dieppe on the French side of the channel as it is approached by one of the fleet of invasion barges manned by grim, blackened-faced British commandos. The fires were started by R.A.F. planes and artillery. The invasion barges carried tanks. The "reconnaissance in force" was the largest landing force of its kind. The mission was a great success.



INTO FORMATION AGAIN AFTER RAID ON DIEPPE

Commandos, faces still blackened, showing evidences of weariness, "fall in" on the quayside to march back to barracks after the historic "reconnaissance in force" on the German-held French port of Dieppe.

Free From Pains in Limbs And Joints; Praises Syntona

Also Ended Stomach Disorders; Dizzy Feelings, Backache and Headaches Disappeared; "Feel Like Myself Again," Says This Greensville Resident.

"For the past two years my stomach was in a badly disordered condition and this seemed to make everything else go wrong," says Mr. V. L. Matthews, a well-known Steel Company of Canada employee whose address is Greensville, Ont.

"The thing that really had me worried was a pain in my back so bad that I couldn't straighten up. My limbs felt lame and ached all over. I was seldom able to eat a meal without suffering from gas, with a full, heavy feeling in my stomach. Sour acid risings came up in my throat. There were times when I had severe dizzy feelings which ended up in a splitting headache. This affected my nerves so badly that I couldn't get restful sleep and then in the mornings hardly had enough energy to get out of bed.

"I wasn't taking Syntona long before my food began to digest better. I could enjoy my meals and have no gas, bloating or sour risings afterward. The backache gradually eased up until it had disappeared and then the other aches and pains went away. Since then I've been getting sound, restful sleep and haven't had any headache or dizzy feeling since. Even my work seems easier since I am feeling like myself again. I have recommended Syntona to many of my fellow workers and urge every one suffering as I did to try this medicine."

Let this pure herbal tonic help you as it has so many other local men and women. Syntona is pleasant to take and contains no harmful drugs or depressors.

Syntona is sold and recommended in Belleville by DOLAN THE DRUGGIST

Sizes of Tin Milk Containers Restricted

Ottawa, Aug. 26.—(CP)—Sizes of tin containers for milk products are restricted under an order announced today by Metals Controller George C. Bateman in his capacity as administrator of non-ferrous metals for the Wartime Prices and Trade Board.

Designed to reduce civilian uses of tin, the order stipulates that only 14-ounce and 15-ounce tin plate containers may be used to package sweetened condensed milk, eliminating the four and 6 1-2-ounce and 14-pound packages.

For unsweetened evaporated milk, the six-ounce size is authorized, but containers are to be produced only up to 75 per cent of the number used by the manufacturer for the same purpose in 1941. The 14 1-2-ounce size may be used for export trade and the 16-ounce or larger sizes are permitted without limitation upon quantity.

R.A.F. SPREADS MASSED MIGHT AT KASSEL, GDYNIA

Central Front Offensive by Russians Gains New Ground

BATTLE RAGES TO BREAK JAP GRIP ON NEW GUINEA

Bombers Pommel Plane-Producing Centre, Baltic Port

Part of Process To Squeeze Enemy Homeland in Grip Of Fire, Explosives

30 BOMBERS MISSING

London, Aug. 28 (CP).—In twin raids on the key plane-producing centre of Kassel and the Baltic port of Gdynia in former Poland, the R.A.F. spread the massed might of its bombers last night from end to end of Germany.

To carry the great onslaught to smash the Nazi war machine across the whole breadth of Germany to Gdynia, the British bombers had to fly more than 1,500 miles round-trip from their home bases under a moon-lit sky.

Besides 30 bombers lost in what was called a "concentrated and effective" bombing, the Air Ministry announced that two fighter-bombers left two ships burning in the channel.

The flights were part of a steady procession by airmen of the United Nations to squeeze the enemy homeland in an ever-tightening grip of fire and explosives.

Open Daylight Raid.

Keeping up the attack on a day-and-night basis, fighter planes roared across the channel throughout the morning, and in the afternoon a powerful force of bombers escorted by fighters swept eastward toward France.

By striking at Kassel with a force probably some 600 planes strong, Britain's big night raiders hit a source of Messerschmitt fighters and the site of the Nazis' biggest locomotive foundry.

To reach it, they speared 80 miles deeper into Germany from their home bases than the Ruhr and the Rhineland regions which have been hardest hit in recent months.

This was another long step forward in the British policy of helping Soviet Russia—a smash at the Baltic harbor where the 26,000-ton German battleship Gneisenau is known to have been recently and at an important base for U-boat operations against the Red navy's Baltic fleet.

A Vulnerable Spot.

Kassel may have been chosen by the R.A.F. as a particularly vulnerable spot in the German war machine. Hitler blamed part of the Germans' Russian winter disaster on frozen locomotives and promised that this winter there would be no such failure.

The vast job of keeping German armies supplied from the Atlantic to the Volga and from the Arctic to the Mediterranean under the pounding of the British and Russians and the destruction by saboteurs has put a telling strain on Nazi rail transport.

German bombers, meanwhile, followed up light night attacks on northern England with a series of daylight raids on widely-separated areas.

Bristol Bombed.

Two enemy planes bombed Bristol during the forenoon, unloading bombs which an official statement said caused some damage and some fatalities.

Four persons were killed and a number injured in a northeast coast town where the raiders dropped many high explosives and new-type fire-bombs. Several delayed-action bombs also fell.

Later a lone Nazi plane bombed a town in western England, wrecking three buses loaded with passengers. A number of women and children died in the flaming wreckage.

One German fighter was shot down off the southwest coast.

MADE WRONG CAST

Battersea, Ont., Aug. 28 (CP).—Miss Georgie Knapp of Battersea made the wrong cast when she was putting away expensive fishing tackle. Miss Knapp tossed rod and reel into a stranger's car and the tackle was turned over to the police who returned it to Miss Knapp.

Many Killed In Bristol Raid

Bristol, England, Aug. 28 (CP) — Many persons were killed and wounded and others were feared trapped in the ruins of a building today when Bristol was bombed by a German raider who swooped over the city in a sudden morning attack.

One bomb exploded near three passenger buses. They burst into flames while their occupants struggled to escape. Women and children were among the killed.

Other bombs destroyed several old houses.

Two Are Killed In Explosion Near Montreal

Montreal, Aug. 28 — (CP)—Two men were killed instantly today when an explosion destroyed two black powder buildings and partially wrecked a third at the Commercial Explosives Plant of the Canadian Industries Limited at Beloeil, 20 miles from here. Equipment and property damage is estimated at $100,000.

Maurice Lajoie, 26, St. Hilaire, an employee at the plant for the last year, lost his life in the corning mill building where the explosion originated. Maurice Blanchard, 35, married and a native of Beloeil, was struck and killed by flying debris.

According to preliminary reports from the works, Lajoie was engaged in cleaning machinery in the corning mill which was not running at the time of the accident. The explosion and resulting flash was transmitted to other nearby buildings, destroying one by a second explosion and partly damaging a third. The reverberations were felt over a wide area of the surrounding country.

An investigation into the accident is being conducted by officials of the company's explosives division in conjunction with the chief inspector of explosives from Ottawa but officials said little hope is held of determining the cause since the operator was killed and the corning mill building destroyed.

OLD TIRES

Bloomfield, Ia., Aug. 28 (AP).—Onlookers gazed wide-eyed when Henry Wishard tossed six tires—all still in their original wrappings—onto the local scrap pile. Wishard, however, just laughed. The tires, 37 x 5, were surviving relics of a carload he bought in 1914.

FREIGHT CAR MISSING

Concordia, Kas., Aug. 28 (AP).—Trainmen arriving from nearby Frankfort discovered a car missing—out of the middle of the train. The freight train had broken at Frankfort and in recoupling the car overlooked a car of tools which had derailed and rolled down an embankment.

Rzhev Thrust, Stalingrad Defence Improve Red Military Situation

London, Aug. 28—(CP) — The Red Army's thrust into Rzhev and the increased stubbornness of the Russian defence of Stalingrad combine to form a "considerably improved" Russian military situation, a British military commentator said today.

The commentator, whose name could not be used, said the German position at Rzhev had become "uncomfortable," with Soviet troops advancing according to a plan which Gen. Gregory Zhukov was believed to have formulated while Prime Minister Churchill was in Moscow.

"There is a good chance that Rzhev will be encircled from the northwest and southeast," the commentator said. He added, however, that the prospect of a "big strategic victory" for the Russians is not yet in sight.

German positions around Rzhev, however, were described as "very strong and heavily manned."

The commentator said there had been no further German gains toward the Caucasus oil fields since yesterday, but that the Black Sea port of Novorossisk is threatened by a German advance and is in great danger.

HONG KONG MAIL FOR NEARLY 500 FAMILIES ARRIVES

Will Be Distributed From Ottawa as Soon As Censors Release Letters

FIRST DIRECT NEWS

Ottawa, Aug. 28 —(CP)— Within the next few days, close to 500 Canadian families will receive their first direct communication from fighting men who survived the battle of Hong Kong—through heavily-censored letters borne half way round the world by an international exchange ship.

In many cases, it will be their first definite indication that the men actually lived through the unequal two-weeks battle which ended Christmas Day.

These letters, National Defence headquarters announced last night, have reached Ottawa and will be airmailed to next-of-kin as soon as censorship authorities release them. Delivery is expected by Saturday, although it might be delayed until Monday in a few cases.

Next-of-kin who do not receive letters were cautioned by Lt.-Col. F. W. Clarke, chairman of the committee responsible for care and welfare of Canadian prisoners of war, not to anticipate that their relatives at Hong Kong were casualties.

Letters from next-of-kin to prisoners, forwarded on the Swedish liner Gripsholm which carried the messages from Hong Kong on a return journey, were expected to reach the former British colony early in September.

Lake Skippers Are Advised

Toronto, Aug. 28 —(CP)— The Department of Transport has told lake skippers how they must act if bombers or enemy aircraft are aproaching the locks of the Sault Ste. Marie Canal.

The department notified skippers operating in the St. Mary's River that they will be expected to keep radio receiving sets operating until air raid warnings go out when they must maintain strict radio silence.

Ships entering canal locks or aproaches can turn around if possible. "In any case," the notice continued, "they must get as far away from the locks as possible."

Ships must anchor and black-out all navigating and other lights. Ships, the notice said, must anchor as far away from one another as possible to present as small a target for bombers as possible.

Air raid warnings will be issued by United States coastguard patrol boats where possible and ships will not proceed until the "all-clear" signal is given.

He said the government may be compelled to extend the current issue of 60 clothing coupons becoupons are scheduled to be isyond next Aug. 1 when the new sued if there are "any further calls on shipping or on already limited labor resources."

Shock Troops Capture Fortified Position And Hold Firm at Stalingrad

Russians Fall Back in Prokhladneski Area of the Caucasus but Hold Positions at Junction of Mountain Road South of Krasnodar

RUSSIANS RETAIN INITIATIVE

By EDDY GILMORE
(Associated Press Staff Writer)

Moscow, Aug. 28 (AP)—Battle-grimed German forces which fought their way 400 miles from the Ukraine to the Volga Valley reached the distant approaches to Stalingrad today, but Russian dispatches said they were blocked there by swarms of Red army infantry who closed in from all sides.

The situation at the great Volga city of Stalin admittedly was grave, with the fight raging to a climax, but Russian reports took the encouraging tone that shock troops of the Nazi assault had been forced to form the classic round defence and fight for survival.

One German armored spearhead was reported cut off completely and encircled on the sun-baked steppes northwest of Stalingrad.

The main German forces streamed up from the rear in a desperate attempt to make good their break-through by force of numbers, and dive-bombers began destructive attacks on the city.

While the land and air battle for the "City of Stalin" raged to full violence, the Red army was hammering home its own offensive in the suburbs of Nazi-held Rzhev where the Germans held out 130 miles from Moscow through last winter's Russian push.

Holds Key to Victory

Red Star declared that the fight for Stalingrad held "the key to victory" so important was regarded the great industrial town which sprawls for miles along the lowest bank of the mighty Volga.

With the stiffening of the Russian last ditch stand there dispatches declared that in one salient (presumably northwest of the city) the Russians had hurled the Germans back in local counter attacks recapturing three settlements.

The defenders were hardest pressed from the southwest where the Germans were reported charging over mounds of their own dead.

Pravda reported that a strong force of Nazi parachutists who landed behind the Stalingrad line and seized temporary control of a road junction had been wiped out.

Fighting for the Caucasus appeared moving at a slower pace now that the battles had moved into mountain passes more easily defended.

Red Army men fell back again in the Prokhladnenski area of the Caucasus, but held firm at a junction of mountain roads south of Krasnodar, the mid-day communique announced.

Without identifying the fortifications seized in the 16-day-old push west of Moscow, the communique reported "two tanks were destroyed and more than 100 Germans were killed."

Occupy Several Places

"In another sector our troops, developing the offensive, occupied seven populated places," it was announced. "We destroyed 13 German tanks, 10 anti-tank guns and 25 trucks and captured two tanks, one armored car, several guns and other war material."

The midnight communique said Russian troops, maintaining the initiative in a drive launched Aug. 11, broke into a heavily-fortified populated place on the central front and killed 200 Germans and disabled 26 enemy tanks.

Field dispatches indicated the point might be Sychevka, a way station on the Rzhev-Vyazma railway 120 miles west of Moscow, on Rzhev itself, an Upper Volga stronghold where Red vanguards were previously reported battling the Germans in the streets.

CHINESE OCCUPY GREAT AIRFIELD NEAR CHUHSIEN

Troops Also Enter City and Base Can be Used to Bomb Japan

HELD SINCE MAY

Chungking, Aug. 28 (AP) — The Chinese have re-entered Chuhsien, western Chekiang Province, and have reoccupied the great airfield just outside the city, most important of the East China bases from which Japan could be bombed, Chinese dispatches from the front declared today.

Chinese columns made their way into the city at 4 a.m. today, the dispatches said, and the air field was in their possession shortly thereafter.

Earlier the Chinese high command had reported the Japanese attempting to put the field out of commission by systematic destruction, preparatory to their retreat from this strategic base, which they had held since late May.

Lishui Also Entered

The high command communique also reported that Lishui, site of the second most important "bomb Japan" base in East China, had been entered by Chinese forces which were engaged in fierce fighting within the city.

The recapture of the Chuhsien base was rated here the greatest success scored thus far by the Chinese armies in their comeback in Chekiang and Kiangsi Provinces, where they are keeping constant pressure on Japanese forces withdrawing from their extensive conquests of May and June.

Some 200 miles of the 450-mile Chekiang-Kiangsi railway, all of which was in Japanese hands late in June, has been recovered and the Chinese are rapidly extending the area of their reoccupation.

PRESIDENT'S SON SHOT AT TWICE IN MAKIN RAID

350 Jap Defenders of the Island Wiped Out by Marines

STEALTHY LANDING

By WALTER B. CLAUSEN
Associated Press Staff Writer

PEARL HARBOR, Aug. 28—(AP)—A force of 350 Japs — virtually every defender — was wiped out and all seaplane installations methodically wrecked by United States Marines during the recent Makin Island raid, no wdisclosed by eye-witnesses to have been a two-day job of slaughter and destruction.

Contrasting with earlier reports of a hit-and-run raid, the participants, including Maj. James Roosevelt, son of the President, said the scrappy Marines even hunted for the few Jap stragglers still alive before withdrawing to ships.

And so stealthy was the landing during a moonless night on the northernmost island of the Jap-held Gilbert group, 1,500 miles northeast of the Solomons, that the Marines had been ashore for 20 minutes, deployed for battle, before the Japs discovered them.

"The morning of the second day, only eight Japanese were left on the island," related Lt.-Col. Evans F. Carlson of Plymouth, Conn., commander of the Marines.

"We wiped out all we could find and, after a checkup with the natives, found only two Japanese unaccounted for. I cannot disclose our casualties but will say the Japanese losses on land alone were more than 10 to 1 our losses, not counting the 150 Japs lost at sea or in planes."

ITALIAN CRUISER OF 7,847 TONS ATTACKED BY RAF.

Oil Tanker or Merchantman Struck by Torpedo and Believed Sunk in Same Raid

QUIET ON DESERT

Cairo, Aug. 28. (AP)—An attack by R.A.F. torpedo-carrying aircraft on an Italian cruiser of the 7,847-ton Giuseppe Garibaldi class Wednesday night off Antikythera island northwest of Crete, was reported by British headquarters today.

The same night and near the same place a southbound enemy vessel which appeared to be either an oil tanker or a large merchantman, accompanied by escort, was attacked by the planes and believed struck by a torpedo.

The announcement said the results of the attack on the cruiser could not be observed because of heavy anti-aircraft fire, but that the next morning a sinking burning ship which might have been either the warship or the merchantman was seen northwest of the island.

Only its bow was above water, and it was shrouded by a pall of smoke which covered the sea for almost 30 miles, an observation plane reported that two small ships were seen standing by.

Operations in the Egyptian desert were confined to air activity and desultory artillery exchanges yesterday as an ominous lull continued to hang over most of the El Alamein front.

A communique said that R.A.F. fighter-bombers had again attacked Axis communication lines on the southern sector and said that an enemy bomber which tried to fly over an air base in the Nile delta was driven off and set on fire.

Explain Purpose of Home Extension Plan

Ottawa, Aug. 28 (CP)—The Federal Government's new home extension plan, to be in operation by September 1 has for its sole purpose the creation of new housing accommodation in towns and cities where the shortage is caused directly or indirectly by war activities.

The plan will operate through loans to householders, enabling them to divide their homes into self-contained duplexes or apartments.

(Through a transmission error, The Canadian Press reported erroneously yesterday that the sole purpose of the plan was to assist owners to improve or repair the homes which they now occupy.)

HOW AXIS WOULD INTERPRET NOSEBLEED

Washington, Aug. 28 — (AP) — Prime Minister Peter Fraser of New Zealand, here for conferences with President Roosevelt, posed yesterday for photographers and proved his wit. While the cameramen were getting him all ready under arc lights, he suddenly developed a nose bleed. "I can hear it in Berlin and Tokyo now," Mr. Fraser said. "New Zealand's Prime Minister gets hostile reception at White House."

British Aircraft Are Co-operating In Anti-Sub Campaign in W. Atlantic

Washington, Aug. 28 — (AP) — The United States Navy announced today that British planes and fliers have joined the anti-submarine campaign in the Western Atlantic.

The official statement said:

"Aircraft of the Royal Air Force Coastal Command are co-operating with the United States naval and aircraft in anti-submarine operations in the Western Atlantic and have already engaged the enemy."

The reference to "aircraft" was interpreted by navy spokesmen to mean both planes and personnel had been dispatched from the British Isles to the United States to aid intensification of the war on the U-boats — a war which naval officials say has been increasingly successful in the last two months.

Naval, Air Forces Emerge Victorious In Second Round

Japs Landed at Milne Bay Receive Terrific Pounding by Land And Air

WITHDRAW FROM TULAGI

Washington, Aug. 28 (AP) — An admonition against any descriptions of the current operations in the Solomon Islands as having brought a major victory for the United Nations came today from one of the highest government authorities.

This authority, who preferred that his name not be used, said that there actually had been two phases of Japanese activities since American forces established themselves in the southeastern Pacific. And he said he was worried lest the press lead the country to believe a great, smashing victory had been achieved.

The first phase, he said, was the landing of 700 Japanese, who were wiped out, on Guadalcanal Island, and a series of smaller attacks by planes in which the United States came off pretty well, destroying 30 or 32 Jap aircraft and losing four.

The second phase, he said, should not be called a full scale offensive but a reconnaissance in force. This was the movement on the Solomons of units of the Japanese fleet.

This reconnaissance force, the authority asserted, has withdrawn. Some ships were hit, he said, and it is hoped some were sunk, but he would hate to have the people get the idea that a major victory was scored.

Enemy forces which landed two days ago at Milne Bay, some 225 miles from the strong Allied New Guinea base at Port Moresby and 420 miles from the Australian mainland, were pounded by an Allied land-air attack that destroyed Japanese planes, troops, supplies and fuel dumps.

Allied headquarters in Australia reported that Allied airmen shot down 12 or 14 enemy planes during the day in fights over Milne Bay and the Japanese base at Buna, 180 miles up the northeastern coast of New Guinea. Earlier Japanese losses at the swampy Milne Bay landing including a transport, probably a carrier and six landing barges.

Tulagi Area Freed

Meanwhile, a terse navy department communique reported that "Japanese surface forces appear to have withdrawn from the vicinity of our positions in the Tulagi area."

While modern naval warfare might result in turning a withdrawal into another large-scale invasion attempt in a matter of days or even hours, the enemy's disappearance was regarded generally as a victory for U.S. Marines and American naval and air forces.

The New Guinea battle cost the Japanese eight Zero planes over Milne Bay and four more at Buna, Allied headquarters said. Two others were believed destroyed at Buna and three damaged. A single Allied fighter was lost.

While the navy earlier announced at least 13 Japanese warships damaged in the Solomons encounter, a New Zealand correspondent of Reuters News Agency reported that "Japanese wounds in the week's affray, severe and annoying as they are to the enemy, do not probably touch the main strength of the Japanese naval force."

Adrift 15 Days Without Food, Water, 5 Men Reach Coast

A New England Port, Aug. 28—(AP)—After drifting fifteen days without food or water, five survivors of a crew of 41 from a torpedoed British merchantman have been landed here.

Four others died shortly before a United States Coast Guard ship picked up four of them from a raft and a fifth from a water-filled lifeboat 35 miles away.

All the rescued suffered exposure and were near delirium but one—described by the navy as a "tough old rooster"—insisted on walking to the ambulance when brought ashore.

The men said their small vessel had been badly crippled the day before the attack by a collision with another vessel in fog, and they said the ship sank in about three minutes after the torpedo struck shortly before noon.

They said they believed most of the men were trapped below decks and went down with the vessel. No one saw the submarine.

NAMES OF SEVERAL VENDORS TAKEN

Although no charges have been preferred as yet, Belleville police took the names of several market vendors on Thursday, who were re-selling peaches, which had been purchased from wholesale fruit operators.

"This practice of re-selling fruit on the city market is directly contrary to the city bylaw and prosecutions may follow if this practice is not discontinued," stated Acting Chief Harman today, after P. C. Rathwell had investigated the matter during Thursday's market when the names of seven vendors found re-selling peaches, were taken.

Local Residents Will Benefit Says Architect

The Federal Government's recent step in drafting a home extension plan aimed at creating new housing accommodation by loans to householders in centres where housing shortage is caused directly or indirectly by war activities, will receive considerable interest from local residents in the opinion of Mr. W. A. Watson, local architect.

The new plan, which is to go into operation on September first, is based on financial assistance being given householders to divide their present homes into self-contained duplexes or apartments by a limited government guarantee of loans being provided. The loans will be handled through chartered banks.

"Every newspaper story concerning government assistance for home improvement followed by inquiries from prospective or present householders", stated Mr. Watson. "Arrangements of the loans through local banks is also a step forward as the integrity of the prospective borrower is either known or can be easily determined by his banker".

According to the new housing plan announced by the government, loans can be arranged for the full cost of construction providing alterations for the self-contained housing unit do not exceed $1,500 for the first unit, $1,000 for the second and $750 for the third and each succeeding unit.

Farmers Urged To Use Milk Cans For Milk, Cream

Full Co-operation is Asked by Government —It is War Necessity That These Cans be Used for This Purpose Only

"We have received authority to stop trucks and delivery wagons if necessary in order to locate cream and milk cans being utilized for purposes other than what they were intended," revealed Inspector Frank Gardner at District Headquarters of the Ontario Provincial Police here today as he added that the possession of cans belonging to companies will constitute a prima facie case.

"The general supply of tin has been curtailed since the Japanese invaded the Far East and the Government requests farmers in particular to assist in utilizing milk and cream cans for the purpose for which they are intended, only and any illegal use of such cans in the future may result in charges being laid and if convictions are registered fines ranging from $10.00 to $50.00 may be levied," explained Inspector Gardner, who added the Government was making this appeal as a war necessity and hoped for the full co-operation of all persons holding cream and milk cans.

"It will be difficult to get tin for the re-tinning of such cans if they are used for any other purpose than intended and when foreign substances are placed in these cans they cannot be used for the cream or milk industry as the cans would naturally be contaminated," explained Inspector Gardner regarding the seriousness of the situation.

Refused to Elect Trial on Charge

When he refused to elect trial on a charge of stealing a wrist watch, 20-year-old Clifford Barnhardt, 12 Bay St., Belleville, was remanded to the county jail by Magistrate J. L. Lloyd today. Barnhardt was arrested by city police late Thursday night after Murray Locke, 32 Pine St., had complained that his wrist watch had been stolen from a locker at the Meade-Johnson plant, where Locke is employed. Later Constables Ellis and Wright apprehended Barnhardt and stated they recovered a wrist watch.

When arraigned today, however, the accused youth refused to elect trial when asked by Crown Attorney B. C. Donnan, K.C., if he desired summary trial before the Magistrate or trial before judge and jury."

"When is the next high court?" asked Barnhardt.

"The exact date has not been set, but it will be some time this fall," replied Mr. Donnan as he again asked Barnhardt how he wished to elect. The accused refused to reply and Mr. Donnan immediately asked that the case be enlarged and Barnhardt remanded in custody. The court also suggested he procure a defence lawyer for his own benefit.

Mrs. M. Taylor Thanks Theatre

"I am indeed very grateful I can certainly find a use for the money," were the words of Mrs. M. Taylor, 403 Front Street, as she accepted a cheque from Manager Vincent Freeman of the McCarthy Theatre for $175 at the regular weekly Foto-Nite on Thursday evening.

Mrs. Taylor was fortunate to be present at the theatre one week ago when her name was called as the winner of the first offer of $175. Last night she sold her photograph to the theatre management and accepted the cheque with the vociferous approval of the crowded theatre audience.

Although Mrs. Taylor was fortunate one week ago, the two persons whose names were called at last night's Foto-Nite performance were not so lucky as they failed to respond when their names were called.

Winner of the first offer of $175 would have been Mrs. T. J. Flurey of 10 Pine Street, while the name of Miss Gladyse Lummiss, 98 Catherine Street, was called for the $20 offer. Neither were present at the theatre.

PRESIDENT'S SON

Other episodes gleaned from the eyewitness accounts:—

Jap snipers, strapped to coconut trees, fired at Maj. Roosevelt but missed. "I fired two shots at snipers," was all the eldest son of the President would say concerning his personal activity.

The island's 1,700 natives gladly worked with the invaders and their king gave his sarong to Capt. James Davis of Evanston, Ill., who lost his pants in action.

By the second day, "There were dead Japs behind most every coconut tree," said Col. Carlson.

"On the battlefield, I picked up a sword and pistol of the Japanese Lieutenant-Colonel Commandant and turned it over to Commander (John M.) Haines (of Coronado, Calif.) who presented it to Admiral Nimitz (Admiral Chester W. Nimitz, Commander-in-Chief of the Pacific fleet)."

A Jap bomber was caught by Marines while attempting to flee the battle scene but the invaders shot away two of its engines and from 100 feet up it crashed, killing all aboard.

Maj. Roosevelt summed up what he thought of the raiding force this way: "I don't think there is a finer group of men in the world."

SHOCK TROOPS

"Our troops cleared a large wooded area of the enemy," the communique said. It added the Germans had abandoned many weapons and dead among the shell-scarred trees.

Gen. Gregory Zhukov, leader of the central front operations, was named first deputy of the peoples commissar for defence, a department headed by Premier Joseph Stalin.

The battle of Stalingrad was reported increasing in violence with the close of the second month of Nazi Field Marshal Fedor von Bock's southern drive and the government said "the Hitlerites bring into action huge fresh tank and infantry forces."

Defenders wiped out Nazi parachutists who landed at an important communications centre and turned back a German flanking action northwest of that Volga river city by a counterattack, it was announced.

"Eleven enemy tanks were destroyed and about two German infantry companies were annihilated," the midnight communique reported.

"In another sector our tankists and infantrymen beat off 10 violent enemy attacks, destroyed 13 tanks and annihilated two German infantry battalions."

The Moscow radio said 92 German planes had been shot down in the area in the last two days.

Russian troops still fighting within the Don Bend were credited with the capture of 18 field guns, 122 machine guns and some prisoners about Kletskaya, 80 miles northwest of Stalingrad.

Guns still flamed also in the Voronezh area of the upper Don and the Germans were said to have lost 800 dead in recent fighting for a community on the west bank.

While defenders of central Caucasian highways fell back on Prokhladnenski battlefields, a see-saw fight raged for an important height south of Krasnodar, in the western Caucasus. The information bureau said Russian troops had regained the height at dusk and entrenched.

BOMBERS POMMEL

The loss of 30 bombers indicated that some 600 of the R.A.F.'s big planes made the raid. British losses on night raids have been roughly five per cent.

The raid was the heaviest of nine on Kassel since the start of the war and its costliness to the attackers, British sources said, could be attributed partly to the bright light of an almost full moon which helped Nazi night fighters and ground defences.

Kassel is 90 miles northeast of Frankfurt, one of the targets which the R.A.F. hit Monday in its last night raid on Germany, and its principal factories include the Henschel Locomotive Works, said to be the largest in Europe; the Henschel Aircraft Engine Works which made Daimler and Benz engines; and the Fieseler Aircraft Works which turn out Messerschmitt fighters.

While the big bombers were striking at this root of Nazi air-power, fighters were maintaining almost ceaseless offensive patrol over Nazi-occupied France and there were indications of possible naval encounters in the English Channel and Kattegat.

Gunfire Reported

Watchers on the British Southeast coast reported the heavy roll of gunfire from out in the mists of the strait suggesting to some a sea battle in the region of the entrance to the North Sea.

Similar cannonading was heard at Varberg, on the west coast of Sweden. Swedish reports said it appeared to come from warships embattled somewhere in the narrow waters of the Kattegat through which German vessels would have to pass between the North Sea and their home bases.

Nazi radio dispatches said British raiders smashed overnight at west, central and northeast Germany, conceding damage in several localities, but did not mention specific targets.

Although the raiders were described as British, the wide sweep of the attacks suggested that the suddenly-renewed Russian air offensive against Germany might have accounted again for the pounding of the Nazis' eastern cities.

With daylight came the R. A. F. fighters again, keeping up a drumbeat of explosions which watchers on the English south coast said had rolled back from the French shore during the moonlit night. One deafening explosion, they said, indicated that an ammunition dump had been hit.

During almost every hour of day and night now, the great bombers and fighter fleets of the Allied Nations are unloading over Nazi targets which stretch from the Atlantic coast of occupied France to the easternmost regions of Germany itself, including Berlin.

Arcs of Assault Overlap

The arcs of air assault cut over Germany by the British, Canadian and American Allies from the west and Russians from the east overlap and the Germans—once relatively impregnable to bombings far within their borders because of the remoteness of United Nations bases—now cannot tell where or from what direction the lightning of air attack will strike.

(An indication that the Germans already are feeling the pinch of interrupted and diminished production was given by a Berlin broadcast announcing a new air-raid alarm signal starting today. Henceforth, traffic will stop and workmen will leave their jobs only when a serious raid is apparent. Otherwise only a general alert will be sounded.)

The mere record of the two-sided air front against Germany in the 24-hour period preceding the night forays indicates the extent and effectiveness of the Allies' air weapon, sharpened by the greater flying range, speed, bomb-bearing capacity, accuracy and toughness of the bombers. Here it is:-

By American Flying Fortresses, escorted by two squadrons of R.C.A.F. fighters and other squadrons of R.A.F. Spitfires— an afternoon bombardment of shipyards at Rotterdam, in occupied Holland, where direct hits were scored in the centre of the target and on two docked ships

This was the seventh foray by Flying Fortresses and escorting fighters and a joint R.A.F.-U.S. headquarters announcement said all planes returned home. The Rotterdam flight, a round trip of more than 3000 miles, was described as one of the longest operational flights ever made by the single-engined fighters on escort duty.

Rain Fire on Berlin

By the Russian air force — raids on the Nazi capital and at least seven other centres in Eastern Germany where some industries had been shifted from the Ruhr valley and Rhineland - for security from British bombs.

The Russians said their planes rained fire on Berlin, particularly the suburbs of Treptow; Danzig, Koenigsberg, Tilsit, Stettin, Stargard, Fuerstenwalde and Schneide Wednesday night, all their planes returned, they said.

By the R.A.F.—Hurricane bombers, escorted by Spitfire fighters, attacked shipping in the harbor of battle-marked Dieppe where the Canadian army men fought so heroically last week. The bombers shot up four ships which appeared to be anchored in Dieppe. Three ships of 1,500 tons each were seriously damaged and a smaller vessel also was hit.

The escorting planes raked and damaged the ships with machine-gun and cannon fire.

Other fighter planes hit the German fighter plane base at Abbeville.

German counter-blows, meanwhile, continued on a minor scale. A small number of casualties and some damage was reported in a German bombing yesterday of a southeast coast town. A few hostile raiders penetrated to northern England last night, but the British said damage and casualties again were slight.

Miss Mabel Clazie Still in Tokyo Says Message

Missionary From This District Left Behind Because of No Room on Boat

WILL COME LATER

Miss Mabel Clazie, local missionary to Japan for many years, was one of the three persons left behind in Tokyo because of lack of room in the boat carrying repatriates to Canada, it has been revealed by Dr. Gordon Struthers, one of a party of fifteen to reach Toronto safely from the Far East.

The Belleville woman was included in the party of Canadian missionaries to be sent back to Canada in exchange for Japanese repatriates, but was forced to stay behind in Japan because the ship used in exchange was already crowded to capacity.

Speaking with the Ontario Intelligencer this morning, Miss Isabel Clazie, 281 Ann Street, sister of Miss Mabel Clazie, stated the last direct word received from her sister was last November. Letters written by the family since war was declared against Japan had been returned at Vancouver.

In Good Health

Communications received from the Mission Board in Toronto last winter, however, revealed that Miss Clazie was in good health in Tokyo, and one received approximately one month ago stated that she was expected soon to be repatriated to Canada. That is the last word received by the Clazie family of their sister in Japan.

"Several other missionaries who were with my sister in Tokyo have arrived in Canada by the boat which docked in Montreal carrying the repatriates, stated Miss Clazie this morning, "and we hope to get in touch with them and gain more information."

Miss Isabel Clazie expects to go to Toronto today and while there will contact the Mission Board seeking further information.

Two More Boats Coming

Hopes that her sister in Tokyo would still be repatriated to Canada were held by Miss Clazie this morning. She stated there were two more boats expected to leave Japan carrying repatriates and hoped her sister might be included on either of these. It takes two months to make the trip however, and no developments are expected immediately.

Miss Mabel Clazie was home to Canada on furlough from her missionary duties in Japan several years ago but returned to resume her mission in the Far East. Other relative of Miss Clazie in the Belleville district are a brother, Mr. Arthur Clazie, 1st concession of Thurlow, and Mrs. John Donaldson and Mrs. Mary Hall, also of Thurlow.

Gerald Lascelles Reported Engaged

London, Aug. 28 (CP) — The mother of June Morris, dark-haired, 17-year-old canteen worker said today a newspaper report that her daughter is engaged to Gerald Lascelles, 18-year-old nephew of the King, is correct.

"Yes, they are engaged, and there is no thought of calling it off," said the girl's mother. She added that "the way circumstances are now, they will have to wait until Gerald is 21."

The first edition of the Daily Mirror publishes a report of the engagement, but the story was eliminated without explanation from a later edition.

A Mirror official said merely that the story was dropped following upon a request "from a high official who could not be disregarded."

A Buckingham Palace spokesman said, "I really don't know anything as all about the story but I should think it was true."

The mother confirmed substantially quotations attributed to June in the Daily Mirror's story, especially emphasizing one in which June was reported as saying:-

"It doesn't matter to me who he is. I can't help his being the son of an Earl. I fell in love with Gerald before I knew who he was when I met him on a bus."

The Morris family lives in Moortown, a suburb of Leeds.

The father, Lieut. W. S. Morris, is in the army pay corps, stationed at York. In civilian life he had been engaged in various business enterprises, and was at one time head of an advertising agency.

In a letter which the Earl of Harewood was reported by the Daily Mirror to have written to June's father, the Earl was quoted as saying, "obviously both you and I agree that the marriage between your daughter and my son cannot be countenanced by us before my son is 21, i.e., after three years. I am doubtful if it is possible even then."

Young Lascelles is a son of the Princess Royal, the only sister of the King, and is 10th in order of succession to the Throne. He turned 18 only last Friday and soon is to leave a factory job in northwest England to join the army.

With its front-page story, which described Miss Morris as Jewish, the Mirror reproduced a snapshot of June, a smiling slim, dark girl wearing a print dress with white collar.

Neither Lord Harewood nor Gerald himself could be reached for comment, but the Earl's Secretary at Harewood House near Leeds said "the family has no statement or comment to make and the family would be grateful if no further publicity be given to the matter."

It is doubtful if more than one in 100 Britons knows anything about the matter, since the Mirror was the only newspaper to print the story and then only in its rural edition.

'HAMILTONS' WANT ANOTHER SHOT AT DIEPPE NAZIS

Many Released From Hospital but Glad They Went on "Do"

NAZIS FIRE ON FLAG

By DOUGLAS AMARON
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

At a Canadian Hospital, Somewhere in England, Aug. 28 (CP).—The fighting soldiers of the Royal Hamilton Light Infantry have one common aim for the future—to return to Dieppe.

I talked with a dozen "Hamiltons" still in this rambling southern England hospital. A dozen others have been released with their wounds sufficiently healed to allow them to return to their unit.

"The sooner I get out of this hospital the better I'll like it," said one private.

"I've had enough of this—I'm leaving pronto," said another.

The men had no complaints about the hospital. The food is simple but good and the attention they receive probably is better than they would get at home. But the men had been in action against the enemy and wanted more action as soon as possible.

There was Pte. B. Konkle of Hamilton, a good-looking, clean-shaven youngster who came back from Dieppe with a bullet wound in his wrist.

He had a tough time across the channel but his first words were: "I'm glad I went. It was a great experience. I'm feeling fine now. My temperature's normal and I've been walking a bit. Now I'd like to go back again on a big do."

Went Ashore At 5.20 a.m.

Konkle went ashore with the rest of R.H.L.I. on the stony beachfront of Dieppe itself at 5.20 on the morning of the attack and didn't come off until six hours later. During all these hours, though explosives from every type of German weapon were flying around him, he didn't get a scratch.

But he came home aboard a destroyer and German Focke-Wulf 190s strafed the deck on which he was helping bandage the wounds of another member of his regiment. The machine-gun bullets killed this wounded soldier and nipped Konkle's wrist.

Konkle has more reasons than this for despising the Germans whom, he said, "man for man are yellow".

The R.H.L.I. had many wounded in the early stages of their landing and they were grouped on the beach under a Red Cross flag.

"The first thing the Germans did when they saw the flag was to machine-gun it," Konkle said. Then he told how the unit's padre who remained ashore with the men "got so mad he picked up a tommy-gun and started firing back at the Jerries."

"It was the sort of thing that would make anyone mad," Konkle added.

Pte. Robert Papple of Brantford, Ont., wounded in the shoulder and hand, is another of the "Hamiltons" who longs for revenge.

"I'll be glad to get back there and get another crack at them," he said.

Papple was one of the many members of his regiment who spent the morning on the bullet and shell-swept Dieppe beach, unable to advance through the hail of German fire. He got his hand wound early in the fight and his shoulder wound shortly after he had re-embarked.

Get Crack at Sniper

Being on the beach didn't stop Papple from getting into the fight. There were snipers in the buildings overlooking the waterfront and the Brantford man had at least a share of the one whose sniping ended early.

"I got a crack at one," he said. "but there were three or four of us firing at the same time and I can't say whether I got him myself. However, he fell off the edge of the building and that's what counts."

Pte. Burnside of Hamilton, who got "just enough shrapnel in the shoulder to make it painful," figured he had been lucky. And maybe he was if you count his escape when a bullet pierced his steel helmet and just grazed his skull.

Burnside was one of a party which decided to "clean up" a pill box 75 yards from the beach which was causing the regiment trouble. the beach to the base of the pill he told how the men raced across the reach to the base of the pill box, then fired at the Germans through the slits.

"We made it pretty hot for them," he said, "and they had to get out.."

Nothing Easy About Raid

But there was nothing easy about the Dieppe raid. The story told by Pte. Andrew Ferguson of Hamilton vouched for that.

Early in the fight a bullet went through his shoulder and broke a bone—"I haven't yet found where," said Ferguson.

For the next four hours he lay on the beach, then crawled 100 yards to the waterfront. "I passed out twice during that time and I found I had to swim to the boat. I don't mind saying it's pretty hard work swimming with one arm."

Cpl. John Montgomery of Beamsville, Ont., wounded in the shoulder and the elbow, echoed the opinion of a number of other "Hamiltons" when he said "The Germans were prepared for us."

Montgomery, too, was wounded early in the fight but along with scores of other members of the regiment found shelter beind a burned-out landing craft until the withdrawal was made under a smoke screen.

'Fed Up' Staying In Bed.

Two soldiers "fed up" with staying in bed were Ptes. Herb Shrubsall of Galt, Ont., and Ernie Valliquette of North Bay, Ont.

Shrubsall, wounded in the thigh, said the three weeks he expects to be in hospital "will drive me nuts". Valiquette, with one arm and his trunk and shoulder in a cast, complained "I've never been able to stay in bed and I'm not enjoying this a bit". Valliquette got his first wounds early in the morning but kept fighting just the same. Shrubsall took cover behind a Bren gun carrier after he was wounded.

Then he saw a friend who had joined the army with him get shot and tried to help him. He was giving him first aid when "a bomb came down" and put him out of action for the rest of the raid.

Ptes. Stanley Dye and Bill Hamblett, both of Brantford, Ont., asked that full credit be given the navy for the part it played.

"These sailors are the swellest guys any of us ever met," said Dye, prematurely grey at 34. "I came back on a destroyer and though we were bombed time and again they never batted an eye. They gave us cigarettes and rum and made us as comfortable as they could."

Lucky To Be Alive.

Dye, who expects to be in hospital "a couple of months, got as far as the town of Dieppe itself and thinks he's "lucky to be alive".

He too thought the Germans were laying for us". Dye was patching up the shoulder of another Hamilton man when he got hit and only got back to the waterfront by rolling across the beach. Then he lay for five hours in the shelter of a landing craft until time for re-embarkation.

Hamblett was wounded in the knee. He said he was "damn lucky to be back at all—they made it pretty hot for us."

This private reached the Casino itself—just in time to be showered with debris from the roof where a shell or bomb hit. Before he returned to the beach he helped silence an anti-tank gun.

Despite fighting on shore which Hamblett described as "quite an initiation" he was not wounded until aboard a destroyer when a bullet from a Focke-Wulf hit him.

"These naval boys were really good," he said, telling of the treatment he received during the voyage home.

Millard to Advise Steel Workers On What Action to Take

Sydney, N. S., Aug. 28 — (CP)—An executive of the Sydney Local of the United Steel Workers of America said today C. H. Millard, national director of the U. S. W., will advise Sydney and Algoma steel workers within 48 hours on what action they should take if no arrangements have been made for settling their wage demands in that time.

Employees of the Dominion Steel and Coal Company here and the Algoma Steel Corporation of Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., along with steel workers of Canadian Vickers Limited in Montreal, have voted to strike if necessary to enforce their demands for higher wages.

In each case Millard was given authority to conduct negotiations for the steelmen.

The Sydney executive said he had received his information from Millard in a telephone conversation this morning during which the U. S. W. director termed as "very unsatisfactory" a letter in which Prime Minister Mackenzie King announced the Federal Government would not intervene in the dispute.

Meanwhile, the U.S.W.'s grievance committees here are completing their organization of maintenance crews which will be allowed enter the steel plant in the event of a strike.

THERE ARE ONLY A FEW PEOPLE WHO WILL BE INTERESTED IN THIS ADVERTISEMENT

DON'T BE A WELSHER

LET'S be brutally frank. The man or woman who buys a Victory Bond or Certificate to save face, then sells it —except in case of dire necessity—is a welsher.

True, there is no law which says you cannot sell your Victory Bonds or Certificates. It is not a legal obligation that you keep them for the duration. But there is a moral promise to make a loan to your Country for the War period. To evade that undertaking through sale, at this time of great need, is to welsh—it is the denial of an obligation which you admitted and accepted by your act of purchase.

Your Country does not ask you to deny yourself those necessary things which make for decent living, that you may buy Victory Bonds and Certificates. But the voice of Public Opinion does say that those persons who now insist on the unnecessary luxuries of life are not themselves decent.

Of course—you have no immediate cause for worry: No one will ask you to cross the beach and climb the cliffs of Dieppe. You are not in a slit trench with Stuka Dive-Bombers showering death about you. The blazing sun of Africa—the wind-driven sands—will never cut and blister your skin until every exposed part of your body becomes a festering sore. No—you will never feel the vibrant crash of a torpedo—the tilt of a ship's deck under your feet as it slides to Davey Jones. No one is asking you to leave your favorite chair tonight and fly over Germany. None of these things is asked of you.

All you are asked to do is to lend to your Country—Canada—lend at interest all the money you can possibly spare to provide the tools for those men who are fighting your fight. You are not expected to deprive yourself to the extent that you must live below the level of ordinary decency.

But if you think you are doing your part by buying Victory Bonds only to sell them—then, you had better take yourself into a dark room and ask yourself some soul-searching questions. Ask yourself what you are doing to protect your loved ones, your Country, and your way of life.

If you do this we know what the answer will be. We know because the men and women of Canada are inherently decent people. They value the good opinion and respect of friends and neighbors. But most important is the fact that we Canadians value our own self-respect. We ask charity from none—we assume our obligation to work and lend. So there can only be one answer—you will hold your Victory Bonds and Certificates for the duration except in cases of extreme necessity.

Offensives Against Axis

Japanese warlords and the warlords of Berlin may well wonder at the toughness of their enemies. The Chinese have fought for long over five years against well-armed Japanese and yet they are able to throw a powerful offensive which has thrown the Nipponese back in Chekiang and Kiangsi Provinces while American planes bomb Japanese bases. Russia, that great power of Europe and Asia, is hurling a mighty offensive northwest of Moscow against Hitler's forces and observers see amazing powers of endurance yet to be shown by the Russians. There are signs of a possible offensive against Rommel in Egypt and in the west last week the raid on Dieppe also showed how tough and resolute Canadians and the other Allies in that assault can be, and gave a suggestion of another offensive to be.

Heroic Poland

The third anniversary draws very near of the barbarous onslaught by Hitler upon Poland, whereby the greater part of the world has been engulfed in war. On September 1st., Hitler showed the venom of his nature and tore off what remained of the mask which he had worn.

Although Czecho-Slovakia had felt the wolfish fangs of Hitler in his treachery after Munich, Poland was the first to feel the full might of his treachery and the murderous weapons of the Hun. Three years have passed since then and Poland, a land of heroes, fights on and defies the Hun on land, on sea and in the air, although Poland herself was overrun with the Hitler blitz.

Those Poles who remained in Poland and those who escaped across the borders into adjacent states whence they after long and tortuous journeys by land, on foot, in carts, in trains, by planes, by boats on the seas, and in other ways, found themselves in lands linked in spirit with the ideals of democracy fight on. They fought in France to save that country from the enemy and when France collapsed thousands were taken across to Britain where they formed the nucleus of one of the great fighting nations among the Allies.

Today the Poles are an integral part of the forces of democracy, they are in England, in Scotland, in the Mediterranean theatre of war, in the Middle East and there are thousands of them in Russia. Poland has an air force and her navy possesses more ships than it had when the Hun set out to try to win the domination of the world.

While these mighty forces of the Poles are ready and are fghting there are stout hearts in Poland, which has been ravaged by the Huns, who have displayed only savagery and barbarism and have submitted the Poles to every evil and wrong the enemy could contrive, even to trying to stamp out the Polish race so that this people might become extinct for lack of men and women. One of the foulest crimes against mankind in all history of the world has been written in Poland by the Germans, crimes which will leave a mark on the German race as long as time lasts.

Yet the horrors the enemy practises cannot kill the spirit. For the Poles know freedom and in their courage they are armed. Like their brothers in the other countries, likewise overrun, the Poles foresee the great day of liberation. Through three long years of Hitler-made hell they have survived and they will survive until the Pole is dominant over all the Hun armed battalions, the Hun cannon, and divebombers and the fiendishness of German brutality.

After three years Poland stands with honor before the world while her powerful enemy has been covered with disgrace and ignominy and has branded himself as an enemy of mankind whom all the world must join to crush so that the Hun who has used power to destroy the races and nations and the whole world, may rather himself be destroyed. Meanwhile Polish squadrons fill the sky and rain destruction on enemy cities, while on the sea her ships carry on the war and her powerful legions on land, reported to number two hundred thousand men, battle or stand ready to deal blows on behalf of civilization.

I quote others only the better to express myself.—Montaigne.

KING'S FLOWERS

Deadly nightshade (belladonna) is being cultivated at Kew's Botanical Gardens in Surrey to let Britain's manufacturing chemists have the 2½ tons of the medical herb needed for rheumatic ailments, according to the British Industries Bulletin. Kew is also growing colchicum, another anti-rhumatic herb, from bulbs collected by Boy Scouts in the English countryside.

Once the private gardens of England's kings, Kew has also set out to show the British housewife what can be done with the traditional English herbs. Dill, fennel, sage, chervil, majoram and thyme are some of the many herbs now being grown there, and all of them provide attractive flavoring for soups and other wartime dishes.

In the midst of its 288 acres, where 24,000 different species of plants from all climates flourish as they do at home, Kew has now a regulation 10-rod allotment with a woman gardener in attendance to help amateur food-growers with their problems of raising potatoes, swedes, parsnips, carrots, onions and other vegetables.

EGG SELLS FOR $1,048

Britain's wastepaper salvage hunt has led to some lucrative discoveries. The grandfather of Henry Shirley of London handed down to him a large bird's egg. In his salvage hunt Shirley found it and noted it was marked "penguin." He remembered that the French name for the extinct great auk was "pengoiun." The Natural History Museum confirmed his theory, and the egg was auctioned for $1,048. A Forfar woman found black beads which an amazed jeweler pronounced black pearls. They proved to be a long-lost necklet from the collection of Mary Queen of Scots, worth $160,000. A tarnished silver coffee-pot sold for $600. Owing to sudden demand in the United States old music-boxes bring $80 or more. A Greek statue out of an attic found a purchaser glad to pay $14,000.

RUBBER SECRET IS SAFE

Need for rubber has led to a demand that a secret formula for making rubber be taken from a safe in Durban, South Africa, and exploited. It is a process for crushing and coagulating rubber from euphorbia trees. Nobody except the originator, who is dead, has seen the formula. He placed it in the hands of a trusted friend who was not to open it until he had formed a company for its exploitation. The company was to pay the originator. The last war halted formation of the company and the secret remained sealed in an enormous envelope. The trusted friend, now a member of the Union House of Assembly, says he will appeal to the dead man's executors to have the formula used.

THE BELL SYSTEM

An inventive New Yorker who was leaving town for a few days and didn't wish to trouble his friends with feeding his treasured tropical fish, worked out a simple system for feeding them himself by long-distance telephone. Using the cardboard out of a shirt, he fashioned a spoonlike device with a long handle, pricked a number of small holes in the spoon end to make a shaker. Then he removed the cover from the telephone box and wired the end of the shaker handle to the bell clapper, filled the shaker with fish food, set the tank on the floor under the telephone bor with the shaker poised above the water, and headed out of town with a carefree heart.

A couple of hundred miles from home he put in a call to his own number, listened complacently to nobody answering, seeing in his mind's eye a day's supply of fish food being wafted gently onto the water by the vibration of the ringing bell. It worked, and the fish did fine.—Rockefeller Centre Magazine.

THE BUS WAS, as usual, crowded and the party of five W.A.A.F.'s found themselves strap-hanging. Presently one bright member of the company said loudly to her friend: "I wish that smart, goodlooking man would give me his seat."

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FYLES OF BY-GONE YEARS

20 YEARS AGO

AUGUST 28TH., 1922.

At a special meeting of the city council it was decided to construct asphaltic concrete pavements with concrete curb and gutter on Station Street from the upper bridge to Bettes Street and also on Highland Avenue from Bridge Street west to Dundas Street west. The council also awarded to Mr. W. J. Donohue the contract for the construction of a sanitary sewer on Geddes Street from Evans to College Street.

Miss E. Henderson and Miss F. Lawrence have returned home after a two weeks' hiking trip to Toronto and Niagara Falls.

Umpire Ken Colling of Belleville made his first appearance in Peterboro in the Lindsay game on Saturday and did good work. (Peterboro Examiner).

Miss Theda Clare, Baldwin Street, has left to visit friends in Bowmanville and Toronto.

30 YEARS AGO

AUGUST 28TH., 1912.

A baby carriage left in front of a store on Front Street yesterday afternoon started on a trip without a guiding hand and the result was that the infant in the carriage was dumped into the mud on the road. A passerby noticed the incident and hurried to the rescue of the child, which was besmeared with mud and was a sight to behold when handed to its horrified mother.

Dr. George Clinton of this city District Medical Health Officer, paid an official visit to Peterboro yesterday.

Dr. Frank Reid of St. Louis, Mo., formerly of this city, is visiting friends here.

Mr A. W. Dickens is spending a few days in Toronto.

The steam tug, Frank Phelps, of Chemong, N.Y., Capt. Phelps, Master, arrived in this port from Oswego this morning.

40 YEARS AGO

AUGUST 28TH., 1902.

"Popularity in Belleville," said the ex Alderman, "is a fleeting and uncertain thing. There is no accounting for how you gain it or how you lose it." "Something like hay fever," suggested a listener, but the former alderman did not notice the interruption. "Now there's Ald. So-and so" he went on. "I never could see where he got his popularity. I sat in the council with him and he supported the things for which the rest of us were condemned. Yet at the next election we were all turned down and he was elected with a fine majority." "Do you think that the Municipal Reform Association will do business at the old stand this fall?" he was asked. "Mark my words" said the ex. Alderman solemnly, "if the Municipal Reform Association puts a ticket in the field next January, they will get smashed worse than the tombstones in the old Dundas Street Burying Ground." And he walked off leaving the listener shuddering with horror.

The Secret Theatre of War III

New York, Aug. 28—What I have called "the secret theatre of the war" is that part of our struggle dealing with the forming of major international policies and the propagandizing of them.

Now, actually, all we have to go on is the Atlantic Charter and the four freedoms. As a document it is pretty empty. For the world outside our shores has suffered too horribly to be interested in platonic formulations. If men are to be freed from want and fear, they desire to see how this can be done. If nations are to be independent, the people in those nations wish also to know how they can achieve that organized interdependence which is a primary need of our times.

I am not attacking the Atlantic Charter. One must recall the circumstances under which it was formulated in August, 1941. This country was not even in the war, and Roosevelt could not commit the United States to more than a platonic statement of principles.

In August, 1941, it was also not foreseen whether Russia would continue to stand. And during the entire past year not only the politicians but the masses of the people in the war-waging countries have been forming a mind about the sort of future society they want to live in.

Reorganization of Empire

The Czechs and the Poles, for instance, have come out for federation. Great social changes are occurring inside the United Kingdom and, although the Cripps mission failed, it is of the most profound significance that a movement is under way to reorganize the British Empire, and that Britain has committed itself to freedom for India after the war.

The changes in the internal structure of China, which are revolutionary; vast changes in the mentality of the Russian people, noted by Mr. Litvinoff in a speech to which too little attention was paid, are all part of evolving war aims.

And in this country, the speech of Henry Wallace before the meeting of the Free World Association came nearer to expressing the feelings of the masses of the people than any made since our entrance into the war. Yet this speech remains an episode; it has never received either real confirmation or further elaboration.

Important Manifesto.

The Commonweal, liberal Catholic weekly, published on Aug. 21 a manifesto of the war of the greatest importance, bearing the signatures of the most distinguished European Catholics in this country: men like Paul van Zealand, former Premier of Belgium; Dietrich von Hindebrand, eminent Austrian Catholic scholar; Jacques Maritaine, the distinguished French humanist; Joep Nicolas, the great Dutch painter; Philip Gibbs and Alfred Noyes of England; Sigrid Undset, Norway's great woman novelist, and many others of equal intellectual calibre.

This manifesto, which is the fruit of at least two years of thought by scholars and practical statesmen who are Europeans rather than nationalists, sums up the case against Fascist totalitarianism and sketches the fundamentals of a future world order. It is a contribution that demands integration into a program acceptable to all who believe in the basic ethos of Christianity.

Yet it remains a private episode, and actually there is no mechanism for its integration into the war of ideas.

Now, it is impossible to conduct psychological warfare—which is a war of ideas—without ideas. And since our ideas have not even begun to be clearly formulated, our Office of War Information is forced to plan a strategy and conduct a campaign without an objective.

No Standard Set Up.

The result is that there is no way of setting a standard for our psychological warfare, or determining the value to it of any personality employed in it.

This, again, is no attack on Mr. Davis, or on Mr. MacLeish, or on Mr. Nelson Rockefeller. I am sure they all have ideas. But they may have very different ideas, and in any case it is certainly not their function to formulate their ideas as a basis for our policy. They have only the function of planning the strategy.

Furthermore, the lack of political clarity in our policy confronts them with insoluble problems.

Psychological warfare has as one of its objects the confusing of the enemy. But it does not have as an object the confusing of ourselves and the revelation to our enemies of that confusion. To do so creates greater dangers than to have no program at all. — (Released by the Bell Syndicate, Inc.)

MUSSOLINI'S BLUNDER

He counted up the cannon and the ships and tanks and planes
And decided: hence for freedom not a chance on earth remains.
So Benito Mussolini threw his best friends overboard
And accepted Adolph Hitler and his promise of reward.

He heard the cannon thunder and he saw the planes in flight
And was certain human beings from such power must run in fright.
"'Twill be ended by September!" he remarked three years ago,
"For no democratic nation can survive a Hitler blow!"

Tons of bombs were rained on London and the ports along the sea.
'Twas a holocaust at Dunkirk. France gave up, enslaved to be,
But the British kept on fighting and the good old U. S. A.
Joined the cause of truth and freedom and is at the front today.

Poor Benito Mussolini sits disconsolate and sad,
Shorn of every trace and vestige of respect which he once had.
He has learned that tanks and cannon and the tools of greed and might,
Howsoever they are managed cannot make an evil right.

MORGANATIC MARRIAGE

The old term "morganatic marriage" has been getting into the headlines against since King Leopold III of the Belgians marlied a commoner.

This form of marriage is often called "left-handed," because in the wedding ceremony the husband offers his left instead of his right to the bride.

The morganatic marriage originated centuries ago in the royal families of Germany and neighboring kingdoms.

It is a contract of marriage between a man of royal or noble blood with a woman of inferior rank or station in which it is provided that neither the wife nor her children by the marriage shall share the titles, ranks and dignities or inherit the possessions of the husband.

The term "morganatic marriage" is believed to be derived from the medieval Latin phrase "matrimonium ad morganticam," in which the last word corresponds to old High German "morgangeba," meaning "morning-gift."

The "morning-gift" in olden times was a substantial gift made by the husband to the bride on the morning after the wedding.

Back of "morganatic marriage" is the idea that in such a marriage the wife and children had no property rights except in the "morning-gift."

Many people seem to be under the impression that a morganatic wife is merely some sort of legalized mistress.

But such is not the case. A morganatic marriage in countries where it is recognized is legal and valid in every respect and is sanctioned by ecclesiastical authorities.

The children by a morganatic marriage are legitimate, although, under the special terms of the contract between husband and wife, they cannot inherit the titles, dignities, privileges or property of the father.

A morganatic marriage precludes the husband from marrying again until it has been terminated by the death of the wife or by annulment.

Formerly royal marriages were generally contracted for reasons of state policy rather than because of the inclinations of the persons concerned, and the morganatic marriage was devised to permit persons of royal or noble blood to marry commoners without "corrupting" the family blood.

Occasionally a woman of royal blood has been permitted to contract a morganatic marriage with a commoner, in which case the principle was reversed and the husband and the offspring of the marriage were barred from the titles, dignities and estate of the wife and mother.

Morganatic marriages have been very rare in England and do not exist there now.

Trenton and District

Trenton, Aug. 28 — (Special) — Red Cross workers were very busy at the regular meeting on Thursday afternoon. The summer quotas received from headquarters are not as yet filled and more help is needed in the making of various garments, ditty bags for the sailors, quilts, hospital supplies and knitted goods for service men and refugees. Now that the summer vacation is drawing to a close it is sincerely hoped that the women of Trenton will feel their Red Cross duties more keenly and help by attending the meetings on Thursday afternoons.

During the afternoon the work convener, Mrs. J. H. Redick, reminded the members of the return visit of the Elgar Junior Choir which is giving a recital in King St. United Church on Wednesday evening, Sept. 9th. This choir is under the direction of Professor C. E. Findlater and is composed of very talented young boys and girls of Vancouver who are doing a great service to a worthy cause by touring the country with their choir giving recitals, proceeds of which is turned over to the Canadian Red Cross Society. Last September when they appeared in Trenton the King St. Church, where they were heard, was packed to capacity and it is quite obvious that from the way the tickets are already selling, Trentonians fully appreciated the quality of their music and are eager to again receive the full measure of this musical treat. The tickets are being sold for 25c and can be procured from the president, Mr. B. F. Joyce, from Mr. Robert Smithrim or any member of the Red Cross Society.

Traffic Congestion on Bridge

Trenton's narrow, low bridge, was the cause of another traffic congestion on Thursday when a truck owned by Clarke Derby of Milliken, Ont. and driven by Herman Westervelt, York, became lodged in its entrance at the west end. The truck was loaded at the time with bales of straw and as several bales fell from it one landed on a car owned and driven by Ronald Lamont of Mount Forest, doing some damage to the car.

Mr. Oswald Larry, B.A., only son of Mr. and Mrs. H. W. Larry, 48 Princess St., has been appointed manager of the new Trenton office of the Unemployment Insurance. Mr. Larry, who has been employed for some time on the Works and Buildings Dept. of fthe R.C.A.F., Trenton, is a graduate of Queen's University and has always taken an exceptionally keen interest in the welfare of Trenton and its citizens. The new Unemployment Insurance office is located in the Weaver Building on Elgin St.

Know Your Solvents

"A foreman should know about solvents; should know how it is being used and its potential danger," says the current memorandum to industry released today by the Industrial Accident Prevention Associations.

The memorandum points out that simply inhaling the fumes of some solvents causes poisoning. Other solvents have a poisonous effect if they are spilled or splashed on a worker's body. Still others are highly flammable or explosive and never should be used near any equipment that is apt to cause sparks or that gives off flames.

War in Egypt Will be On Large Scale

By EDWARD E. BOMAR

A new explosion appears imminent in the Western Desert, where Rommel's African Corps has been formidably strengthened. The Nazi commander has a striking force possibly even twice as strong as the army that swept half across Libya and 250 miles into Egypt.

Whether the foe has been able by feverish efforts during the two-month lull to gain actual numerical superiority over the defenders of the Nile cannot be known for the moment. The extent of British and American reinforcements has not been disclosed.

But the new phase of the struggle involving the fate of the Middle East and the war's duration clearly will be on a larger scale than ever before.

Rommel captured Tobruk and drove to his position imperilling Alexandria with a force which seems to have consisted of two Nazi and two Italian divisions. Prime Minister Churchill estimated afterward that the entire enemy army numbered about 90,000, of whom 50,000 were Germans.

Enemy Strength Doubled

Despite the air raids on Axis shipping and enemy North African ports, the best available estimates are that Rommel's original force has been swelled by at least half, and may be doubled. Two Nazi armored and two infantry divisions along with two or more Italian divisions, are reported to be keyed for an attempted punch through the narrow El Alamein line in a supreme effort to reach the Alexandria naval base seventy-five miles eastward.

Reinforced British and American squadrons are believed, however, to retain the aerial superiority which failed to turn the tide in June. In tanks the new commander, General Sir Harold Alexander, may match the foe.

This would account for Mr. Churchill's restrained optimism and the quietly confident tone of Cairo dispatches. While Alexander's army braces for a renewed Axis offensive in the present period of the full desert moon, the feeling has been evident that if Rommel failed to attack now the British probably would in early September.

On the eve of the new crisis, Rommel's threat needs no stressing, but the Allies can find some bright spots in the picture.

Limit to Axis Forces

Negatively, there is a practical military limit to the enemy forces which can be supplied after being transported to North Africa under protection of an Axis air umbrella which is beyond the present reach of R.A.F. fighter planes. Some British experts have figured the limit to be about the reported existing size of Rommel's army.

Rommel's triumph stemmed from the June 13 artillery trap which almost wiped out the main British armored force of 300 tanks. A coup of that sort obviously is hard to repeat.

British-American air superiority promises to be more effective as visibility improves. The enemy struck in early summer when R. A. F. pilots complained they could see neither the ground nor the horizon from 20,000 feet, and air operating conditions of all kinds were hampered.

In the background now is also the heartening possibility, which hitherto has been virtually nonexistent, of a United Nations diversion attack elsewhere in the Mediterranean. The Italians are reported uneasy that an Allied naval concentration rumored to be at Gibraltar and in West African ports may be destined for a thrust at French Tunisia in Rommel's rear.

Canadians Land In France

Nothing could stop the Canadian force as they headed for the French coast and Dieppe to land by assault methods, (top photo). Months and months of steady training had prepared them for any reception. The enemy attempted to stop them by coast gun barrages and dive-bombing, but they went on and achieved the objective.

Assault landing craft, (in centre photo) loaded with Canadian troops speed for the shores of France for an assault landing, and for a difficult task. The landing was completed and the Canadians destroyed artillery posts and radio-location centres near Dieppe.

In bottom photo are the men! Tough, well-trained, hard-hitting and dogged fighters all. Strolling on the beach beside their invasion craft, as they go through the final exercise prior to the assault landing at Dieppe. Canadians played the major part in this, the largest of all commando raids on occupied soil. (Canadian Army Photo.)

EMPLOYERS

Please help to prevent this...

SOME people are now selling their Victory Bonds. If it were a case of dire necessity to raise money because of unemployment or sickness, nothing could be said against it, but Bonds are being sold by people enjoying prosperous employment, and the money is being spent unnecessarily.

Victory Bonds were offered with the implied understanding that they should be held "for the duration". No new savings or money is provided to help carry on the war, by selling Bonds to a third party. The action is little short of sabotage. It is a betrayal of the men and women on active service and a negation of the whole purpose of Canada's War Financing.

Please take whatever steps you consider practical to persuade your employees to hold their Victory Bonds and War Savings Certificates; by personal appeal or by a message in pay envelopes. It is also suggested that you clip out and post this announcement on your Employees' Bulletin Board.

WEDDINGS

YERROW—BONE

An interesting wedding took place in Christ Church on Wednesday, August 26, at one o'clock, when Helen Ruth, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. P. Bone of Buffalo, N.Y., became the bride of Mr. Wm. Harry, son of Mr. and Mrs. Thos. Yerrow of this city. The ceremony was performed by Rev. G. G. Wright, the church being decorated with gladioli in pastel shades.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father looked lovely in a street length dress of ice blue silk jersey with shoes and veil to match and carried a bouquet of Briarcliffe roses and bouvardia. Mrs. R. L. Ferris of Centralia, Ill., sister of the bride, was matron of honour and wore navy with rose and carried a bouquet of Johanna Hill roses. The bride's mother was gowned in figured silk jersey with purple hat and corsage of gardenias while the groom's mother chose Mediterranean blue with wine accessories and corsage of Johanna Hill roses.

Mr. Harvey Yerrow, cousin of the groom, was best man while Mr. Clifford Yerrow, brother of the groom, Mr. Jack Redner, cousin of the bride and Mr. Kenneth Bone, brother of the bride were ushers. Mrs. S. Turpin, aunt of the groom, sang during the signing of the register, accompanied by the organist.

After the ceremony, a reception was held at the Hotel Quinte where many toasts were offered. Later the happy couple left for Montreal on their honeymoon and on their return will reside in Belleville.

The out of town guests included Mr. and Mrs. Cliff Yerrow and Mr. and Mrs. H. Black of Toronto, Mr. C. R. Bone of Montreal and Mr. and Mrs. Turpin and family of Colbourne.

The three-quarter length bridal veil was caught with a wreath of rosebuds. The bride carried pink Briarcliffe roses.

Miss Hilda Reid, sister of the groom, as maid of honor, wore powder blue silk jersey with matching doll hat and carried a nosegay of pastel flowers.

Following the ceremony a reception was held in the Salvation Army Sunday School rooms. Mrs. Green, mother of the bride, in a navy sheer redingote frock with matching hat and accessories and corsage of red Bettertimes roses, and Mrs. Reid, mother of the groom, wearing heavenly blue sheer with hat and accessories in the same shade, and corsage of pink Briarcliffe roses, received the guests.

The young couple left on a wedding trip to Toronto, Hamilton and Niagara Falls, the bride travelling in a beige and brown ensemble with matching accessories. Upon their return the bride will reside at her parents' home and the groom will return to his unit at Peterborough.

Guests were present at the wedding from Toronto and Windsor as well as the surrounding district.

MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

Open House for Christening

Dear Mrs. Beeckman,—

I am planning to have "Open House" at the christening of my daughter next month.

1.—Would it be the best idea to serve the food and drink, buffet style, in the dining room? If so, how should the room be decorated and how should the table be arranged?

2.—What should I serve? I plan to have about 50 guests during the afternoon and evening.

3.—What kind of entertainment would be appropriate?

M. S.

1.—Yes, choose the convenient buffet service for your "Open House". Make it even more convenient for yourself by asking some of your women relatives or close friends to be deputy hostesses, each pair to preside over opposite ends of the table during succeeding hours of your party. Have one co-hostess preside over the hot drink service at one end of the table, and one over the cold drink at the opposite end.

For a christening celebration table, it would be appropriate to use either a white (for all babies) or pale pink (for the girl baby) tablecloth. Suggest the occasion by fashioning a lovely centrepiece of pale-pink sweetheart roses, interspersed with baby's breath. Flank the centrepiece with candlesticks holding glowing pink candles, and have candy-dishes filled with white and pink candies, bonbons or mints. At convenient places have piles of plates, napkins, rows of forks and spoons; then the plates of sandwiches, small cakes, and serving-dishes.

Don't decorate the dining-room except with lovely orderliness and with two or three vases of flowers.

2.—Customarily, an informal gathering of relatives and friends is given for two or, at most, three hours following the christening, and the traditional tea-menu is served —sandwiches, small cakes.

If you want to prolong your party during the dinner or supper hour, you will want to add substantial dishes to the menu, perhaps. You might have cold sliced meats (or perhaps a turkey or ham) with hot biscuits or heated rolls, with vegetables or mixed-green or potato salad. You might feature chicken a la King, or creamed chicken and mushrooms on toast; or such good old standbys as baked beans and sliced ham, or steaming hot spaghetti and your favorite sauce. Then feature one of your specialty desserts, perhaps chocolate or coconut cake, with ice cream.

3.—You certainly don't need to plan any special entertainment for this gathering, appropiately, it should be on the side of dignity. That's why the hours really should not be so long. However, some of your friends can be counted on to play the piano or other instrument or to sing.

Courtesy Tip

The essence of good manners is sensing how to make people comfortable, at ease, pleased with you and with themselves. Tact . . . to Charm . . to Popularity. Nice going!

Advice to the Lovelorn

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Has An Obsession For Man She Doesn't Know

Sometimes the most level-headed people have queer obsessions. You've seen the tragic side of this in the grotesque marriages that men and women sometimes make under the spell of these delusions.

A woman writes me:

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I'm 26 years old, been married seven years, have three lovely children, and a very nice husband who likes to stay home and play with the children.

I met a man a couple of years ago. He's not good-looking, and I don't even know his age and he doesn't try to impress women. What happens? He's in my brain, in my blood, and I can't get rid of thoughts of him. I've never had a long conversation with him, just passing comments. He probably doesn't even know I exist. But I get the craziest urges to go where I know he will be. But, thank goodness, I have enough will power not to go.

I've filled my time with Red Cross sewing, Navy Relief, First Aid courses, U.S.O., etc. But no matter how busy I keep myself, when I relax I think of him. I keep trying to switch this love back to my husband but can't. It's got me. I've never touched this man's hand, but yet I'd love to be held by him. How can I cast this man from my thoughts?

A. V. M.

I'm glad, A. V. M., you have the sense to diagnose your own case and the will power not to give 'way to it.

Perhaps if you met this man and talked to him you'd be bored to tears. At least this was the experience of a friend of mine who worshipped from afar, and was finally thrown with her charmer and couldn't stand him. With your home, your husband and children, better stand pat. Too much to lose chasing, phantoms.

Would Like a Civil Service Job

Dear Miss Fairfax:

Being an experienced stenographer and typist, I should like to do work of this kind in an Army Camp. Am now employed, but would like to have a government job for the duration. Where do I file my application, or apply for such a position?

M. E. D.

If you would like to take a government job as a stenographer-typist, you must apply to your postmaster for an application blank which you fill out and send to the Civil Service Commission. When it has been accepted you take the Civil Service examination which is usually given in your own postoffice; you will be notified the date in advance.

If you'd like to join the services get in touch with their headquarters.

Physical Therapy Aids Cervical Arthritis

Only too often when people are sick they think that they must have medicines to get well. And yet, heat, massage, X-ray and proper diet are very important forms of treatment, and are often suggested to relieve common forms of arthritis. These treatments are also used for a less common type of ailment, known as cervical arthritis, a condition in which pain occurs in the back of the head, neck, shoulder or chest. If it is made worse by coughing, sneezing or straining, the pain is quite apt to be due to inflammation of the joints in the upper part of the spine, known as the cervical spine.

According to Dr. LeMoyne Copeland Kelly, of New York, it would appear that arthritis of the spine is becoming more common. The pain which occurs in this condition is due to pressure of the nerve roots coming from the spine.

The kind of arthritis which develops in the cervical spine and produces the pain is known as osteoarthritis. It is overgrowth of the bony tissue in this infection which causes narrowing of the openings around the nerves, which, in turn, produces the pressure. These nerves, coming from the upper part of the spine, run to a number of different structures, such as the throat and ears.

Hence, Dr. Kelly thinks that the cervical arthritis may be a primary cause, in some cases, for sore throat affecting just one side of the throat, or for earache. He also says that cervical spinal arthritis was found to be the cause of early morning headache, two out of every five patients he studied, particularly when the ache was located in the back part of the head.

In order to make sure of the diagnosis of cervical arthritis, X-rays of the spine must be taken from a number of different angles. It is possible that changes in the spine may exist with no evidence in the X-ray.

Insofar as treatment of the condition is concerned, many patients apparently are benefited by physical therapy, which includes heat, massage and stretching of the spine, using weights and pulleys. The use of salicylates for relieving pain may be helpful. Vitamin preparations, particularly vitamin B-complex and large doses of vitamin D may serve to overcome the condition in those patients not relieved by heat and stretching. Another method of treatment suggested by Dr. Kelly is X-ray. The X-ray may be combined with other forms of treatment, such as massage, heat, and vitamins.

Whenever a person suffers from pain in the head, neck and chest, the possibility of cervical arthritis should be kept in mind. Careful study with the X-ray will be helpful in making a diagnosis. In addition, a study of the condition by an orthopedic specialist would appear important. Once it has been determined that cervical arthritis is responsible for the pain, suitable treatment can be decided upon.

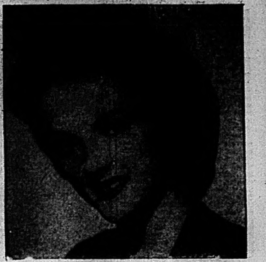
Clear Skin Requires Soap



Beautiful Peggy Diggins has a lovely complexion

By HELEN FOLLETT

THE SKIN is one fabric that is improved by washing. Now and then the cutaneous coat may be so dry that it rebels against soap and water, but that is the exception. Even so, suds can be applied if a film of cream is there to act as a protective agent.

The body is bathed, hands are washed with no ill effect, so it seems rather silly of some of the old timers to believe that the face is sacred, should not be scrubbed. Sebaceous glands are exuding oil that catches atmospheric dust. The human map can get pretty untidy in a few hours.

The skin is a complex organ of the body, with important physiological duties that are all too often unknown to the average beauty seeker. There are reasons why it should be kept clean. It will function better and be less inclined to pick up invading germs.

The top layer of cells is constantly being renewed. These cells are dead, horny scales so tiny and compact that the surface appears smooth to the naked eye. Nature keeps supplying a new fabric, so the old one should be treated daily with soap suds and friction. A brisk rub down should follow the daily bath, if the cleansing process is to be complete.

The epidermis not only collects atmospheric dust, but it is constantly being soiled by the exudations of the sweat and sebaceous glands. If the pores become clogged with dust, the functions of the glands are retarded. Hence the need of fastidious cleanliness.

Water alone will not make the skin clean. Soap is necessary to combat oil. The lather should be thick and rich, frictioned into the skin with the fingertips. Every bit should be rinsed away, no matter how pure and bland the soap may be.

TROOP ARRIVALS QUIZ REPORTERS ON SUNDRY NEWS

Boys Arriving in Britain Have to Know Things and Turn Interview Into a Question Program

By ROSS MUNRO
Canadian Press War Correspondent

A British Port, Aug. 28 — (CP) — Canadian soldiers and airmen on troop ships just arrived from Canada ask more questions about England and life in army camps here than the ministry of information could answer off hand.

They are avid for "inside dope" and hound a war correspondent who goes aboard to get the story of the troops themselves and their crossing. Time and time again, the correspondent becomes the person interviewed instead of the interviewer.

With the flood of questions comes a stream of fantastic rumors about enemy attacks in the Atlantic. You have to be a battle-dress encyclopedia on wartime England to meet the queries and a cold cynic about the rumors.

Questions about air raids are still top of the list. The troops want to know when the last raid was, number of planes over, how the anti-aircraft defences worked and when you yourself last saw a Nazi aircraft.

Second Front

They talk about Britain's great bombing raids over Germany and mention the second front. They're sold on both.

The soldiers and airmen are always anxious to know where they're going after disembarkation. That one's generally easy, for various formations have established depots where new contingents first report. Some of them know their destination's name, and this leads to a string of questions.

"Just where is it? How far is it from London? Is it near the English Channel?" With a gleam in his eye, one lad asked: "How far is it from the Jerries in France?"

They want to know how easy it is to buy smokes, what is the price of food and drinks. You stagger them a little with answers for these, especially when you say: "A pound used to go about as far as two bucks but now it doesn't stretch much more than a dollar."

Questions about training, barracks, camp accommodation and messing are asked.

Seven Day Leaves

When you tell them they'll probably get seven-day disembarkation leaves — everybody gets one —they want to know where is the best spot to spend leave. They want to know about London first and then a dozen other places which the correspondent never heard of.

You move along the crowded decks, talking to the fighting men to get their own story and keep running into friends you knew back home. You get a lot of personal news yourself and, in turn, they want to know about 50 pals in a dozen regiments.

Inevitably there are wild stories going around regarding the crossing; cock-and-bull yarns about running through a nest of German submarines. Depth charges always seem to be dropped.

Ninety per cent of the time the rumors are completely unfounded and started up the grapevine from some bored private lying in his hammock dreaming up excitement. But they take away from the tedium of convoy crossing and give the whole ship plenty to talk about.

Duke's Youngest Son Christened This Month

One of the most recent photographs of the Duke of Kent and his family. It was taken on the occasion of the christening of his youngest son, Prince Michael George Charles Franklin, August 4, by the Archbishop of Canterbury. President Roosevelt is a godfather. The Duke has Princess Alexandra, 5, by the hand and Prince Edward, 6, stands erect at his mother's side. The Duchess of Kent holds the baby. The Duke was killed in an airplane crash, on a duty flight to Iceland.

Zellers Even Girls Softball Finals by Beating Deacons 11 to 6 in the Second Game

Bessie Doolittle Pitches Strong Game in Clutches, Scattering Nine Hits Well

LUSTY HITTING

It's all even in the Belleville Ladies' Softball Leage finals at one game each between the Deacon and Zeller lassies after Chuck Barnett's Big-Z-girls downed Leo Barrett's Deacons 11 to 6 at the Exhibition Park on Thursday night. Strangely enough the Deacons had won the first game of the final series by the identical same score in a best-in-five series.

Four runs in the initial frame gave the slugging Zellers an advantage they never relinquished, as they led six to four going into the seventh and continued to mount the count steadily in the last three frames.

Bessie Doolittle went to the hilltop for the league champions and did a fine pitching chore by letting the Deacons down with nine hits, while her teammates were cuffing the offerings of "Stewie" Stewart for a grand total of 14 lusty base knocks. Neither pitcher was given any too strong support, however.

Zellers Punish Ball

Zellers punished the pellet as every batter on the lineup counted at least one hit, with Pete Haslip leading the way with two circuit blows one in the fifth with one aboard and the other in the eight with Wilma Clarke on the runways. Helen Garrow returned to the Zeller lineup and inspired the twice champions with a round tripper and a triple, Wilma Clarke also hitting for a trio of bases. Jean Corneal with a triple was the Deacons' distance hitter, but Dot Hansey led all batsmen collecting three base knocks in four tries.

PETE HASLIP

Jean Corneal clicked with an unassisted double play to pull the losers out of an early-game difficulty, while Jane Sharpe made a fine running catch in the sixth. Gwen Bennett at third and Irene Douglas played steady ball for Barnett's crowd, but it was Bessie Doolittle's steady mound work and the Zeller lusty hitting that evened the series.

TORONTO LEAFS DEFEAT ROYALS IN CLOSE GAME

Leafs Score Two Runs in Seventh After Montreal Tallies One

BISONS SWAMPED

By The Associated Press

It probably will take manager Al Vincent and his Buffalo Bisons some time to forget the activities they witnessed at Red Wing stadium in Rochester last night.

Before the International League game, a troop of soldiers staged a sham battle which evidently inspired the Wings, for they took up where the soldiers left off and walloped the Bisons, 10-0.

Bill Beckman administered the whitewash as he limited the Bisons to five hits, while his mates pounded the offerings of four Buffalo twirlers for 11 blows. Roy Pfleger led the bombardment with a triple, double and single in five trips to the plate, driving in four runs.

Toronto Maple Leafs rose to the .500 mark in games won and lost as they defeated Montreal Royals, 2-1, behind the five-hit tossing of big Jack Hallett.

It was a scoreless tie until the seventh when the Royals took a one-run lead, only to have the Leafs come back with two tallies in their half. Jim Russell opened the Toronto seventh with a triple and scored when Lee Handley singled. Handley went to second on an infield out and tallied while Steve Nagy took his time in tossing out Burgess Whitehead.

With the rest of the league idle, there were no changes in the standings.

BASEBALL TURNS WORLD SERIES INTO BENEFIT

Red Cross and U. S. O. to be Helped by the Fall Classic

LANDIS AGREES

CHICAGO, Aug. 28 — (AP) — Baseball's offer to share $357,544 to $679,006 of its world series kitty was extended today to two organizations —the U.S.O. and the Red Cross—and needed only their formal acceptance and subsequent approval by government authorities to go into effect this fall.

K. M. Landis, commissioner of baseball, said that to his knowledge the world series never before has been conducted as a benefit.

After conferring yesterday with President Will Harridge of the American League and Ford Frick of the National League, Landis revealed the plan and said the two intended beneficiaries had not been consulted beforehand.

In Washington Chairman Norman H. Davis of the American Red Cross declined to comment pending formal word of the offer from Landis.

In New York Paul Badger, administrative vice president of the U.S.O., declared his organization was "extremely grateful at this gesture and will be glad to participate in the world series receipts."

Landis drew up 1942 series estimates based on last fall's classic between the New York Yankees and Brooklyn Dodgers, which teams appeared headed for an encore meeting this year, and allowing for the fact the first two games will be in the National League champion's home park, came up with these statistics:

Radio Rights Turned Over

The $100,000 for radio rights, previously shared by players and "baseball" — including the commissioner's office, the two leagues and the two participating clubs, all would be turned over to the U.S.O. and Red Cross.

Of the $160,731 gate receipts from each of the first two games, approximately $81,972 each day would go into the players' pool and $78,748 to baseball.

Of the $262,800 receipts from games 3 and 4 in the larger Yankee Stadium, approximately $128,722 would go each day into the U.S.O.-Red Cross pool and $134,028 into the players' kitty, "baseball" getting nothing.

If the series ended in four games, the two organizations would net $357,544, the players would divide $432,000 and baseball would get a mere $157,496.

If the series should end in five games, all receipts from the fifth contest — at Yankee Stadium and amounting again to $262,800—would go to baseball, boosting its total to $420,296.

Receipts of games 6 and 7, in the National League park, would go entirely to the service groups. Should the series run the seven-game limit, the final reckoning would be: U.S.O.-Red Cross $679,006; players' share 432,000; baseball's share $420,296.

Landis said world series for the last 20 years have averaged 5.71 games each and he predicted the 1942 series would go six games.

SPORT SHORTS FROM BRITAIN

By ALAN RANDAL

LONDON, Aug. 28 — (CP)—Sport is going hand-in-glove with war up at Roehampton where wounded men are restored to the greatest degree of health they can attain. Football is one of the big items in recuperative treatment.

Almost any fine morning men who have lost a leg may be seen playing football — with an especially light ball — on the theory that a man wounded in one limb must not allow the others to degenerate. Even bed-ridden patients get exercise.

The football is for men with below-the-knee amputations and they are encouraged to kick with what is left of the limb. This hardens the muscles and makes learning to walk that much easier when an artificial leg is fitted. For above-the-knee amputations skittles is substituted.

One of sport's ex-headliners who are carrying on this work is Sqdn. Ldr. Dan Maskell, former Wimbledon lawn tennis coach, now with the R.A.F.

Little Eddie Petrin of Montreal is a bear for punishment. Less than a week after Jackie Peterson, British and Empire titlist, put him away for a 10-count the game Canadian Army mauler was back in the ring at Watford Town Hall exchanging wallops with Alf Ward of Cheam. Petrin, much the better, slammed Ward to the floor for several counts during the eight-round bout, but all he got out of it was a draw. The referee based his decision on Ward's superior in-fighting, but even the Cheam boxer seemed flattered by the result.

WORLD SERIES LOOKS SAFE FOR YANKS, DODGERS

Brooklyn Salvaged Last Game of Series With Cards 4 to 1

RED SOX BEATEN

(By JUDSON BAILEY)
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

The World Series is beginning to look safe again for Brooklyn Dodgers and New York Yankees.

What little excitement had been breathed into the two major league pennant races in recent days apparently was expelled yesterday as Brooklyn bounced out of their lethargy and quelled St. Louis Cardinals 4-1 and the onrush of Boston Red Sox was checked by Cleveland Indians 4-2.

The Dodgers had the cocksureness taken out of them at St. Louis as the Redbirds took the first three tussles, but the net result of the struggle in Sportsman's Park was to send the Dodgers into the last month of the season with a 5 1-2 game lead and the knowledge that they would need to stay awake to keep it.

The Cardinals came back last night with Max Lanier in the fourth game of the series with just two days rest since he had held Brooklyn to four hits Monday night. The stocky southpaw wasn't up to the job of subduing the aroused Dodgers, however, and was shelled for five successive singles for three runs in the fourth. Then another lefthander, Ernie White, came in and was pelted for an additional single and Brooklyns final run before getting his house in order.

Davis Directs Revival

It was the veteran Curt Davis, once a Cardinal, who directed the Dodger revival. In gaining his 14th triumph of the season he held the Redbirds to eight scattered hits and himself knocked in two of Brooklyn's runs with a single.

A crowd of 18,665 saw the game bringing the attendance for the series to more than 91,000.

The Red Sox's string of nine consecutive victories not only was broken in the only American League game, but Cecil (Tex) Hughson's skein of eleven straight pitching triumphs also was snapped as Jim Bagby of the Indians hurled a five-hitter, one of the blows being Ted Williams' 27th home run in the first inning.

A better pitching battle than this though, was given a small gathering of fans at Cincinnati where New York Giants beat the Reds 2-0 by bunching five hits in the 11th inning after Harry Feldman and Ray Starr had labored through ten scoreless innings.

Hank Gornicki provided a one-man show at Pittsburgh by pitching two-hit ball and hitting a two-run homer to lead the Pittsburgh Pirates to a 5-0 victory over the Boston Braves. Elbie Fletcher also homered.

CASUAL COMMENT by K.J.C.

THERE HAS BEEN A SLIGHT change in the dates of the Belleville-Kingston Intermediate "A" Provincial softball play-offs, which open here on Monday evening. However, the return game in the Limestone City will not be played until Thursday. However, there is no hurry to get this series over as the other Eastern Ontario semi-final series, Peterboro and Oshawa, these teams are playing successive Saturdays with the possible third game on Labor Day, which would give either Belleville or Kingston an eight-day lay-off in the event the local series ends in two games. Down in Kingston it's the Victorias, in Belleville the "Vets," in Peterboro' Jim Ellis' Plazas won the city league finals in four straight, while in Oshawa the Aces need only one more win to cinch their league bunting. The Kingston Vics, requested the switch from Wednesday to Thursday next week stating they were unable to get the Cricket Field owing to baseball play-offs. Skipper Barriage agreed but that ain't all.

ACTUALLY THE TROUBLE IN Kingston hinges on the fact that four of the Vics' roster are also playing baseball in the Limestone City baseball finals with the Aluminum plant team and would not be able to play with the Vics next Wednesday. The four players in question are Yip Radley, Hal Buck, Fred Light and our own Earl "Sonny" Green. However, now that the Vics' swung their deal, there's nothing to do about it but await Monday night's opener versus the Vics here. Local sport fans well remember Radley as a hockey player and the veteran Hal Buck, who has played with more ball clubs than perhaps any baseball player in Ontario. He even put in a season with the Belleville Nationals about a decade ago as a teammate of Sonny Green And now they are back together again. Stan Scrutton alternates at second base with Sonny Green. And now they are back together again. Stan Scrutton alternates at second base with Sonny, who at present is on the sidelines nursing an injured hip received in a Kingston City League baseball game when hit by a pitched ball recently.

ACCORDING TO SCRIBE Fred Craig the Plazas, champions of the Peterboro City Softball League, are a hard hitting nine. They not only won their league finals in four straight but took the last game 20 to 5, garnering in 19 base blows. However, the Plazas are losing their chief slugger and second sacker, Don Crowe, who joined the R.C.A.F. the other day. Since moving to Peterboro from Toronto seven years ago (my, how time flies), Don Crowe has been a tower of strength to lacrosse, softball, football and hockey in the Liftlock City. Speaking of Crowe, Scribe Craig says: "Combining a fighting spirit and a will-to-win with marked ability in every game he has tackled, Don has played with a drive and determination that have made him a constant standout. Whether bowling over attacking forwards or barging down the ice for needed goals in hockey, or booming 60-yard punts on the run or tearing through broken fields for big gains in football, or dashing through a defence like a whirling dervish to slip the ball past a bewildered goalie in lacrosse, or making sensational plays in the field and long hits when most needed in softball, he has been a colorful figure in sport circles here and he will be badly missed. Crowe has never failed to give all he had no matter how tough the going and Peterboro sportsdom owes him a lot for the thrills he has provided and the triumphs he has helped to bring this way. The R.C.A.F. has got a real guy in this battling, never-beaten athlete."

IT'S ALL EVEN GOING INTO the third game of the Belleville Girls' Softball League finals next Tuesday. Last night Chuck Barnett's Zeller lassies pulled up alongside Leo Barrett's Deacons in the bunting series with an 11 to 6 win, which strangely enough was the exact score in favor of Deacons in the initial contest. The Big-Z team wielded potent bats last night behind Bessie Doolittle's fine mound effort, a combination that usually wins. Pete Haslip poled out a pair of hits that went for circuit blows, while Helen Garrow got a homer and a triple. However, Dot Hansey, Deacon's centre fielder, led them all with three hits in four tries. Errors entered paramountly into the ultimate scoring and on this score the Deacons headed the Zellers six to three, not counting passed balls.

REMEMBER WHEN Paavo Nurmi, the greatest middle-distance runner the athletic world has ever seen, was barred from open amateur competition for life by the International Amateur Federation Congress at Stockholm eight years ago today? The "Flying Finn" continued to compete in his own country were he was cleared of charges of accepting monies in excess of expenses while on tour.

WHEN JOE GORDON, the Yankee second sacker, recently met Bob Doerr, Boston's All-Star in the same position, coming out of the players' runway leading from the Yankee Stadium clubhouse to the playing field, he greeted him, "Hi, Pop!" Doerr grinned, extended his hand and responded, "Hello yourself, Pop!" Both had become fathers of sons while their teams were on their early August respective western trips.

THERE WILL BE NO EASTERN Canada Rugby Football Union this fall, although the O.R.F.U. will attempt to carry on, as far as is practical. Ottawa and Montreal had indicated intentions of sponsoring a team, while Balmy Beach also wanted to carry on, but cooler heads seem to think a three-club loop would not prove satisfactory. Locally, however, a movement to organize a district six-man football league is being considered. The three Quinte R.C.A.F. bases are anxious to enter such a loop, while the Reliance A.C. also would appreciate some fall recreation. The great difficulty will be getting time off from war activities in which to play the games.

THIS AND THAT — FRANK Tunney called this a.m. to say Whipper Watson and Bill Longson wrestled to a draw last night .... "There will be no wrestling in Belleville next week owing to the fact my boys are appearing at a mammoth war charity program in Toronto, but we'll be back the following week," stated Mr. Tunney. ....It's a deep dark secret, but they do say Cpl. Joe Louis is to be a pappy along in January....Sqdn.-Ldr. Lionel Conacher, who is in charge of all sports in the R.C.A.F. in Canada, made an official visit to the No. 5 I.T.S base yesterday and congratulated F.-O. Bob Hunter upon the splendid extensive sports program he has arranged at the local R.C.A.F. base....In the evening the No. 5 softball team was feted at a banquet in the Quinte Hotel....See where the Air Force has made application for a senior berth in the Quebec Senior Hockey League from the No. 4 training district....Four ex-pros. Young Tennis Stars Still Come From California

(By GAYLE TALBOT)
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

New York, Aug. 28 (AP)— The National Tennis championships have been going on only one day at Forest Hills, but it already is obvious that California is not going to let the war interfere with its normal production of outstanding young stars.

The latest from out that way is George Richards, a left-handed 19-year-old from Montebello, a suburb of Los Angeles.

Already Richards has won the distinction of being the first native player ever to be seeded on his first appearance in the National championships.

In his opening match yesterday Richards swarmed all over one of the east's best junior players, Irvin Dorfman of New York, 6-3, 6-3, 6-4.

Another West Coast youngster who created a fine impression in his first appearance was James Brink, a lanky 17-year-old from Seattle. The kid carried no less a campaigner than Sidney Wood to five sets before he capitulated by 5-7, 7-5, 6-0, 3-6, 6-0.

The West Coast, of course, already had the two tournament favorites, Ted Schroeder of Glendale, Cal., and Louise Brough of Beverly Hills. They won their opening matches as scheduled, in straight sets. Miss Brough looked magnificent as she swept through Mrs. Marjorie Gladman Van Ryn, 6-0, 6-2, and Schroeder surmounted a strained tendon in his racket wrist to pummel Lieut. Russell Bobbitt 7-5, 6-2, 8-6.

There were no upsets at all yesterday, and none was anticipated in the remainder of the first round matches scheduled today.

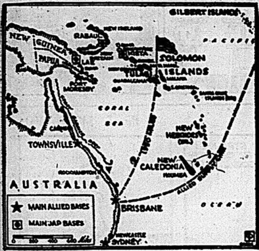
He also assisted in the destruction of a 1,200-ton enemy coaster in daylight.

NEW U. S. PACIFIC THRUSTS?



Japanese reports of an American landing in the Gilbert Islands, shown on above map, may mean that the United States is extending its offensive operations in the Pacific to envelop more Jap bases. The navy department has announced the capture of several of the Solomon Islands and some observers believe the United Nations may attack the Jap base at Rabaul on New Britain Island.

Canadian Sport Snapshots

By SCOTT YOUNG
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Toronto, Aug. 28. (CP) — It is hard to figure out why the Eastern Rugby Football Union folded, despite the various official reasons.

If the Ottawa, Montreal and Toronto Balmy Beach Football bosses would come right out and say they think football should retrench in wartime, all would be clear. But this vacillation from policy to policy, sober declarations that football will carry on for the good of public morale, then an abrupt decision to quit, is puzzling.

It leaves Harold Bailey's Ontario Rugby Football Union and Joe Ryan's Winnipeg City League to keep bigtime football before public. The O.R.F.U. has three clubs lined up—Hamilton, Kitchener and Toronto Oakwoods. It probably will have five before the season starts. For instance, if Balmy Beach really wants to play football this season it undoubtedly could get back in the O.R.F.U., which the Club left a couple of seasons ago for the more-publicized Eastern Union.

There's room for a couple of enterprising clubs in the O.R.F.U. Harold Bailey isn't talking much about the future, probably because he has something cooking that would be spoiled by premature publicity. But yesterday he told me: "We are ready to operate".

In those five words, he gave expression to the inequality of the Canadian football situation. His league hasn't made important money for years, but it is sticking in there, overcoming the "obstacles" which forced all half-hearted operatives from the game. The Clubs which have dropped are big-name clubs which made something more than glory from football in good years. But they were first to retreat when it becomes apparent that perhaps only glory is left.

Winnipeg Blue Bombers, which made money with the best of them in football's golden years, will put some back this season. The public won't be allowed to forget football, switch allegiance to other sports, because Bailey and Ryan won't let football die. After the war, when the woods are full of players and fans again, the clubs who folded after making most out of the game will be back in again, reaping harvest from seed they refused to nurture.

To believe the possibility that city leagues will operate in Ottawa and Montreal is the most charitable view to take. They could choose all-star teams, or name league champions, to compete in eastern playdowns and meet the west for the Canadian title.

But if all this is so, it should have been sung as a duet with the E.R.F.U. swan song yesterday. That leaves only the uncharitable view—to believe the statement that their only reason for quitting is their belief a three-team league wouldn't be a success. Wouldn't be a success for whom? Football paid well enough in the good years that these clubs could afford to put a little back when times are grim. Bailey and Ryan have shown that it doesn't take much cash—just a little courage and energy.

It is a continuous laff. George also features some new and delightful song hits. In addition the program includes "5 Men from Australia" a thrilling story of our "Aussie" cousins down under. "Reap the Wild Wind" in Color

Product of a great story, a great cast and a great producer-director, Cecil B. DeMille's "Reap the Wild Wind," spectacular Paramount sea saga in technicolor, arrives this weekend at the Belle Theatre. For us moviegoers this is exciting news.

Preview critics have already hailed "Reap the Wild Wind" as the best of the mighty DeMille films, a spectacular jewel to fit into the great showman's crown of screen achievements. For DeMille it climaxes thirty years of picture-making, and represents the thirtieth anniversary celebration offering of Paramount pictures itself.

For "Reap the Wild Wind," DeMille has chosen as stars Ray Milland, Paulette Goddard and John Wayne. Heading the impressive featured cast are Raymond Massey, Lynne Overman, Robert Preston, Susan Hayward, Charles Bickford, Walter Hampden, Martha O'Driscoll and Janet Beecher.

In the DeMille tradition, "Reap the Wild Wind" has an epic quality about it in the immensity of its scope, its roaring thrill scenes, and its powerful romantic story. It takes us back to the days of 1840, off Key West. Then, as now, America, was fighting to keep its sea lanes safe. Off the Florida coasts piratical salvagers plundered the fat carcasses of ships going to pieces on the reefs. America's lifeline was at stake.

Always in the foreground is Loxi Claiborne, played by Paulette Goddard, wild tempestuous, loved by two men, equally adept at wielding a fan in a drawing room flirtation or a marlin spike aboard one of her ships.

DeMille's "Reap the Wild Wind" is a picture that must be at the head of your motion picture entertainment list!

The Belle latest World Events from home and abroad, Popeye in "Many Tanks," and chapter eight of the popular "Sea Raiders" serial completes the program.

Continuous shows will be presented on Saturday.

AT THE CAPITOL

"The Silver Stallion"

Breaking completely away from the usual formula for any type of animal picture, Monogram's "Silver Stallion," now at the Capitol theatre, stands out as one of the finest outdoor adventure films ever to come out of Hollywood.

It has long been held that simplicity is the keynote of true art, and there can be no better proof of this than "Silver Stallion". Taking the elementary story of a boy and his horse, producer-director Edward Finney has welded a compact powerful and dramatic photoplay that will more than hold its own in any company.

Although there is a colorful background of western action, the picture primarily is the story of "Thunder," the horse, and his battles against the wild animals that threaten his herd and family. It is through "Thunder" that the outlaw boy, played by David Sharpe finally is shown the error of his ways and gives up his career as a horse thief.

Highlight of the film is the ferocious battle between "Thunder", fighting to protect the leadership of his herd and family, and a wild stallion that threatens his domain. Seldom has the screen seen such savage fury as in this elemental struggle between the two horses.

Almost equalling this for sheer drama is the scene in which "Thunder's" mate fights off a pack of wild "killer" dogs to protect her colt.

Photographed in Arizona and the San Jacinto mountains of California, "Silver Stallion" is laid against a locale of rugged grandeur that does much to enhance the production values of the picture. Marcel A. LePicard is credited with the fine photoplay.

A veteran of many pictures David Sharpe makes an excellent impression in his first featured role. He is ably assisted by LeRoy Mason, Chief "Tonto" Thundercloud, Thornton Edwards and Janet Waldo.

On the same program at the Capitol next in "Night Train to Munich."

CHAPTER 12

A Sporting Chance

Meanwhile, a slim, lonely girl was walking rapidly down a rain-washed street. Tears had taken their toll of her beauty. Her unseeing eyes were swollen and red.

A laughing couple bumped into her, but Linda did not hear their apologies. A cold wind swept around a corner, chilling her to the bone, yet she made no pretense of drawing her coat closer in protection against the freezing weather.

Dazed, numb, Linda Phillips could not cry, could not rage. Over and over in her mind hammered the name "Greg . . . Greg" and her lips formed it silently.

She did not hear swift footsteps behind her until a man said sharply, "Linda!" As his hand clutched her arm painfully and he swung her around to face him, Steve Baridon exclaimed, "Thank God!"

Linda faced him defiantly, her head thrown back, her eyes blind to his expression of relief. "Let me go," she ordered, and when he made no effort to release her she repeated, "Let me go!" Her voice rose hysterically and she tugged vainly to free herself.

"You silly little fool!" Steve's voice was sharp. "Do you think I'm going to let you run away again?" He signalled a passing cab and propelled her into it. Then, when they were settled and the driver had been ordered to "drive around" Steve said: "Now, what is this all about? Diane is half crazy with worry."

For a moment Linda sat rigid beside him, and then, suddenly she collapsed, sobbing in his arms.

It was easier after the deluge of tears to tell her sympathetic listener the entire story. Linda spared no detail in describing her first meeting with Greg; his visit to Prairievale, and her hasty decision to leave the town. Steve listened attentively, nodding at each new revelation until the sobbing girl reached the phase dealing with Diane. Then he intervened. "You mustn't misjudge Diane's motive," he said. "She is blameless."

He was unprepared for the bitterness in Linda's voice as she said "I never want to hear her name nor see her face again. I trusted her completely, and all the time—all the time she knew that Greg—that—"

Linda wept again, and Steve Baridon said hastily, "There's another thing I want to say, Linda. I came to apologize for my behavior last night. I acted like a fool, I know, but I'm afraid it's because the wedding champagne was too potent. I couldn't take it."

"It doesn't matter," she said. "Nothing matters . . . now."

Seeing tears welling in her eyes, Steve said hastily, "But what were you planning to do? Where were you going?"

"There's an old saying," she said and smiled mirthlessly. "There's always the river. Only in my case—there's a lake."

For a moment Steve stared at her. Then, with a hollow laugh, he said, "I thought about that myself—last night I even went so far as to walk down a pier, and then I changed my mind about a lot of things."

He paused to light his pipe, and by the flare of the match Linda could see the haggard lines around his mouth; the trembling of his hands.

"You mean—Brenda?"

Steve shrugged. "It's always been Brenda—ever since I was a freshman in college and she came to our frosh dance. Everyone took it for granted that someday—well, you know the rest."

"But what made you change your mind, about the lake, I mean?" she persisted.

"While I was standing there, looking down into the muddy water," he mused, "it dawned on me that that was a coward's way out and that I must have been put on earth for some good purpose. I decided it was up to me to find out why I was here. One-half of my life ended when Brenda married Jerry Coleman, but I have my work if that will make an impression on the world, so much the better."

"You mean—your book?"

When he nodded she said curiously, "What is it like?" Her troubles were forgotten as she listened to his splendid deep-toned voice.

"I'm writing a novel about horses. About one horse in particular, named Rusty."

He turned sidewise so that he could see her face. "You spoke of knowing my sister Mary. Did she tell you about Hillsacres?"

"No. Nothing."

"Hillsacres is our farm," he said, "located down in Southern Illinois. That's about all we had left after the crash, a farmhouse and forty acres all in pasture. That's where Dad raises his thoroughbred horses."

"It sounds . . . grand," Linda murmured because there was a wealth of pride in the man's voice.

"It is grand. The house is old and steeped in tradition. It has been handed down from father to son for nearly a hundred years.

"I'm going down there," he went on, "to bury myself for the winter and try to finish my book. And then . . ." he broke off suddenly, conscious that Linda was strangely silent.

"What about you?" he asked.

"All right," she agreed listlessly, "what about me?"

"Why don't you go back home, kid?" he said gruffly. "People will soon forget about this. You know the old saying about time healing all wounds."

Linda laughed grimly. "You don't know Prairievale."

"Then tell everyone you changed your mind, decided to stay at home. That's a woman's privilege."

She shook her head. "Everyone would know the truth. You see," her face was scarlet, "I gave up a good secretarial position. I—I talked a lot, and," her voice dropped to a whisper, "I was warned that I was making a mistake I'd live to regret and I — I laughed."

Again she shook her head, this time more firmly. "I can never go back. Not—not alone."

There was silence for a long moment before Steve said thoughtfully, "I could certainly use a good stenographer down at the farm to handle my dictation and look after things for me. I can't pay much, but the house is comfortable, and—"

"I'm afraid that would cause too much scandal," Linda interrupted, "and there are others to consider in spite of our blighted lives. There's your father, my parents, and—Mary." She touched his hand timidly. "Thank you, anyway. You've been very kind to me, but I'm afraid it's no use."

Steve had lapsed into silence, puffing thoughtfully on his pipe and Linda began to relax beside this slow-spoken person. The cold rain beat a steady tattoo on the top of the cab and she was strangely sleepy. Then, suddenly, Steve Baridon spoke again and his words were like a bombshell.

"Have you an ounce of sporting blood?" he demanded. When Linda nodded, confused by his enthusiasm, he went on rapidly: "You say nothing is left for you but the the river. I said one-half of my life was over and it is. Very well. I need a stenographer. You need some place to live, a measure of security. What could be more convenient than a wedding ring?"

When Linda cried out in surprise, he said grimly, "I mean it. A strictly business proposition. I'll marry you, but only for the sake of convention. In reality we'll live separate lives at Hillsacres."

Rapidly he sketched the plan. They would be married that night, if possible, and leave for Hillsacres Farm. Here Linda would serve as his secretary for twelve months. By that time, Steve figured, the book would be completed and in the hands of publishers, and then he would make all the necessary arrangements for an immediate and secret divorce.

"It will never matter about me," Linda objected, "but what about you? What if you meet someone about whom you care a great deal? It isn't fair for you to be tied to a—a stenographer."

"You needn't worry about me," he assured her gravely. "You love only once. In my case it was Brenda, and I'll never love again."

"Let's be practical about this. Until tonight I'll admit we were almost strangers, but you know who I am. You've heard of my family; met my sister. I have everything to gain by the agreement—my house kept in order, my book properly taken care of and you—" He smiled. "Surely I'm a better solution to your problem than Lake Michigan. That's a coward's way out and everyone would soon know the truth. If you were married to me you would be safe and secure."

Linda's thoughts raced desperately. It was true that she needed security. In six months Greg would be back. How could she face him? Proudly, as the wife of another man, proving that his going had not ruined her life. Or would they perhaps meet one day, the remembrance of their tragic flirtation mocking her. Nothing mattered except that they must meet, with Linda the victor. Perhaps one word would change her life. One word might form her destiny—

Steve Baridon had thrust out his hand. "Will you be game, Linda? Will you give our agreement a sporting chance?"

A sporting chance? It sent a thrill down Linda's spine. A chance to defy Diane and Greg, and all the people in Prairievale whose tongues had wagged so freely.

For a moment Linda studied the dark, serious face opposite her own, and then, bravely, she stuck out her cold, small fingers and felt his strong hand close over them, sealing a bargain.

"It's a deal," said Linda Phillips. "I'll marry you—tonight."

Little Benny's Note Book

Us fellows are getting tired waiting for Sid Hunt and Lucky Leroy Shooster to have their fight, and we were all standing around the letter box talking and arguing, and and Puds Simkins said, Hay Sid, G wizzickers Lucky, when are you 2 guys going to have that fight?

Sure, holey smokes if you're ever going to have it why dont you go ahead and get it over with and relieve the suspense? I said, and Skinny Martin said, Sure, what's a matter, do you want people to start to think you're afraid of each other?

Aw what's a hurry give us time, Sid said, and Lucky said, Sure, it's our fight and we're the only ones got any say about it.

Well after the war even big countries wont be allowed to fight because there's going to be a police force of the world big enough to arrest all Germany or any other place, because I heard my father talking about it, and he agrees with it, I said, and Puds said, Well oh boy, let's start this right now against Sid and Lucky, and if either one of them starts to fight the other one we'll all jump him and show him who's boss.

Sure, let's, that's a swell idea, oh boy, us other fellows said, and Sid Hunt said, Like fun you will, if we want to have a fight this is a free country and nobody's got a right to butt in, have they, Lucky?

I should say not, good night, who's fight is this? Lucky said. We'll go right around in the back street and have it now if we feel like it, wont we, Sid? he said, and Sid said Sure we will absolutely.

Which they did on account of us all keeping on daring them. Proving people will even do what they dont want to do just to show their independence only it was a pretty bum of a fight on account of them both offering to shake hands and quit before it hardly started.

RAF. Ambulance Bears Duke's Body

London, Aug. 28 (CP)—A simple R.A.F. ambulance in drab war paint bore the body of the Duke of Kent today to Windsor.

Crowds in London's busy Euston Station stood silent and bareheaded as the coffin of the Duke, draped with his personal Standard and surmounted by a single wreath of red lilies, was removed from the baggage car of an express train.

Aboard the same train were the bodies of three members of the Duke's entourage who died with him Tuesday in a flying boat crash in Scotland —his secretary, Lieut. John Lowther; his equerry Pilot Officer Michael Strutt, and his valet, leading Aircraftman Hales.

Expect Announcement On Increase of Pay To British Forces

London, Aug. 28. (CP Cable)—A government announcement on pay increases for the army and the men of the other services is expected when parliament reassembles, it was learned last night.

The increases will be made, it was said, to remove the disparity between British Service pay rates and those of munitions workers as well as troops from the Dominions and the United States.

It is understood the question has been under investigation for some time.

The basic daily pay of a British Private is sixty cents compared with the $1.30 for Canadian troops and $1.65 for those in the United States army.

THE WAR TODAY

(By De WITT MacKENZIE)
(Associated Press War Analyst)

The big, full fighting-moon continues to zoom up from the edge of the vast Libyan Desert to invite the embattled Allied and Axis forces to combat over a terrain which by day is a blazing furnace but at night is pleasantly cool and, important to note, largely free of the fierce artillery fire that in daylight sweeps its wide-open spaces.

Still the two armies have remained stationary, apart from comparatively minor sorties. It's passing strange that neither side has initiated a major attack, for in that inhospitable zone one of the decisive victories of the war is awaiting a claimant. Perhaps the answer to the delay is that the drifting sands also hold a decisive defeat for one of them, and this is no time for rashness.

Be that as it may, Rommel the Hitlerite and Alexander the Briton, stand poised like two fighting cocks —hackles erect and steel spurs glinting. And if you ever have seen two birds sizing each other up in the pit you know that suddenly and without warning one of them strikes.

Exceptional Caution

Exceptional caution has been imposed on Marshal Rommel and General Alexander by the unusual positions of their armies. They no longer have fluid lines in wide level reaches over which tanks can race at will. They no longer are able to run around each other's flanks, like speedy warships manoeuvring at sea.

The mobile desert fighting to which we have become accustomed has for the moment given away to trench warfare. The two armies are "dug in" on a 28-mile front which is confined between the blue waters of the Mediterranean on the north and the great Qattara Depression on the south. That depression is a vast sink in the sands, and in places its escarpment rises hundreds of feet.

Tanks to be Used Sparingly

All this means that tanks, which this war have played so vital a part in the Libyan warfare, aren't likely to be able to assume their accustomed role at the outset of a new offensive With the opposing armies drawn up in fixed positions opposite each other from Qattara to El Alamein on the sea there's no way for tanks to do their usual flanking stunts until the lines have been broken, and one would expect artillery and warplanes to prepare the way for an old-fashioned frontal assault by the infantry. It would be dangerous to risk tanks in the beginning against the gunfire they would encounter from fixed positions.

It strikes me that air strength may represent the balance of power in the coming conflict. At this writing the Anglo-American air forces have superiority, and while Rommel is close to his sources of supply, the status of the fierce battle on the Russian front is likely to determine whether Hitler can spare warplanes for his henchman.

I understand from a thoroughly informed source that the Nazi chief is very hard pressed for air strength. He is short of planes, short of gasoline, short of oil and terribly short of pilots because of heavy losses in Russia during the past bloody year. Still, victory in Egypt is essential to him, and he is bound to aid Rommel if possible.

The Nazi Marshal has been greatly strengthened with infantry and supplies since the fighting halted. He is reliably reported to have received 35,000 troops during July in small lots, by air and by sea, and for some time he has been getting about 500 a day by air from Crete. Thus, apart from air power, he probably is pretty well set for action.

Entertainment in Marmora Fair Grounds Sponsored by Legion and Fair Board Features Varied Amateur Program

Marmora — A good evening's entertainment substituting the annual street dance held in former years was held on Marmora Fair Grounds on Wednesday evening under auspices of Marmora Agricultural Society and Marmora Branch No. 237 Canadian Legion. The event drew a large number of people and weather conditions were ideal for the amateur show and games held in the open air.

President T. E. Pritchard with his usual ability took charge of the amateur show. George Wade and Mr. Austin senior and Mr. Austin junior of the Arcadian orchestra were judges. The first prize went to juvenile Jean Haggarty of Ivanhoe, who sang "Give Me One Dozen Roses." The sisters, Marion and Leona Reynolds of Marmora took second honors with their singing number to guitar accompaniment "Turn on Your Radio." John Izzard of Marmora Township came third with a violin selection. Others competing were Doris and Iris Hannah in a duet "Walking Matilda"; Colleen Haggarty of Ivanhoe with songs "Sometime" and "I Miss You" and Johnny Logan who sang "You Ahe My Sunshine." Albert Bartlett also rendered one of his old time songs upon request. A quiz contest concluded the program.

German Prisoner Brought Ashore After Dieppe

A souvenir of the successful large-scale raid of Canadian and British commando units, American Rangers, Free French and others, against Nazi-held Dieppe, on the coast of France, is brought ashore by returning raiders. The souvenir is a German prisoner—one of many—who can be seen blindfolded in the centre here.

With months and months of hard training behind them, commando troops are hardened to pushing on through a barrage of the intensity of that put down by the coast defence guns of the Nazis at Dieppe. The barrage raizes a perfect screen of flying water, smoke and metal as the assault boats carry Canadian and British commando units, American Rangers, and Fighting French to shore to achieve their objectives in large-scale raid at Dieppe, France.

Dieppe Raid in Action From Commando Boats

Returning from the succesful joint operation of Canadian and British commando units, American Rangers, Free French and others, against the Nazis at Dieppe, France, wounded men climb from a landing barge onto a destroyer to be dashed back to England.

The photographer who made this photograph had a ring-side seat at the stirring combined allied operation against the Nazis at Dieppe, France. A destroyer, LEFT REAR, lays down a smoke screen through which the troop and tank-carrying invasion barges dash to make good their landings against the enemy.

Somewhere in England, Aug. 28—(CP Cable)—Essex Scottish who came back from Dieppe pay highest tribute to their gallant young officers, who led them through fierce fighting on the main beach and part of the way into the town.

In the confused and incomplete stories the men brought back, there is continual mention of officers' heroism and their fight to the bitter end.

Several soldiers particularly mentioned Lieut. Jack Prince, son of the Honorary Colonel of the Essex. Prince landed in the dawn attack in front of Dieppe and took cover with his men behind the 10-foot seawall. They exchanged heavy fire with the Germans across the esplanade and suffered heavy casualties from German machine-guns, mortars and artillery that smashed down on the beach.

Three Times Wounded

Maj. John Willis commanded the company in which Prince was an officer. Maj. Willis was wounded three times within three hours, twice in the arm and once in the head. He stuck with his men, with his head and arm wrapped in bandages.

He wouldn't give in and kept fighting with his men, running among them and encouraging them through the horror of the bombing and machine-gunning.

At 8.30 a.m. a mortar bomb exploded near him, according to one soldier, who said he did not see Willis after that.

Capt. Dave Deziel was landing with his company in a tank landing craft and as it got to the preparing to rush the beach a mortar bomb dropped near the craft's bows. Deziel was hit in the stomach and collapsed. He was listed as killed in action.

Lieut. Bill Scott then took over this company and led the men ashore with the shout: "Let's go, boys."

Soldiers recalled the gallant heroism of Lieut. Art. Hueston of Sarnia, Ont. He and his platoon were on a tank landing craft and as the ramp was lowered at the beach machine-gun fire and shells crashed around them, streams of bullets pouring into the boat.

Tank Craft Starts to Drift

A corporal was hit in the mouth and Hueston crouched to help him. Then some kind of high explosive landed inside the craft, setting the tank on fire. The other tanks clanked ashore and the boat started to drift off the beach.

It was 20 yards from land when Hueston and his men jumped into the water and started to swim in. They were all wearing "Mae Wests" but the weight of their arms and ammunition made swimming difficult.

Hueston reached the beach, which was being laced with fire. He didn't give a thought to his own safety but in the true officer tradition thought only of his men.

He threw off his equipment, said a soldier who was there with him, and went back into the water trying to rescue men who were still floundering in the sea. He finally had to give up and it is believed he crossed the beach to the seawall.

The regiment has no definite word about Lt.-Col. F. K. Jasperson, who is listed missing and believed killed.

It is believed, though, that he landed and fought on the beach. The second in command, Maj. Ted Williams, apparently was leading the battalion part of the time, for the force headquarters on the destroyer offshore heard his voice over the wireless asking for tank support. He was "calm and could be heard clearly," an officer said.

Capt. Don McCrae of Ottawa, a Stormont, Dundas and Glengarry officer attached to the Essex, who left Dieppe in a rowboat with several men, said he saw Lieut. Jim Palms of Detroit at the seawall.

"Jim was crouching on the wall, directing his men and preparing to fire," said McRae.

McRae, with Willis most of the time, said the Major was "magnificent beyond words."

Capt. Walt McGregor evidently landed and put up a terrific fight, just as everyone who knew the tall, husky soldier was certain he would. He is listed as missing and believed killed.

Others listed as killed in action included Capt. D. W. Guest, who married an English girl several months ago and carried her picture into battle with him. Lieut. P.O. Lee was listed as missing and believed killed.

Missing After Dieppe

Lieut. Jack Taylor, one of the fastest running halfbacks ever to play Canadian football, is listed as missing after the commando raid on Dieppe. He played with the Argonauts and Hamilton Tigers.

4 Fliers Killed, Planes Collide In Mid-Air

Stratford, Ont., Aug. 28 —(CP)— Two of the four fliers killed in an airplane accident here yesterday were today identified as PO. J. E. Mosher of Aylmer, Ont., and LAC. J. McVicar of Glasgow, Scotland. Names of the other two were withheld by authorities until next-of-kin have been notified.

The accident occurred when a plane from No. 14 Service Flying Training School, Aylmer, collided in mid-air with a machine from No. 12 Elementary Flying Training School, Goderich, Ont., three miles north of here.

One plane crashed in flames and the other machine was demolished when it fell nearby.

St. Thomas, Ont., Aug. 28 —(CP) —PO. J. E. Mosher, 21, one of the victims of the airplane accident north of Stratford, had been a flying instructor at the Aylmer Service Flying School for 14 months. He was married only a month ago.

Mosher was flying on a navigational instructional flight at the time of the accident.

Mess Room Chatter Of Canada's Airmen

With the R.C.A.F. Somewhere in England, Aug. 26 (CP)—Two young veterans of an R.C.A.F. bomber squadron, Flt. Sgt. Stan Cybuski of Pembroke, Ont., and Sgt. Heath Gattey, of Stettler, Alta., have been commissioned as pilot officers. Their squadron is commanded by Wing Cmdr. D. A. R. Bradshaw of London, Ont.

In one of the most active bomber squadrons of the R.C.A.F. overseas, Cybulski and Gattey, an observer, have seen action in most of the recent big raids on the Reich. Gattey is related to Harold Gattey who was Wiley Post's navigator on the globe-girdling flight of the Winnie Mae a few years ago.

The boys should be pretty pleased with this experiment, which promised to remove some of their greatest worries. At some northern bomber stations, the boys and girls get together at a weekly "at home". The men bring along socks they have to be darned or clothes that need mending. The girls do the mending and the men return the compliment by cleaning the buttons on the W.A.A.F.'s uniforms and doing other odd jobs. Hot drinks and snacks are served and the "at home" ends with a singsong.

Fighting France's famous group, the Ile de France, which flies daily with the R.A.F. in cross-Channel sweeps, has a new hero—a "sergent pilote."

One of three sergeants who recently escaped from North Africa to Gibraltar in their own aircraft, he was over the coastline of his homeland when a shell carried away his directional rudder and the apparatus which permits the machine to rescend. By manipulating the wing tips and the accelerator, he somehow reached the English coast.

He disregarded a wireless warning not to land and decided to try to save the machine. Letting his lame duck sink slowly and dropping his under-carriage with the greatest difficulty, he came down safely.

It was a Canadian squadron that provided air cover for the air-sea rescue launches dispatched to search for Wing Cmdr. Paddy Finucane when the Irish ace crashed in the Channel early in July. Men of the Spitfire squadron commanded by Sqdn. Ldr. Bob Morrow of Toronto held off a wave of attacking Focke-Wulf 190's which attempted to penetrate the circles to attack the launches as they scoured the Channel.

The squadron destroyed at least one Focke-Wulf. So many Canadians had their guns blazing that it has been impossible to determine whose shells did the job.

With the R. C. A. F. Somewhere in England, Aug. 26 — (CP) — The German ack-ack gunners are not so stupid, after all. That's the verdict of Flt. Sgt. Sandy McLean of Welland, Ont., who came back to this air station in the Midlands and reported getting "the business" over a German town on which he had no designs at all.

McLean and his fellow-members of the crew of a Lancaster from an R.A.F. bombing squadron were out on the second raid on Mainz when they overshot the target.

Here's what happened, as McLean tells it:—

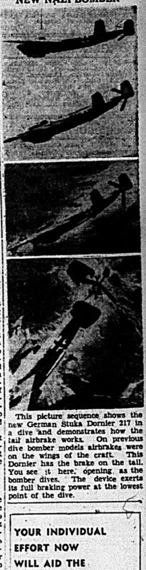
"We found ourselves over Frankfurt. Those wily Huns were pretty clever too. Instead of opening up on us with searchlights and flak while we were on the edge of the city, they waited until we were well over the middle. And then, wow! They threw everything at us except the guns themselves. We were lucky to get out of there and when we dropped our load later, over Mainz, we found it peaceful by comparison."

Mainz, it should be remembered, was left by men of the R.C.A.F. and R.A.F. with 135 acres devastated.

At this same R.A.F. station the boys were chuckling about the story of the Duke of Richmond and Gordon which is going the messroom rounds. The Duke was gazetted a pilot officer and when the officer responsible for postings saw the name he arranged postings for what he thought were two distinct personalities.

The Duke of Richmond (pilot officer) was ordered to one station. Pilot Officer the Duke of Gordon was sent to another. Only one station received the Duke in person while the other waited anxiously for several days before reporting the non-existent Duke missing.

NEW NAZI BOMBER



This picture sequence shows the new German Stuka Dornier 217 in a dive and demonstrates how the tail airbrake works. On previous dive bomber models airbrakes were on the wings of the craft. This Dornier has the brake on the tail. You see it here, opening, as the bomber dives. The device exerts its full braking power at the lowest point of the dive.

NUREMBERG, SAARBRUECKEN HEAVILY ATTACKED

Russians Fight Off Penetrations Before Stalingrad

CHINESE START OFFENSIVE NORTH OF CANTON

British, Canadian Bombers Leave Large Fires Burning

Nearly 10 Million Pounds of Explosives Dumped on War Production Centres

30 BOMBERS LOST

London, Aug. 29 (CP) — Nuremberg, a great war industries centre and the rally ground of Hitler's Nazi party, and the Saar steel centre of Saarbruecken were attacked heavily by a strong force of British and Canadian bombers which left large fires burning in both cities last night.

The heaviest assault was on Nuremberg, the Air Ministry said. 30 bombers were lost from the "large force" of perhaps several hundred, many of which packed eight tons of explosives each.

Objectives in Northern France were raided by the smaller and swifter fighters during the night.

The bombers flew nearly 500 miles to reach Nuremberg, deep in southern Germany, once a peaceful old city and now a centre of Nazi war production. Saarbruecken, on the French border and only about 25 miles from Metz, is a rich coal and iron-producing centre.

An Air Ministry communique said 30 bombers failed to return from the mission. On the basis of average five-per-cent losses on similar large-scale raids in the past, this would put the number of participating planes at 600.

The attacking force was understood to have included one and possibly more Canadian bombing squadrons.

The assault was the third this week against German industrial centres. On Thursday night a force of approximately the same strength smashed at the former Polish port of Gdynia, only a few miles west of Danzig on the Baltic Sea, and at Kassel, a locomotive building centre. Monday night Wiesbaden and Frankfurt were the targets.

Important Munitions Centre

Nuremberg is the home of the Nan tank factory and has a large aluminum works manufacturing piston rods and castings. The Siemen-Schuckert factory there makes heavy electrical equipment.

The ancient old German city is also an important railway centre and has large repair shops for locomotives and rolling stock. It is on the Ludwig Canal, connecting the Main and Danube Rivers.

In striking at Nuremberg, Britain was attacking one of the best-known German garrison towns. In recent years, it had acquired considerable notice as the parade ground and sounding board for the annual Nazi party conventions, but these have been suspended for the duration of the war.

In Coal Mining Area

Saarbruecken, in the rich Saar valley, is in the centre of some 70 square miles of coal mines. It has gigantic iron works and steel mills.

R.C.A.F. men on the raid reported conditions so nearly perfect that every detail of the streets and buildings of Saarbruecken stood out in relief.

"We took three runs over the target before dropping our stuff and we just couldn't miss," said Sgt.-Pilot Ronald Bell of Victoria, B.C., who flew with Sgt. John Bell of New Glasgow, N.S., and Sgt. Arthur Dorey of Tantallon, N.S.

Flt.-Sgt. Daniel Allen of Lennoxville, Que., hopping from his plane in the early-morning darkness, said "it was a marvellous trip as far as flying and bombing conditions were concerned."

"The place was afire in a number of spots when we arrived and there was no mistaking the target," Allen added.

The Quebec flier had his usual crew along: PO. Alan Hill, Vancouver; Sgt. Tom Reeves, New Westminster, B.C., and Sgt. Glen Scott, Fredericton, N.B.

"Twenty-one is my lucky number and this is my 21st. birthday, so I was hardly surprised it went so well," said Sgt. Robert Berry, of Hamilton, Ont.

Other Canadians pounding Saarbruecken included Flt.-Sgt. Jack Price, Indian Head, Sask.; Sgt. J. K. Knight, Calgary, and Sgt. Wm. Rowland, of Brussels, Ont.

Huns Suffer

In addition to the massive night assault, the Germans have suffered under daylight precision raids in occupied territories by Flying Fortresses of the United States air forces and extensive sweeps by British and Canadian fighter squadrons.

Apparently roused by this round-the-clock schedule, the Germans struck back last night, dropping explosive and incendiary bombs in northeast and eastern England, mostly in coastal areas. The Germans said Sunderland was one target.

Eight persons were killed in one town in northeastern England when a bomb destroyed four homes. Workers dug in the debris throughout the night and rescued a baby boy alive. He was the only survivor.

Bombs were dropped during daylight today on a west England town.

The heavy bombers used the "saturation" technique of attack by which great numbers of bombers crowd into the air space over their targets.

The extent of losses was ascribed by observers to the brilliant moonlight and cloudless skies, highly favorable to anti-aircraft and night fighter defence.

While the strength of the raiders was not officially disclosed, it was understood to have run well into three figures but not to have been near 1,000-bomber proportions.

On Monday night Wiesbaden and Frankfurt were the targets. On Thursday night, the powerful bombers, escorted by Canadian Spitfire squadrons, flew hundreds of miles to the former Polish port of Gdynia a few miles west of Danzig, while other planes blasted the German locomotive-building centre of Kassel.

Fortresses Fill In.

United States Flying Fortresses filled in between the raids with a daylight attack on Meaulte, important airplane centre in northern France yesterday.

R.C.A.F. Spitfire squadrons escorting the Fortresses scored one probable and also damaged several Nazi planes in heavy fighting. Other British and American Spitfire squadrons and fast Boston attack bombers swept the invasion coast from Calais to the Seine.

One R.C.A.F. fighter was lost out of the two escorting squadrons led by Sqdn. Ldrs. Norm Bretz of Toronto and Keith Hodson of London, Ont.

Returning Canadians said opposition for a few minutes was almost equal to that encountered over Dieppe.

"It really was thick and fast while it lasted," said PO. Don Morrison of Toronto. "Jerry had a lot of kites in the air."

'They're Awful—But They're Lovely' Says Air Gunner of Raids on Huns

By ALAN RANDAL
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

An R.A.F. Bomber Station, Somewhere in England, Aug. 29 (CP) — "Non, they're awful—but they're lovely," said the little air gunner from Edinburgh.

It was Sgt. Jock Aitken talking. He stood in the air station tea room after his 22nd operational flight and told about the 4,000-pound bomb such as he and his crewmates, two of them Canadians, dropped on Dusseldorf just a couple of hours before.

It wasn't a 1,000-plane raid, but it was a big one and it took Germany more of the really heavy stuff than ever before.

It was part of the heavy hammering which started with early spring's four-figure raids and led Air Marshal Sir Arthur T. Harris to say 1,000 bombers over Germany every night would win the war by autumn.

Jock the Scot echoed the bomber chief's words. "It was prime," he said. "If we could get there every night like we did tonight we'd end this in three months. They just couldn't stand it.

"But it's terrible when those big ones go off. We have to fly a mile away from them or we'd be blown up too."

Standing there with Jock and these kids who had just been in and out of German skies, you got a feeling they'd done a job of destruction almost beyond the powers of imagination.

"I don't care what Joe Goebbels says, we're knocking hell out of them," said Sgt. Ken Jackson of Saskatoon, one of the Canadians at this same station with Aitken.

The station commander talked the same way. He spoke of London and the damage the Germans did there and reminded that bombs have grown a lot since then; that the Germans are getting them now.

"I just wish you could realize how we're hurting them and hitting at them, gentlemen," he said.

From his words and manner you got the idea these reports filtering from occupied France and Sweden of 200,000 German evacuees from the bombed areas of the Ruhr and Rhine were right that there was truth to reports of people fleeing in thousands from such spots as Lubeck, Cologne, Hamburg.

FIVE RULERS HEAD MOURNERS AT SIMPLE SERVICE

Funeral for Duke Of Kent Held in St. George's Chapel in Windsor Castle

DUCHESS PRESENT

WINDSOR, England, Aug. 29 — (CP) — Four Kings — George VI of England, Haakon of Norway, George of Greece and Peter of Yugoslavia — and Queen Wilhelmina of the Netherlands headed mourners today at simple funeral services for the Duke of Kent in St. George's Chapel.

The Duchess of Kent entered the Chapel with the Queen and Queen Mary and the former helped the Duchess up the step to her seat in the choir stalls. All three wore heavy crepe veils.

The Duchess sobbed through the brief rites for her husband, killed in an air crash in Scotland Tuesday, and as the coffin was lowered on to the purple-covered bier she sank to her knees in prayer.

When she rose the Queen comforted her while the Dean of Windsor, Very Rev. Albert Baillie, intoned the burial service.

The King, with tears in his eyes, moved forward and sprinkled earth upon the coffin as it descended slowly into the vaults.

Draped with the personal standard of the dead Duke, the coffin had two wreaths on it. One was from the King and Queen and the other from the widow. The latter was of red and white roses, the Duke's favorite flowers, which the Duchess had cut in their garden.

The funeral was the first to follow R.A.F. rites to be held in the historic Chapel of the Order of the Garter and the first, too, for a member of the House of Windsor killed on active service.

Six N. C. O.'s Carry Body

Six non-commissioned officers of the R.A.F. carried the Duke's coffin on their shoulders and the chief pallbearers were all high officers of the service in which the Duke lost his life. They included Air Marshal Harold Edwards of the R.C.A.F.

The King wore R.A.F. uniform as he walked behind the coffin, with the Duke of Gloucester, in khaki as a lieutenant-general, on his right, and Admiral Sir Lionel Halsey, who represented the Duke of Windsor, on his left.

The 28-year-old Duke of Connaught walked beside Lord Louis Mountbatten, chief of combined operations.

Men from two regiments of which the Duke of Kent was colonel-in-chief—The Royal Fusiliers and The Royal West Kents—lined the west side of the flag-draped chapel with men of the R.A.F. and the Royal Navy lining the other two sides.

Major Defence Crisis Apparent as Workers Assist Russian Troops

Dead Clad in Greyish Green of Hitler's Legions Piled High on Sandy Steppes Before Soviet Trenches Testify to the Extreme Fury of Battle Before City Gates

PRISONERS HUNGRY, EXHAUSTED

By EDDY GILMORE
(Associated Press Staff Writer)

Moscow, Aug. 29 —(AP)— Soviet troops have hurled back German attacks both north and south of Stalingrad by vigorous counter attacks, but enemy tanks and infantry are wedged deeply into the city's defences in another sector and the Nazi command has moved two fresh divisions into action, the Russians said today.

Dead men clad in the greyish green of Hitler's legions were reported piled high on the sandy steppes before Soviet trenches and the government newspaper Izvestia described prisoners as hungry and almost exhausted.

Nevertheless, a major defence crisis was apparent.

A Nazi tank division and one more infantry division manoeuvred into position after a forced march from the Don Bend bridgeheads and aerial transports, plying the skies with fighters and Stukas, brought up hundreds of other Germans.

Some of these dropped as parachutists behind the Russian lines. Automatic gunners duelled in the areas between fortified positions. Smoke spiralled up from bombed areas of Stalingrad, sprawled on the west bank of the Volga.

The government declared 2,800 Germans, Rumanians and Italians died in a vain attempt to hold one wedge under Russian counter attacks northwest of the city.

Russia's central front offensive remained concentrated against Rzhev, 130 miles northwest of Moscow, and several more points on the outskirts of that Nazi stronghold were reported neutralized.

"In another sector our rifle units, supported by tanks, stormed an inhabited locality which the enemy had transformed into a strong pocket of resistance", the Soviet Information Bureau said. "A tank

Red army men were declared bearing up under mass bombings and their sharp flanking blows southwest of Stalingrad were reported to have put the Germans on the defensive.

The sector of the deep German penetration was not identified, but the implication was it was west of the town. The midday communique said that "in this engagement also the Germans suffered heavy losses in men and equipment."

One incident was cited from the southwestern theatre, in which a Soviet unit threw back an enemy attack, destroyed two German tanks and killed 150 Germans.

Strike At Caucasus Army.

Russian forces were reported to have struck heavily at axis columns driving into the Caucasus and recaptured 13 additional villages during increased assaults upon German fortifications in the upper Volga bog lands near Rzhev, 130 miles northwest of Moscow.

PLANTS TO CEASE WORK MONDAY IF DEMAND NOT MET

Government Intervention Only Hope for Averting Walkouts

2 PLANTS INVOLVED

By FRASER MacDOUGALL
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., Aug. 29—(CP)—Only the possibility of Dominion Government intervention held hope today for averting walkouts in sprawling steel works at Sault Ste. Marie and Sydney, N.S., following announcement last night the plants would cease operations at 11 o'clock Monday night unless demands of steel workers for wage increases were met by 11 p.m. Sunday.

The announcement came from C. H. Millard, Canadian director of the United Steel Workers of America, to whom union locals here and at Sydney delegated authority to handle their cases after they voted last week to strike if necessary to enforce their demands for a basic labor wage rate of 55 cents an hour.

Strike Votes Taken

The strike votes were taken after regional war labor boards in Ontario and Nova Scotia had rejected applications for the increase from the present rates of 45½ cents at the Algoma Steel Corporation Plant here and 43½ cents at the Dominion Steel and Coal Corporation Plant at Sydney.

Mr. Millard's statement said that unless he was able to give the two local unions assurance before Sunday night at 11 o'clock "that their case has been reconsidered by the authorities at Ottawa and the employers involved are agreed to the minimum rates required" they would cease operations 24 hours later.

Arrangements Made

An accompanying statement, issued by William Mahoney, secretary of the Sault local, said the Algoma Steel Corporation here "has agreed to make the necessary arrangements for Monday night at 11 p. m. when a cessation of work will begin if it becomes necessary."

CRYPTIC ACCOUNT OF DIEPPE RAID GIVEN BY MAJOR

Paul Garneau Only Member of Famed 22nd Reg't. in Action

ON BEACH AT 6.05

By WILLIAM STEWART
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Somewhere in England, Aug. 29—(CP Cable)—Le Royal 22nd Regiment, whose name became Quebec's boast in the First Great War, did not take part in the Dieppe raid but it managed, nevertheless, to shake its tough French-Canadian fist at Dieppe's defenders through Maj. Paul Garneau of Montreal.

This tough, little 26-year-old officer was the 22nd's only representative at Dieppe as staff captain of the brigade commanded by Brig. Sherwood Lett of Vancouver. He was aboard the craft from which Brig. Lett maintained control of his tank and infantry battalions even after being wounded and being placed on a stretcher inside its shell-punctured hull.

Garneau, who said he understood he had been reported missing and believed killed and had sent two cables to his wife to prove he is alive, gave a cryptic account of the share he gave his regiment in the Canadians' first operation of the war.

This is his story:—

"When we went into Dieppe I was aboard a tank-landing craft. The craft carried 'A' group of brigade headquarters. Aboard were Brig. Lett, several Canadian colonels, two British commando colonels, Maj. F. E. Bell of Regina,

UNARMED HUNTERS SEEK ESCAPED MONKEY

Toronto, Ont., Aug. 29. (CP)—Unarmed hunters are searching the Erindale-Streetsville area 15 miles northwest of here today for Moko, an African green monkey, who escaped at Easter from a private zoo. Moko steals money and tickets from milk bottles, delights children, torments dogs and is partial to red-headed women.

BRITISH SINK A LARGE TANKER AND SUPPLY SHIP

Subs Also Score Torpedo Hits on Three Other Supply Ships In Mediterranean

FOUR CRAFT TAKE PART

London, Aug. 29 (CP).—British submarines in the Mediterranean, pursuing their campaign against German and Italian shipping, have sunk a large tanker and a large supply ship and scored torpedo hits on three other supply vessels, the Admiralty announced today.

Four undersea craft were cited for these new successes.

One, commanded by Cmdr. J. W. Linton, attacked a convoy of two large supply ships escorted by three destroyers.

"Results of this attack were not observed," the Admiralty said, "but it is considered both the supply ships were hit."

Erskine Eaton Dies at Dieppe

Toronto, Ont., August 29 — Captain Erskine Robert Eaton, 27, second son of Colonel and Mrs. R. Y. Eaton, Highland avenue, Toronto, was killed in the Aug. 19 raid on Dieppe, his parents have been advised.

Since attending St. Andrew's College and University of Toronto Schools and R.M.C., he had been living in Montreal for several years prior to the outbreak of war.

Captain Eaton was a well-known horseman. After being commissioned as a second lieutenant in the Governor-General's Body Guard, Toronto, in 1931, he went to Europe as a member of the army horse show team, representing Canada at Olympia, London and Dublin. In October, 1939, Erskine Eaton joined Les Fusiliers Mont Royal as a lieutenant. He proceeded overseas in May, 1940, and was gazetted captain in the spring of the present year.

He also served as intelligence officer of the 5th Brigade. At the time of his death he was second-in-command of "D" company.

"I deeply regret his death," his former commanding officer, Colonel Paul Grenier, said, "but I feel proud to think that an English-speaking Canadian has contributed to the writing of another great page in the history of our French-Canadian military annals."

Captain Eaton's family is closely associated with the Canadian army. His father, Colonel R. Y. Eaton, has been honorary lieutenant-colonel of the Governor - General's Horse Guards since 1929. A brother, Maj. J. W. Eaton, also a member of the militia since 1931, has been overseas with the Fifth Canadian (Armored) Division since the fall of last year. A sister, Major Margaret C. Eaton, Canadian Women's Army Corps, is at present staff officer attached to headquarters of M.D. No. 4, Montreal. Alan Eaton, youngest son of Col. and Mrs. R. Y. Eaton is a lieutenant in the Third (Reserve) Armored Regiment, Governor-General's Horse Guards.

Powerful Drive Begun as Chinese Capture Pakong

Japanese Still Are Retreating Before Chinese Who Are In Hot Pursuit

OTHERS CENTRES TAKEN

Chungking, Aug. 29 (AP)—The Chinese have launched a vigorous new offensive against the Japanese 40 miles north of Canton to match the attacks farther north which have brought recapture of Chuhsien and Lisui, sites of the two biggest airfields in eastern China, the Central News Agency reported tonight.

The offensive began Thursday along the Canton-Hankow Railway, the dispatch reported, with Chinese troops crossing a stream 40 miles north of Japanese-occupied Canton, capturing the town of Pakong and driving the Japanese southward

Chinese in Hot Pursuit

Several other points since have been taken in quick succession, including Kweitouling, and Nangchanngau, and the Japanese still are retreating, with the Chinese in hot pursuit.

Meanwhile the Chinese in Chekiang Province to the north reinforced their hold on the newly recaptured Chuhsien airfield from which United Nations planes may one day bomb Japan.

Dispatches from the front said Chuhsien and Changshutan, five miles to the east, both had been occupied.

The Chinese high command confirmed earlier press reports of the recapture of Chuhsien, Lishui and surrounding points from the Japanese.

A communique said Chuhsien was retaken Friday at 4 a.m.; Lishui at 6 a.m., after bitter street fighting; and Shichang, 38 miles northwest of Lishui, at 4 p.m.

Six hundred Japanese were killed or wounded inside Lishui and 600 more in Suichang, the communique reported, while the invaders' garrison at Sungyang in the same area is "facing annihilation."

Chinese forces are completing mopping-up operations, it said. In this process, field dispatches reported, the Chinese took Changshutan, five miles east of Chuhsien.

R. A. F. Fighters Cross Channel In Swarms

Folkestone, England, Aug. 29 — (CP) — Swarms of R. A. F. fighters swept across the English Channel in the direction of France this morning, apparently bent on a second successive day of assaults on German military targets in the occupied area.

Sounds of gunfire and the high-pitched roar of powerful motors indicated that some of the raiders were engaged in violent combat above the channel haze.

FIGHTING GROWS IN INTENSITY AT MILNE BAY

Allied Headquarters, Australia, Aug. 29, (CP)—Fighting appeared to be growing in intensity today along the muddy shores of Milne Bay as veteran Australian troops battled with effective Allied air support against Japanese forces attempting to consolidate a shaky grip on the southeastern tip of New Guinea.

A communique from Allied headquarters said the Australians were in close contact with the recently-landed Japanese and described the fighting as "heavy".

A small number of United States service troops were reported in the battle area, but the Allied fighting forces are composed of tried Australian Imperials and militia.

Allied medium bombers, piloted by Americans and escorted by Australian airmen in fighter planes, raked the beach-heads established by the Japanese and the communique said "numerous fires were started".

The Japanese apparently filtered into forbidding jungle where they were engaged by the Australians, sloshing along in frequent trails and slashing their way through mangrove swamps to meet the invader

A spokesman said the weather, which had slowed the early progress of the land and air battle, was "better now", but the troops still were fighting in heavy mud.

The battle was proceeding several miles from the head of Milne Bay along the north shore. A narrow beach there fades into the swampy jungle land.

INCREASED AIR ACTIVITY

CAIRO, Aug. 29 — (AP) — Continued R.A.F. attacks on Axis motor vehicles in the central sector of the Egyptian front were accompanied by a slight increase of enemy air activity yesterday, a British communique said today, but there was no sign of a break in the lull in land fighting.

The communique said patrols had been active by night along the entire front, skirmishing with enemy patrols and harassing working parties.

GANDHI'S SON DISMISSED

New Delhi, Aug. 29 — (CP) — Devadas Gandhi, son of Mohandas K. Gandhi and managing editor of the Hindustan Times, was discharged by a magistrate today at his hearing on charges of violating the Defence of India Regulations.

The younger Gandhi was arrested Aug. 19 following publication of reports in his newspaper concerning the rioting which followed the "non-violent civil disobedience" campaign started by his father.

Year Ending Sept. 1 Viewed as War's "Black Year" by the United Nations

By CARL C. CRAMMER
Associated Press Staff Writer

NEW YORK, Aug. 29 — (AP) — The 12 months ending Sept. 1 seem likely to go down as the "black year" for the United Nations in the Second Great War.

Like 1917 — the third year of the First Great War — 1942 saw the conflict rising fiercely to a climax which was likely to be reached in a few months.

This war year was only starting its second quarter when the Japanese attacked Pearl Harbor at Sunday dawn, Dec. 7, and brought about the biggest event of the year —the entry of the United States into the conflict.

Disaster followed disaster in sickening train. Guam, Wake, Hong Kong, Manila, Singapore, Java, Rangoon, Bataan, Corregidor — some of them Gibraltars of the white man in the Far East — fell in quick succession and the Japanese had in their possession all of the Philippines, Malaya, Burma and the Netherlands East Indies.

Crippled by the attack on Pearl Harbor and unprepared for a seven-ocean war, the United States navy fought a desperate battle in the Western Atlantic waters with submarines which took a toll of at least 440 ships in a few months.

MANY YOUNG GIRLS LOOK FOR POSITION

Two things were proven to the manager of the local United Cigar Store on Front Street on Friday morning—first was the power of the press and second that there were many girls and young women in the city looking for positions.

Thursday evening's edition of the Ontario Intelligencer carried a small classified advertisement asking for two girls with sales ability to take counter positions at the cigar store, applicants to apply on Friday morning. The manager naturally expected some response but he did not expect the deluge of girls which beseiged the store the following morning.

"After the first twenty-five girls were interviewed I lost track of the count", laughed the store official last evening. "Altogether there must have been between thirty and forty girls looking for the positions."

Service Truck In Accident

While adjusting the rear vision mirror in his motor car, an automobile driven by Howard Simpson, of the Mountain View Bombing School, sideswiped the Trenton R.C.A.F. service police truck a few hundred yards west of the city limits on Highway No. 2 shortly after one o'clock Saturday morning. The force of the impact resulted in both vehicles turning over in opposite ditches. An airman riding in the service police truck sustained a back injury and was removed to the nearby No. 5 Intial Training School R.C.A.F. hospital.

The large service police truck being forced into the south ditch. Simpson and all but one occupant of the truck escaped with slight abrasions. Damage estimated at over $300.00 resulted, collectively, to the vehicles.

Traffic Officers W. G. Milton and J. H. Hatch investigated.

THE WAR TODAY

By DE WITT MACKENZIE
(Associated Press War Analyst)

The Hitlerite claim to have planted the Nazi flag atop Mount Elbrus, highest peak in the lofty Caucasus range or in all Europe for that matter, has aroused a great deal of curiosity and I've been asked to explain the significance of this garish exhibition.

It presents an interesting study in Prussian psychology. Perhaps one might better describe it as a psychopathic problem, since it has to do with the psychosis which has resulted in the Deutscland-Uber-Alles mentality and the more recent belief in the super-human qualities of the German race.

Here it should be said in fairness that this mountain-climbing stunt isn't entirely due to the March hare fanaticism which produced that horrid abnormality known as Nazism. It has no military importance, of course, because if it was carried out at all it was by a handful of mountaineers. Still, it isn't a bad bit of advertising.

The idea of such a feat is (1) to demonstrate that the Reich always is on top, (2) to give a display of Nazi prowess and fearlessness, and (3) to create in the other fellow an inferiority complex which has him forever looking up at the Prussian. In some quarters that type of propaganda works.

Still, the propaganda angle is only an incidental part of the story, and in order to develop our thesis we should take a further look at the Nazi-climbing penchant. Elbrus isn't the first height they have scaled in this war, or before it. They're always climbing—and they're good at it.

Put Flag on Eiffel Tower

One of the first things they did on entering Paris was to mount to the top of the Eiffel Tower and fly the Swastika. Not satisfied with that, they stuck their flag on Napoleon Bonaparte's grand Arc De Triomphe.

When the Nazis stormed their way into Greece last year they hotfooted it to the home of the ancient Greek gods on Mount Olympus and there planted Hitler's emblem. The highest point in Athens is the Acropolis and naturally the Swastika was unfurled there.

And so it goes. Herr Hitler's favorite retreat is his mansion high in the Bavarian Alps at Berchtesgaden.

Now the mere fact that a chap likes to climb mountains doesn't mean that he has brain-storms, but the idea of dominating the world as a superior being is a Prussian characteristic. It's the same thing which used to make the Prussian army officers knock ordinary civilians off the sidewalk as he swanked by, and which bred the insufferable arrogance for which the Prussian is notorious.

Spirit of Prussianism

Now Nazism is the bedevilled spirit of Prussianism.

Hitler—sometimes called Schickelgruber because that was the name of paternal ancestors—isn't a Prussian by birth. He is an Austrian, but from his boyhood the Prussians have been his idea, and it is recorded that as a youngster he used to dream of the time when all Europe would be ruled by such a race.

That dream has persisted until we have his distorted ambition to rule the world and make all other peoples literally the slaves of the Prussians. We see him carrying this out in Europe right now. He must be on top, looking down.

He has made this unholy doctrine an integral part of Nazism, and to my mind this goes far toward explaining the unnatural features of the climbing complex. The sealing of the heights to attract attention helps satisfy an ugly desire.

Weekly War Commentary

By Maj.-Gen. Sir Charles Gwynn

London, Aug. 29 (CP Cable) — Russian resistance is facing its most critical threat of the war and so far has lost nothing of either its spirit or its level-headed planning.

The German advance on Stalingrad has moved at great cost to Field Marshal Fedor Von Bock's resources and it now has been announced that for the last two weeks the Russians have been making a move in force in the central sector.

This counter-attack was launched on a front of more than 70 miles northwest of Moscow and smashed German positions for a depth of 30 miles.

In addition to heavy casualties, the Germans have lost much equipment. Von Bock's all-out drive for Stalingrad has made progress, but at a price.

Considerable success seems to have been made by the Red army's counter-blow, which wasn't unexpected, although the moment for it again seems to have been shrewdly chosen.

The communication lines of Stalingrad and the Volga are still, however, in great danger. When the Germans, after several failures, succeeded in gaining a foothold over the Don it still seemed possible that they would be unable to form a bridgehead large enough for the deployment of a force of dangerous strength. The Russians were counter-attacking vigorously and had powerful artillery support. That hope, though, was a disappointment, principally because of the immense concentration of air power which the Nazis were able to produce and also to their probable advantage in artillery positions.

HEAVY LOSSES

Under this cover of armor, the Germans were able to make large-scale advances and though it does not seem that they made a deep penetration, yet by driving in short tank wedges the infantry was able to make progress.

The Moscow-Stalingrad railroad is reported to be within short artillery range now. The German losses must have been very heavy but it is instilled into every German officer that to shrink from losses is the worst military defect in a general and it is one from which Von Bock does not suffer.

The German drive in the northeast from Kotelniko also has made progress although it has suffered reverses and the extent of its advance is not yet known.

BLACK SEA FLEET

In the western Caucasus, too, the Germans have advanced but at a slowest pace since the fighting has been approaching the hills. The Russians still speak of rear-guard action here and they may be fighting for time rather than attempting to definitely stop the German advance. The Black Sea fleet continues to operate successfully but what base it is using has not been revealed. It can hardly be Novorossisk, now under close air attack.

There can be no doubt but that the Germans are making their main effort at Stalingrad and the coming week may bring them success or something approaching definite failure.

The situation in Egypt is still in suspense but at any moment the lull may be broken. Here also the coming week may be marked by great events.

We know as much about the Dieppe landing as is likely to be revealed for some time. Perhaps one of the most outstanding points which has been brought out was the effective co-operative action, in which the action of one arm compelled the enemy to offer a target to another.

At Dieppe, the attack brought the German air force to life and gave the R.A.F. an opportunity which it had evaded when acting alone.

The entry of Brazil into the war should tend to make the recent satisfactory reduction in shipping losses more marked. It will provide a basis for both offensive and protective naval and air action and reduce the leakage of information.

Glancing Back 25 Years

British and French heavy artillery helped the Italians to step up their offensive against Austria late in August, 1917. For a few weeks Gen. Luigi Cadorna's troops gained ground on the Bainsizza Plateau and in other sectors of the mountainous front. Reinforcements from the eastern front were flung into the battle by the Austrians and Cadorna suspended operations and ordered the preparation of defensive positions.

Carnival Time Nears for Kiwanis Club in City

Carnival time for the Kiwanis Club is rapidly approaching and the members are getting in their last licks before the opening on Tuesday night and which will continue until Thursday evening. This Carnival is being conducted primarily to raise funds to defray the expenses of remodelling the Kiwanis Centre, which is now being used as the Red Cross Blood Donor Clinic and which is sponsored by the Kiwanis Club. This building is a credit to the City of Belleville and the entire district and probably no more useful war work is being done than that of collecting blood, which will be sent overseas to assist in alleviating the sufferings of those wounded in battle and perhaps in many cases save a man's life.

The Kiwanis Club realizes the seriousness of the situation in Europe and the world in general and this Carnival is not a place for all enjoyment but a place where people can relax from the tenseness and still at the same time contribute to a worthy effort. The attractions and games will all be manned by Kiwanis members and the prizes at the games will be really worthwhile. Besides the games there will be several contests and one which has taken the public fancy is the Junior girls' bathing contest. This contest is for tots of five years and under and George Forhan, Chairman of this committee, has a large entry list with more coming in all the time. Each contestant is sponsored by some merchant in the city and the prizes for the winners will be quite generous. The Belleville War Worker contest is progressing satisfactorily and the good ladies of the Kiwanis Club are again interested in the Hope Chest for which a large number of tickets have been sold. All in all the Carnival will mark another milestone in the activities of the local club and it is hoped and expected the citizens will rally to the grand cause.

DR. J. S. THOMSON RECOMMENDED AS CBC GEN. MGR.

Will Succeed Maj. Gladstone Murray Who Becomes Director-General of Broadcasting

NO OTHER CHANGES

Ottawa, Aug. 29 (CP).—Dr. James Sutherland Thomson, 50, Scottish president of the University of Saskatchewan, has been recommended to the federal government by his fellow-members of the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation Board of Governors as general manager of the National Radio System for one year.

He would succeed Maj. Gladstone Murray, present general manager, who has been appointed to a new position as director general of broadcasting where, in the words of Rene Morin of Montreal, CBC board chairman, he will have scope for creative work and the development of CBC programs.

Mr. Augustin Frigon will continue as assistant general manager.

Action by the board of governors, announced last night after a lengthy meeting, followed the report of a House of Commons special committee on radio broadcasting presented in July and which recommended that the governors consider whether Maj. Murray could be used in some capacity other than that of general manager.

The committee report said that Maj. Murray had given great service to Canadian broadcasting since his appointment as general manager in 1936, but in view of what it termed the board's loss of confidence in his ability in financial matters, its attitude on his own expenses and in view of "other material placed before the committee", his employment in some other position should be considered.

In the statement issued following its meeting ,the board of governors outlined the progress of the CBC since the appointment of Maj. Murray in 1936, including the development "of a news service unexcelled in radio".

The board recommendation will go to war services minister Thorson, of whose department the CBC is part, and early action by the government was expected.

Mr. Morin said later that the fact Dr. Thomson's appointment would be for one year did not mean his services would be limited to that period. He might continue as general manager after the year had elapsed.

Dr. Thomson, born in Stirling, Scotland, came to Canada in 1930 after he had served for six years as secretary for youth and education of the general assembly of the Church of Scotland. A graduate of Glasgow University, he served during the First Great War with a Highland regiment and later with the rifle brigade, rising to the rank of captain. After the war, he graduated from Trinity College, Cambridge, with honors in theology.

PLANTS TO CEASE

The statement said the company has provided a special union committee with a list of maintenance men essential for safe-guarding the property. The committee also met the mayor and police commissioner to discuss maintenance of order and requested a curtailment of hours of sale of beer and liquor during a strike.

There was no comment on developments from officials of the company.

Earlier in the day Mr. Millard had received a second letter from Prime Minister Mackenzie King in connection with the dispute which said that "I am sure you will agree that no one could view with too great concern any action which would impair the strength of the forces that are fighting for the preservation of the world's freedom, and would risk defeat in the present conflict."

Replied to Letter

Mr. Millard said he had replied to Mr. King's letter only briefly and issued a statement saying that it "adds nothing to the previous letter as far as the issues at stake are concerned."

The first letter from Mr. King said the cabinet had decided it could not interfere with the national and regional war labor boards. It also suggested that in the Algoma case negotiations could be opened with the company and a joint appeal made to the Ontario board — in line with a suggestion to that effect in the Ontario boards' decision rejecting the increases.

LAUNCHES WORLD'S MIGHTIEST WARSHIP

The U.S.S. Iowa, first of six 45,000 ton battleships under construction for the U.S. Navy, is shown as she was launched at the New York navy yard, the other day. Seven months ahead of schedule, the huge ship, which is expected to have a full load displacement of 52,000 tons, was started in June, 1940. She is 880 feet long and will have a main battery of 16-inch guns and will have a speed enabling her to keep pace with the fastest craft of a task force, despite the weight of her super-heavy armor. Mrs. Ilo Brown Wallace, wife of the vice-president of the United States, sponsored the ship and gave her the name "Iowa"—home state of the Wallaces. The great battle-wagon is the fourth naval bearer of that name.

YEAR ENDING

Russian Army Weakened

In North Africa, the British 8th Army, overwhelmed by demands for men, planes and supplies for the Malaya, Burma, Australian and Indian fronts, stopped Marshal Erwin Rommel only 80 miles short of Alexandria and all but lost the vital bases which hold the strategic land bridges of the Middle East.

The great Russian army weakened by stupendous losses of planes, tanks and cannon, came within an ace of losing Moscow, and fell back 750 miles, from Kiev to the Caucasus.

But the war log is not entirely black.

The Red army did hold Moscow. It held Leningrad. It drove the Germans back, mile by mile, in the painful winter campaign north and south of Moscow and when summer came it held intact while fighting a furious delaying battle against German blows which drove it slowly back in the Don Bend through Rostov, down to the subsidiary oil centres of Malkop and Krasnodar to the Caucasian foothills.

Stopped Temporarily

In the Pacific, Japan had been stopped at least temporarily at the outer island ramparts of Australia. Attempts to resume the sea-air-land march met resounding defeats in the Coral Sea and Midway battles which sent United Nations spirits soaring.

Although the Japanese won a lodgment in the western Aleutians, they had made no progress since early June and had lost 11 ships sunk and 13 damaged in the steady attrition of bomb and submarine attacks.

Then in August came the United States marines; victory at Tulagi in the Solomons where the United States obtained control of important bases for a future offensive.

Shape of Things to Come

And in Europe there was the shape of things to come in the Canadian-led raid on Dieppe on August 19 and the gradually widening scope of R.A.F. and R.C.A.F. raids, now being strengthened by the addition of United States Flying Fortresses to the Empire's flying armada.

The R.A.F. delivered 1,000-bomber blows upon Hitler's industries and communications.

Beginning on Dec. 27, 1941, the commandos stabbed at the German-held coast in six major raids from Narvik to St. Nazaire, France.

The year was marked also by a series of historic meetings in an effort of the United Nations to coordinate their strategy.

President Roosevelt and Mr. Churchill met in December and again in June when the Prime Minister came to the United States.

In May and in June, Foreign Commissar Vyacheslav Molotov of Russia went to London, where he signed a 20-year alliance with Britain, and to Washington, where an agreement with his western allies was reached on the urgency of creating a second front in 1942.

In August Mr. Churchill made the long journey by way of Cairo to Moscow where he conferred with Premier Joseph Stalin. Mr. Churchill was the first British Prime Minister to visit Soviet Russia.

Many Activities of Navy League Sponsored by Local Branch

45 Belleville Youths Now Have Joined Sea Cadet Corps

NEED DITTY BAGS

Forty-five Belleville youths have signed application forms for entry into the local corps of the Sea Cadets proposed for sponsorship by the local branch of the Navy League of Canada, it was announced by Mr. Arthur Wesley, chairman of the proposed corps.

Application forms of the 45 youths have gone to Ottawa for approval by the Navy Department and a warrant to the Belleville branch of the Navy League ratifying sponsorship of the corps in this city is expected any day. Interest in the sea cadet corps is increasing steadily and Mr. Wesley expects a greater demand for applications, when the warrant for the corps is granted and the corps begins training.

Sponsorship of a sea cadet corps is only one phase of the many activities sponsored by the local branch of the Navy League of Canada, which is working hard for the alleviation of hardships experienced by sailors and members of the merchant marine fleets.

A great number of ditty bags have gone out from the Navy League headquarters on Front Street, but there are still many to be filled and officials of the League are making a special appeal to all organizations and friends to help in this really worth-while work.

Approximately one hundred thousand ditty bags will be required if all sailors and men of the merchant marine are to receive their comforts from the Navy League this Christmas, it has been estimated. This is three times the number required last year, and Chairman of the Ditty Bag committee, Mrs. J. Ingram, 112 Moira Street, East, appeals for all those able to help.

During the past month about 1050 pounds of books and magazines were shipped to Halifax for the comfort of marine men during their leisure hours and a further shipment will be going forward in a few days. Books, magazines, games, puzzles and playing cards are urgently required and will be gratefully received at League headquarters, 311 Front Street.

A general meeting of the members of the Belleville branch is scheduled for Monday, Aug. 31st at the league headquarters, when all friends of the league are cordially invited to attend as there is a great deal of work to be done.

Deny Leakage Of Information

London, Aug. 29 (CP Cable)—The London Standard said last night that "there is no foundation whatsoever" for insinuations appearing in some sections of the press during the last few days that because of a leakage of information the Germans had advance knowledge of the Canadian-led commando raid on Dieppe and hence were able to tighten up their defences.

"Security authorities have proved, partly from detailed reports of the raid and partly from close interrogation of German prisoners that the rumors are entirely false," said the Standard.

"Captured Westphalians from a howitzer battery attacked and silenced by the No. 4 commando unit have stated their captain and battery commander Schoeler, who was killed with most of his men in hand-to-hand fighting which wiped out the battery, was taken completely by surprise when the commandos began their attack from the tops of the cliffs."

Further convincing proof that the Germans were not forewarned, the paper added was that they allowed a tanker escorted by flak ships to remain in the vicinity of the Dieppe harbor.

Battle Must Be Fought Until One Side Wins

Melbourne, Aug. 29 (CP)—Tremendous resources on both sides will be drawn into the battle for the Solomon Islands, Gen. Sir Thomas Blamey said, adding that "it was not a single action but a battle which has reached the aggressive stage and must be fought out until one side or the other is defeated."

Expressing optimism over the outcome of the operations at Milne Bay on the southeastern tip of New Guinea, the Commander-in-Chief of Allied land forces in the South Pacific area expressed the belief the Allies will be able to prevent the Japanese who landed there from joining enemy forces in the Kokoda area inland.

Ottawa, Aug. 29 (CP) — A casualty list of 82 names, the largest for several days and the 15th. since the battle of Dieppe, was issued by the Department of National Defence Friday.

It reported 42 men of the Canadian (Active) Army killed in action, four dead from wounds, two other deaths of which the cause was not stated, five dangerously wounded and nine wounded.

Two of the officers reported killed in action, Lieuts. George Tinsley of Hamilton, and Alexander John McKellar of Winnipeg, were described as previously reported wounded and Lieut. Tinsley's name appeared among the wounded in a list issued August 21.

Three men reported missing on lists issued August 24 were reported killed in action yesterday. They were Ptes. Fred Arthur Barnes of Brantford; John James O'Leary of Toronto, and Henry Swanky of Winnipeg.

Friday's list brought the official count of casualties reported since the Canadian raid on Dieppe a week ago Wednesday to 729, of which 153 are dead, 445 wounded, ten not diagnosed, and 121 missing. The figures are subject to a margin of error for possible duplications. The department stopped reporting the missing a few days after the battle for security reasons. Names of the missing will be held up from publication for several weeks.

The total number of men reported dead and missing by the army since the war began now stands at 1,043.

Hamilton, represented in the Dieppe battle by the Royal Hamilton Light Infantry, had 11 of its sons mentioned in Friday's list. Four on the list were from Toronto, five from Winnipeg and four from Montreal.

The list reported one captain, Ben Brackman of Regina, dangerously wounded; five lieutenants killed and one wounded. The rest of the men named were non-commissioned officers and privates.

New Siege Battle Shaping Up At Novorossisk

By EDWARD E. BOMAR

Throwing almost the full strength of their southern army into the fight for Stalingrad, the Russians seem unable to spare adequate forces to cope with four Nazi steel fingers which daily tighten the invaders' grip on the North Caucasus.

Around Novorossick on the Black Sea coast a new siege battle is beginning to shape up, but elsewhere the axis columns are pushing on unchecked.

Their progress and direction deserve a share of the attention focussed on the titanic struggle before Stalingrad. With the enemy's advance elements already in the foothills of the great mountain barrier to the Baku Oil Reservoir, a new phase of the Caucasus campaign is nearing, as suggested by the Russian army paper Red Star.

Probably least noticed of the spearheads thrust out like spokes of a wheel is a detachment of undetermined strength which has been driving rapidly through the marshlands of the Volga Delta region almost due eastward toward Astrakhan where the great river flows into the Caspian Sea.

Spectacular Progress.

This force was last definitely reported at Elista, 200 miles from Astrakhan, but may now have halved the remaining distance to the Volga and Caspian below the Stalingrad battlefield.

Most spectacular progress has been made by a second column striking southeast down the main railway paralleling the Caucasus barrier, range toward the Grozny oil field and the Caspian.

With the Maikop field already in its wake, this detachment has advanced 500 or more miles, covering possibly twice the distance of the main Nazi advance eastward toward Stalingrad. It is currently reported at the fringes of the Grozny oil area, moving forward against opposition from Russian tanks, armored trains and other defences.

These two advance elements are in a race to the Caspian, with the odds seemingly favoring the smaller invading force aimed at Astrakhan.

Turning aside from the advance toward Grozny are Nazi forces seeking to win control of the high passes over the Caucasus before fall snows make their use difficult.

Berlin's report that Nazi Alpine troops had scaled 18,471-foot Mount Elboros put a momentary spotlight on the advance of a third column, obviously seeking to seize Klukhor Pass, westernmost spot the three main routes over the mountains.

Military men suspect that the immediate objective of this third force is the Black Sea port of Sukhum as part of an attempt to encircle the Russian troops to the north. Control of the pass and the Ossetian military highway which traverses it would give the invaders a menacing foothold south of the mountains and heavy fighting can be expected before any such aim is realized.

The fourth advance, southward toward the last stretch of Black Sea coastline remaining in Russian hands, is the move which promises to develop the stiffest opposition at the moment.

The Nazis, it is believed, intend to establish a badly-needed Black Sea shipping and railway supply line for von Bock's armies, and for the purpose must have the naval base port of Novorossisk. From Novorossisk a rail line extends northeastward to Stalingrad, and by this route all parts of the North Caucasus may be reached.

Realization of this plan appears within sight, and with it the dispersal of the Russians' Black Sea navy. Novorossisk, however, must yet be taken and large Russian forces are reported digging in for a back-to-the-sea defence like the siege of Sevastopol.

TOMATOES ARE VEGETABLES

Is a tomato a fruit or a vegetable? This question has been hurled at W.P.T.B. officials from Halifax to Victoria. The answer is: Tomatoes are vegetables, at least they are so regarded under the Sugar Rationing Order. This means that no extra sugar can be obtained for their preservation.

HOTEL RESIDENTS NOTE

Permanent residents of hotels and institutions must surrender their ration cards to the proprietor in order to get their tea and coffee ration. The same rule appplies to sugar coupons.

Capital Closeups

By PAT USSHER

Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA, Aug. 29 — (CP) — Charles Vining, 45-year-old czar or wartime information for Canada, has proved himself in a number of activities and this week he took on what may develop into his greatest task — that of obtaining and distributing information on Canada's war effort better than it has been done heretofore.

Prime Minister Mackenzie King's announcement Wednesday made clear that the wartime information board will work with the war committee of the cabinet and be responsible only to the Prime Minister himself.

This puts Mr. Vining much in the same position of Elmer Davis, recently appointed head of the office of war information in the United States, who deals directly with President Roosevelt and his cabinet.

Mr. Vining, an old newspaperman himself and a newsprint executive, went to the United States last spring and reported on the possibilities of better distribution of Canadian information in that country. His report covered the entire problem of wartime information.

In creating the wartime information board Mr. King followed to the letter Mr. Vining's recommendation. But he went farther and told Mr. Vining to take on the job and put his recommendations into practice.

So now it is up to Mr. Vining.

But one of his toughest jobs may be to convince those who make the news that time is of the essence in getting it out and into the hands of the publishers, and that the board must be the judge of what is news.

When Joe Thorson was plucked from his place as a private member of the House of Commons last year and made minister of national war services he took over a conglomerate group of war activities which would require a year to study and understand.

Now his department is being whittled down so fast that soon there will be little left but salvage operations. He has lost the bureau of public information and shortly is to lose the branch headed by Maj.-Gen. L. R. LaFleche, which calls men for compulsory military service. This will go to Elliott Little's selective service administration in the labor department.

But it is strongly rumored that Mr. Thorson will leave the department itself and go to the exchequer court bench, a job for which he is well equipped and probably one much to his liking.

Erratum.

The machinery of calling men for military service slips a cog sometimes. It slipped a couple in the case of Walter E. Browne, of the dairy products division of the agriculture department. Mr. Browne, who is 47, was called up the other day for the Royal Canadian Army Service Corps reserve force. They discovered he is a veteran of the First Great War who enlisted in 1915 when he was 20 and lost a leg at Vimy Ridge.

For months before this Mr. Browne had been trying to convince the authorities he could handle an administrative job in the armed forces. But, he adds, they wouldn't have him.

Incidentally he says there are about 30 amputation cases in the Canadian fighting services at the present time.

Health Notes.

Rt. Hon. Malcolm MacDonald, British high commissioner to Canada, after a recent operation spent his convalescence on an airplane trip to Aklavik, near the mouth of the Mackenzie River in the Northwest Territories. . . . H. F. (Temp) Feaver, second secretary at the Canadian legation in Tokyo, who has just returned to Canada, was on a Japanese ship off Pearl Harbor homeward bound to cure a slight nervous breakdown when the Japanese struck last December. The boat turned and raced back to Japan and when Mr. Feaver landed he had completely recovered.

Mecca.

They all come to Ottawa—kings, princes, hard-rock prospectors and evacuees. Within twelve months, Ottawa has welcomed King George of Greece; the late Duke of Kent, youngest brother of the King; Queen Wilhelmina of the Netherlands; Prince Bernhard, her son-in-law, visiting his wife, Princess Juliana, and their two daughters who live in Ottawa; Gen. Wladislaw Sikorski, Polish prime minister and commander-in-chief, and, of course, Prime Minister Churchill.

The Dominion capital has welcomed, too, a delegation of hundreds of western wheat farmers, many groups of men and women representing labor organizations, and this week those rugged into lost the branch headed by Maj.-

Little Benny's Note Book

I was taking a walk with pop for his appetite, and I said, Oh boy, that's the life, that's the life for me.

Meaning a mounted policeman riding his horse along the street and telling automobile drivers to keep moving and different things, and pop said, Well, he's a handsome man, I admit, and he's mounted on an even handsomer —horse, and he looks very military in his uniform and he's going about his job —with a minimum of scowling, but that's hardly enough to constitute an inspiration for your whole future.

Well G, pop, how can you tell an inspiration? I said, and pop said, One sure thing is, it's not usually accompanied by uniforms and trappings. In fact the plainest and commonest people have proved to be the greatest inspirations, merely by doing their duty as they see it, trudging along the straight and narrow path heedless of both praise and blame, content to know that they are in the right, he said.

Well then G, pop, I know the perfect inspiration, he's the baker down the cellar of the R. and K. Bakery and Lunch Room, I said. He makes cinnamon buns and all kinds of swell smelling things down there, and us fellows stick our heads through the little window and yell down at him hoping he'll get mad some time and throw a cinnamon bun or something at us, only he never does. He just keeps on rolling dough and sprinkling raisins and stuff as if he didn't even hear us, because he knows he's in the right and he's satisfied to just do his duty in his undershirt among all those swell smells and let guys yell if they want to, I said, and pop said, Well, maybe you have something there at that, who knows?

Expressing Spirit of Canada

Canada has overseas a body of men in the army who according to Lt.-Gen. A. G. L. McNaughton, commander, are an outward expression of the people of Canada. Canada is proud of the men in the three forces. Of the army he said, "We have a lot of young men and women over here who have been away for a long time and we feel that personal contacts with the homeland should be kept up. There is always anxiety when we get away from home we get out of touch and thus out of sympathy." But there is a spirit among the troops that the people at home should know about and he referred to their being "an expression of the people" of the Dominion.

This was a noble tribute to the men who have as he said "hardly come to grips with the foe but who are still going through the phase of preparedness, but it will be won."

The general who has seen good "tools" and equipment of war, praises Canada's products in the highest words, "the finest in the world," and he repeated the urgency of "the everlasting struggle to experiment and invent" for "the search for design is a continuing problem and on that we have still to pull even with the enemy and pass him.'"

The 45,000-Ton Battleship

The largest and heaviest warship in history has been launched, the United States battleship Iowa of 45,000-tons which slid down the ways at Brooklyn on Thursday. When she is completed it will have cost an estimated $85,000,000 without counting the cost of her main battery of nine inch guns. She has a deck space of nine and a half acres. The Iowa is the first of six gigantic craft of the same type to touch the water.

This is a time when there is much discussion of the importance of the battleship. New York Times says of these super battleships "it may well be that none of them will ever fight under the conditions for which they were planned. This war, limiting the usefulness of the battleship, has both extended and restricted its range. These floating forts can no longer fight close to shore within range of land-based, torpedo-carrying planes. Paced by their own carriers they may still meet an enemy fleet far at sea and prove the decisive factor in naval warfare. Such an engagement, often predicted, has yet to take place in the present conflict. But if the new Iowa equals the resord of the old Iowa of the Spanish-American War, under 'Fighting Bob' Evans, she has a glorious career ahead of her."

While the development in naval warfare has wrought changes for battleships and their future, on land the world has seen emerge fast-moving giants in the form of tanks, veritable moving forts, yet almost as agile as cavalry and introducing a new element in land struggle. North Africa has shown something of the new strategy which has come with the tanks.

Full Moon Over Egypt

Some persons who looked on the eclipse of the moon the other evening and who ordinarily pay only passing attention to the moon, must have thought something of the opinion published in the papers about the possibility of the full moon witnessing a revival or renewal of the battle in Egypt. It was hard to realize no doubt that the same moon was shining on Egypt once of the Pharaohs and of the Exodus. Yet that is the fact—the full moon shone on the sands of Egypt and upon Old Nile, the fertile mother of the delta, some hours earlier than it was visible here that night.

The moonrise at this time in Egypt is looked upon as heralding weather which is more than ordinarily satisfactory to warfare on the sands. General Alexander, who bears the name of the Macedonian hero, Alexander the Great, founder of Alexandria, is said to be a leader of striking power and the British and Allied forces are said to be greatly reinforced. Every day now there is some mention of American plane activity along the North African coast and in the land of Egypt.

If battle is joined here, it comes at a time when it carries great importance as the war in general moves on.

It is very dangerous for any man to find any spot on this broad glove that is sweeter to him than his home.—Beecher

THIS SYNTHETIC WORLD

If Nature builds, why cannot we—by using Nature's tools?
The elements are manageable if we know the rules.
From iron ore we fashion steel; petroleum yields us gas.
To recondition fallow fields we turn them out to grass.
No more the "black death" threatens to destroy the human race. We've tamed and trained the lightning to conquer time and space.

The problem is continuous: to give at Nature's door
The "Open Sesame" that yields the gold
she has in store.
We've tapped the earth for precious stones, and coal and liquid fire.
We've climbed the airy stairway to the eagle's nest, and higher.
We've made a paradise of this once wilderness, no doubt . . . except that, up to date, we've failed to drive the devil out.

FOOD, MR. HITLER

Dear Adolf: In case you haven't heard, America and her European allies will eat this winter. Take wheat. The United States, Canada and Argentina have a surplus for export of 1,600,000,000 bushels, three times the annual exports of the world in prewar days. Elevators are bulging with last year's carryover, and this year's crop, the biggest in any year except 1915, is being poured into boarded-up schoolhouses, farmers' living rooms, garages and dance halls, and even piled on the ground.

Perhaps your spies have told you that the corn crop tops all since 1932, that there are more oats and rye than for 16 years past and that barley is abundant. Our agents have informed us that the severe winter, the late spring and labor, fertilizer and seed shortages have cut your yields 15 to 20 per cent., that you will get only a fifth of the expected cereal grains from southeastern Europe, and that you have requisitioned the entire 1942 grain harvest. Worried?

The German potato shortage, we hear, has reduced the number of pigs. Over here we expect to slaughter this year between 95 and 100 million porkers. That is from nine to fourteen million more than ever before. The total this fall is going to be so huge that the farmers have been asked to stagger their deliveries so that the packers will be able to handle them properly. We are shipping 54,500,000 pounds of pork products every day.

We have had our little local beef shortage due to mistakes in distribution, but even after heavy shipments to England and Russia, we still have more meat than last year for the feeding of that army of ours, of which you will soon hear more. And you may be interested to know that the United States produces 108,000 quarts of milk every minute! "Too little and too late," Adolf, does not hold true of our agricultural efforts. They are among the weapons which are going to help us win the war and the peace. — Editorial in Boston Herald.

STONE FIXES WOMAN'S AGE

A tombstone marking has been accepted as proof of the age of an applicant by the Old Age Pensions Committee of Dublin, Eire. The stone was that of the applicant's father, who died in 1863. The woman pension-seeker could produce no school entry records and her birth certificate was destroyed 22 years ago. But the Committee accepted the headstone as evidence her father died nearly 80 years ago and her statement that she was three years old at the time of his death.

UTILITY TOGS IN LEAD

Backed by government preference utility garments soon will dominate the British wool trade, declare the industry's experts in London. Utility clothing is no longer subject to a purchase tax, says the Montreal Herald. It has a distinct advantage because of the margin between its price-controlled goods and the higher quality merchandise. The government expects to raise the proportion of utility clothing produced to 100 per cent and to extend the range of utility goods in all directions.

Washington Spotlight

(By J. F. SANDERSON)
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Washington, Aug. 29 (CP) — Illustrating German domination of Italy is this true story:

A man who since escaped from Italy and is now in Washington, saw a tiny black mark on Italian oranges in store windows. He finally bought one to see what it was and found it was the mark of a syringe used by the Germans to extract the juice which they shipped to the Reich. They obligingly left the pulp for their dear Italian partners.

He says this is typical of the economic looting of Italy which the Italians are powerless to stop. Germans control every phase of Italian life and Mussolini is simply a small-town Gauleiter, stripped of all power and prestige. The Germans have occupied Italy just as they occupied Norway, the Low Countries, Poland and France and, with typical Teutonic thoroughness, they are shipping to the Reich everything of value in war, particularly food. As for the Italians, they can have what's left.

ROOSEVELT REPUDIATED

When the Democratic party convention in New York chose John J. Bennett as candidate for governor and turned down Senator Jas. Mead, it was a stinging defeat for President Roosevelt, Mead's backer, in his own state. It was not a repudiation of his war leadership so much as a rebuff to his political judgment and it threw the governor's contest into an open race when the American Labor Party rejected Bennett and nominated their own man, Dean Alfange. The Republicans followed with Thomas E. Dewey, the old rackets buster.

Anything can happen between now and November but from this distance it appears the Republicans have their best opportunity of putting their candidate in power in Albany since 1922.

INFLATION? WHY NO!

The word has gone out from high places that the word "inflation" is taboo and must be deleted from all official news releases in Washington with some phrase like "rising cost of living" substituted for it.

The rule may be contrary to all principles of semantics but it springs from the popular belief that few people know what inflation means whereas everybody knows about rising costs of living. Purists, however, will insist the two are not always synonymous— but what difference does that make when the bureaucrats decide there is no inflation, it's only that living costs are going up.

COLUMNIST GETS SLAPPED

Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt, wife of the President, ran foul of censorship regulations last week when she gave weather information in her syndicated column "My Day." Reprimanded, she has promised to abide by the rules.

For 350 weeks, nearly seven years, Mrs. Roosevelt has been turning out a daily column of 700 words that runs in hundreds of American newspapers. During that time she has dictated about 1,500,000 words to her secretary who takes it down on a typewriter. Then she edits it before it is retyped and sent to the syndicate. It is written on trains, on planes, in cars or in the White House—wherever Mrs. Roosevelt happens to be. And Mrs. Roosevelt certainly gets around.

The column is "must" reading for Washington correspondents because every once in a while it discloses trends in White House thinking. Mrs. Roosevelt turns her pay check over to charity.

FORTRESS STILL FLIES

American military commentators have been playing up the daylight raids on German-held targets in Europe by flying fortresses based in Britain. Their successful attacks on Rouen, Amiens, Abbeyville and other centres in occupied France have been taken as vindication of the big planes which have been criticized—in a friendly sort of a way—in some British circles as being under armed and carrying too light a bomb load compared to some British bombers. So far, the flying fortresses seem to be winning the argument.

BATTLING NELSON II.

It was a surprise to most people in Washington that Donald M. Nelson, mild and gentle-voiced chairman of the War Production Board, could get tough. But tough he is, good and tough.

At a recent press conference the former Chicago mail order store executive pounded a desk and even did a little shouting to emphasize his determination to be boss of raw materials, priorities and wartime industry in general. Nobody in Washington had ever seen him act like that before.

But many observers here incline to the view that desk-pounding and shouting alone will not win for Nelson in his fight against military control of wartime industry. He has delegated too much power to the army, navy and maritime commission in the past to get it all back now. And meanwhile, the American war effort is being stifled by divided authority and competition from too many purchasing and control agencies.

CAPITAL TRIVIA

It was brought home to the American people this week that President Roosevelt has four sons on active service. .. There's a big German trek on to Norway to escape Allied bombing raids on the Reich. There is more German than Norwegian spoken in the downtown sections of Oslo during the evening. .. The United States now is spending 31 per cent of its national income on the war. This annual rate is more than double that rate for the last quarter of 1941 and is still on the rise.

Mental or Emotional Aspects Of Ulcerative Colitis

That sudden fright or fear, can cause an attack of diarrhoea has been known for years; that anxiety (chronic fear) can cause a continuous diarrhoea is now generally admitted. This chronic diarrhoea is called colitis, mucous colitis, and spastic colitis. The method giving best results in the treatment of this form of colitis is acquiring a calmness of mind and eating smooth easily digested foods.

In the severe or ulcerative type of colitis where, instead of mucous, pus and blood pass out in the stool, it has not been believed that nervous or the emotional disturbances were the cause, wholly or in part. Today, however, physicians are finding case after case in which some emotional disturbance has been followed by ulcerative colitis.

Dr. George E. Daniels, New York City, in the New England Medical Journal, tells of the work done at the Constitution Clinic at the Presbyterian Hospital, New York, in 1930 in which disturbances of the stomach and intestines were studied from various angles including the mental or psychologic. One of these research workers was struck with the well-marked time relation between the outbreak of an emotional disturbance and the onset of the symptoms of ulcerative colitis. In reporting this "he emphasized the fact that it is not sudden fright that causes the difficulty but a new situation which thereafter keeps the patient in a constant state of apprehension (fear)"

Dr. Daniels speaks of the work of the Chicago Institute for Psychoanalysis where it was found that the cases of mucous colitis or simple colitis do not stand responsibility well, and now "Yale investigators have made the same observation on cases of ulcerative colitis and have dubbed this group the "giver-uppers".

From the above, then, we learn that just as chronic diarrhoea with mucous can be caused by anxiety or chronic fear, so also can the more serious colitis—ulcerative colitis—be caused by emotional disturbances, particularly of course, in those with a personal or family history of emotionalism.

The lesson is plain. Sufferers with colitis—simple or ulcerative—should first consult their family physician and discuss possible original causes and then, if necessary, consult a psychiatrist.

Great Victory of War in East Gives China Strong Hold on Chuhsien

JAP WITHDRAWALS

Chungking, Aug. 29. (AP) — Chinese troops were reported today to have reinforced their hold on the newly-recaptured Chuhsien airdrome, from which United Nations planes may one day bomb Japan, by occupying the walled city of Chuhsien itself and Chanugshutan, five miles to the east.

Field dispatches announced the gains, achieved at the expense of garrisons weakened by mysterious Japanese withdrawals.

The Chinese Central News Agency said the recapture of Chuhsien, in Western Chekiang Province within 3 1-2 hours bomber flight of Japan, gave Gen. Chiang Kai-Shek's forces control of nearly 220 miles of the 450-mile-long Chekiang-Kiangsi rail line.

An official Chinese review said both sides suffered high casualties in the Chekiang-Kiangsi fighting. The Japanese, it was reported, used more men than in any campaign since the drive on Hankow in October, 1938.

The Japanese, the review said, suffered 14,000 casualties in attacks on Kinhwa and Lanchi, 18,000 at Chuhsien and 8,000 at Shangjao. The situation in Kiangsi province now has been restored to the position prevailing when the Japanese began their eastward drive from Nanchang, it was reported.

In addition to 170,000 troops, the Japanese used the largest air force ever employed in any battle in China, the review said.

CRYPTIC ACCOUNT

Touched Beach at 6:05

"Our craft touched the beach at 605 a.m., an hour and a quarter after the initial touchdown. The landing was made on the central beach between the points where the Royal Hamilton Light Infantry and the Essex Scottish landed.

"We were fired upon by artillery and anti-aircraft guns performing as ground defence from high ground on the left. From the ground facing us there was intense machine-gun fire.

"Shells started bursting on the beach in front of the craft. One tank landed but we had to pull away because it was unable to surmount the sea wall.

"We withdrew to get information about where tanks could be landed more easily. The anti-aircraft fire had ranged us perfectly and there were numerous hits on us. At that time the R.A.F. superiority was total and the navy was giving us strong support with its guns. Despite Jerry's fire our casualties were not heavy.

"After that withdrawal we communicated with our battalions and tanks which had landed from other craft and now were in operation. The battalions reported heavy fire from the buildings dominating the beach and machine gun fire from the jetty bearing upon the troops not yet over the seawall.

"We were now about a mile and a quarter off the beach. Infantry on the beach asked over the wireless for support and Les Fusiliers Mont Royal were sent in to assist the R.H.L.I. and the Essex Scottish.

Colonel Leads Tanks

"Fresh reports from the beach indicated one breach had been made through which at least one tank had gone and more might possibly push. Brig. Lett consulted a Canadian commander of a tank battalion who declared he would lead a squadron of tanks through the gap.

"The Brigadier told the people on the beach he would attempt another landing. We asked for all possible support and informed the force commander (Major-Gen. J. H. Roberts, of Kingston, Ont.) of the move.

"Our craft moved in again some distance to the right of the town. It turned sharply to port when 800 yards off shore and from then went right in.

"All the Jerry artillery seemed to range on us. The front of our craft was hit, smashing the chain supporting the ramp by which the tanks descend. The ramp splashed into the water to bring the boat to a stop.

"The Canadian tank commander went forward with his tank and plunged into 12 feet of water. I didn't see him after that but there were reports he climbed out, swam to the beach and boarded another tank there. He fought in it and later transferred to a third with ammunition.

"The fallen ramp blocked further progress forward and it was impossible to get ashore. Jerry's artillery was right on us and we were hit approximately every thirty seconds. Our casualties were heavy now.

Tried To Navigate Craft.

"I was asked by the brigadier to observe the situation ashore and report. As I mounted the deck a young naval gunner told me our engines were stopped and he was the only one of naval personnel left. He said our craft was beaching sideways.

"I went down to the engine room and I'll never know how I got the engines going. I tried to navigate the craft off the shore, wondering that when I pushed the lever into one position it promptly moved back to its original place. I then discovered a commando sergeant up on deck in the open was navigating and that's why my instruments seemed alive. The sergeant did a damn good job.

"It was 8:17 a.m. We pulled out but hardly anyone was left. In the engine room I found the brigadier was wounded and was getting attention from a medical officer.

"The brigadier kept on directing all operations from a stretcher and had perfect control of the situation. Later he was moved to a ship which took us in tow.

"Col. King took over command of the craft as senior aboard and I reported to No. 2 pom-pom because there was only one man there. I stayed with him until another gunner who couldn't operate his gun took over.

Had Good Time On Pom Pom.

"A few Jerry bombers had appeared and while I was on the pom-pom I had a hell of a good time. We towed off to sea keeping contact with battalions ashore through the wireless and at the same time passing on information to the force ship.

"I'll always remember one of our English naval gunners who was killed. He stood at his gun despite thick fire and was as cool as could be, firing only when there was a clean, definite target to shoot at.

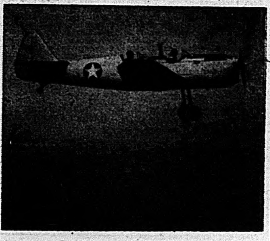
"He didn't waste a shot and when he was not firing he pulled his helmet down in the normal position while he surveyed the scene before him and looked for something good. When he saw a good target he pushed his helmet back, crouched over his gun and blazed away for all he was worth."

As Garneau ended his story he refused a proffered cigaret with a broad smile.

"You know I haven't smoked since the 19th," he said. "I hadn't smoked before that since June last year, but when a signals officer asked me over there if I'd have one I took it. I needed it."

CANADIAN BACK FROM TOKYO

Chief among the government officials to arrive in Canada from Japan and Japanese-occupied territory was D'Arcy McGreer, charge d'affaires, Canadian legation, Tokyo. The group of Canadians who were repatriated number seventy and was composed mainly of missionaries and government officials and their wives. They were brought to New York by the Swedish liner Gripsholm. Mr. McGreer is here shown with his wife, who was on hand to welcome him back to Canada.



PLYWOOD PLANE IN FLIGHT

Made of plastic-bonded plywood, the new Ryan PT-25 military primary trainer is shown in flight. Aluminum alloys and all strategic materials have been eliminated in the plane, with the exception of the engine cowling which represents less than two per cent of the total weight of the ship. The plane is a full cantilever monoplane with a two-place cockpit. It is believed ideal for the training of aviation cadets.

MAJOR DEFENCE

Soviet companies still hold the northern section of Rzhev, a Pravda dispatch said, and are striking at the Germans behind plane-laid smoke screens.

The Red army and supporting planes were credited with the destruction of four more axis vessels, a submarine in the Black Sea, a transport in the Baltic and two transports totalling 12,000 tons in the Barents Sea.

Numerous Prisoners Captured.

Numerous prisoners were declared by the army newspaper Red Star to have been captured on the central front, where Field Marshal Model was reported in charge of Nazi defences as commander of the 9th army.

Seized documents of a subordinate said fresh troops must show reliance and stubbornness so that Hitler would not have to remove divisions from the southern offensive, Red Star said. Model himself was quoted as advising his officers that Hitler was thinking about them, although he was busy in the south.

Among the prisoners was a group of Poles who had been forcibly inducted in the German army, the army paper said. They surrendered voluntarily, bringing a machine gun with them, it added.
crew penetrated the enemy's rear, wiping out about 90 Germans".

(German dispatches broadcast by the Berlin radio said strong Soviet tank forces were counter-attacking before Stalingrad and some Red armored vehicles had been buried as stationary firing points "further to strengthen their deeply echeloned defence positions", but declared the Nazis had gained from the West.)

The midnight communique announced that a Russian warship had sunk an Axis submarine in the Black Sea and that Russian airmen had disposed of a German transport in the Baltic.

Counter attacks were declared to be inflicting enormous losses on the troops making up the jaws of the pincers aimed at Stalingrad by Nazi Field Marshal Fedor Von Bock.

Annihilate 2,500 at One Time

One Soviet force, striking back after two days of defensive fighting northwest of the steel centre, annihilated about 2,500 of the enemy to regain control of an important locality, the communique said. Red Army tanks—the 50-ton KV's and the medium T-34's— were reported to have surrounded a hollow where enemy forces were concentrated and annihilated 300 men and destroyed nine German tanks.

Southwestward, the Germans advanced in one phase of the Kotelnikovski-to-Stalingrad push, but they were then hurled back with a loss of two tanks and two infantry companies, it was announced.

More than 300 Germans were declared killed and 21 Nazi tanks wrecked in two other actions in that theatre.

German attempts to cut deeper into western Caucasian defences, south of Krasnodar were declared frustrated.

A group of German parachutists and automatic riflemen seeking to expand Nazi holdings in a mountainous Central Caucasian area southeast of Prokhladnenski was reported cut to pieces, its members slain or captured.

Americans May Be Asked to Observe Meatless Days

By OVID MARTIN
(Associated Press Staff Writer).

Washington, Aug. 29 —(AP)— Because it is closer to the European battleground than most other sources of supply, the United States may have to share a larger portion of its meat with American armed forces overseas and with Great Britain than previously expected.

This is the implication of a statement by President Roosevelt yesterday that Americans may be asked to observe a meatless day each week. Meatless days would be one way of reducing American consumption to make larger supplies available for movement across the Atlantic.

The United Nations have four major sources of meat supplies. Besides the United States, they are Argentina, Australia, and New Zealand. The United States is much nearer to Great Britain than any of the others.

Consequently, if a part of the supplies now being obtained for Great Britain from Argentina, and New Zealand can be supplied by the United States, a saving in oceanic shiping and possibly ship losses would result.

Mr. Roosevelt said that if the United States provided greater supplies by observing a meatless day each week, from 20 to 30 fewer ships would be needed to transport meat to overseas forces and to Great Britain. These ships, he said, could be used to transport planes, tanks, ammunition and other war materials to fighting fronts.

(Food administration officials said in Ottawa yesterday that meatless days for Canada, similar to those visualized for the United States by President Roosevelt appeared a distant prospect. Officials said that meat imports by Canada had never been large and had been reduced further since the war.)

Old Fisherwives' Tales False Say Food Experts

Among fallacies regarding foods, few are more numerous than those concerning fish.

Frequently one hears it said, "You mustn't eat lobster and ice cream at the same meal"—that fish and milk dishes taken together set up poisons in the system. Dietitians point out that any food that is wholesome in itself is not poisonous when taken into the body with other wholesome foods. Fish chowder which contains fish, potatoes, onions, milk and butter or other fat, and sometimes soda biscuits, illustrates the point. Some people have been found to have an allergy to certain fish; others think they have and the worrying process set up makes them ill and they are unable to properly digest the food, while if served in disguised form they eat it and suffer no bad effects.

Another fallacy is the idea that proteins should not be eaten with carbohydrates,—fish and potatoes for example. To dispel this notion food experts point out that there are few foods that are completely one or the other, and the body is built to digest the different types together. Herring and potatoes, main food of English fishing villages for many years and called "the poor mans dish", produces strong healthy families.

That fish is not fattening is another theory often put forward. Like any other food it is fattening only when more is eaten than the body requires at the time. What must be guarded against is the tendency of the body to store fats for future needs, as in the case of any other food.

Finally fish, associated with Friday, because of an ancient religious custom, is such a good food that it shouldn't be confined to that day. Nutritionists advise that it should be served at least twice a week for a well balanced diet, and the Department of Fisheries points out that if housewives would make a practice of asking dealers for it on any day of the week, universal demand would enable dealers to have good stocks continualy on hand, instead of on just the one day there is a demand for it as at present, generally speaking.

GOOD HEALTH through NUTRITION

By L. B. PETT, Ph.D., M.D.

(Director of Nutrition Services, Dept. of Pensions and National Health)

Do you know that a glass of milk will give you enough energy to run a lathe for an hour? No wonder war workers find milk the best kind of pick-me-up! But milk is more than a stimulant; it is body-building and health protective as well.

Milk is just as important for adults as it is for children. An adult cannot possibly get enough calcium, for instance, unless milk is taken daily. The first point in Canada's Official Food Rules is that adults should have at least a half pint of milk every day, and children at least one pint. (These Food Rules are given in the official outline of the Canadian Nutrition Program, which can be obtained from your provincial department of Health).

There are sound practical and scientific reasons why milk is so essential to the diet of both adults and children. It contains minerals (calcium and phosphorus) necessary to produce good bones and teeth. It contains the vitamins necessary to protect health from the "hidden hungers." These vitamins include A, B (thiamin) and riboflavin. Vitamin A is needed to avoid night blindness and certain types of eye soreness. Vitamin B (thiamin) maintains proper tone of the intestines, normal appetite, and healthy nerves. Riboflavin (which is one of the B vitamins) is necessary for growth and protection against sore watery eyes.

Many foods supply a certain amount of the health-protective elements, but the important thing about milk is that it supplies these elements in generous quantities. If you don't get your quota of milk every day you are cheating yourself out of substantial quantities of thiamin, vitamin A and protein, calcium, and phosphorous, riboflavin—all of which are necessary for your health and well-being.

Cosmetic Containers Take Rap To Aid War

Not only is beauty taking the rap these days, with the variety of cosmetics reduced, but so are the boxes that beauty aids come in.

Everything is being salvaged in the war plan—even waste space, so the day will come when cosmetics are no longer displayed in pretty gift boxes, their attractions emphasized by tinted, decorated cardboard—and plenty of waste space.

Although newspapers are not needed at present by the national salvage authorities, wrapping paper and cardboard remain on the "must" list.

Cosmetic firms are recognizing the need for conservation by cutting down on their paper board requirements. A well-known British firm has decreased the use of paper board in window and counter displays by 60 per cent. and has reduced the variety of gift set packages by 55 per cent. By doing this they have saved not only paper, but also the cost of merchandising.

Some firms are eliminating all gift packaging, while others are using up old stocks of paper. Although these changes in packaging won't be noticed on retail counters for some months, the handwriting is on the wall and in the fourth year of the war beauty will come to milady's boudoir in plainer attire.

Canadian Fish Offer Varied Possibilities

Now when it is more important than ever to use available Canadian fish to make meat supplies go further, as well as from health and economy angles, here are some suggestions from the Department of Fisheries:

For a generous serving allow half a pound of fish per person when buying fish whole. Three generous servings are provided in a pound of filleted fish.

Fish for frying should be cut one inch thick. It is often desirable to buy fish for steaks whole, and cut them afterwards. If pieces are not even the thin part dries out while the thick part is still undone.

When necessary to buy canned fish, pilchards, chicken haddie, sardines and clams are good buys. A small quantity of lobster can be made to go a long way in a salad if combined with generous helpings of hard-boiled eggs, lettuce and cucumber.

Buy whole fresh fish from local waters when available. When fish are bought whole, trimmings and head and tail ends are available for secondary dishes—salads, casserole dishes, chowder. In addition manpower is saved. Fish are more easily marketed whole.

Using Odds And Valuable Wool Ends Conserves

If you are going to form a knitting group organize one to use up old bits of wool and to knit new feet into worn-out socks. This is the advice given by Consumer Information Service.

There is wool to meet the needs of existing war services but it is important not to waste any of this material, authorities point out.

Instead of buying new wool, unravel woollen garments that are getting outworn and knit them up again, either into clothing for children at home or for refugees.

Afghans, made by knitting or crocheting squares and sewing them together, are needed by the Red Cross for hospital throws. One woman, who had plenty of wool in lengths too short for this, clipped it into inch lengths and used it to stuff squares of material which she then stitched together to make a quilt.

Woollen materials which have outgrown their usefulness should be kept for the salvage collector.

Government authorities constantly remind Canadians that now is the time to save and conserve the materials at hand because the changing pattern of war makes future supply uncertain.

Sugar For Pickling Is Still on Banned List

There is no special sugar ration for pickling. Although this has been announced by the Wartime Prices and Trade Board, hopeful housewives continue to write in to its consumer branch about this.

In the case of tomatoes it is pointed out that valuable Vitamin C content is destroyed in the open kettle cooking method employed in pickling, whereas straight canning of tomatoes and tomato juice retains most of the vitamin in the finised product.

Cotton Featured In New School Clothes

Back-to-school togs and supplies are going to be in the family shopping list for the next few weeks.

Except where school uniforms are the order, summer clothes and white shoes will be worn as long as possible to conserve wool and leather. Last season's clothes will be carefully examined for possibilities they may have in days to come, either well patched and darned, or made down, or over.

In new stocks showing in retail stores it is notable that cotton is designed to play an important role in view of the need for wool conservation. Cotton velveteens and corduroys in rich, warm colors, various other cotton pile fabrics, and chenille and heay-ribbed cotton hose are trends in tihs direction: Corduroy jackets combine with plaid skirts, and velveteen makes entire frocks or trims plain flannel.

For the home dressmaker, jerkin and jumper styles offer suggestions for making over, and for adding warmth to blouses that in the summer season did duty with peasant skirts.

Where it is absolutely necessary to buy boys' suits and overcoats, it is well to look into purchases of this kind well in advance of the need, retailers advise. Manufacturers of these items are busy on war orders and it is often difficult to get civilian orders filled.

In school supplies, everything that was avaialble last year can still be obtained, although pencils are minus erasers and scribblers, their bright covers. Colored pencils and paints are on the somewhat scarce list.

Stove Latest Victim On The Kitchen Front

The electric stove is the latest kitchen casualty in this war. According to the latest order issued by the Department of Munitions and Supply, stocks of electric stoves in the hands of retailers, wholesalers and manufacturers were frozen on August 8.

With these drastic new regulations the electric stove joins the ranks of other electrical appliances and equipment hit by war restrictions.

Stove care is important. The spilling of cold water or food on the hot porcelain enamel surface of the stove should be avoided. It may cause the enamel to crack. For the same reason, the enamel should be allowed to cool before wiping it with a damp cloth.

Acid spilled on the enamel surface of the stove should always be wiped up at once. Though stove tops are usually finished in acid-resisting porcelain enamel, acid may discolor them.

The outside of the stove should be washed with a mild soap and water. A coarse abrasive should never be used. To clean the oven and broiler use scouring powder or fine steel wool.

In taking care of the oven, remember to allow the door to remain open when the cooking is finished. Do not clean oven units except to wipe off grease or burnt food which collects around the frame. Don't use the oven as a storage place for food.

To conserve electric power as well as the stove, the heating unit should be operated on high only to start the cooking. As soon as possible lower the heat. Water for instance, is just as hot when it boils gently as when it boils vigorously. Whenever possible turn off the current and finish cooking on heat stored in the unit. Never use a stiff brush or sharp instrument to clean the open coils of an electric range.

Care of Mixers An Important Job For Housewives

With the manufacture of electrical appliances prohibited, very shortly there will be no more electric mixers on the market. Now is the time to give the electric mixer the care and attention it deserves. There are certain rules which should be followed closely if it is to last for the duration. The motor should be oiled at least once a month. For this the manufacturer's directions should be followed carefully. If the mixer starts to heat, the motor should be allowed to cool for a short while. When removing beaters from the mixer, take hold of the stem to prevent bending. Do likewise when putting them in. After each use, the parts should be washed thoroughly in hot soapy water and then rinsed well.

Sleepers Beware Life of Mattress Depends on Care

These are the days to appreciate a good mattress. All the materials from which it is made are hard to get and the situation isn't likely to improve for some time.

A great deal of the life of a mattress depends on care.

Protect it with a mattress cover. Use a quilted pad between bed sheets and mattress.

Strip, sun and air once a week.

Vacuum and brush every six weeks.

Turn end to end every two weeks. Turn top to bottom.

Never bend, roll or stand mattress on end.

Wife Preservers

Ink stains will usually wash off mahogany furniture surfaces, because the finish seals the surface so that the stain is only on top of the wood, not in it. Wipe it off with a soft cloth dampened in mild soap suds. To dry, wipe lightly with a dry soft cloth in the direction of the grain.

Attractive Women Win Friends

Maureen O'Hara portrays the type of nurse patients like.

By HELEN FOLLETT

IT WAS a little gathering of friendly neighbors in a small suburban town. Weary of war talk the women's conversation turned into different channels—women's uniforms and make up. Coiffures and sun tan. You know, one leads to the other. The village doctor was listening.

"I have some ideas on those subjects," he said. "I have noticed in my long career that smartly-dressed, good-looking women usually get along with their fellow creatures better than the dowdy ones. When a woman is determined to be attractive, make the best of herself, she finds out the necessity of being agreeable, cultivating pleasing manners, practicing the art of tact. She is self-conscious in a sensible, practical way. By that I mean that she is conscious of the fact that she must keep to a high standard of appearance and deportment.

"My patients get along better when the nurse is smart looking, gay of spirits. A nurse who carries a surface and is unsympathetic irks and depresses the patient. It seems to me that some plain women fancy that fate has it in for them and don't try to make themselves pleasing. Any woman can be attractive and good looking if she tries."

"Women have advantages these days. More sensible clothes, doing away with unnecessary weight of garments, for instance. Greater interest in outdoor sports and education along lines of nutrition, though I believe not enough women know what is meant by a balanced diet.

"The suntan fad was beneficial. Women who stay inside too much are the ones who develop nerves.

"The longer a woman hangs onto youthful spirits and pleasing appearance the healthier she is. I'm a beauty fan and I'm proud of it."

Doctor Advises Public to Learn Proper Massage of the Gums

Although the toothpick is not considered a social implement, it has its useful qualities. For instance, recent studies show that a rounded toothpick can be effective in massaging the gums between the teeth. Before giving the details, it is best that we know some facts about care of the gums.

Disturbances of the gums may lead to tooth decay. When the gum surface is broken, germs may easily get into the tissues and produce inflammation. Bits of hard material—tartar—may get in between the gums and the teeth and cause inflammation and disturbances in circulation. Infection then takes place more easily.

In the prevention of these conditions, according to Dr. Bernard O. A. Thomas, of New York, three things are necessary. First, the irritating effects of tartar must be removed. Second, infection and inflammation must be cleared up, and, third, the gum tissues must be stimulated. The irritating material can be removed by what is known as scaling the teeth. This procedure, of course, is carried on by the dentist. Scaling may also help to get rid of the infection and inflammation. On the other hand, for this purpose it may also be necessary to use certain drugs.

Stimulation of the gum tissues, according to Dr. Thomas, may be obtained through massage of the gums. Doctor Thomas thinks it is advisable for persons to be taught how to massage their gums. The gum tissues may be massaged with the fingers. However, it is not possible to produce any effect on the gum tissues between the teeth in this way. If the toothbrush is properly used, it may also help to stimulate the gum tissues. When properly instructed in the method of brushing, many persons can help restore the gum tissues to a healthy condition.

According to Dr. Thomas, the best instrument for massaging the part of the gums between the teeth is a medicated wooden instrument. Doctor Thomas uses a polished wood toothpick which is rounded and tapers off to a point at each end. The wood is firm and does not take up fluids easily.

In using this toothpick it is passed between the teeth, but is not forced into the space until it is uncomfortable. Then, gently and firmly, the toothpick is pressed toward the gums, maintaining pressure for a few seconds. This is repeated four or five times. Then the toothpick is removed and the next space is massaged. The toothpick is not moved back and forth across the gums because doing so will rub the gum surface and injure it. For the best results this massage of the gum tissues is performed at least twice a day. Failure to carry out the massage may lead to a return of the gum inflammation.

This method of treatment should be employed only when the dentist suggests and directs its use.

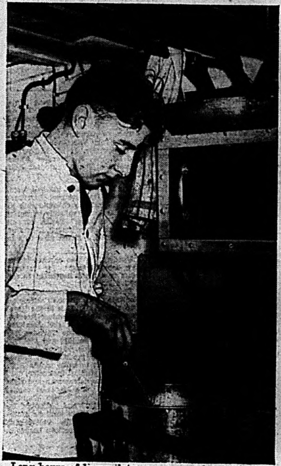
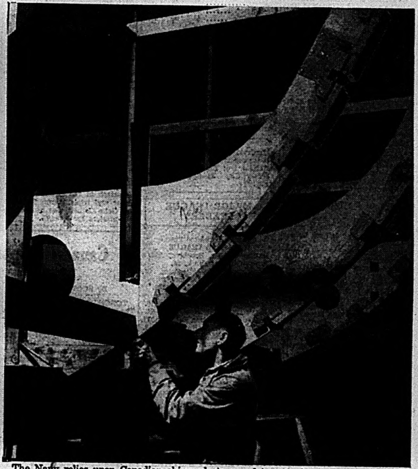
Newest weapon in the fight against hit-and-run Nazi U-boats in the St. Lawrence is the Fairmile subchaser. Designed in Great Britain, the Canadian-built vessel operated in strictest secrecy until recently. Naval authorities decided to announce the Fairmile record when it had done so much damage to enemy craft that Hitler must have learned about it the "hard way". In this photo a Fairmile is shown just after the depth charge has been dropped, carrying disaster to a sub.

Every man aboard a Fairmile must be a specialist, to handle engines, depth charges, navigation and secret war devices. Fairmiles are armed with cannon at bow.

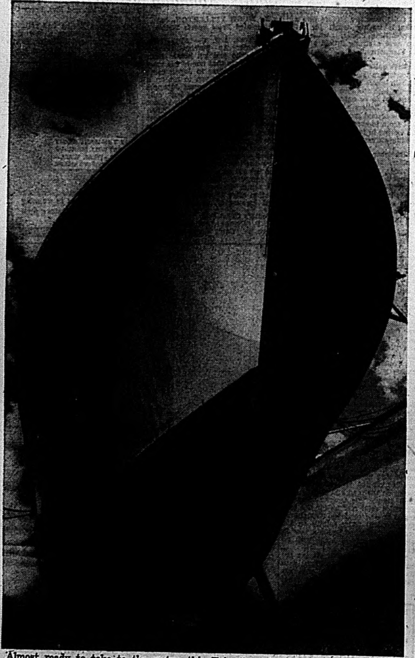
This compact messdeck has no room for hammocks, making the Fairmile the only warship in the Canadian Navy to adopt pipe-berths throughout. Crews receive "hard-lying" extra pay. Fighting seamen are prepared for action day and night.



Long hours of heavy duty on war vessels of this size call for hot meals at all hours. Tests by Navy have proved value of special foods to aid vision at night.



The Navy relies upon Canadian shipyards to complete enough subchasers to make up flotilla numbers. Production of Fairmiles has been stepped up to the point that deliveries now keep pace with training of 12-man crews to operate them.



Almost ready to take to the water, this Fairmile makes a graceful photo with its long, racy lines against a background of clouds. Give us more Fairmiles", says the Chief of Naval Staff. "I think the Nazis will learn to respect them."

These goggle-eyed codfish and haddock were swimming near a German U-boat when it was attacked recently in the St. Lawrence. The undersea explosions of depth charges took care of the submarine and also brought up a fine catch of fish.

The double-planked stem, soon to crash through ocean swells is checked by a shipyard foreman. Craftsmen like these are foundation of the Royal Canadian Navy.

Yankee Cripples Start to Shed Bandages and Turn Up At Regular Posts for Stretch Drive

Situation Spells Trouble For Remaining Teams of Loop

DODGERS WIN

(By AUSTIN BEALMEAR)
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

Disheartening as it may be to Boston Red Sox, the citizens of Brooklyn and the manufacturers of medical supplies, it begins to look as if the New York Yankees will be able to finish the American League pennant race without the aid of an ambulance.

With their injury list crowded much of the time, the Yanks have done little better than break even since the start of the month, winning 15 games and losing 11 for an average of .577.

But the cripples have started shedding their bandages and turning up at their regular posts, a situation that spells trouble for other clubs in the league and particularly the Red Sox, who have won 16 of their last 18 games in a desperate drive to overhaul the Yanks.

Two fugitives from a hospital bed took their places in the lineup yesterday as the Yankees applied their 17th whitewash job of the year, a 3-0 shutout over the crumbling Cleveland Indians.

Spud Chandler made his first start on the mound since Aug. 19, when he wrenched his back at Boston, and demonstrated that he not only has recovered completely but intends to win a few more games before the season's end.

Registers 14th Victory

He spreads seven hits over six innings registered his 14th triumph against four defeats and his third shutout of the year. Buddy Hassett also returned to his first base post, enabling utility infielder Gerry Priddy to shift to the opposite corner and give Red Rolfe a much needed rest.

Chubby Dean, a lefthander with two previous decisions over the Yanks, matched Chandler's seven-hit job, but two of the blows were doubles by Phil Rizzuto, who tallied after each one, and another was a homer by Buddy Rosar.

The victory kept the Yankees eight games in front of the Red Sox, who blanked Chicago White Sod, 4-0, on the four-hit hurling of Joe Dobson.

Johnny Pesky, Lou Finney and Bill Conroy led the 10-hit attack on Buck Ross and helped Dobson to his third shutout.

Meanwhile, the St. Louis Browns strengthened their hold on third place by nipping Philadelphia Athletics, 5-4 in 10 innings, and Detroit Tigers moved to within a game and a half of fourth-place Cleveland by whipping Washington Senators, 10-7 in 14 innings.

Settled Issue With Homer

Glenn McQuillen started the Browns on their way to victory by tying the score with a ninth inning home run and Walt Judnich settled the issue with a homer in the 10th.

Washington also needed a ninth inning run to tie the score after the Tigers had tallied twice in the top half of the same frame, but three unearned runs gave Detroit the decision in the 14th.

In the National League, Brooklyn Dodgers walloped Chicago Cubs, 7-1, but watched their lead shrink to five games as the stubborn St. Louis Cardinals took both ends of a double bill from Philadelphia Phils.

Claude Passeau went after his 18th pitching victory for the Cubs but was hammered hard and wound up with his 10th defeat although three relievers also failed to check the Dodgers' 17-hit attack.

Higbe Handcuffs Bruins

For seven innings Kirby Higbe handcuffed the Bruins on four hits, but he lost control in the eighth and loaded the bases and had to have help from Hugh Casey, who pulled out with the loss of only one run.

The Cardinals, inspired by the success they enjoyed in taking three out of four games from the Dodgers dropped the Phils 7-4 and 7-5.

It took a three-run triple by George Kurowski to snap a tie and decide the opener, but the Cards put the nightcap away early, scoring all their runs in the first five frames.

The New York Giants were kept idle by weather at Pittsburgh but their hold on third place was strengthened when the Boston Braves knocked over Bucky Walters and the Cincinnati Reds, 4-2, in a night game.

Walters held the Braves hitless for five innings but they routed him in the sixth when they scored all their runs with the help of three straight walks.

When Dick Hallow was watching his Harvard footballers the other day, a pleasant sight was a big, fast, rugged-looking freshman who appeared exceptionally good at pulling out of the line. . . Turning to line coach Lyle Clark, Dick asked "who is he?". . ."Don't get excited," came the reply. "His name is Hollingworth; he comes from Groton, and he joins the marines Sept. 10. He's just doing this to toughen himself up."

TORONTO WINS IN NINTH FRAME BY 4 TO 3 COUNT

Les Burge Tied Score in First Half of Ninth With Homer

BISONS SPLIT

By The Associated Press

You won't find his name among the top hurlers of the International League. As a matter of fact you have to go to the bottom of the list before you come across the handle of Clem Dreiswerd.

Dreiswerd is with the last place Rochester Red Wings and his inability to win is one of the chief reasons why the Wings are cellar occupants. Great things were expected of him after his excellent 1941 season in which he won 15 games while losing six.

The lanky, 190-pound left-hander suffered 14 straight setbacks before he registered his first 1942 victory at the expense of Buffalo Bisons last night in the first game of a double-header, 2-1. He gave up six hits, the same number the Wings garnered off Bud Thomas, who went the distance for the Bisons.

Buffalo took the nightcap with a three-win eighth inning uprising which spilled Rochester, 5-4.

Although Jersey City Giants game with Syracuse Chiefs was postponed; the Giants went into a second place tie with Montreal Royals, who lost to Toronto Maple Leafs, 4-3.

Toronto Wins in 9th

Montreal umped off to a two-run lead in the first inning only to have Toronto score single tallies in the first, fifth and sixth frames and take a 3-2 lead. Les Burge tied the score with his 26th home run in the ninth but the Leafs won out in the last half on a walk to Johnny Wyrostek and a double by Al Rubeling.

By splitting a twin-bill with Baltimer Orioles, the Newark Bears drew closer to annexing their seventh pennant in 11 years. Baltimore won the opener, 2-1, and the Bears the finale, 6-3.

Tommy Byrne gave up only four hits, but his wildness cost him the ball game as Joe Krakauskas limited the Bears to five in the lidlifter.

Hank Majeski led Newark's 11 hit attack in the second with a homer and triple. Aaron Robinson and Gene Corbett also contributed four-masters for Newark.

Canada's Athletes at War

TORONTO, Aug. 29— (CP) —A well-known Maritimes athlete, Dallas Laskey of Fredericton, is in the Royal Canadian Air Force now.

At the University of New Brunswick where he received his Bachelor of Arts degree, Laskey was recognized as a top swimmer, skier and boxer. It was in the latter sport that he really shone. At various times in his youthful career he held the Maritime featherweight title, the New Brunswick lightweight crown and the New Brunswick welterweight championship.

Two well-known golf-playing medicos from Vancouver are in the army now. Dr. J. M. McDiarmid and Dr. W. R. Brewster were members of the Vancouver Golf Club before their enlistment.

The Devon, N. B. baseball team, runner-up to Liverpool Larrupers for the Maritime championship in 1941, has lost a valuable southpaw pitcher, "Skinner" Banks. It's all in a good cause though, because Banks left the Devon nine only to join the R.C.A.F.

Haddo Mills, who coached Moose Jaw baseball teams for several years is a flight lieutenant in the R.C.A.F.

Doug Webb, goalkeeper for St. Boniface Seals in their Memorial Cup victory in 1938 is in the Royal Canadian Navy Volunteer Reserve. Doug played for the Geraldton Gold Miners in the Thunder Bay senior league in 1939 and 1940.

Lou Labovitch, 25-year-old Winnipeg hockey product, quit professional ranks to enlist in the R.C.A.F. as a physical instructor.

The husky defenceman and right winger left the Manitoba capital after one season with Winnipeg Juniors in 1937 and performed for Moose Jaw Millers until he entered pro ranks with Philadelphia Rockets in the American League in 1941.

Double Steal

Hank Wolfe of the Richmond news leader replays this incident from a sandlot game for the benefit of all guys who claim you can't steal first base . . . On a hit and run play, the batter failed to swing at the ball. The runner on first broke with the pitch and was almost down to second when he suddenly pulled up and sprinted madly back to first. . . He made it safely, but it wasn't until the inning ended that his teammates learned why he had reversed himself on an apparently successful steal. . .Seems the catcher made a looping toss down to the second baseman and the runner, just catching a glimpse of the ball, figured it was a pop fly.

TORONTO, Aug. 29 — (CP) — The rumor is about that Eddie Shore is acting as agent for several junior hockey players with professional aspirations. If so, professional hockey bosses had better seek the good offices of the Wartime Prices and Trade Board, because Mr. Shore is a sharp man in a deal. This would be right up his corridor.

In one way, it would be a good thing. Too many junior hockey players in the past have signed professional contracts for less than their worth. I don't recall the exact figures. But Pete Langelle, for instance, signed with Toronto Maple Leafs for hundreds of dollars below the figure demanded — and received — by several less hockey players that same year, 1937.

We are not talking of salaries now, but of the cash paid generally to a player when he signs a contract. It's sort of a retainer. Some have gone as high as $800, to my knowledge, and others as low as $100. The difference generally was not as much in the quality of the hockey player as in his business acumen. Eddie Shore will fix all that. The age of inequalities in that particular department is at an end.

He's Lieut. Henry Viney now, Shilo's sports officer ... Jack (Vancouver Sun) Patterson had a good yarn about a match between Guy Kibee and Bill Frawley, the screen stars, during the Lions Gate Open .... on one tee Frawley hooked his first ball out of bounds, then tipped his provisional ball off the tee, while addressing it ... cracked Kibbee: "Now you're all tuned up, Bill, why don't you play something?"

CASUAL COMMENT

by K.J.C.

AFTER SWEEPING THROUGH their series with the Trenton Rexalls, the Army & Navy Vets now turn their attentions towards Kingston's softball greats, which this year happens to be the Victorias. Softball in the Limestone City wasn't the crowning success it has enjoyed in previous years paramountly because a successful City Baseball League was operated in the Limestone City. However, with only two teams from Kingston entered in a four-teamed loop the Victorias sallied through to a rather easy league title. In years past the Limestone City mushballers, when "Cowboy" Smith was their top hurler, always gave Belleville softball interests plenty of diamond argument and Monday night should be no different from previous tilts. No doubt Johnnie Bawden will go to the hilltop versus the Vics., with Jim Hunter and Connie Harris available for relief duty. Incidentally when Point Anne did not sponsor a softball team this season it was a blessing the Vets. can thank their lucky stars. Murney Green has done yeoman service handling the Vets' catching duties, then there is Doug Bennett, Mike Whalen, Phil Loft and "Pee Wee" Hutchings, all former Cementmen who have materially helped Skipper Barriage's team to attain its present lofty perch.

UP IN OSHAWA THE HOMEtown Colts meet the Peterboro Plazas in the first game of their end of the Eastern Ontario semifinals, with the return game slated for Peterborough a week hence. Oshawa will doubtless start their ace hurler, Dean McLaughlin with Parsons firing for Jim Ellis' Plazas. Commenting on the series Scribe G. Campbell, who is also manager of the Colts, has this to say; "Many of the Peterboro squad played for the great Peterboro team which Varcoe's eliminated in a hectic 3-game series in 1938. Jim Ellis, heavy-hitting 1st baseman, Kingdon, a right-fielder, Eddie Star, catcher, "Spook" Scriver, left-field, Don Crowe (lacrosse and rugby star) who plays 2nd base and a chap named Blewett, who patrols centre-field in sensational style and get three or four hits every game, are some of the team's stars. Peterboro softball fans claim their hockey-minded softball team, the Plazas, are the heaviest-hitting team to ever represent Peterboro and in Parsons and Wilson, they have some reliable pitchers. However, the Oshawa Colts are rated by many local softball experts, as the best team to represent this city in many years and in Dean McLaughlin and "Preem" Whiteley, the Colts have two hurlers who will make it mighty tough for the heavy-hitting Plazas, while Colts also have a strong infield and can hit themselves."

That's quite a race the Zellers and Deacons are staging in our gals' softball league finals. Leo Barrett's dandies took the first decision 11 to 6, but not to be outdone the twice-champion Zellers whipped back to win the second contest by the identical score to even the standing and the scoring in two games. The series continues Tuesday and Thursday.

Remember when Arthur W. Ostrander, 21-year-old long distance swimmer, swam seven miles from Falmouth Hights, Mass., to West Chop Beach, Martha's Vineyard, Mass., in two hours 45 minutes four years ago today? Ostrander shattered all records for the seven mile and intermediate distances.

Going on the assumption the 1942 world's series will find the Yankees meeting the Dodgers again, and that service funds will share in the receipts, Gerry Hern of the Boston Post argues that all the games should be played at Yankee Stadium, because the greater seating capacity of that park will bring a larger contribution for war relief.

"Because of the fact that we are a nation at war, it is only right that war funds and charities should collect a heavy piece of the receipts, and there will be more receipts if the Series is played all the way in the Yankee Stadium, rather than in Ebbets Field, which has a seating capacity of 35,000 against the Stadium's 80,000," writes Hern.

"MacPhail favored taking the World's Series on the road this year, playing 15 games in minor league cities to swell the funds for war relief agencies and to give the outlanders a chance to see the big leaguers in action. The idea was well received in the National League but, unfortunately, there is another league, without which there can be no World's Series. And that league brushed off the idea of taking the Series on the road and playing one-night stands. The American leaguers advanced solid reasons for not taking it on the road and brought up the question: 'Why gamble on the road receipts when you can take in almost as much at home with no gamble?'

"Then they suggested playing the entire series at the Stadium, with its tremendous capacity, with arrangements made so war relief funds can receive an amount in the neighborhood of $300,000. MacPhail had favored the road tour idea and when he was voted down he seemed alarmed that anyone should question his promotions. So he has been thinking things over and mentioned that he must ask the board of directors of the Brooklyn club for permission to consider shifting the Series.

"The Yankees have a big ball park and they are willing to offer it for the World's Series at no extra profit to themselves; the Army and Navy will benefit greatly from the extra funds, and there will be Brooklyn boys receiving some of the benefits in the services. MacPhail shouldn't worry about the goodwill of the people of Brooklyn. If they won't spend a nickel to go up to the Yankee Stadium to help swell the funds of war relief agencies, they don't deserve any consideration."

"OURSELVES, AS OTHERS sees us—or an Irish sportswriter's conception of baseball" is the title of today's lesson. Seems a couple of Yankee teams were playing a baseball game in Belfast, Ireland, last month and here's how it was reported—

"The Governor and the Duchess of Abercorr were present at Ravenhill Grounds, Belfast, on Saturday, for the second big baseball match. An enthusiastic crowd of some thousands saw the Californian Eagles beat the New York Lions by nine runs to six, by grand hitting of the Lions' first and second pitchers, Lieut. H. W. Martin and Sergt. R. H. Hensley. A Lions' batter, however, provided the thrill of the afternoon. Krulach, one of their ace bats, hit a home run to the farthest corner of the field, and while the fielders all dashed into position to "relay" the ball in a series of volleying throws back to the basemen Krulach went round the bases like a whirlwind, and a man on second base also ran home to credit the hit with two runs. Spectators then got an idea how American crowds can roar. There was a considerable company of American troops in the stand and ground, and their roars of glee mingled with the high-pitched calls of the opposition, and the shouts and thunderous clapping of the Ulster spectators turned Ravenhill for a minute or so into a Yankee stadium. How these American boys got keyed up! From mere baseball the match suddenly became the "ballgame" in earnest."

New York, Aug. 29—(AP)— Max Hill, former Ap Foreign Correspondent who just got home from Tokyo, reports that one of his most exciting adventures in Japan came because he had a yen to bet on a horse race . . . It seems Japanese race fans are allowed to buy only one 10-yen ticket (worth about $5) on the horse they like . .When Max went back for another ticket he was apprehended and tossed into Pokey, and since Hill couldn't talk Japanese and the cop couldn't understand English, Max had quite a time getting out. . . .Just goes to show the difference. "Spud" Chandler Bounces Back, Heads for 20-Victory Season

By WALTER L. JOHNS
Central Press Sports Editor

Ace of the New York Yankee mound staff, Spurgeon Ferdinand Chandler, the Georgia "Yankee," finally is winning a long fight to make good in the big leagues.

When Chandler graduated from the University of Georgia in 1392 with a bachelor of science degree, he began a career of baseball which has taken him from coast to coast in minor league play, has been filled with injuries and black days and finally, today finds him perched on the top rung on the ladder of pitching success.

Chandler, known as "Spud" to his baseball friends, already has won 14 games against only four losses and is a fair bet to cop 20 decisions, goal of all pitchers.

Toughest break Chandler faced was in 1939, when he broke his ankle and had to stay out of baseball most of the season. In 1940 he favored the ankle, and as a result could win but eight games. Last year he pitched good ball but couldn't win a game until July.

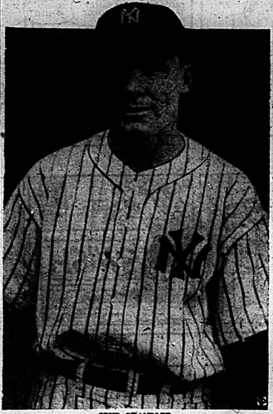
This season Chandler really has clicked. He has helped keep the Yanks far out in front of the pack by his steady twirling.

Athletic Star

A football and track star at Georgia, Chandler broke into pro baseball the same year he graduated from college. His first job was with Springfield of the Eastern league. In eight appearances on the mound he won four games.

The next year he went to Binghamton of the New York-Pennsylvania league. Following this he spent time with Newark, Syracuse, Minneapolis, Oakland and Portland before coming back east for a trial with the Yankees. He needed more seasoning and he went to Newark, where he won 14 games in 1937.

Chandler's best year to date was in 1938, when he won 14 games against five losses.



SPUD CHANDLER

Chandler is 33 years old. He is a right-handed pitcher, standing six feet tall and weighing 180 pounds. He pitched one game of the 1941 world series and lost it to the Dodgers.

'They Toil Without Glory'

By Air Marshal Harold Edwards
BBC Overseas Press

I would like to talk to you about those four simple little words—and all they imply in the Air Force here, in Canada, in the United States of America and everywhere. To us in the Air Force, they, perhaps, have a meaning that others do not see. To us, they are symbolic of men who have done much to make the Air Force what it is today.

Without them; we should fail. Without them; the Battle of Britain would have been lost. Without them (and I say this deliberately) this mighty island might, long since, have been battered to its knees.

But thank God we have them. They (no less than the men in the air) helped send the Luftwaffe, back into Germany, to lick its wounds. They (no less then the men in the air) made it impossible for flames to roar over this island as they did over London more than fifteen months ago.

I pay tribute to the men of the ground crews—the riggers; the engine mechanics; the cooks; the radio operators; the armourers; the clerks; the equipment assistants; the transport drivers; the instrument makers; the parachute riggers—all that host of people in Air Force uniform who are among the fifty ground crew trades that we have today.

The air crew—the men who fly, the valiant young men before whose sheer, stark courage I always feel humble, when I see them off on a raid—they are a gallant company. I would take away from them no whit of the credit they so rightly deserve. But I would ask you to remember that an air force is a team—a team in which each section is interdependent on the other. Those gallant young men in the air are the brilliant half-backs who carry the ball. The ground crews are the men who run interference for them and make their spectacular gains possible. Few of the ground crew are youngsters. Those who are, you can take my word for it, would be in the air if they could follow their own desire.

Older Men in Crews

Many of the ground crew are long past the age when Air Force Service means high adventure, travel, a chance to see new things.

You reach an age, you know, when you like to come home in the evening after your day's work is done; and, depending on your walk in life, take off your shoes and put on slippers, loosen your collar, (so to speak) and spend a quiet evening with your wife and children. Many of those ground crew have reached that age. They held good jobs in peace time. There were many foremen mechanics among them. The majority were already skilled tradesmen.

But they had in them that love of fair play—that hatred of a bully—that characterizes our people wherever you find them. They tossed aside their good jobs. They accepted the lowest rate of pay in the Royal Canadian Air Force. They exchanged the comforts of home life for a life in huts. They bade their wives and children goodbye, and headed out for a future in which everything was uncertain.

But perhaps I'm going too far when I say that everything was uncertain. There was one thing that was certain—that (as ground crew) their lot would be 'TOIL WITHOUT GLORY'.

There are several definitions for the word 'toil'. But the one that I feel most properly describes it, as applied to the ground crew, is the one that says toil 'is hard and unremitting work'. That is true, very true!"

I would like to add to that definition. In addition to being hard and unremitting work, the toil of ground crew, in the Air Force, is vital work. It is 'win the war' work that means the difference between life and death to the men who fly the aircraft.

Not Easy Work

Let us look at these ground crew for a few minutes and I will try to let you see them as I see them. On one of our stations there's a man called 'Paddy'. Paddy is the sort of man you'd pass in the street and never notice him. Paddy is forty-seven years old and (if you could get him to talk about it) he would tell you of a dirty night; near Amiens; in another war, long years ago. He brought back a souvenir from that war—a jagged one that the surgeons dug out of his shoulder. When this war came along Paddy enlisted again. He knew he was too old for active service. But he also knew that he was a first-rate cook.

Paddy is up there in the Midlands with one of our Canadian Squadrons. Just about now (and it is just after two o'clock in the morning over here in London) Paddy is likely busy over his pots and pans for (on the nights our aircraft are on operations) Paddy knows what it means to keep the fire going all night long. He knows too, just what an important effect bacon and eggs, if he can get them, have on morale when he serves them to tousle-headed crews, at all hours of the day and night.

Away to the north of this aerodrome is another. The wind never seems to die down there. In the winter it howls from the north and brings on its frozen breath that hard, stinging sleet that numbs the fingers and chills the marrow. There are fine Canadian boys flying the aircraft from that station. They battle with sleet and hail and wind long before (and long after) they've battled with the enemy. But they can only do that because of a group of ground crew men, whose names never strike the headlines.

Where the cruel wind howls and bites like a mad dog, these men work. Though their fingers are blue with cold, though their clothes are stiff with frozen rain, they swarm over the aircraft, cleaning, tightening, adjusting, fitting: with most loving care.

Radio Mechanics

I would like to tell you about the radio mechanics. You don't hear much about them: more because the job they do is one of the things we don't talk about. They are highly skilled men. They are doing a job that has much to do with the successful defence of this island. But no glamour surrounds them. They are hidden away, many of them, in isolated areas. They do not have the fellowship of the mess. They sleep at odd hours. But do their job magnificently. They take great pride in it. They know its importance. They know that, each day, they have done something to help to win the war. In that knowledge they are happy. They are well content.

Let me take you to a fighter station during the season when cross-channel sweeps are being made. On the days when these are at their height, the squadrons take off three or four times. That means heavy work for the ground crews. It means constant and careful checking of engine and airframe. But these men do not complain. If the aircraft they service are in action—it is their fight. If their pilot does a victory roll as he comes in to a landing—it is their victory.

They have a peculiar sense of possession. It is their aircraft—their pilot—their crew—their war—their victory.

Let me tell you of another incident. Recently, one of our bomber squadrons was converted from twin-engine bombers to heavy, four-engined types. The aircrew had made the change in record time—just half the time previously taken by any other squadron. They completed their conversion, a very few days before the first thousand bomber raid on Cologne. But while the aircrew was completing its job, the ground crew had accomplished an even greater task. Faced with new aircraft there were hundreds of minor additions and modifications that had to be made. Fitters, riggers, engine mechanics, armourers, even clerks, all turned in. They worked night and day. They had as little as four hours sleep one night. At times there were as many as thirty men working on one aircraft. But, when the Commander-in-Chief gave the order that sent another thousand bombers into the air; THAT squadron was ready. It sent out the largest number of aircraft it had ever done. It dropped four times the weight of bombs, that it had ever dropped. Every aircraft functioned perfectly.

You didn't read about those ground crew in the stories that were headlined all over the world because:-

They Toil Without Glory

But the men who flew the giant bombers knew what they had done. They did not spare their praise. And I can tell you, the Wing Commander of that squadron knows that he has the finest ground crew, now serving the British Isles.

Work Unknown

They serve with little praise; no medals; no glory. Yet there is bravery where chance it falls.

Take for instance, the bravery of Flight Sergeant Lummis who was working with gasoline in a hangar at Trenton, Ontario. Suddenly, a full can of gasoline burst into flame. Calmly, Flight Sergeant Lummis carried it toward the doors of the hangar. Ahead of him was the expanse of the aerodrome; behind him, a hangar crammed with precious aircraft. The heat was intense; and Lummis, his hands and face burned, was forced to set down his blazing load. For an instant he looked back—saw that hangar filled with valuable planes. Again he picked it up, the searing hot flames licking over his face and chest, blistering his hands and carried it hundreds of feet beyond the hangar—to safety. He nearly lost his life, but he saved many priceless aircraft. In time, Flight Sergeant Lummis was awarded the George Medal. And remember, decorations are hard to get in Canada.

This is the hour—(as I told you, it is two o'clock in the morning here) at which our bombers may be expected to arrive over the spot, in Germany, which has been designated; target for tonight.

At this very moment, German people may be dashing madly to the shelters as more than one thousand aircraft sound over their heads. Their night may be made hideous with the shriek of descending bombs; the bursting of incendiaries; the explosions of the anti-aircraft batteries.

And if, (at this very moment) a German war factory is disintegrating under the weight of heavy bombs; if a submarine base is heaving from its foundations;—give praise to the flying crew certainly. But save a few—or more than a few—of your words of praise for the ground crew—the men who make such gigantic raids possible.

Save some of your cheers for THEM.

Each time you read in your papers of a bomb attack; or of a vicious fighter battle; or the sinking of a submarine, remember the ground crew. Each time I leave an air station (usually at night) my heart goes out to these men: to whom I now pay tribute.

Let me assure their relatives that their efforts to win this war are as important as any other. They shall not go unrecognized. Let your prayers be for them too, for in so doing, you pray for the safety of them that fly. The ground crew pursue a noble calling, and:-

THEY TOIL WITHOUT GLORY!

AT THE BELLE

"Reap the Wild Wind"

Long and eagerly awaited by multitudes of film fans, Cecil B. DeMille's Paramount Technicolor epic of the sea, "Reap the Wild Wind" opens today at the Belle Theatre.

It is the master showman's sixty-sixth production and marks the anniversary of thirty hit-crowded years. "Reap the Wild Wind" is one of the most-discussed pictures ever to come out of Hollywood.

Inevitably it would concentrate in it the fruits of those years of experience, those years of gauging accurately public taste and being able to satisfy it Few producer-directors have even dared to think on as grand and as spectacular a scale as this master of the film-making art.

Advance reports reaching this desk are that "Reap the Wild Wind" is DeMille's triumph! The great screen strategist has selected a really mighty cast for this powerful tale of men and women who fought to keep our seas free in 1840. In the chief starring roles are Ray Milland, Paulette Goddard and John Wayne. The main featured roles are occupied by Raymond Massey, Lynne Overman, Robert Preston, Susan Hayward, Charles Bickford and Walter Hampden.

The story, sweeping in its scope and thrilling in its elements, has a pace that carries it from the polished floors of the pre-Civil War ballrooms to the heaving decks of sailing ships breaking up on treacherous Florida reefs, and to the floor of the ocean where divers battle a giant squid.

Continuous shows will be presented today, with the matinee prices prevailing until 6 P. M.

CHAPTER 13.

A Kissless Bride

Afterward, Linda could remember only hazily the events leading up to her marriage to Steve Baridon. She remembered that Steve had been granted a special license; that the taxi driver had been especially adept at finding a Justice of the Peace and had acted as witness for the ceremony.

Even the house where they were married was hard to recall. There had been shabby, comfortable furniture and a pleasant little man to marry them, and in a surprisingly short time they were man and wife sitting silently in a taxi cab.

"Well that's that," Steve said grimly. "Now to head for home and the music.

"I'm frightened," Linda had said timidly, her teeth chattering.

Steve laughed. "There no one at home, but my sister Mary. Dad is down south with his horses, and after a good night's sleep, you'll feel better about the whole thing." He pressed her hand firmly. "Promise that you won't worry about this, but let me take care of everything."

"Promise."

They tiptoed into the darkened house like guilty children and up the steps to the second floor. Here, after fumbling about in his unlighted room, Steve produced a pair of oversized pajamas which he thrust into Linda's hands, and then he showed her to a bedroom at the rear of the long hall.

"This is the guest room," he whispered hoarsely. "I'll call you early in the morning, so don't waste time thinking about the past. Get a good night's sleep."

Grateful tears welled in Linda's eyes as he left her to enter his own room, but tucked in the soft, comfortable bed, she cried silently to herself until at last, exhausted by the night's events, she slept . . .

The surprise marriage of Steve Baridon to what certain members of Chicago's society termed a "nobody" was to cause considerable comment. The telephone in the old Baridon mansion rang constantly the next twenty-four hours, and sitting at the cheery breakfast table that morning, Mary Baridon raved angrily about her friends.

"I don't know why all these people should be so — so snoopy," she said. "What if you two did get married suddenly? The trouble with this modern world is the lack of romance in it—"

"It's all right, Mary," Steve said smoothly. "I knew there would be talk, but we're driving out to the farm this afternoon, and by the time we come back people will have forgotten all about us in favor of some new scandal."

Linda looked at her husband gratefully. How kind he was—so unlike Greg who had, after all, thought only of himself.

Already her shyness at being taken into the Baridon family was passing. Awakening in a cheery bedroom much earlier that day, Linda had realized her new position with growing fright. The previous evening seemed like a dreadful dream; a dream from which there could be no awakening.

"Greg . . ." she had thought, agonized. "Greg—how could you be so cruel!'

Then her eyes rested on the wide band Steve had fitted clumsily over her wedding finger. "Mrs. Stephen Baridon," she thougt, confused. She had come to Chicago to be the bride of Greg Hollister. Now she was Mrs. Stephen Baridon, wife in name only to a man who had declared grimly and honestly that he would never love anyone but Brenda Coleman.

With the memory of her wedding ceremony came a realization of the many duties and obligations facing her. She had saved her face, yes, and stilled—perhaps—the gossip which might have tormented her had she returned to Prairievale. Still there would be much explaining ahead. What could she say to her parents, to her friend Sally—even to Mary?

Linda was suddenly frightened. What of Steve's father — his friends? She had forgotten in her grief that they would expect an explanation.

"I can't go downstairs," she thought desperately. "I can't face anyone—not even Steve. What does he think of me this morning?"

Se dressed slowly, fastidiously, as though to put off the moment when she must certainly face the Baridons, but just as she finished her toilette someone rapped softly on the door and Steve's voice said softly, "Linda—there's something I must tell you."

Linda crossed the room in a flash, opening the door to reveal Steve holding a paper outstretched a frown on his face.

"Is something wrong?" she queried anxiously.

She laughed. "It's just that we have made the papers."

Linda read the caption on an inner page:" STEVEN BARIDON IN SURPRISE MARRIAGE, (it read). HORSE FINANCIER WED IN MIDNIGHT CEREMONY TO PRAIRIEVALE STENOGRAPHER.

The story was long and spectacular. There were pictures. Pictures of Steve, handsome in riding togs; in tails. There was even a picture taken in his college days. Too, there were pictures of Brenda Coleman in her wedding veil, with the caption: SHE JILTED SOCIETY HORSEMAN FOR MILLIONS. And tucked in a corner of the page was a small snapshot of Linda, herself, taken months before in Prairievale and obtained by the newspaper in some unexplained fashion.

All in all the story was cheap and shoddy. It misrepresented facts, facts none too clear even now to those most concerned—Linda and Steve.

"Oh, Steve, it's horrible!"

"I know. They didn't leave much to the imagination." Ruefully.

"But what shall we do? I never expected anything like this!" She wept suddenly. "Oh, Steve, I had no right to ruin your life and make you the brunt of all this scandal."

"Courage, my dear," he said gently. "You've nothing to regret. All this will be forgotten inside a week. Just don't let it lick you."

"But—Mary—your father—. How can I face them?"

"I told you that Dad is down south. I've already wired him the news, and Mary's head is so full of love's young dreams she'll think our marriage very beautiful and romantic."

"There's just one thing," he went on. "Your mother telephoned early this morning. The newspapers had called her to confirm our marriage and they gave her this address. She wanted to talk to you."

When Linda's mouth trembled, he went on quickly. "I told her we were remarkably happy and that you would write soon. Was that all right?"

Linda nodded silently, and Steve went on. "To all pretenses we are a happily wedded couple. So madly in love—love at first sight, remember—that we eloped and are leaving on a secret, extended honeymoon, so keep your chin up."

Holding fast to Steve's arm, Linda descended the wide stairs to the first floor, to find Mary Barldon awaiting them impatiently. Mary's pretty face was wreathed in smiles. Her eyes sparkled expectantly as she threw her arms around Linda's neck and kissed her warmly on the cheek.

"Linda, I can't begin to tell you how happy I am for you both," she said. "Steve, you are lucky to have such a charming person for a wife. Isn't she pretty?"

"Very pretty," he agreed, smiling but his eyes were unfathomable. Then, with an attempt at jocularity, "Suppose we have breakfast now, Mary. After all, you are holding up the wedding trip, you know, and I'm an impatient bridegroom."

His eyes chanced to meet Linda's as he said that, and she felt color suffusing her fair skin. Bridegroom! The sudden silence was awkward and strained before Mary's light laughter broke the spell.

Germany Claims 2,195 Prisoners Taken at Dieppe

Berlin (from German broadcasts) Aug. 29 (AP)—The German high command claimed in a special communique today that 2,195 Allied prisoners were taken during the Commando operation at Dieppe on August 19 and asserted the raid actually aimed at establishing a continental bridgehead in preparation for an invasion of France.

The Allied raiding force left more than 600 dead behind when they returned to England, the high command claimed, adding the bodies were washing in daily from the Channel. German losses in dead, wounded and missing were placed at 597.

The communique said the Allied "order of operation" was found on a captured staff officer, proving that the landing attempt was more than an "ordinary commando raid" and that it was intended to establish an invasion bridgehead.

(The British Broadcasting Corp. advised the French people before and during the raid that the operation was not an invasion.)

The German communique claimed Allied losses in the action included 127 planes, four destroyers, two torpedo boats, one speedboat, seven transports and a number of landing boats.

German losses were placed at 35 planes and one submarine chaser.

EVENTUAL DOOM OF NAZI U-BOAT SEALED BY BRAZIL

Brazil's Entry Into War Opens Bases for United States Planes

By J. F. SANDERSON
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Washington, Aug. 29 —(CP)— It was the German submarine that brought Brazil into the war on the side of the United Nations and it may be Brazil's declaration of war that eventually brings the submarine menace in the long reaches of the Atlantic Ocean under effective control.

Naval observers here believe that when President Getulio Vargas brough Brazil into the war he sealed the eventual doom of the U-boat in the Atlantic by providing the United Nations with bases for planes and naval craft in the comparatively narrow waters between South America and West Africa.

Submarine sinkings off the Canadian and American coasts have been dropping sharply for the past month or six weeks, largely because the naval and air forces of Canada, the United States and Britain have been unable to organize effective patrol and convoy units in those waters.

To a lesser extent, sinkings in the Caribbean have been reduced in the same period but off South America they have increased sharply. That has been due largely to ineffective patrol in the South Atlantic and the absence of the convoy system, making those waters an ideal hunting ground for U-boats.

Make Great Difference.

If the U-boats can be driven from the last unprotected water open to them, the area between West Africa and Brazil, it will make an appreciable difference to the course and duration of the war.

Brazil's declaration of war makes available to the ships and planes of the United Nations valuable harbors and bases which will complement West African bases such as Freetown and Bathurst. It is only 1,800 miles between the hump of Brazil and the African coast.

Brazil's navy is small, consisting of two 19,000-ton battleships, two cruisers, nine destroyers, four submarines, eight mine layers, two mine sweepers and fifteen auxiliaries. Brazil's air force is also small, consisting of only 400 planes in 1940. But hundreds of landing fields have been built in recent years and progress made in the construction of air bases for Atlantic patrol work.

Brazil's military forces are small, too, and probably ill-equipped for modern warfare but her natural resources are incalculable. It will be in the field of providing raw materials for the war machines of Canada, the United States and Britain that Brazil will be most valuable to the United Nations, and in providing bases for naval and air units.

17th Casualty List Of Active Army

Ottawa, Aug. 29 —(CP)— In the 17th Canadian (Active) Army casualty list issued since the battle of Dieppe the Department of National Defence today reported one man killed in action, one seriously wounded, 10 wounded and one suffering from exposure.

The 13 names on the list brought the unofficial count of casualties attributable to the Canadian attack on the French coastal town last week to 827 of whom 155 are dead, 533 wounded, 121 missing, 11 not diagnosed, one in hospital, one suffering from a superficial injury and five suffering from exposure. The total number of men reported dead and missing by the army since the start of the war now stands at 1,046.

The man reported killed today was CSM. Norman McIvor of the Central Ontario Regiment whose home address was given as Stornoway, Scotland.

Only one officer was mentioned in the list, Capt. Ernest Poyson Thompson of Winnipeg, who was reported wounded.

MOVED FROM LIBYA

Moscow, Aug. 29 — (AP) — A German anti-aircraft battery officer captured south of Krasnodar, Lieut. William Shaaf, was quoted by the army newspaper Red Star today as saying he arrived in the North Caucasus along with other officers from the Egyptian-Libyan front Aug. 2.

Market Quietly Steady With Receipts Ample

Toronto, Aug. 29—All egg prices remained steady and unchanged on the Toronto open produce market Friday The market was quietly steady with receipts ample for requirements. The trading improved under a better enquiry. Movement to outside points was light but great activity was centered on recandling and assembling carlots out of storage for inspection prior to shipment to breaking and drying points. Nine cars went forward this week.

The butter market was firm under light receipts and a good demand. Ontario No. 1 creamery butter solids sold at the previous price of 35 cents a pound. There has been a good enquiry for undergrades but offerings have been light and hard to get.

The dressed poultry market maintained a steady tone with quotations practically unchanged under a good demand. More heavy chickens arrived and cleared well into consumer channels. There was an improved demand for frozen turkeys owing to the acute situation of the beef market. Some dealers are making a special effort to get this kind of poultry moving through retail channels. Out of town movement has been normal, 105 boxes of geese, weighing 7,075 pounds, going forward to Newfoundland earlier this week.

The cheese market continued dull and draggy and offerings of the current white make were on sale for 20 cents a pound. Brokers reported that they were unable to recall a market being dull for so long.

Hitler Attempts To Prove Raid Intended as Front

London, Aug. 29 (CP Cable) — Reuters News Agency today reported that a German high command communique from Hitler's headquarters attempted to prove that the Aug. 19 Canadian-led raid on Dieppe, France, was intended as the opening of a second front in Europe.

The communique claimed this intention was shown in "allied operational order No. 121" seized during the raid. It added there were only two copies of the order, one for each of two brigade staffs.

TROOP ARRIVALS QUIZ REPORTERS ON SUNDRY NEWS

Boys Arriving in Britain Have to Know Things and Turn Interview Into a Question Program

By ROSS MUNRO
Canadian Press War Correspondent

A British Port, Aug. 28 — (CP) — Canadian soldiers and airmen on troop ships just arrived from Canada ask more questions about England and life in army camps here than the ministry of information could answer off hand.

They are avid for "inside dope" and hound a war correspondent who goes aboard to get the story of the troops themselves and their crossing. Time and time again, the correspondent becomes the person interviewed instead of the interviewer.

With the flood of questions comes a stream of fantastic rumors about enemy attacks in the Atlantic. You have to be a battle-dress encyclopedia on wartime England to meet the queries and a cold cynic about the rumors.

Questions about air raids are still top of the list. The troops want to know when the last raid was, number of planes over, how the anti-aircraft defences worked and when you yourself last saw a Nazi aircraft.

Second Front

They talk about Britain's great bombing raids over Germany and mention the second front. They're sold on both.

The soldiers and airmen are always anxious to know where they're going after disembarkation. That one's generally easy, for various formations have established depots where new contingents first report. Some of them know their destination's name and this leads to a string of questions.

"Just where is it? How far is it from London? Is it near the English Channel?" With a gleam in his eye, one lad asked: "How far is it from the Jerries in France?"

They want to know how easy it is to buy smokes, what is the price of food and drinks. You stagger them a little with answers for these, especially when you say: "A pound used to go about as far as two bucks but now it doesn't stretch much more than a dollar."

Questions about training, barracks, camp accommodation and messing are asked.

Seven Day Leaves

When you tell them they'll probably get seven-day disembarkation leaves — everybody gets one —they want to know where is the best spot to spend leave. They want to know about London first and then a dozen other places which the correspondent never heard of.

You move along the crowded decks, talking to the fighting men to get their own story and keep running into friends you knew back home. You get a lot of personal news yourself and, in turn, they want to know about 50 pals in a dozen regiments.

Inevitably there are wild stories going around regarding the crossing; cock-and-bull yarns about running through a nest of German submarines. Depth charges always seem to be dropped.

Ninety per cent of the time the rumors are completely unfounded and started up the grapevine from some bored private lying in his hammock dreaming up excitement. But they take away from the tedium of convoy crossing and give the whole ship plenty to talk about.

The Haven't Time Club

Enclosed with a memorandum to Ontario industries, released today by the Industrial Accident Prevention Association, is a booklet entitled "The Haven't Time Club". It deals with those who haven't time to prevent accidents, or, as the memo says, those who apparently have time to hand to the enemy.

Humorously illustrated, the booklet opens with membership qualifications. They are: Any persons who haven't time to consider the safety of themselves or others; who agree to do their work in a hasty and unplanned manner; who will not take precautions to protect health and life; who will howl when they are hurt through their own thoughtlessness.

The booklet concludes with the following advice: "If you have been a member of this famous 'Haven't Time Club' drop your membership at once—the man who takes time to be careful is a better craftsman and will be happier in the long run."

The Dangers of Gasoline

Ottawa, Aug. 29 — The dangers of gasoline, its explosive powers and its probably fatal effect if the fumes are inhaled, are being taught Canada's soldiers.

The last Canadian Army Training Memoranda deals with the subject using a humorous example of the careless recruit to bring home the serious truth. Here is the extract . . . and it could be read usefully by civilians as well.

Gasoline—The Triple Threat.

The screwball sniffed the air delicately and purred, "I like the smell of gasoline. I like the smell of new-mown hay. I like the smell of fresh tobacco."

With this he dropped the hose with which he had been filling a five gallon can of gasoline and brought out his trusty pipe. From an ancient pouch, he filled it with tobacco. He fumbled in his pocket for a match and scratched it across the seat of his jeans.

There was a loud bang and the screwball vanished. He was sighted some time later over Cranbrook, B.C., and is believed responsible for an air raid "alert" in the Vancouver area that lasted for twenty minutes.

Three Dangers

Even if he hadn't lit the match, the screwball would probably have wound up a dead pigeon from his sniffing operations alone. For the dangers of gasoline come in packages of three; fire and explosion; poisoning from inhalation, and skin irritation.

Of the first, everybody knows how explosive gasoline vapours are—and the lunkhead above found out. But not everybody knows that gasoline vapours are pure poison when inhaled (danger number 2). As a matter of fact, one-tenth of the amount of gasoline vapour in the air necessary to cause an explosion, is harmful if inhaled. A couple of good snorts will cause dizziness, nausea, and a rollicking good headache. Large amounts will deliver the same results as a Michael Finnegan, namely,—eight, nine, ten, and you're out.

Headache, dizziness or a beery sensation accompanied perhaps by an intense desire to sing Sweet Adeline, are warnings that too much gasoline vapour is at large. A quick dive out the window into the open air will clear up the early symptoms—but if anybody has been knocked out by the fumes, run, do not walk to the nearest doctor.

The third danger, skin irritation, is not so widely appreciated. Gasoline, if allowed to remain in contact with the skin will cause severe burns—and we don't mean LIT gasoline. Wearing absorbent gloves while handling gasoline is a bad practice, and clothes and shoes that have become saturated with the stuff, should be changed, but fast. And keep away from fire—or you're a toasted marshmallow.

Dishpan hands may be acquired through exposure to gasoline because the protective oils are removed from the skin, and chapping, roughening and cracking are sure to follow.

In some cases, dermatitis will result. This is an inflammation of the skin that usually starts on the hands and spreads over the entire body. You'll love it!

Wash off any gasoline that has gotten on the skin, with soap and water.

The Greatest Danger

As to the biggest danger lurking in gasoline—fire and explosion — talking to most people about this yields the same results as talking to a brick wall. It requires a deep, and thoughtful mind to understand that gasoline vapour rolls along the ground like a thick colud and goes boom when it encounters a spark or a flame. But just on the chance that somebody in the audience loves life, here's a list of precautions guaranteed to save your own or somebody's else's life at one time or another.

List of Precautions

Read them and keep off the deadline:

(A) No filling of tanks, transfer of gasoline, or other operations which involve exposure of gasoline to air, should be carried out near open fires, motors in operation, or lights that could ignite vapors. Men engaged in such work must not carry matches, and smoking in the immediate areas should be forbidden and prevented, by supervision.

(b) Work should be done in the open air if possible, and good ventilation must always be maintained. Gasoline vapour is heavier than air an dif not removed will settle in depressions (trenches and ditches) or flow into basements at some distance.

(c) Gasoline should be used as a motor fuel only (except in field stoves where white gas is used). It must not be used for cleaning or as a solvent in repairing machinery.

(d) Care must be taken to avoid spilling gasoline. It must not be emptied into sewer lines or cesspools, since vapours may travel great distances through these channels and be ignited elsewhere.

(e) When large quantities of gasoline are being transferred and the flow is rapid, the tank that is being filled should be grounded or the hose employed should carry ground connections, to avoid accumulation of static electricity. This hazard is intensified when the air is very dry and the container into which the gasoline is being run is well insulated from the ground.

(f) Proper fire extinguishing equipment should be at hand whenever gasoline is transferred or loaded.

(g) Rags or waste saturated with gasoline should be destroyed and not left lying about as a source of vapour or fire hazard.

JAP INVADERS OF MILNE BAY AREA SMASHED

Reds Force Nazis From Two Zones Near Stalingrad

COMPULSORY EMPLOYMENT EFFECTIVE TUESDAY

Carefully-Laid Trap Drives Japs Out of Peninsula

Allied Troops Placed on Ground Before Jap Thrust Last Wednesday

SOME JAPS ESCAPE

Allied Headquarters, Australia, Aug. 31 (CP)—Hard-fighting Australian ground troops, slashing through the muddy jungle of south eastern New Guinea with Australian and United States air units aiding from above, have smashed the Japanese invaders of the Milne Bay area in a carefully-laid trap and with them a new menace to Australia.

General Douglas MacArthur's headquarters, in a special communique today, announced that Australian troops commanded by Major General Cyril Albert Clowes, an Australian veteran of the Middle East campaigns, had driven the Japanese out on the narrow peninsula north of Milne Bay where they are being "rapidly reduced."

Although a portion of the Japanese forces probably was saved from destruction by evacuation on Japanese warships at night, their losses have been heavy, the communique said.

All of their heavy supplies, including tanks, were abandoned on the narrow beach of Milne Bay, which they entered so confidently last Wednesday.

The communique told how the Allied command in complete secrecy prepared for the Japanese thrust, the fourth enemy attempt to reach the advanced Allied outpost at Port Moresby, New Guinea.

"The enemy fell into the trap with disastrous results to him," the communique concluded.

Milne Bay is only 430 miles from the nearest point on the Australian mainland and some 225 miles southeast of the Allied base at Port Moresby, New Guinea.

Bitter Fighting Rages

Bitter fighting still was in progress along the muddy trails of the jungles and mangrove swamps of Milne Bay's north peninsula, but the communique said the area was "rapidly being cleared of the enemy."

Australian troops, "brilliantly supported by American and Australian air units," were credited with achieving the success.

The Japanese who escaped from the Milne Bay trap apparently were taken off on eight destroyers and a cruiser which slipped into the bay Saturday night. Allied bomber pilots, hampered by bad weather, were unable to break up the action.

Prime Minister John Curtin, informed of the Milne Bay communique said: "I express our gratitude to the gallant forces and able leadership for all that is being done for us. Australia is well served."

Army Minister Francis Forde said that "in their planning and execution Australia's military advisers acted with great foresight and ability. Although the latest news is encouraging it does not minimize the seriousness of Australia's position. . ."

Fourth Attempt

The Japanese adventure in Milne Bay was the fourth phase of an endeavour to capture Port Moresby, the communique said. The Allied base is on the south coast of the island and is protected on the north by the high and forbidding Owen Stanley range.

The Japanese first tried to turn its left flank with their landings at Lae and Salamaua, but this "proved impracticable". the communique said.

The next attempt was aimed at the rear and a large convoy force was engaged at sea and "repulsed and dissipated by air and sea action."

Tried to Turn Flank

(The communique did not say specifically that this air and sea action was the battle of the Coral Sea from May 4 to May 9 in which Australian and United States land and naval air forces inflicted such

Parents Receive Letters From Sons

Lindsay, Ont., Aug. 31 (CP)—The hearts of Mr. and Mrs. P. S. Nugent of Lindsay were gladdened here Saturday when they received a letter and two postcards from two sons, one a prisoner of war in Germany and the other in Hong Kong.

The letters were from Sgt. Pilot Jack Nugent, in a prison camp 50 miles from Dresden in Germany and Lieut. W. F. Nugent, in Hong Kong.

Lieut. Nugent wrote: "I was wounded in the leg and arm and was in hospital four months but am well, hale and hearty, comfortable and enjoying myself. It has been very warm. I am studying German and teaching mathematics...We are paid enough to buy toilet articles and a few cigarettes...Do not worry mother."

Sgt. Nugent wrote he had baled out of his plane, which took fire and exploded.

"I am happy and well and the Germans are really using us fine. I hurt my knee but am all O.K. now. Have had a wonderful experience—much to talk about after the war...We are happy and please do not worry."

A third son, Wilbert Nugent, 18, is now serving with the Canadian army at Cornwall, Ont.

Kingston Major Given Command

Kingston, Ont., Aug. 31 —(CP)—Maj. D. C. (Ben) Cunningham of Kingston, has been appointed officer commanding the Queen's Own Cameron Highlanders, his wife here was notified by cable Saturday.

It is believed that Maj. Cunningham, who was not injured during the Dieppe raid although he took part as a brigade major with the fourth Canadian brigade, has been promoted to the rank of lieutenant-colonel.

He is a graduate of the Royal Military College here and before going overseas was a member of Kingston city council.

Mr. Justice Masten Dies at Age of 85

Toronto, Aug. 31 (CP) — Mr. Justice C. A. Masten, Justice of the Supreme Court of Ontario, died today at the age of 85. He had been a Justice of that body since 1915.

He was born in the Paris of St. Bernard de La Colle, Quegec, and educated at La Colle Academy and at Victoria University, Cobourg, Ontario, he became mathematics master at Orillia, Ont., high school, but did not care for teaching and studied Law, obtaining his call in 1883.

In 1908 he was appointed King's Counsel and in the same year was elected a Bencher of the Law Society of Upper Canada.

100 YUGOSLAV FIGHTERS EXECUTED

London, Aug. 31 (CP)—A Reuters News Agency dispatch from Stockholm said today German troops had captured 983 fighters in Yugoslavia north of the Save River and more than 100 were executed immediately.

CHINESE FORCES STORM SUBURBS OF NANCHANG

Recapture Likaitu 40 Miles From Base And Drive Continuing Steadily

LANCHI ALSO TAKEN

Chungking, Aug. 31 (AP)—Driving forward with the momentum of new victories over the Japanese in Kiangsi and Chekiang Provinces, Chinese forces were reported fighting bitterly today only nine miles from Nanchang, which the invaders have held for more than two years and outfitted as their principal Kiangsi base.

The Chinese High Command said retreating Japanese forces had been pursued to the outskirts of Nanchang after the Chinese recaptured Likaitu, 40 miles south of the city.

The recapture of Liangkaitu, north of Nanchang, was reported from Lientang, only nine miles from the city.

The Central News Agency said the Chinese advance in Chekiang Province continued and that Lungyu, 20 miles east of Chuhsien, was occupied today after heavy fighting during the night. The largest air base in China is at Chuhsien, which has been retaken by the Chinese in the present offensive along with smaller air base at Lishui.

Lanchi Reported Taken

It was also reported unofficially that Lanchi, 20 miles northwest of Lungyu, had fallen to the Chinese. The city had been held by the Japanese since May 30, when it was captured in the drive which resulted in temporary Japanese possession of the 450-mile Chekiang-Kiangsi railroad.

Chinese troops have retaken nearly 350 miles of the railroad in their present offensive and have recovered most of the territory occupied this summer by the Japanese in the two provinces.

In the face of these Chinese successes, the Berlin radio, quoted Japanese Imperial headquarters as claiming that Japanese offensive operations started in May had been successfully concluded and that the Allies had been prevented from establishing air bases in the two eastern provinces for raids against Japan.

Nazis Minimize Drive

At present, this report said, the Chinese are merely occupying districts evacuated by the Japanese in a "regrouping" of their forces.

In a raid Saturday on Lashio, at the head of the railway from Rangoon and marking the beginning of the famous Burma Road to China, bombers with fighter escort were credited with scoring 32 hits in the airport area and starting a large fire at one corner of the airfield.

Another objective, the warehouse area of the city, also was attacked.

"Many hits were scored in the warehouse area," the communique said, "and at least three large fires were started."

From all the weekend raids the planes returned without loss.

DEATH SENTENCES CONFIRMED

London, Aug. 31 (CP)—A German high court in the Hague has confirmed death sentences against three Hollanders charged with taking part in the robbery of a food control office, it was reported today. Eight others accused of participation in the same crime received sentences of from two to nine years at hard labor.

Nazis Forbid Industries to Produce For Civilian Use in Occupied Lands

London, Aug. 31 —(CP)— Fritz Sauckel, Nazi high commissioner for the employment of labor, has announced that all industrial production for civilian purposes in German-occupied countries must cease immediately, an Exchange Telegraph dispatch from Zurish aid today.

Only factories supplying the German civil and military occupation authorities will be permitted to operate, Sauckel was reported as saying in outlining new principles for increased production.

Working hours in the occupied countries have been increased to 54 hours weekly and a decree subjecting workers in the occupied countries as well as foreign workers in Berlin to "the most severe military discipline" has been enforced, the Exchange Telegraph report said.

Bombers Pound Berlin And Three Baltic Ports Starting Large Fires

Soviet Sources Declare 498 German Planes Destroyed in a Week Against a Loss of 206 — Germans Admit Losing Ground West of Moscow and That Fighting Quite Severe at Rzhev

Nazi Tanks Stalled For Lack Of Fuel

By HENRY C. CASSIDY
Associated Press Staff Writer

MOSCOW, Aug. 31 — (AP) — German columns generated furious attacks upon Soviet lines before Stalingrad today while the Russians announced they had taken the initiative on other fronts.

Hundreds of tanks and bombers screened manoeuvres by large invasion forces northwest of the Volga River city, where German vanguards had been swept from a strategic zone by weekend counter attacks.

The Germans struck hard also southwest of Stalingrad in the sector officially designated as "northeast of Kotelnikovski," the Nazi-held rail town 95 miles south of the city.

Russia's central front troops expanded their holdings by forcing a river crossing yesterday and fought on with the Germans in the streets of Rzhev, 130 miles northwest of Moscow.

The Soviet Information Bureau's mid-day communique said there were no material changes at the front overnight.

Red Army bombers pounded Berlin and other cities of central and eastern Germany Saturday night. The government announced that 48 fires and nine heavy explosions were set off in the Nazi capital.

Baltic Ports Bombed

The Baltic ports of Koenigsberg, in East Prussia, Danzig and Stettin were other targets and a total of 43 fires and a dozen explosions were reported from these thrusts. The government said all bombers returned.

However, it was declared that 498 German planes were destroyed during the last week, against a Russian loss of 206.

Fresh Nazi attacks upon the Russian lines before Stalingrad, bomb-scarred arsenal city on the lower Volga, were declared repulsed. Invasion columns were stemmed in the Western Caucasus and four villages were recaptured in the Prokhladnenski sector, field dispatches said.

(The German High Command was quoted in a Berlin broadcast as saying that powerful Soviet blows west of Moscow had gained some ground, but the defences of Stalingrad were deeply pierced and the Germans maintained their gains in the Western Caucasus despite difficult terrain.

Use Tanks for Pill-Boxes

(A Nazi news agency dispatch said the Russians had towed several hundred unpainted and motorless tanks from Stalingrad assembly lines to emplace them as pillboxes on the steppes outside the city, itself described as " a veritable fortress.")

While as many as 700 German tanks were reported stalled in the Don-Volga corridor area for lack of fuel, Red Marines and armed peasants joined Soviet soldiers in defence of Stalingrad.

Marshal Semeon Timoshenko's men forced the invaders from a community northwest of Stalin-

TWO AXIS VESSELS SET AFIRE BY BRITISH PLANES

Bombers and Torpedo-Carrying Airplanes Also Fire Axis Tanker Off Libya

COMMANDO-LIKE RAID

Cairo, Aug. 31 — (AP) — R.A.F. bombers and torpedo-carrying planes set two Axis ships on fire and hit at least one other in an attack off the coast of Libya Saturday night and set fire to an oil tanker in the Mediterranean yesterday, a joint headquarters-R.A.F. communique said today.

The tanker was left "blazing from stem to stern," the communique said. The planes also attacked escort vessels with cannon and machine-gun fire.

Principal activity in the Mediterranean theatre was aimed at the Axis supply lines. There was nothing but patrol activity reported from the land front.

There were some air fights over the Alamein front, and British fighters shot down at least three Messerschmitts and damaged others, the communique said.

2 Axis Bombers Downed

Two German bombers were shot down during Axis raids on Allied landing fields.

Meanwhile London reported a mysterious commando—style raid on the tiny island of Antikythera, between Greece and Crete, and a hot 24-hours of air action directed against Sicily from reinforced Malta, indicating Britain once more is striking strongly for the initiative in the Mediterranean.

The first word of the raid on Antikythera, which the Italians call Cerigotto, came from the Italian High Command which said a "small enemy unit" made a landing attempt on the night of Aug. 28 but "fled on the quick intervention of our defences."

The island is just south of Kytherea, southernmost of the Ionian Islands. Rocky and barren, it is almost midway of the 50-mile distance between Greece and Crete.

RED ARMY DRIVES PAST RZHEV ON NORTH AND SOUTH

Entire Northern Bank of Volga Cleared of German Troops

AUTUMN RAINS START

By HENRY C. CASSIDY
(Associated Press Staff Writer.)

With the Red Army Near Rzhev, Aug. 31 (AP)—The Red Army has driven past Rzhev north and south of the city, cleared the entire northern bank of the Volga and fought into the city itself in a strong offensive, Soviet officers said today.

Russian troops riding tanks into the battle and backed up by heavy Russian artillery have battered their way through the vaunted German winter line on a nine-mile front.

On the first visit of foreign correspondents to the active front since the battle of Moscow seven months ago, these four points became apparent:-

1. The Red Army, despite the exhausting summer battles in the south, has the strength to take the offensive on a limited front.

2. British and United States material now constitutes a regular part of Red arms equipment and has been tried and found effective in action.

3. The German defence line erected and expanded in the last seven months west of Moscow, can be broken by concentrated attack.

4. The autumn rains are already starting in this thickly-wooded region, bringing the prospect of a long period of relative stalemate.

TOBRUK, MATRUH BOMBED

Cairo, Aug. 31 (AP)—United States bombers in the Middle East effectively attacked enemy airfields east of Matruh and harbor and dock facilities of Tobruk this morning, it was announced. Heavy and medium bombers participated in the attack.

ROMMEL'S SUPPLY BASE AT EL DADA HEAVILY BOMBED

British Naval Gunners Fire 1,000 High Explosive Shells into Base In 42 Minutes

DAMAGE EXTENSIVE

By LARRY ALLEN
(Associated Press Staff Writer)

Aboard a Destroyer of the British Mediterranean Fleet, August 30—(Delayed)—(AP)—British warships smashed Field Marshal Erwin Rommel's big Axis supply base in the Egyptian desert south of El Daba with a pre-dawn bombardment today and fought their way home under ceaseless dive-bombing concentrated on this flotilla leader.

Naval gunners fired 1,000 high-explosive shells into the sleeping German-Italian base in 42 minutes. They left a wide area of destruction and huge fires amid barracks, tank parks, repair shops, ammunition and fuel depots.

Casualties among Rommel's corps technicians, vital for maintenance of his tanks and armored cars in any contemplated offensive, were regarded by British observers as heavy.

Throughout the attack there was no answering fire from the shore. The action was broken off in the moonlight at 4:57 a.m. and this destroyer pulled away, following the other warships.

I was standing on the starboard side of the bridge with the chief of the expedition, a young, black-haired lieutenant commander when a strange craft suddenly emerged from a dark patch of water. The officer ordered the guns to fire.

Tracer shells split the darkness as the ship's batteries poured streams of explosives into the sea.

(Subsequent details of this engagement were withheld by the British censor.)

Launch Counter Attack

Soon after the rise of the sun, blood red, the Germans launched an attack with more than 50 dive-bombers, one of the fiercest and most intensive ever loosed against the surface craft.

Out of the sun swooped six planes for the first round.

Screeching, they made for this destroyer like a beast after prey. Pom-pom batteries, machine guns and turret guns of the destroyer were brought into play and the following warships added to the defensive fire, but the pilots paid little attention either to the guns or the other vessels.

They droned close, then pulled out of their dives. There was a terrifying swish of heavy bombs. Holing the sea close alongside the destroyer, the bombs gave her a huge jolt, but she plowed on.

Heavier and heavier assaults came in succession. Thousands of empty shell cases littered the decks, gunners were weary and the superstructure was riddled by bullets.

The dive-bombers persisted until the destroyer was well within sight of our home base.

Nevertheless, the lieutenant commander reported the casualties were slight. I escaped with cuts, bruises and shock.

Canadian Navy Men Praised for Fine Co-operation Given in Dieppe Assault

By ALAN RANDAL
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

With the Royal Canadian Navy, Somewhere in England, Aug. 31 (CP).—"You just can't say too much about the magnificent way Canadian Navy men acted—those ratings were tops," said the burly officer.

The officer, Lieut. Jack Koyl of Saskatoon, is one of the Royal Canadian Navy Volunteer Reserve officers serving in combined operations and he was talking about the Dieppe raid before starting a leave.

With him at this R.C.N. shore station was Sub-Lt. Dana Ramsay of Victoria, another "wavy navy" man who sailed safely through the crazy quilt of screaming shells along Dieppe's shore in the only all-Canadian flotilla of landing craft in this operation.

"That's right," said Ramsay. "Our men were just magnificent."

Ramsay and Koyl each commanded a landing craft which took members of the Montreal Black Watch ashore.

After months of combined-ops manoeuvres they and the ratings welcomed a chance to go into action with the Canadian "Pongos". (A "Pongo" is a soldier in the vernacular of combined-ops men.)

"You should have seen the men when we earned we were going to carry Canadians," said Koyl. They shouted, 'boy, oh boy, let's go.'

"Long before we got in range of

Dominion Plans Best Use Possible Of Manpower

Compulsion Applies To Unemployed Or Workers Engaged On Part Time

FARMERS, OTHER JOBS

(By JACK WILLIAMS)
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Ottawa, Aug. 31 (CP) — Tightened employment regulations which provide compulsory employment for persons now unemployed were announced today by Labor Minister Mitchell and Elliott M. Little, Director of National Selective Service.

Under these orders, which become effective at midnight tonight, selective service officers are enabled to approach any persons in an effort to induce them to take more essential work than that which they are now performing.

Four main points listed in the joint announcement were:

1. No employer may dismiss any worker and no worker may leave any job without giving seven days' notice in writing.

2. No person may seek employment and no employer may hire or interview with the intention to hire any person unless that person holds a permit to seek employment.

3. No person capable of working may remain voluntarily unemployed and any person not working full time for a period of two weeks or more can be ordered to take full time suitable work.

4. All employers must report to employment and selective service offices their future labor needs and must fill their current needs thru' the unemployment office.

Mobilize Manpower

The announcement was made at a press conference at which Mr. Mitchell presided. The Labor Minister explained the policy as making effective the government's intention "completely to mobilize the manpower of the Dominion."

The orders followed a nation-wide broadcast by Prime Minister Mackenzie King, August 19th., in which he said: "The government's policy is that every man and woman capable of performing some form of war service should undertake the service for which he or she may be best qualified and which the demands of war require."

In placing the joint statement before a group of some 15 newspapermen Mr. Mitchell said the general plan which Canada was adopting to utilize her manpower for war needs had proven effective in Great Britain and should prove equally effective in Canada..

Advice of local committees representing employers, employees, agricultural and other national groups would be sought in making the new orders effective, the Minister said.

Mr. Little told the newspapermen that in providing compulsory employment for those now working only part time or not at all the government was acting on the principle that "voluntary unemployment is something we cannot afford".

Compulsion applies to persons now

NEW CALL-UP PLAN COMING SHORTLY

Ottawa, Aug. 31—(CP)—Announcement of a new plan of calling up men for compulsory military service and of handling applications for postponements is expected within the next two weeks, Elliott M. Little, Director of National Selective Service, said today.

At a press conference held to announce new manpower regulations, Mr. Little told newspapermen army call-up quotas now are being determined by National Defence officials in close collaboration with the Selective Service Branch.

Machinery for both call-up and deferment now is being set up by National Selective Service, Mr. Little said. He deferred answering detailed questions until the later conference and said he was not in a position to say whether Maj.-Gen. L. R. LaFleche, Associate Deputy Minister of National War Services and now in charge of call-ups, would transfer to Selective Service which is under the Labor Department.

It was the desire of Selective Service officials to see that the army quota was maintained at its peak without reducing the production of food and essential war supplies.

"We have no intention of doing anything which unnecessarily interferes with voluntary enlist," Mr. Little added.

Under present regulations restricting employment, rulings by Selective Service officers on applications for employment permits may be appealed to regional boards under the jurisdiction of the National War Services Department.

Gov't Commutes Death Sentences

Belfast, Aug. 31 —(CP)— The government announced Sunday the commutation of the death sentences of five young Belfast members of the outlawed Irish Republican Army, who had been convicted of killing a policeman in Easter disorders.

The sixth man, Thomas H. Williams, 191 will be hanged Wednesday, it was announced.

The death sentences of four whose ages ranged from 19 to 21 were commuted to life imprisonment. The death sentence of Patrick Simpson, 18, was commuted to 14 years.

13 Axis Planes Downed at Malta In 24 Hours

Valetta, Malta., Aug. 31 (AP)—Malta defences destroyed 13 Axis planes during 24 hours ending 9:30 a.m. today. Nine were bombers.

The BBC said 807 enemy planes had been destroyed over Malta and there had been nearly 3,000 alerts there during the war.

SIXTY-TWO PERSONS OFFER BLOOD AT CLINIC

At a special clinic at the local Red Cross Blood Donor Clinic at the Kiwanis Centre held Sunday a total of 62 persons offered their blood for wounded countrymen, it was reported by clinic officials this morning. Approximately forty employees of the Bata Shoe Company, Frankford, made the trip to the clinic, while the remainder were composed of employees of the local plant of the Canada Packers and individuals from civilian ranks in the city.

Regular Sunday clinics will continue to be held, it was stated the next being scheduled for two weeks from last Sunday when another clinic will be held for Bata employees.

POLICE REQUEST PUBLIC'S ASSISTANCE

Co-operation of the general public in clearing Front Street of automobiles for the convenience of staging the Kiwanis Carnival scheduled for three nights this week starting Tuesday, is being asked by the Belleville police force. Police asks that Front Street be cleared of cars from Bridge Street to Campbell Street by five o'clock in the afternoon on the three days of the carnival. This will give carnival officials sufficient time for placing booths before the opening of the program each evening.

OLDEST BANDSMAN IN CITY CELEBRATES HIS 82ND BIRTHDAY

The oldest bandsman living in the city, Mr. Robert Blaind, Sr., is celebrating his 82nd birthday at his home 26 St. Paul Street, today.

As a bandsman, Mr. Blaind is well known in Belleville, he having been a member of the Belleville Municipal Band and of military bands for many years. Holder of two service ribbons, one with the Argyll Light Infantry and another from the 49th Battalion. Mr. Blaind also played in the 15th Battalion Band and also the local Oddfellows' Band. His favorite instrument was the bass horn. His many friends in the city wish him many happy returns.

Jack Bean Lands 35-lb. Muskie In Muscote Bay

Where there is smoke there is certain to be fire, or at least that is the contention of Mr. Jack Bean, Moira Street, who Sunday claimed the honor of hooking what is thought to be the largest 'lunge to be caught in the Bay of Quinte this season—a beautiful 50-inch, 35 pounder.

Last Wednesday afternoon, Jack was the second party in a boat when Steve Flintoff hooked a 20-pounder in Muscote Bay and the ensuing battle only strengthened Jack's determination to go back and get one better. Yesterday was the day. He with Ray Lockyer was fishing in almost the same spot—for bass they say—with light line and steel rods when suddenly the big fellow struck. For almost an hour the battle raged with Jack playing his catch carefully all the while fearing a sudden jerk would part the light line.

"It sure would. have taken the heart out of me to lose that one", the proud fisherman stated this morning". It's the biggest fish Jack has ever had the good fortune to catch, and the beauty is on display in Luckin's butcher shop window on Front Street.

General Council of United Church Gathers in Belleville Next Week

Many Matters of Importance to Come Before Highest Legislative Body of Church — Distinguished Visitors

Next week, beginning Wednesday September 9th., the General Council of the United Church of Canada will open its sessions at Bridge Street United Church. This is the highest court of the church in the Dominion and the sessions will be graced by a number of distinguished visitors who will bring fraternal greetings from other religious organizations or special messages to the council of commissioners.

The Minister Plenipotentiary of China to Canada, Dr. Liu Shih Shun will visit the council at the invitation of the United Church which has close relations with the Chinese nation in the maintenance of missions. Among the distinguished churchmen who will be visitors are Dr. Henry Pitt Van Dusen, Union Theological Seminary, New York, who will speak at noon during council sessions and will deliver the special sermon at the General Council at the Sunday church service in the evening, Dr. Luther A. Weigle, president of the Federal Council of the Churches of Christ in America and dean of Yale Divinity School who will bring greetings from the Federal Council, Rev. J. Shackleford Dauerty, representing the Western Alliance of Reformed Churches and Rev. Dr. H. H. Bingham who will bring greetings from the Canadian Committee, World Council of Churches.

Civic Welcome

The welcome of the city of Belleville to the commissioners will be expressed by His Worship Mayor Thompson.

Rev. Dr. James Semple, minister of Bridge Street United Church, the council church, will be host to the council. Dr. Semple is in charge of arrangements for the welfare and entertainment of those attending the General Council.

The meetings of the General Council will be open to the public, it is to be noted.

A study of the list of commissioners who will attend this biennial gathering of the representatives of the United Church in Canada shows the democratic character of this, the highest legislative body of one of a great religious organization.

Moderatorship

Several have been nominated for the moderatorship and new council appointments must necessarily be made for positions left vacant by the deaths of the treasurer, Rev. Robert Laird, D. D., and the Secretary of the Board of Christian Education, Rev. Frank Langford, D. D., and the retirement of the secretary of the Board of Pensions, Rev. Dr. S. W. Dean.

The committee which has been studying for two years the Publishing House will report, says the United Church Observer. This report is considered of keen interest in the light of the rapid movement in labor-capital relations and in business generally. The Observer remarks, "It is hoped that the General Council will determine the policy of the Publishing House for some years to come."

Finances of Church

The committtee on the finances of the church will suggest the creation of a board of finance with three departments so that the entire field of finance may be under constant review. It will make recommendations touching the securing of revenue from the Pension Fund.

The Observer says "The way to liquidate the deficit will occupy a prominent place in the deliberations of Council. The Church has done a magnificent piece of work in raising since the 1940 council, over one million dollars — maturity value. Encouraged by the success of the effort the Council will undoubtedly face the task of wiping out the total debt.

Colleges

"The report of the Commission on Colleges will call forth a great deal of sincere and deep heart searching. The Colleges hold an intimate place in the affections of the church membership. Any proposed change in the number or status of the colleges is bound to arouse strenuous opposition.

"The settlement of these and other more or less practical matters will tend to streamline the Church's organizations to better enable it to meet the exacting conditions of our modern world. The Church membership is looking eagerly and wistfully to the general Council for leadership. The responsibility is a personal one resting upon each commissioner"

In an article under the heading "Colleges" the Observer says, "the need is for more young men to dedicate their lives to the work of the ministry. This need should be taken to heart by the whole church. The problems of the colleges only serve to bring into focus the other problem of recruits for the ministry.

Many Houses Cheered by Letters From Canadians in Hong Kong

Letters From Soldiers Now Prisoners of War Strictly Censored by Japs— Writers 'Well and Cheerful'

By The Canadian Press

In many Canadian homes last night letters from prisoners of war at Hong Kong brought happiness to relatives of men of the Winnipeg Grenadiers and the Quebec Royal Rifles.

The letters, first to arrive in Canada since the fall of the Crown colony last Christmas Day, told of fathers and sons "alive and well," but all showed strict censorship by the Japanese.

Rfmn. Melbourne J. J. Carter, writing to his wife in Toronto, dealt with censorship, saying: "I can't say very much because we are allowed to say only just so much and no more."

It was learned last night that Lt.-Col. W. J. (Billy) Home, officer commanding the Quebec Royal Rifles, is a prisoner and in "good health."

In a letter to his wife, vacationing at Riviere Du Loup, Que., he said he expects to be able to write every four weeks. Mrs. Home said the letter was "cheerful."

No Mention of Food

None of the letters mentioned food, but Pte. George Hallada, 21, a member of the Winnipeg Grenadiers whose home is in Port Arthur, said: "The Japanese are treating us very good ... we have nothing to do but pass the time."

Lieut. W. F. Nugent of Lindsay, Ont., who was wounded and spent four months in hospital, reported that he now is "well, hale and hearty, comfortable and enjoying myself." He has a brother, Sgt. Pilot Jack Nugent, a prisoner in Germany.

Many of the letters told parents, wives and children "not to worry." Sgt. Robert John Clayton of Toronto said: ".... if you want to help me, please don't worry."

No Cause to Worry Says Padre

Capt. F. J. Deloughery, the only Canadian Roman Catholic Chaplain in Hong Kong, said there was "no cause to worry." He, like many other men, wrote that he was well and active.

George Porteous of Saskatoon, who went to Hong Kong as a representative of the Y. M. C. A., reported that he was active organizing sports and clubs among the Canadian prisoners. He also said he had a new pastime — learning to play the trombone.

Among the officers of both the Winnipeg Grenadiers and the Quebec Royal Rifles baseball, cricket and bridge help ward off the dreary days of the prison camp.

Plenty of Exercise and Sport

Maj. John H. Price of the Quebec Royal Rifles said he was getting "plenty of exercise" spending his leisure time at sports, including cricket and baseball.

Close to 300 letters have been received in Winnipeg from members of the Grenadiers. They came from Ottawa by airmail and were delivered to city homes by special delivery. Many others are expected to arrive today.

Besides Maj. Price's missive, other letters from members of the Royal Rifles were received at Quebec city during the week-end.

Capt. Rev. J. Barnett, Protestant Chaplain of the Royal Rifles, wrote his wife that he was "safe and well" and was "expecting letters from friends in Quebec."

Hopes to Write Every Week

Mrs. Douglas Johnston received a letter from her husband saying that he was "well." Lieut. Johnston wrote he hoped "I'll be able to write every week."

Word that he has been confined to hospital but that he is now quite fit again was received by his wife from Maj. A. Bishop of nearby Bury, Que., who was with the Quebec Royal Rifles in the defence of Hong Kong.

Mrs. Frank G. O'Neill of Charlottetown received word Saturday from her husband, Capt. Frank G. O'Neill, that he is a prisoner of the Japanese. He went to Hong Kong with the Canadian troops as a member of the staff of a Knights of Columbus hut.

District Farmers Report Record Yields of Grain

Some of the best grain crops in the memory of district agriculturists are being reported this year by farmers in the Foxboro neighborhood, and the same appears to hold true for many parts of the county.

Mr. T. B. Watt and Son report threshing 800 bushels of Banner oats from a ten-acre field, and average of 80 bushels to the acre, while a neighbor Mr. W. E. Tummon, reports a yield of 87 bushels to the acre and expects to thresh 3,000 bushels of grain. Mr. E. Howe, Holloway, has threshed approximately 2,500 bushels of grain from his 100-acre farm, besides having a big crop of hay.

Kiwanis Carnival HasManyFeatures

Prizes galore, competitions without end and contests, that will please, all go to make up the Kiwanis Carnival, which will be staged on Front Street for three nights beginning on Tuesday and ending Thursday evening. This is an annual event, that is eagerly looked forward to by all residents of the City and district because the people have realized that the Club is doing a great work in community service and since the war started have bent every effort to assist the United Nations in their efforts to crush Hitler and all his satellites.

The most important draw, that will take place during the three nights will be for the Victory Bonds, tickets on which have been sold for some time. The draw for these bonds will be made on the last night, while on other nights, the Miss War Worker beauty contest and the Junior Tot bathing contest will take place. In the case of Miss War Worker Contest, Miss Alexadrine Gibb of the Toronto Star and Ken Soble, who conducts a radio show in Toronto will be the principal judges. On one of the nights, the Alka-Seltzer show "Did I Say That" will be broadcast from Belleville and this will give some at the Carnival a chance to go on the radio.

What is all this for? one may ask and the answer to the question is simple the Kiwanis Club undertook to sponsor the Red Cross Blood Donor Clinic in this district and took the job on as one of its main war projects. The building on East Dundas Street was donated to the club but it was in need of repair and the members set about to make it a distinctive feature in this city and in that they have not failed. However the club owes some money on the building fund and this Carnival is being run to wipe off that indebtedness so the members will be free to give their time exclusively to securing blood donors in this district, so that no wounded man in the overseas army will succumb to his wounds through loss of blood. It is a great work and a worthy one and the Kiwanis Club is asking all to assist them in doing the job.

Belleville Girl Completes Cycle Tour of 450 Miles

To prove one can enjoy a real holiday and see Ontario, in spite of restrictions for motoring, two young girls, one from Fitzroy Harbour, completed a tour of 450 miles by bicycle last week.

Starting from Belleville, Miss Mary Baird of Fitzroy Harbour and Miss Ferne Gerrie of Belleville, cycled west to Whitby and then north to Beaverton. Turning east to Lindsay, Peterborough and Marmora the girls then returned south to Belleville.

After remaining a few days in Belleville, the girls cycled to Fitzroy Harbour by way of Kingston and Smith's Falls.

Very much enthused with this mode of travelling, the girls claim it has many advantages over motoring.

Travelling 67 miles in one day is not great speed, but there is time to enjoy the scenery, and the benefits of the sun's rays as well shown by their healthy tan, they said. (Arnprior Chronicle)

HELL FROM A BLISTER

By CHARLES NEVILLE

Maybe the flying fortress gunner doesn't have all the fun, as well as the deadliest job, but without him his pals would be cold ducks!

TAKE the best pilot that ever flew a B-17, the sharpest navigator that ever set his sextant on a star, and the "dead-eyedest" bombardier that ever looked through a secret bombsight. Send them out on a bombing mission WITHOUT the added protection of three or four well-trained aerial gunners and their value as a combat team drops like a runaway elevator!

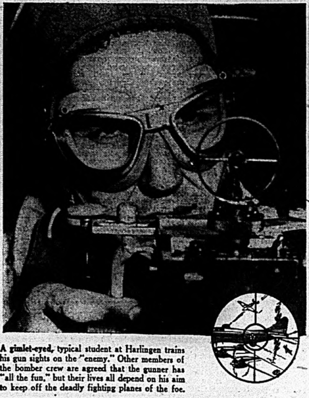
But put the toughened-up, gimlet-eyed gunners in their proper spots—in the "blisters" on the top and sides, in the "bathtub" down under, in the rear "stinger"—and brother, you've got a hell-for-leather outfit.

Down in the Harlingen, Tex., army gunnery school, in the table-flat Rio Grande valley, hard by the gulf of Mexico, the Army Air Forces have set-up one of the nation's three flexible gunnery schools to train aerial gunners.

Until a year or so ago, the machine gunners who protect the big bombers from enemy attack were just a lot of fellows named "Joe." More often than not they were chosen, primarily, for some other skill—air mechanics, radio or parachute rigging—but today that's all been changed. The aerial gunner is given an intensive five-week course. Aerial gunnery is his paramount duty.

Right at the outset of the course, they tell the gunnery students, "The pilot'll take care of the flying end. The navigator'll get you there and back. The bombardier drops his eggs where they'll more than likely hatch. So it's your job to make certain that some Messerschmitt 110 or Jap Zero doesn't come zooming up out o' nowhere."

Feet first, an aerial sharp-shooter at Harlingen, Tex., Gunnery School, climbs into his tiny "bathtub" post under a giant bomber. His job in this center blister is to fight off enemy planes attacking from underneath. Often he "sits" on the back of his neck as he fires. Comprised for the most part of real tough, quick shootin' volunteers, they become corporals on graduation to a bomber post.



A gimlet-eyed, typical student at Harlingen trains his gun sights on the "enemy." Other members of the bomber crew are agreed that the gunner has "all the fun," but their lives all depend on his aim to keep off the deadly fighting planes of the foe.

A big order? Yep, you're right on that score, but these men that handle the .30 and .50 calibre guns on the big ships know their jobs. They know them with the intimacy of a loving mother.

For the most part they're enlisted with a sprinkling of Lieutenants, Captains and Majors for seasoning. During their five-weeks' courses they live, eat and sleep gunnery. A tough, hard-bitten lot, the lad who can't take it is as far out of place as parsley on ice cream.

The gunner learns to strip his guns. He finds out the "why" of operation. He must be able to set them up so that they'll shoot where he aims and he gets detailed instruction on the operation of the various type turrets employed by the Air Forces. From classes on the "mal-function" range, where friendly "saboteurs" fix the guns to do some mighty peculiar things, he learns to repair guns in flight.

He starts training with a compressed air machine gun that shoots BB's at a moving target, moves on to another range where he's allowed 2,000 practice rounds on .22 calibre machine guns. Then, it's out to the skeet range where he learns to lead moving targets. From there he graduates to the big stuff—the guns that "knock 'em down when they hit." He fires at targets mounted behind motor cars moving at sixty miles per hour, he handles all types of turrets—stationary and movable, he goes up in the air in Advance Training planes, and fires at rayon sleeve targets whipping along behind another plane at 180 miles an hour.

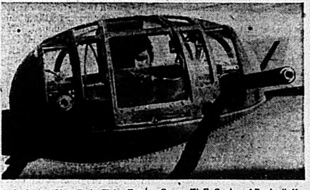
Out of the Gulf of Mexico, zooming, diving, turning, he trains his gun on the target and fires burst after burst into the rayon sleeve until sighting is second nature and his hits far outnumber his misses. Woe be unto the Heinkel, Messerschmitt or Zero that crosses his hairline sights.

Therein lies another phase of his training, identification of aircraft. There's no point in shooting a friendly aircraft—in fact it's considered downright unsociable to pepper a friend. So through books, movies, still pictures, and a great collection of models, he learns to spot the features of Axis planes at a glance, can tell a Jap Bomber 97 from a Mitsubishi and a Nazi Heinkel from a Messerschmitt while there's still time to recollect flight characteristics and possible lines of enemy attack.

To increase bomb load and flying speed, the bombers carry a safe minimum of machine gun ammunition and the gunner must withhold his fire until, like his forefathers at Bunker Hill, he sees the whites of their eyes.

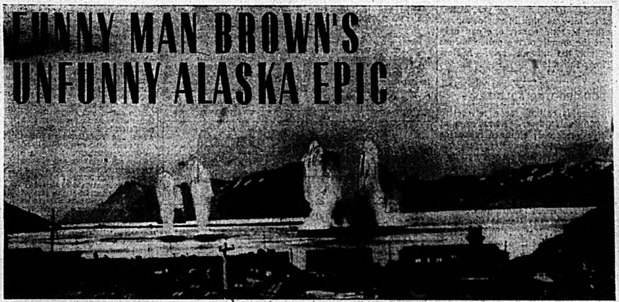
It was a long while before the Air Forces recognized the importance of over-all gunnery protection for our bombers, but when they did, they spared no horses to give the gunners as they gave the rest of the team, the pilots, navigators and bombardiers—the best in equipment and in training methods.

Friendly, and endless, are arguments everywhere as to the relative importance of each member of the team: pilots, navigators, and bombardiers. But it is agreed by all, the gunner has the most fun—his is the thrill of a man-to-man fight, his is the joy at seeing his enemy destroyed (or else!).



In the top "blister" of a Flying Fortress, Gunner W. E. Crosby, of Bardwell, Ky., crouches behind his gun sights. His job is to blast enemy planes diving from above.

FUNNY MAN BROWN'S UNFUNNY ALASKA EPIC



"We couldn't make Dutch Harbor (pictured above) on the first try." Here an amazing picture shows Jap bombs landing in the Alaskan harbor.

By JOE E. BROWN

Motion Picture Star, War Worker.
(As Told to May Mann.)

Joe took a lot of laughs to the soldiers in bombed Dutch Harbor, but getting there and out again hardly came under the heading of comedy

Joe E. Brown.

IN THE midst of personal appearances for the soldiers at Fort Mead I received a wire asking me to join our boys up there on the fighting front of Alaska — Dutch Harbor:

"The boys who are fighting off the Japs could use some entertainment and a few laughs. No one's been up to Kodiac and Dutch Harbor — the farthest outposts—to entertain. The weather is too bad." Which made me determined to go.

I accepted and received the following instructions. "Dear Joe: Your presence for two weeks in Alaska would be great. Fly Pan-American Airways Seattle to Anchorage. Time permitting Army pilots will fly you to Fairbanks for additional appearances. Would you bring Miss Edith Richard of Hollywood with you?"

Miss Richard? I found that she and the signer of the telegram had met while they were working in a bank in California. A romance had blossomed and reached full bloom after his arrival in Alaska with the army. Edith had received a wire from him asking her to marry him—in Alaska.

So I was to be cupid! Now my trip was to be made complete, As the movies say—we had Love interest!

I took fleece-lined underwear and longies. It's 40 below and more up there.

I met Miss Richards at the airport. We took off after many tears and goodbyes and lots of kisses, with Edith's mother and my wife waving from the ground. We arrived in Seattle that night.

Alaska was chilly and hazy and many times we couldn't make our destination points—due to winds. We tried to make Juneau, but flew for 600 miles—and never were able to land.

At Fairbanks I deposited the bride-to-be in the custody of the groom-to-be. Only for her to learn the bad news that the army has issued an order evacuating all relatives of officers and men from Alaskan sectors.

For 33 days I put on a show for the men at the various posts. Snow blizzards and zero temperatures didn't dampen the boys' enthusiasm at these shows.

Plans were made for the Army to fly me to Kodiac, where I would spend four days, then the Navy would fly me to Dutch Harbor. The Army got me to Kodiac. Then the Navy tried to fly me to Dutch Harbor. Bad weather for three days made our trip impossible. On the fourth we started out—and had to turn back.

Again we started on our long delayed trip to Dutch Harbor. After flying for 3½ hours, with the weather not too good, we sighted a ship three miles off our course. As we were on patrol duty Lt. Coleman, the pilot, radioed for an identification. Receiving no reply and finding no identification marks, either flags or name, we circled the ship and continued to ask via radio for identification. No reply. We circled again and dropped down to 2,000 feet over their bow. Still no reply.

Coleman said, "Loosen the machine guns. We're going down after them."

"Well, Joe E.," I told myself. "You're in the Navy now."

We started our dive from 3,500 feet. We had gone down 1,500 and were within ten seconds of letting them have it when the right identification flags went sailing up to the top of the mast. We had even gotten so far as to eject the first shell from the machine gun!

We couldn't make Dutch Harbor on the first approach and we flew around for forty-five minutes in the middle of a storm. Such land as we could see was mountainous, with no place level enough to let Coleman bring the plane down. Not even a cove could be found. After flying around in circles for another hour, Coleman said he was going to take another shot at getting through the storms to Dutch Harbor. Well, brother, we certainly took a beating. And don't think we hesitated one second to call on the help of God to get us out of our predicament!

Even when we sighted Dutch Harbor we still had to battle the "Williwass"—which is the local name for a windstorm of this sort—before getting our ship up on the runway.

We were met by Commander Uptegraph, General Colladay, Colonel Menthen of the 37th Infantry and a band playing "California Here I Come." That's the spirit up there!

In the officers' quarters the men were shaving and cleaning up. What for? "Why this is Saturday night."

Saturday night? I thought it was Tuesday and said so.

"Maybe it is for you," they replied. "But it's Saturday to us." I then found that General Colladay had ordered that "Sunday" should be observed on Wednesday and Tuesday should be "Saturday." The reason is that the Japs have always made their surprise attacks on Sunday. This is no military secret — because the day will be rotated.

I was pleased as a Mr. U. S. Citizen to see just how my safety was being insured. I found on visiting the men's quarters that over almost every cot were maps—proving that the soldiers were taking to their job with the right mental attitude. Their physical condition is fine.

Each night after our appearances at the camp show we would spend several hours at the officers' quarters. There were always discussions about their job and how they were going to conteract any move of the enemy.

I attended several classes of the officers' school. On two nights the subject was one, suggested from Washington—"Teach the men not only how to fight—but what we are fighting for."

While I was there orders came from Washington to that effect. Uncle Sam was on my side when he sent that message. I had been arguing the very point with some officers of the old school for five nights running when the orders came.

My idea has always been that America has too much at stake to need the stimulation of hatred. Hatred makes a man tense and tight. The good fighter is the fellow who is calm enough and relaxed enough to keep his mind on the job of winning.

Knute Rockne, whom I consider the greatest psychologist in the sports field this nation ever had, operated completely on this theory. He taught his boys WHY they were fighting. HE INSPIRED THEM WITH THE THOUGHT OF WINNING THE GAME, NOT OF DEFEATING THE OPPONENT.

That attitude of cool planning and hard, unemotional hitting among our armed forces under pressure was the thing which impressed me most in Alaska.

Many times when I'd be on the stage we'd have an alert. The men would rush to their posts. Sometimes I heard explosions.

On several occasions at Dutch Harbor we listened to Nichi Nichi broadcasting direct from Tokyo in English and, according to his report, there hasn't been a Jap even wounded as yet in the war—nor a rowboat sunk.

From Nome we flew to Gambell, an isolated village inhabited by 298 Eskimos and five white people. They had to cut holes in the ice to fasten our plane down so the terrific wind wouldn't blow it away. Reindeer pot roast and pot pie were delicacies.

The motors on our plane froze. It took every Eskimo in town to get us thawed out and off again.

The Siberian coast was only thirty miles away. We flew over it and then headed for Nome and later back to Fairbanks.

One of the last outposts I visited was Annette Islands. A remarkable engineering job has been accomplished at Annette.

Our boys are doing a magnificent job up there.

Chinese Successes

Again the Chinese are in the news with another offensive launched which is driving the Japanese before it in hurried retreat north of Canton. Just before this the Chinese in other offensives had recaptured the sites of two of the largest air fields held by the enemy in East China.

This amazing activity of the Chinese makes it more easy to understand the power of resistance and the steadiness of the people of China in their long war against Japanese militarism.

China's successful effort taken in conjunction with the American progress in the Solomons and the stout resistance of Russia in the Caucasus and the powerful counter stroke in the Moscow area by the Russians reveal something of the growing power of the United Nations.

Three Years After

Three years ago on August 31st, 1939, the world outside of the Axis nations had come to realize that Adolf Hitler and his Nazis definitely meant to make war on the world for it was realized that nothing would make Hitler turn in his brutal demands upon Poland. The evening of that day saw the last faint glimmer of hope that war might be averted and the next morning Hitler sent his legions marching, his airmen flying and his tanks thundering against Piland which was not prepared for a blitzkrieg such as the Hun had built up.

In the three years since then the war has passed through many vicissitudes. No person could have foreseen the course of this struggle in detail. When France was next spring on the point of collapse Italy plunged in and spread the war into the Mediterranean and North and Northeast Africa. Then came the phase of the blitz against Britain with the air might of Germany in which Hitler was foiled in the early autnmn of 1940. Next spring he turned his attention to the Balkans and then caused the greatest surprise when he threw Germany suddenly against Russia. Russia's stout self-reliance and resistance reached its culmination before Moscow in December when the Russians hurled Hitler backward. Then came Japan, thinking the opportunity had come for her to aid in German-Italian agression before it was too late and hoping to take advantage of the Allied Nations and plunged into the maelstrom. Japan stabbed at the United States and Britain in the most treacherous assaults on record. Followed Nippon's gains in the Pacific. Then came American and Allied victories in the Coral Sea, at Midway and in the Solomons and now have come Chinese successes which have upset the Japanese calendar. In the air a new era has begun with the might of as many as one thousand British planes dropping their explosives upon Hun cities, ports, railway centres and lines. And U. S. air squadrons are already at work over Germany. Another new aspect is the commando raids which have been taking on increasing importance with the latest at Dieppe where the Canadians were in action along with British, Americans and Free French.

Adolf Hitler had his way in 1939. He started war. That was what he wanted. But the man of treachery and foul play has not had his way otherwise. The United Nations have dealt him powerful blows. Desperation in the drive in the Caucasus is indicated by the limited nature of his moves elsewhere on the long eastern front and by his casting away with a gambler's hand of Nazi resources of men and materials in the effort to gain something before the peak of United Nations might is felt and at work in every theatre of the war.

Today when a Hitler defies a Brazil, Brazil strikes back boldly.

Today Adolf Hitler cannot defy a nation without receiving a blow back. The world knows where right and victory lie—with the United Nations, because the Axis is the work of men with evil minds, striking at the conscience of the world. But world conscience will not let Hitler win, however much havoc he may cause with his still great strength.

The fourth year is about to begin. Hitler must acknowledge to himself, if to no one else, that things have not moved according to his design. The world is too big, has too great a spirit and conscience

HAY FEVER

Saturday marked the official opening of the hay-fever season. The ragweed pods are bursting with pollen eager to ride the winds. Henceforth, until the frosts seal the pollen sacs, three to five million Americans will have little comfort.

Hay fever strikes the humble and proud alike. Among its victims are numbered such diverse personalities as King George IV, Henry Ward Beecher and Marcel Proust. Proust constructed his entire life around his allergy, shunning the countryside, which he adored, making excursions only in the night hours and occupying a room heavy with sulphur fumes. The hay fever victim is not a sight to inspire compassion, for he does not languish. Rather he is marked by the flush of health, the bright if tearful eye, the vigorous sneeze.

The remedies are endless. They run from travelling in airplanes at high altitudes to sitting in an air-conditioned motion picture theatre for hours, from killing ragweed by deadly chemical sprays to outright flight to the mountains or some midocean island. Cooking odors are known to aggravate the malady. Fresh paint, orris root, feathers and dust of all kinds should be shunned. But why should we be allergic to anything? When that question is answered we shall know how to deal more effectively with hay fever. At present we have only speculations of the kind that attribute sensitivity to a neurosis caused by instability of some brain centre or vague chemical reaction between fine protein particles and the tisues of the respiratory tract.

The disease, variously known as hay fever, hay asthma and summer catarrh, was remarked as early as 1565, when a physician commented on a case under his obserfation. In the nineteenth century a Dr. Laforgue of Toulouse wrote a long paper on summer catarrh. Elsewhere in Europe desperate sufferers formed hay associations.

To the victim each passing year seems to mark an all-time high in wretchedness. As another season opens, one can only hope that the assault of the pollen hordes will be light, the autumn early.—A New York Times Editorial.

FOUR-FOOTED SOLDIERS

Uncle Sam is calling for a new class of 125,000 volunteers. Requirements: one to five years old; eighteen inches or more from ground to shoulder; fearlessness. What specifications do not call for, but the new recruits are bringing to the Army, Navy an Coast Guard, are a keener sense of sight, smell, and hearing than two-footed soldiers boast; excellent stamina and renowned faithfulness.

"Private Pup of the Canine Corps" is willing and eager. Many a pup and his master have displayed a commendable patriotism by signing up long before the official call came. For several months, Dogs for Defence, Inc., comprised of dog fanciers, breeders, and trainers with more than 300 trainers working throughout the country has been teaching dogs to patrol beaches; to serve on sentry duty at munition plants, war industries and so on; to act as messengers, pack dogs, airplane spotters, and for protection against enemy parachute troops.

Thus the groundwork has already been laid for the most extensive use of dogs in war service ever made by the United States armed forces. Judging by the soldier-like qualities already exhibited by America's Canine Corps, Uncle Sam is to be congratulated on this latest addition to his growing number of potential heroes.—Christian Science Monitor.

NEW CHINA ROAD FUELED

Charcoal is helping to solve the fuel problem of China's new supply route—the 3,100-mile Northwest Route from Alma-Ata, Russia, to Chungking. The road was modernized and improved by more than a million farmers, soldiers, women and boys, working without machinery. The chief difficulty has been the lack of gasoline. China produces little gasoline, although a small refinery in Yumen in western Kansu, near the route, yields 10,000 gallons a month. Most of the gasoline has had to come from Russia since the Japs seized the Dutch East Indies and Burma. To opercome the difficulty hundreds of charcoal-burning trucks are being operated and are kept supplied by the labor of thousands of

TOMORROW

"Tomorrow we will have a better life and a better world." Interview with Henry Ford.

* * *

I like the way of Henry Ford
Who turns his back upon the past
Tomorrow's goals to look toward;
To faith in mortals holding fast.
"Tomorrow's world will better be
In many ways for all," says he.

Tomorrow when the war is done
And genius turns from cruel strife
'Twill solve the problems one by one
Which means for all a better life.
Tomorrow — just beyond the night,—
Will see a dozen wrongs set right."

Tomorrow, richer than today
And all the mornings come and gone!
Tomorrow, where new conquests stay
For skill and pluck to come upon!
Tomorrow, rich with hope and vast,
Better than all the ages past!

Some sit with eyes upon the old
And fancy ancient times were best,
But men like Ford the east behold,
Turning their backs upon the west
And in tomorrow's sunrise see
The better life that is to be,

The Secret Theatre of the War IV

In the preceding series of articles entitled, "The Secret Theatre of the War," I have pleaded for a clarification of our war aims as a prerequisite to waging effective psychological warfare, and pointed out that the Office of War Information is entrusted to plan a strategy without having a policy.

But there are more profound reasons why we must clarify the basic issues of this war in the field of ideas. For until we know what kind of a war we are fighting, we will continue to be unable to organize effective internally.

Criticisms are rife regarding the organization or lack of it in Washington. Walter Lippmann, the other day, published a trenchant and unanswerable criticism of the absence of integration between all the branches of Government and the "free-wheeling" independent agencies, and advocated the creation of a War Cabinet with authority and power.

He is unquestionably right in this, but reorganization of itself will accomplish nothing, unless the leadership at the top, namely, the President himself, is prepared to articulate and fight for a clear line in this war, selecting only men around himself who hew to that line, and enforcing the discipline of that line upon all his Administrative officials.

Can't Fight Two Wars.

It is impossible to fight two wars at the same time, and fight either of them effectively.

We are, on the one hand, fighting a coalition war along the line of the Atlantic Charter. The ideological base for this war is anti-Fascist, anti-Nazi, anti-Imperialist, and for a new international organization of the world for mutual defence and mutual welfare. This line includes the encouragement of occupied countries to anti-Fascist revolts in the name of freedom and equality.

But not all Americans are waging this war. This is not, for instance, Colonel McCormick's or Colonel Patterson's, or Mr. Ford's, or Gerald L. K. Smith's, or Senator Nye's, or Senator Reynold's war.

These men, and thousands more in important positions, are waging a war against Japan, but are—to say the least—neutral toward Germany, and are apparently anti-British or anti-Russian or both.

The war for them is an opportunity to preach American nationalism of a Nazi coloration and American imperialism for the East and Latin America. Their hostility against the first pattern of the war is expressed in the fact that they call this "Roosevelt's war." And they foment an internal struggle for their pattern of war.

Abusing Unity Slogan.

This is the background of the struggle in the comang elections. They wish to put into Congress an Opposition in this war, an Opposition that could cut adrift our whole foreign policy, and deepen the internal cleavages in the midst of a terrific crisis, severing us from our Allies, and profiteering on chaos to establish their own political and reactionary principles.

They are exploiting and abusing the slogan of unity.

And the wish for unity leads even the Government to close its eyes.

For the Administration's idea of unity is to allow both wars to go on and try to strike a bargain. But no leadership can conduct this war on a tightrope.

Now this fact affects the conduct of the war at every point and in every department—for instance, in the Department of Justice. It makes it impossible for that department to clean up the Fascist elements inside America. It drives us to the tolerance of Vichy agents, Finnish information bureaus, Fascist Ukranian groups, White Russian conspirators, Hungarian propagandists, who are playing both sides of the war, and monarchist-reactionaries, who want nothing less than genuine anti-Fascist revolutions in Europe.

Can't Clean Out Fascists.

It makes it impossible for us to clean up our native Fascists, if they are high enough up. It makes it difficult for Donald Nelson to break the resistance of certain industrialists who want to preserve their markets and their connections whichever way the war turns out, and impossible for him to enforce his order to establish management-labor boards in every factory, as the British have most effectively done, for the increasing and improving of our war production.

And it makes it impossible really to educate our army to know what they are fighting for.

And so we see that the secret theater of this war in not restricted to the short-wave broadcasts to our enemies but is an internal theater as well where there is a spiritual and psychological confusion.

And this, is, in my opinion, the root trouble that is preventing clear and effective organization.

There are minor wars where such things matter little. But this is not such a war. We are fighting not only armies, but an international Fascist conspiracy. We certainly learned from France that you cannot defeat Fascist armies unless you also, inside your own country, defeat the conspiracy. The heroic Russian resistance is neither due to Communism nor to Russian Nationalism. It is due to the fact that the real nature of this war is clear in the minds of the Russian leaders and the Russian nation.

And Britain would have been folded up if Mr. Churchill had not seen that there was a clear connection between Sir Oswald Mosley and the way the war would be waged.

Thus, it is true that we need a fighting War Cabinet to streamline our effort. But we need it built, from the top to the bottom, of men who know with complete clarity why they are fighting this war.

NEWLYWEDS AS FIRE LOOKOUTS

Missoula, Mont., Anug. 31 (CP)—Forest service officials, hard pressed to find single men for fire lookouts in competition with the draft and well-paying defence jobs, have hired married couples, many, of them newlyweds. Officials say it doubles the efficiency of lookout stations; it is a remarkably healthy way to spend the summer, and it provides the newly married couples with a nice bank account—there isn't any place to spend money on a lookout.

ASSASSINATION ATTEMP FAILS

Istanbul, Aug. 31 (AP)—Advices from Tirana, capital of Italian-occupied Albania, said Sunday an Albanian student attempted to kill the Italian Governor, Gen. Mulletti, with a bomb last Tuesday as he was leaving his residence. Mulletti was uninjured blut two of his aides were killed, the reports said. The student was shot on the spot.

Again Horses Must Learn About Cars

(From the Richmon, Va., News-Letter)

The cultured voice of the city girl who had moved to the country was not indignant. The household, she said, was doing what it could to conserve gasoline and tires. A two wheeled trap was being utilized for small errands. It worked admirably except for one thing: The horse became frightened when a motorcar roared by.

In a flash the mind ran back to the earliest days of the motorcar in Virginia.

How often and how indignantly did that complaint reach the newspaper office in 1905-'10! The planter and his wife and children had been driving to town in the surrey; a wild man in a horseless carriage had driven up at the incredible speed of 15 miles an hour; the horses had become excited; the husband and father had pulled frantically to one side of the road, had leaped heroically from the surrey and had held the rearing animals by the bit; the driver of that infernal vehicle had gone straight on and had not so much as offered to help with the horses or even to slow down.

In the great providence of God the wife and the children in the surrey had escaped imminent death as if by a miracle; the horses at length had been calmed; the surrey itself was not damaged; but, sir—and that was the object of the visit to the newspaper—the country gentleman wished to serve notice that the next time he went out on a public road now made hideously dangerous by the passage of two or three motorcars a day, he would take his shotgun along! If one of those horseless carriages roared up and repeated that performance, then the planter wished to serve notice, sir, that he intended to shoot! There could be no trifling with reckless drivers.

THE BRITISH ARMY

The official names of the British navy and the British air force are "The Royal Navy" and "The Royal Air Force."

The British Army is never referred to as "The Royal Army."

Oddly enough, however, the official names of many of the corps or units of the British Army contain the world "Royal."

For instance, there are the Royal Armored Corps, Royal Regiment of Artillery, Corps of Royal Engineers, Royal Corps of Signals, Royal Army Service Corps, Royal Army Medical Corps, Royal Army Ordnance Corps and Royal Army Pay Corps.

Several of the regiments of infantry of the line and foot guards also have "Royal" in their official names; as, The Royal Scots, The Queen's Royal Regiment, The King's Own Royal Regiment and The Royal Northumberland Fusiliers.

Each regiment of the line or foot guards is a separate entity and officers do not transfer from one regiment to another. A British army officer generally remains in the same regiment throughout his career in the service.

On the other hand, officers in the Royal Navy and in the Royal Air Force may be shifted freely from one branch of their service to another.

The land forces of Great Britain normally consist of the Regular Army, the Territorial Army and the Reserve Forces.

British regulars serve both at home and overseas and are paid by the Imperial Exchequer, although India and some other units of the British Empire make contributions to their support.

The Imperial Exchequer also pays for Indian and Colonial troops while serving outside their own countries.

The Territorial Army, which corresponds to the U. S. National Guard, in peace time serves only at home; but in war time it may be sent overseas if Parliament consents.

Territorials have assumed much of the responsibilities for coastal and anti-aircraft defences.

When units of the British Army and one or more Colonial armies are co-operating in a military task they are sometimes for convenience referred to as the "Imperials" or "Empire Troops."

The British civilian cabinet officer corresponding to the U. S. secretary of war is the secretary of state for war. The top military man in the British Army is the Chief of the Imperial General Staff.

The Royal Navy is governed by the Board of Admiralty and the civilian cabinet officer corresponding to the U. S. secretary of the navy is the First Lord of the Admiralty. The top naval officer in the Royal Navy is the First Sea Lord.

Slip Cover Renews Old-Looking Chair

Pinned and Cut Right on Chair

Yes, chairs get their faces lifted, too! The beauty treatment? A brand-new upholstery-style slip cover you can make yourself — fitting the fabric right to the chair and snipping off what you don't need.

A sturdy cotton twill, in an attractive geometric pattern as in our picture, gives a firm upholstery effect.

To start, remove the chair cushions and pin fabric to top of chair. Smooth and pin it down inside back and seat, allowing 4 inches for tuck-in between, and trim around pins to 1½ inches for seams.

Now cover the rest of the chair in just the same way—a section at a time—arms, front, sides, back and cushion.

The next step is to pin pieces together, take out pins that hold fabric to chair, and remove the pinned-up cover to baste. A "fitting"—and you run it off on the machine!

Our 32-page booklet describes in detail, with diagrams, each step of making a slip cover the pin-on way—for chair or sofa. Tells how to finish, make plackets and trim; also how to fit auto seats, unusually shaped chairs. Suggests colors, fabrics to harmonize with your room.

Send 15c in coins for your copy of "How to Make Slip Covers" to Ontario Intelligencer, Home Service, 166 Front St., Belleville, Ontario. Be sure to write plainly your name, address and name of booklet.

RAYON 5th. COLUMNISTS

The chemicals used to make rayons are being converted more and more to war use. So your rayons are now as precious as your fine silks used to be. Guard your stored rayons from silver fish — slender, wingless insects that eat rayon like moths eat wool. They are usually found in warm, damp basements, store rooms and attics, and eat books and book-bindings as well as rayon. The easiest way to get rid of silver fish is to exterminate them. Use a poison bait: 1½ cups of oatmeal ground to flour; ¼ teaspoon of arsenic, ½ teaspoon of sugar; ¼ teaspoon of salt. Scatter it, protected, wherever silver fish are found. Before storing rayons, always wash them carefully in gentle, fine-fabric suds and dry and air thoroughly. You will find, too, that while moth crystals are effective in discouraging silver fish, they will not kill them.

Louisville, Ky., Aug. 31 — (AP)— Because Mrs. J. H. Edmondson treated them so handsomely while entertaining them weekends, four soldiers gave a party for her at a hotel here and gave her a cup inscribed "To our darling mom." Mrs. Edmondson says "They are like real sons to me. They called me up on my birthday and sang 'Happy Birthday' and reversed the charges, just like your own children would do."

BURLESQUE STRIPPER ON HONEYMOON

Highland Mills, N. Y., Aug. 31— (AP) — Gypsy Rose Lee, who stripped her way from burlesque into legitimate stage fame, is honeymooning today with actor Alexander Kirkland. "We're going as far as our gas will get us," she said after a midnight marriage ceremony at her home here. It was the second marriage for Miss Lee and the first for Kirkland.

Fashion Flashes

COUNTRY COUSIN and city child both love those useful and smart suede coats. Deep purple is used for a coat dress of tissue-thin suede. The coat wraps far over to one side and has a tie belt with rows of stitching as the only trimming.

BEST SELLER all over the country and in all price brackets is the semi-casual felt hat with high crown intricately draped, tucked and twisted and with rippled or profile brim. Nice in high shades or in dark colors with wool skein trim in contrast.

CITED FOR EXCELLENCE is the short boxy overcoat of fur. Nice over slim frocks and just the thing over a suit.

IT'S IMPOSSIBLE to choose anything prettier or more wearable than a black lace evening frock. A beauty is of black lace with short but full cap sleeves. The slim skirt is enlivened by a cascade of tiers to the hem. Big flat roses in pink satin are caught above and below the waist just off the center.

NOT ALL the new afternoon suits are fur or sequin trimmed. A charming black wool suit has shocking pink satin facing the collar and high rippled revers. A narrow inset of the satin traces the yoke on the jacket.

WE THINK that most women are going to like the new ankle-length robes and negligees. It will save all that shortening anyway. Deep rose satin is used for a pretty robe with quilted top and quilting on the pockets of the plain satin skirt. Waist dips slightly in back.

MAKE YOUR OWN

The new "ruler knitting bags" just introduced in New York, are not only the last inch in smartness, they are convenient for measuring the progress of a garment, and can easily be made at home. First choose a bright floral fabric which can be used for both the outside and the lining and which is easily washable in rich suds that rinse out the dirt without hard rubbing or scrubbing and so keep the colors gay and bright. Then get twin rulers to use as the frame. Evenly-spaced holes should be drilled through the bottoms of both rulers and bright red cord threaded through these holes to sew the rulers to the bag. A button at one side of the bag with a looped cord coming over the top, from the other side will close the bag securely. Bore more holes at the top ends of the rulers to which bright heavily-corded handles can be attached.

STRAIGHT LACED

Here is the best way to wash long, straight, narrow laces. Roll them smoothly around a bottle and dip it up and down in the gentle suds that are "safe for anything safe in water alone." If the lace has been carefully wound around the bottle and the points smoothed, it may not even be necessary to iron it.

SILVER POLISH

If silver, after it is cleaned, is rubbed with a piece of lemon and then washed in extra-soapy, all-pure suds and well dried, it acquires an extra brilliancy, and it will keep clean longer than with ordinary cleansing.

Beauty Changes for the Better

Faye Emerson prefers the Rolled Coiffure.

By HELEN FOLLETT

Girls are ever changing in appearance. One type follows another, and each type represents the state of the world, to a certain extent. With the coming of war alarms, many young women went hippity-hop to the beauty shop, had their long bobs shortened. Flowing locks look frivolous; it is fashionable now to appear capable. Not only to appear so, but to be. One can't imagine the combination of uniform and tresses of shoulder length.

Coiffures are more practical. There is little time for arranging elaborate hair-dos or spending hours under driers in the beauty shops. The all-around roll with the centre or side part is the simplest style we have had for years, requires the least attention. Pin your smooth rolls with bobby pins and they stay in place from morning until night. The hat doesn't do anything to them. Over the face, on the crown or worn halo fashion, the chapeau adjusts itself to this smart arrangement.

Another item: having less time for teasing and tweezing, the eyebrow that looked like a thread of darning cotton has gone by the board. These forehead scimitars are getting back to normal. To keep the fuzzers smooth and in marching order, brilliantine is applied with an eyebrow brush. We notice, too, that eyebrow penciling is not as popular as it was.

When rouge is used it is only a light film carefully blended with powder. Vivid shades are out. A deep flesh tone is popular, scarcely darker than the color of a wild rose. It imparts a glow of health, does not look artificial. Some women need a bit of cheek coloring, look washed out without it.

Advice to the Lovelorn

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Seventy-Year-Old Husband Beats Wife

Dear Miss Fairfax:

The other day my husband and I had an argument and he slapped my face and even tried to choke me. His firm retired him on a small pension and ever since that he has been unbearable. He gambles and when he loses he beats me.

I don't like to divorce him as we have been married so long and it would disgrace his family, but he's very hard to live with and always has been so. He's almost 70 years of age. Can you suggest anything which would give me peace in my home?

— D.

There's no reason why any woman should be submitted to brutal treatment from a jungle-like creature who goes by the name of a man. The trouble with women who are beaten is that they put up with this unlawful behaviour, hoping to preserve an appearance of respectability before the neighbors. Believe it or not, the neighbors always know whether there's a gorilla next door or down the block.

This woman should take her troubles to the court.

Engaged to One in Love with Another

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I'm a girl of 16 and have a happy home life. I have been going with a non-commissioned officer from Texas. He was engaged and was to be married, but he broke off this affair because he said he loves me more than that girl.

I know that he must still love her for he talks about her all the time, and I feel that if I quit him he would marry her. He is weak and needs someone to look after him.

— Confused.

Your diagnosis of this young man is correct. He's just weak. If you became engaged to him and he was sent to another post, he'd probably find consolation in the first attractive girl he met. Don't take him seriously, at 16, unless you get a genuine hero plus other advantages and you're so much in love you can't live without him another minute.

GOOD MANNERS

MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

LADY IN UNIFORM — WITH EMPHASIZE ON "LADY"

All of Anne Smith's friends give her E for Excellence for her understanding of the proper way and the proper occasions in regard to the wearing of her uniform. For most of the qualities that contribute to this ideal Anne has a natural inclination, a characteristic habit she has of thinking in terms of good taste. But it is true that she had to make her common sense and her sense of appropriateness triumph over certain details which, persisted in, would have spoiled the E-Rating.

In the first place, Anne refused to wear a uniform until she had earned the right to wear it. Since she was a very little girl Anne has had this sense of values trained into her by her wise mother and father. She had earned her first "spending pennies" by doing errands for her mother, later by helping with many household duties. As a Girl Scout this ideal of service had been further broadened. So, as a mature young woman, it was her natural inclination to join an organization in which she had to give many hours of not-easy service before she earned the right to buy a uniform.

Before she wore her uniform for the first time, she took stock of what she wanted that uniform to mean, not only as a symbol of fine and serious service, but also as a symbol of her personal quality. She wanted to wear it right—that was to be the first requirement, even though in her woman's heart, she knew it would be becoming.

Respect and appropriateness were to be her two ideals in How she was going to wear her uniform; the coat trimly buttoned, always; the skirt of proper length—no "shorts" effect; cap straight—no rakish angle; comfortable, sturdy, low-heeled shoes—no high heels, no open toes; no jewelry—only a practical wrist-watch. No corsage, of course.

Anne has always had the reputation of being an essentially feminine girl. So now, in uniform, she was going to keep whatever was appropriate of this quality. No mannish effect for her. No swagger. No ridiculous affectation of a masculine stride.

She analyzed that would be suitable grooming. If her sense of humor hadn't come to her rescue to make her see how inconsistent her long, glamorous bob would be with a uniform, it would have been difficult for her to discard this hair-do, which was one of her joys. But bravely she sallied forth to have her locks cut shorter—not very short—but snappy, and with a little upward curl that margined her cap engagingly.

Her boy friends were more pleased than she was when she discarded the long, vivid nails in which she took pride, but her sense of the practical won out, and now her nails are rounded to a medium length, and polished to a conservatism that she formerly would have scorned. Her make-up is conservative too, and, incidentally, easy on the eyes — that freshly-scrubbed look for which Anne is famous—face powder, to banish the shine—no cheek rouge—a becomingly modified lip-rouge.

Crowning these disciplinary measures are the simplicity, the lack of self-consciousness, the forthrightedness and the serene air with which she wears her uniform. No show-off air about her. No smug self-righteousness to shout that she is doing more work for her country just because she is in uniform.

Come late-afternoon or evening, on a date, and Anne pleases her "date" by wearing feminine clothes. If her escort isn't in uniform, she'd feel silly (and make him feel out of the picture) wearing hers. If he's a service man, she has sense enough to realize he sees enough of uniforms. She wouldn't dream of wearing her uniform to a night club or to a cocktail-room, nor would she smoke or drink in public while she is in uniform.

A well-rounded life for Anne and her uniform. Everything done to give proper significance, to show respect and sure taste, and the proud fact that she is trying to do her job to the best of her ability. E for Excellence—for giving honor where honor is due!

HEALTH CHATS

By Dr. Herman N. Bundesen
President, Chicago Board of Health

Symptoms of Cardiospasm May Suggest Other Diseases

In middle-aged and younger persons a disorder sometimes occurs which interferes with the swallowing of food. This is known as cardiospasm and is due to a spasm of the valve between the esophagus and the stomach. The esophagus leads from the mouth to the stomach. Cardiospasm usually starts with difficulty in swallowing which, sooner or later, is followed by vomiting. Should these symptoms occur, examination with the X-ray is advisable. In the X-ray the lower part of the esophagus will be found to be stretched or dilated.

The symptoms which occur in cardiospasm are not always typical. Sometimes the patient may have pain and vomiting as well as trouble in swallowing. The pain may pass to the back and be accompanied by shortness of breath after exercise or when lying down, because of pressure of the over-filled esophagus on the heart. Thus the condition may suggest heart disease. At times, particularly at night, food material from the esophagus may get into the larynx or voice box and produce attacks of coughing which may cause the physician to suspect some lung disease. Because of the vomiting, loss of weight and anemia, the symptoms may be much like those of cancer of the stomach. However, by means of a careful study of the disease, including X-ray, a diagnosis of cardiospasm can be made in most instances.

In a number of cases the condition clears up of itself without any particular treatment. However, when the disease has been present for a fairly long period of time this spontaneous recovery does not occur in most instances. On the other hand relief may be brought about by regulation of the diet and a program of dilating or stretching the opening into the stomach. Various types of instruments are used for this stretching operation. In some cases olive-shaped metal instruments may be used. Sometimes a small rubber balloon may be passed into the esophagus down to the opening into the stomach and then this balloon filled with air to stretch the esophagus. If this treatment does not relieve the condition, operation may be necessary. Such an operation is a serious one, but fortunately most patients may be cured by dilating the stomach opening.

Just why cardiospasm occurs is not known. Nervousness may be one of the factors which brings on the disease.

Cards Threaten Dodgers' Lead After Brooklyn Has Coasted In Loop Most of Season

St. Louis Only Three Games From Top of League and Coming Fast

MARCHILDON WINS

By AUSTIN BEALMEAR
Associated Press Sport Writer

Like Indian summer, cuffless trousers and ceiling prices, that pennant duel between Brooklyn Dodgers and St. Louis Cardinals—which most folks figured would get here sooner or later — finally has arrived.

After coasting along through most of the National League campaign, the Dodgers found themselves separated from the threatening Cardinals today by nothing more than three short games.

Whether they need it or not, the Cards seem to be getting help from all the other clubs in the league.

The Cardinals started the Dodgers down the hill, but Chicago Cubs and Pittsburgh Pirates also got in a couple of licks.

Most alarming to the Flatbush followers, and perhaps as responsible for the Brooklyn slump as anything else, is the leg injury of centre fielder Pete Reiser which put the National League batting leader in the hospital after hobbling him for nearly two weeks.

Pistol Pete, who has failed to get a hit in his last 15 official trips to the plate and has been out of the lineup frequently of late, finally was sent to Johns Hopkins last night for treatment of a torn ligament in his left thigh.

The Dodgers fired both barrels at the Pirates yesterday and came away with nothing better than an even break, while the Cardinals swept a doubleheader with Boston Braves for a total of 19 victories in 22 games.

Wyatt Wins Another

Whitlow Wyatt pitched the Dodgers to a 3-1 decision in the opener, although he had to have help in the eighth inning, but Larry French failed to last through the first inning of the nightcap as the Bucs pounded him and three relievers for a dozen hits and triumphed, 9-5.

Vince DiMaggio drove in five Pittsburgh runs in the second game while Rip Sewell held the Dodgers to six blows and weathered a four-run rally in the eighth.

The Cardinals beat the Braves, 8-3, in their first game, snapping a tie with a five-run outburst in the sixth. The second, however, went 11 innings before Harry Gumbert, who pitched two-hit ball in five innings of relief, doubled for the run that won for him and the Cards, 3-2.

Cincinnati Reds beat Philadelphia Phils, 2-0 and 8-5, with Johnny Vander Meer hurling the shutout and Max Marshall and Bert Haas spicing the nightcap for the victors with home runs.

New York Giants downed Chicago Cubs, 8-6, in the first game, but the second ended in a 5-5 deadlock with darkness halting play after nine innings, during which manager Mel Ott of the Giants made the 2,500th hit of his major league career.

Browns Split with Sox

In the American league, St. Louis Browns helped take some of the pressure off New York Yankees by splitting with Boston Red Sox while the Yanks were winning a pair from Detroit Tigers.

Red Ruffing pitched five-hit ball to beat the Tigers, 7-1, in the first game, but it took a 10th-inning single by pinch hitter George Selkirk to decide the second for the Yanks, 4-3.

John Niggeling hurled the Browns to a 4-1 first game victory, beating the Red Sox for the fifth time this year. The Sox bounced back to take the second, 12-6, but still trail the Yankees by eight games.

Cleveland and Washington divided their bargain bill, the Indians winning the first game, 3-1, and the Senators capturing the nightcap, 2-0, as Dutch Leonard hurled five-hit ball in his first start since a broken leg benched him last April.

Ted Lyons won his weekly game for the Chicago White Sox, pitching a 2-1 decision over the Philodelphia Athletics, but the A's rallied for two runs in the ninth inning to squeeze out, 3-2, in the second game with Phil Marchildon pitching four-hit ball.

Cleveland edged out the Yankees 6-5 Saturday in the last appearance of the Tribe in New York this season. Roy (Stormy) Weatherly, benched Friday for weak hitting, returned to the Cleveland lineup and hit three singles, a triple and home run in five trips to the plate.

In other American League games Saturday Boston defeated Chicago White Sox 4-2 and Washington triumphed 4-1 over Detroit behind the eight-hit pitching of Bobo Newsom.

New York Giants swept a doubleheader with Pittsburgh Saturday, winning the opener 2-0 on the three-hit pitching of Hal Schumacher and the nightcap 7-4. The Cardinals whipped Philadelphia Phils 5-2 on the seven-hit pitching performance of Mort Cooper and Cincinnati edged out a 1-0 victory over Boston Braves.

DUROCHER SAYS DODGERS WILL BE "ALL RIGHT"

Sends Message to Flatbush Fans Telling Them "Bums" Will Win the Pennant

RACE IS HOT

(By GIB STALEY)
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

Pittsburgh, Aug. 31 (AP)—Here's good news for those Flatbush fans who may be having qualms about their beloved "bums", the Brooklyn Dodgers:

"Don't worry about us. We're all right and we'll win the pennant for you again". Signed—Leo Durocher.

That sums up the fiery Dodger manager's attitude about the National League pennant race, which has become hotter than a four-alarm fire since the St. Louis' Cardinals have won 19 of their last 22 games.

Durocher was the picture of confidence as he banded together Larry McPhail's million-dollar team for another joust today with the Pittsburgh Pirates. Yesterday, the Dodgers split a twin bill with the Bucs and saw their lead over the rampaging Cards reduced to three full games.

"Sure the Cardinals are hotter than hell right now", Durocher said. "They've got a good team and a great manager in Billy Southworth. But if they keep going the way they are we'll simply have to get hotter. .

"My boys have been playing good ball and I'm not worried a bit about winning the National League pennant again. And here's another thing: my players are just as confident as I am. They're a great bunch and they are always in there fighting".

Durocher was quick to point out the Dodgers have plenty of games remaining on their home grounds, adding: "We're still three games ahead, have a couple of more games to play than the Cards and it's up to them to catch us—not for us to catch them. And you can believe me that our boys aren't losing this pennant now with out a helluva struggle".

NEWARK BEARS CINCH SEVENTH LEAGUE PENNANT

Divided Twin Bill With Orioles, Winning Second Game

LEAFS STILL FIFTH

(By The Associated Press)

It's taken a little longer than usual, but Newark Bears have clinched their seventh International League pennant in the last 11 years.

Although the Bears lost the first game of their twin bill with Baltimore yesterday, they had the flag stored away before the start of the second because the second-place Jersey City Giants lost their opener to Syracuse Chiefs.

Young Ray Flanigan limited the Bears to five hits in the first game as his mates collected nine off George Washburn, including a three-run circuit clout by George Staller in the third, for a 5-1 triumph.

Milkman Jim Turner hurled the 2-1 victory in the second game and immediately was promoted to the parent New York Yankees. Turner will be eligible for participation in the world series. The Yankees sent Norman (Red) Branch to Newark in exchange for Turner.

Jersey City and Syracuse each won by the whitewash method.

Ewell Blackwell turned the trick for the Chiefs in the opener allowing only five hits, while Johnny Wittig retorted in the finale, scattered eight bingles. Both scores were 4-0.

Rochester Red Wings defeated Toronto Maple Leafs in a dougleheader by 5-4 and 3-2 scores and remained in fifth place—just outside the playoff ranks.

Montreal Royals divided a bargain bill with Buffalo Bisons, losing the first game and winning the aftermath behind the three-hit pitching of Al Sherer, 5-0. Jack Graham of Montreal, hit three homers, one in the opener and two in the wind-up.

In games Saturday Toronto defeated Montreal 4-2 in the opener but lost the nightcap 2-0; Baltimore made it 6-5 over Newark; Rochester blanked Buffalo 1-0 in 10 innings and Jersey City and Syracuse split a doubleheader. The Chiefs won the first game 5-1 and the Little Giants the second 7-4.

Toronto, Aug. 31 — (CP) — The strategic retreat of football from sports prominence in eastern Canada may give box lacrosse its most successful playoff run in years.

Canadian semi-finals will be played in Montreal, with the western champion meeting the Quebec provincial titlist. The winner will move on to Toronto to meet the Ontario representative for the Mann Cup and the Canadian crown.

In previous years, lacrosse finals in the east drew well, but were passed by that goodly section of the sports populace more interested in football. This gate-reducing factor will be much weaker this season, with the Ontario Rugby Football Union only major eastern football organization in the field. Lacrosse will fill the gap for many fans.

The lacrosse will be at least as good, perhaps better than previous years. Quebec boxla is stronger, because many hockey players—amateur and professional—took work in Quebec war industries this spring instead of returning to their native environs. Quebec boxla has a backbone of hockey stars.

Started Out Poorly

Ontario lacrosse started out poorly, but has improved tremendously. The Mann Cup champion St. Catharines Athletics looked extremely sad at the beginning of the season but finished with seven wins in their last eight games. Athletics are hottest of Ontario's five boxla clubs right now and the heat may last long enough to send them back into the Canadian finals.

But it looks from this point like British Columbia's year in lacrosse. Vancouver Burrards or Norvans, with New Westminister Salmonbellies an outside possibility, will represent the coast. The B.C. Champion should beat Quebec on polish alone and probably will have a slight edge on Ontario's hope.

Incidentally:

Dean Griffing, Regina's colorful football impresario, was in Edmonton last week. . .He's purchasing agent for a Prince Albert, Sask., firm engaged in war work . . .Bill (Halifax Herald) Bartlett reports that the lacrosse to be played in Halifax this fall will be a new variation. . .It will be played on a field on which a reasonable facsimile of a box lacrosse floor has been marked, but there will be no sideboards. . . Among R.C.A.F. players in a game against the Navy tomorrow will be Earl Curran, Orillia, Ont.; Red Laindell, Johnny Todd and Duke McClelland, Minico, Ont.; Joe Greenberg, Ted Wright and Gordon Jukes, Toronto; Specs Clark and Len Sampson, Cornwall, Ont.; Bill Ludlow, Fergus, Ont.; and Johnny Young, Brampton, Ont.

SPORT SHORTS FROM BRITAIN

(By ALLAN NICKELSON)
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, Aug. 31. (CP) —There's never been anything like it, this Sunday knockout softball tournament in Hyde Park that drew an estimated 15,000 persons throughout the day.

As many Britons glimpsed the game for the first time—and liked it—R.C.A.F. overseas headquarters emerged victors after an extra inning final and were presented with the Knights of Columbus trophy by Group Capt. J. E. Hunter of Ottawa. Headquarters and teams from four Canadian squadrons made up the draw with H.Q. winning the final 6-4 from a squadron whose commander is Sqdn. Ldr. R. F. Begg of Vancouver.

For the first time in history, sanctity of Lord's has been invaded by women cricketers. The team made up of W.A.A.F.'s, didn't play on the famous square in the middle of the match ground, however, but on wickets on the spacious nursery or the practice ground behind the stands. They opposed an R.A.F. men's team, who batted and bowled lefthanded. Barring this handicap, normal Cricket was played with everyone properly attired.

P.S.—The mere males won.

Rated by many judges as No. 1 world batsman, Wally Hammond, England cricket captain now in the R.A.F., still scores centuries. Word has been received that he scored 129 while playing for the Gezira Club in Egypt. That gives him a record of scoring centuries in eight different countries.

Hammond, who never goes anywhere without his cricket bag, has passed the three-figure mark in Australia, South Africa, West Indies, New Zealand, India and Egypt. As a schoolboy, he made hundreds in Malta and China.

Sixty-three-year-old J. P. Long, headmaster of Edmonton Council School, took his 63rd wicket of the season while playing for Edmonton Cricket Club seconds against Enfield. He has bowled in 15 matches this season and says he feels "well enough to go on playing until I'm 70". He's been a cricketer 50 years, 36 of them with Edmonton.

This Beats the Band

When the Elkhart (Tex.) School Board ran out of candidates for their vacant football coaching job as every man they picked resigned to take another job, they finally handed the task over to the school's band director, W. K. Sides, who had played football in college but never had coached....He will teach band work in the mornings and coach in the afternoon....Wonder what he'll do with his time between halves?

Engineer Kettering Did This Job

(From "Time" Magazine)

Nazi U-boat commanders have good cause to cry: Achtung! (Look out!) and crash dive. Coming at them at hitherto unattainable speed is an improved type of U.S. subchaser powered by an extraordinary new engine and driven by an extraordinary new propeller.

The engine is a diesel only one-third as big and only a fraction of the weight of the best former diesels of the same horsepower. The propeller is the first marine screw whose blades can be adjusted to any angle or can be completely reversed while the boat is in motion. Results: (1) increased power, since the most efficient ratio between boat speed and engine speed can now be constantly maintained; (2) greater manoeuverability, since the boat can be stopped on a dime, turned on a quarter. Hitherto, variable pitch propellers have not been practical for any boat larger than small launches.

For 25 years the U.S. Navy has been praying for just such an engine. Charles Kittering's General Motors engineers answered the prayer. The engine, a two-cycle diesel, is now being produced by an Illinois factory. Most diesels are four-cycles—three out of four piston strokes serve only to charge the cylinder for the power stroke. But in the two-cycle diesel, every downstroke has an explosive push behind it. Thus the weight of the two extra cyldiners can be eliminated. Two of the lighter engines can now be installed where one was formerly used and a lot more fuel can also be carried. Hence the new subchasers are not only twice as powerful as the old type, but have an increased cruising range.

The variable pitch propeller was necessary because the 2-cycle diesel cannot be reversed, without heavy reverse gears. Like the light diesel engine, variable pitch marine propellers have baffled naval engineers for many years. Reason: the hub mechanism, which charges the pitch of the blades, broke down whenever the propellers churned the water vigorously. Design of the tough, new propeller, which is electrically controlled, is a military secret.

THE EXPERTS SAY

(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Ottawa, Aug. 29. (CP)—Tips for the home-front housewives from the Ottawa experts:

Shopping

Byrne Hope Sanders—she's the "Mrs. Consumer" of the Wartime Prices and Trade Board—wants Canadian women to do a little detective work while on their shopping tours. . . .For instance, she asks them to keep an eye on the appearance of new brands on the shelves of the corner grocery store . . . Letters being received at the board's consumer branch charge that new brands said to be of inferior quality are being substituted for the old reliable products. . .And if you are worried about the lack of certain canned goods,t she says hey will be available shortly when the new crops have been harvested.

Wool

Think twice before you throw away the old knitted garment. . . That's the warning from the wool administrative branch of the artime Prices Board . . If the leg of a sock is good—knit a new foot . . . And if Jimmie's sweater is worn, unravel it . . . The wool can be made into seven or 10-inch square for the hospital throws they are in need of in England.

Tomatoes

Laura Pepper of the consumer section, Dominion Department of Agriculture, says this is the time to eat up all the fresh tomatoes you can lay your hands on. . .She also suggests that housewives can as many tomatoes as opssible. . .If the proper methods are followed it is simple to retain most of their vitamin content and, while we're on the subject, why not try doing some of your own tomato juice . . . It'll make a fitting appetizer for almost any meal.

Shortening

The foods administration of the Prices Board has a bit of advice for homemakers on the subject of shortening . . . It urges them ot use lard instead of vegetable shortening—and not without reason. . . A large part of Canada's vegetable oil supplies have to be imported and the war in the Pacific has cut off our former sources so the trend is to turn to lard . . . .And lard has these advantages: it's 97 per cent digestible, 100 per cent fat, 30 per cent better shortening than other fats and it's home produced.

Vitamin D

School time is rolling around again with its longer hours indoors for the kiddies . . . So up comes Marion Harlow, assistant director of nutrition services, with the suggestion that fish liver oils be given to the youngsters as a substitute for sunshine . . . The oils are rich in Vitamin D, important to growing children.

Tea

Here's a tip from Canada's west coast for the housewife who is having difficulty stretching her tea ration . . . It comes from a group of elderly ladies, guests of Vancouver's Soroptimist House. . .They said don't throw out your old tea leaves, drain your pot, empty the tea leaves on a plate or clean piece of cloth and dry them on top of a stove or in a warming oven . . . Just add a pinch of baking soda when you're ready to re-use the leaves. . . It works.

U-Boat Sighted ... Action Stations! He Got Away ... What a Letdown

By LIEUT. A. O. TATE, R.C.N.V.R.

Only the sound asleep fail to respond when the destroyer rolls port and quivering, quickening step-up in speed.

"Good God! What's coming off up there?" a stoker petty officer asks no-one in particular.

Seventy feet above the increasing turbulence of the sea is an 18-year-old from a factory town. He leans against the side of the crow's nest as the ship rolls, relaxing with the graceful downward arc of the foremast. Spread out below him are the columns of merchantmen of many nations carrying priceless cargoes to Britain.

In wardroom and messdecks, in engine room and boiler room, the buzzers strike like a high-voltage shock . . . loud, harsh, demanding and commanding. . . .

ACTION STATIONS!

A U-boat has been sighted by a merchantman.

Below in the engine room, the perspiring men hear the rushing clatter of feet on the iron deck, and faintly, the shouts of their upper deck mates.

Bells Demand Action.

The imperative jangle of the engine room telegraph bells, relaying orders from the bridge, is telling these men a meaningless story of excitement and action.

"Full ahead!"

"Stop both!"

"Full astern!"

"Half ahead!"

From his post high against the foremast, the crow's nest look-out can see his ship is headed for a gap between two merchant ships—steaming swiftly for the centre of the convoy columns, passing close across the bow of a big merchantman.

Two seconds later, this youngster's eyes pop as he sees each of the ships turn sharply to starboard—an emergency turn! Logical answer: a submarine. Intently he begins to scrutinize the sea between the ships and beyond. Oh, for a glimpse, just a quick one, of a Jerry submarine. He glances to the bridge below him.

"What's he saying?" the captain is asking a signalman who is reading a message being flashed by one of the merchantmen.

"U-boat . . . sighted . . . off . . . port . . . quarter . . ."

The destroyer captain does not remove his eyes from the scene ahead of him as the message is read. Weaving and dodging, the Canadian destroyer threads her way through the maze of moving ships.

It is apparent, as the elements summon their furious strength to lash the mighty Atlantic, that a U-boat is manoeuvring to make a quick attack on the convoy before the mounting seas complicate his game.

"I'd like to be at a gun or working at the depth charges," thinks the lad in the crow's nest as he searches the sea for signs of a U-boat. "I could eat an ox," he says aloud.

Cook Worries About Roast.

Far beneath him, in an ammunition magazine below the seamen's mess, one of the ship's cooks is wondering about some roasts of beef he had to leave at the mercy of a hot oven. As he passes up projectiles, at his job as one of an ammunition supply party, he is considering the idea: "I'll be popular with the troops at dinner time if that meat is ruined. Damn these Germans."

The Canadian destroyer's captain is doing some fast mental work. He is standing over the gyro compass figuring direction, plotting in his mind the course of the submarine, her likely speed and her possible position when the ship has closed an estimated half-mile. He has signals made to two Canadian corvettes to close him—and the hunt is on.

Below decks somewhere, two men with ear-phones clamped to their heads, wait intently and hope intensely for a submarine indication.

"Fat chance of getting him now," says the layer on A-gun as a sea crashes over the forecastle and swirls shin-deep around the gun. "Five days of convoying, zig-zag, zig-zag, and then the wind and the sea double-cross us."

"I'll bet the submarine blokes think heaven's on their side," says the gun captain.

"What a let-down," mourns another. "He was right on the surface, too. What a crust."

After a prolonged search, with every Canadian in the ship nursing his own hopes and disappointments, action stations are secured. The hunt is over.

"Did he sink a ship?" asks the veteran of the last war.

"No, but he . . ."

Praise For Captain.

"No buts. He didn't sink a merchantman. Our captain's slick, too. Heavy seas or not he put this ship over quick and moved fast enough to chase off the U-boat. Sure, it's great when you can sink one of the so-and-so's. But our first job is to protect the convoy against sinkings."

"It looks to me like we did, chief," a messmate sums up.

EVERYBODY LOVES THE SHIP'S MASCOT

Every fighting ship of Canada's ever-expanding Navy, seems to have a mascot of some kind. Many have dogs whose pedigree has long been forgotten like the pooch above. Subjected to all sorts of kind-hearted rough and tumble treatment from the crew, they very often will never leave the ship when in port.

"Sky Devils"

Howard Hughes thrill drama of the air "Sky Devils" starring Spencer Tracy and Ann Dvorak is the second full-length feature which is to be presented in addition to "Not A Ladies Man".

AT THE BELLE

"Reap the Wild Wind"

The incredible Cecil B. DeMille has done it again! His rowdy, gusty, lavishly filmed "Reap the Wild Wind" opened Saturday at the Belle Theatre in full blaze of Technicolor and, in the DeMille tradition, it immediately established itself as a hit.

While acting honors go to the trio of stars, Ray Milland, Paulette Goddard and John Wayne, the main credit must go to DeMille himself. It bears his unmistakable "touch," which only the Old Master himself is able to impart to a picture.

"Reap the Wild Wind" is a tale told in bold, heroic strokes of America's fight to rid the Florida Keys of piratical wreckers who preyed on the lifeline of her windjammer merchant marine in the 1840's. DeMille's 66th picture under the Paramount banner, the present truly great film need make no obeisance to any of its predecessors. It outstrips them all for grandeur of conception, startlingly beautiful photography and excellence of story.

It's great drama any way you look at it.

The stand-out sequence in this swashbuckling saga of the sea comes when Ray Milland and Wayne, in an old wreck on the bottom of the Caribbean, engage in a nightmarish battle with a giant squid. If your heart doesn't skip a beat or two on this one you'd better take some vitamin pills and get yourself back to normal. This reviewer, for one, did a bit of gasping as the relentless fight progressed.

In the star-studded supporting cast, Raymond Massey plays the heavy villain, King Cutler, chief of the wreckers. Lynne Overman portrays his mortal enemy. Robert Preston, Susan Hayward, Charles Bickford, Martha O'Driscoll, Walter Hampden, Janet Beecher and Louise Beavers do magnificently by their appointed roles. Hundreds of others appear in lesser roles. The film play was written by Alan Lemay, Charles Bennett and Jesse Lasky, Jr., from the Saturday evening Post story by Thelma Strabel.

Many Targets Close to Chinese Airfields

By EDWARD E. BOMAR

Spectacular extension of the reach of the United Nations air arm is promised by a new war development, the Chinese recapture of their air bases.

From the Chuhsien and Lishui fields 1,300-mile raids on Tokyo are within the known capabilities of heavy bombers. The bases were built laboriously largely for the purpose of such assaults, which now are within sight of realization.

Under existing circumstances, however, the possibility of repeated and punishing assaults on the Japanese homeland seems remote.

The war picture has undergone a major transformation since the recaptured Chushien airfield was dug out of a valley last year by thousands of coolies and pronounced one of the best natural airdromes in East Asia. Lishui is about seventy-five miles away, and several other bases also were built at the time.

Now the Burma Road has been cut and China is all but isolated except by air. The vanguard of the expected force of American bombers is in action under Brigadier-General Claire L. Chennault, along with fighter planes, but it is sadly hampered.

Gasoline bombs, spare parts, all must be brought in by air. So much fuel must be carried by transport planes for their long round trip flights over some of the world's loftiest mountain ranges that little space remains for cargo. Like mule pack trains, which must carry big loads of feed for the animals, planes of the aerial Burma Road tend in military slang to "eat themselves up".

A four-motor heavy bomber, it is estimated, burns nearly a gallon of fuel a minute at cruising speed. Aside from this difficulty, there is the uncertainty whether the fields can be held and made secure enough from further Japanese advances to serve as springboards for attack.

The Japanese have ample cause, nevertheless, for their fear that sooner or later there will be visits from China of a more formidable nature than James Doolittle's surprise call of last April.

The Japanese, like the Nazis, appreciate both the importance and stubbornness of geography. Targets other than Tokyo are even closer to the Chinese airfields. The Japanese Ruhr, the heavy industry area of Northern Kyushu, is only 800 miles distant, and Osaka and its war factories but 1,000 miles.

And the Pacific war already has seen the conquest of problems as knotty as sending bombers to China and keeping them flying.

Little Benny's Note Book

I was downtown with ma on account of needing new shoes already, and it was pretty hot and ma thought it was a good idea to get some ice cream at Hookbinders soda fountain after I suggested it about 3 times, and ma ordered a small dish of lemon water ice on account of it sounding cold but not fattening, and the man said, What's yours?

Meaning mine, and I said, What flavors of ice cream have you got?

I've got them all, the man said, and I said, Well then I'll take maple.

That just happens to be the one kind I don't have, the man said, and I said, Have you got bannana? Yes, I have, do you want bannana he said, and I said, No.

Which I didn't, just mentioning it on account of it sounding like another hard one to see if he'd have to admit he didn't have bannana either, and ma said, There's always chocklit, why don't you order chocklit?

I hate chocklit, I said, and ma said, Why the idea, you distinctly ordered chocklit for lunch at the Zipper Tea Room.

Aw, that was long ago, I said. And I said to the man, What other flavors have you got? and he said, There's the list up on the wall, read it for yourself and it'll save questions and answers.

The list being about 15 flavors long, and I was starting it over for the 3rd time and ma said, Now really, Benny, I mean really, this is becoming interminable, haven't you decided yet?

Yes mam, I said, and the man said, Good, that's the biggest news has broken all week, what's it to be?

A cone with double chocklit, I said.

Proving if everybody always knew their own mind there wouldn't be much suspense left.

UNCERTAIN DESTINY

by Betty Webb

CHAPTER 14
LONELINESS

"But of course," she murmured, linking her arms through those of Linda and Steve. "How foolish and thoughtless of me to keep you waiting, when you're anxious to get started. We'll have breakfast immediately."

Facing Mary across the breakfast table, Linda struggled to keep Steve's words—"Keep your chin up"—uppermost in her mind, for Mary wailed, "I simply can't keep up with all these weddings. First it was Betty, and then Brenda, and now—you, Steve. Am I destined to be an old maid? What will I do without you?"

Despite her apparent acceptance of their love for each other, Mary sensed, Linda felt certain, that things were not as they should be and yet she gave no sign that she suspected. While Steve sat quiet, almost grim, Linda shy and embarrassed, Mary's conversation bubbled on and on, describing the farm, the horses, touching on Steve's book proudly.

"Please make him stick with it, Linda," she pleaded, wistfully. "Father and I are terribly proud of his ability, although it seemed for a time that he would never be a novelist. Those were the days when the high and mighty Brenda—"

"That's enough, Mary!" Steve fairly lashed out at his sister, and her lips parted in amazement. All the color fled from Linda's face. This was truly an awkward situation, for while she doubted that Mary would have said anything unkind about Steven's former fiancee, his actions—his angry face gave him away.

"I'm sure Steve doesn't mean to be unkind," Linda put in hastily, gently. "It's just that I'm terribly jealous of—of my new husband, and—"

"And why bring up the old family skeletons?" It took an effort for Steve to say those words so lightly, but Mary's face cleared. "I'm terribly sorry," she murmured. "It was careless of me."

The subject was instantly dropped, but Linda was vastly relieved when, at last, they rose from the table to get started on their way to Hillsacres. That last hour had been a desperate one in which Steve's ys had warned her not to say too much, to drop too many words that might arouse Mary's slight puzzlement to actual distrust. She adored her brother, and Linda knew that should she suspect anything drastically wrong in their relationship she would fight tooth and nail to win him back.

Standing in the hall as they said their farewells, Linda pretended not to see her own familiar bags being placed in the car, mute testimony that Steve had seen and talked with Diane; nor did she allow her thoughts to dwell on what their conversation must have been. Instead, she kissed Mary, took her place beside Steve in the warm, closed car and turned a sober, saddened face toward the future—to the uncertain destiny awaiting her at Hillsacres.

During the long ride to Hillsacres—the highways were covered with ice and snow and necessitated slow and careful driving—Linda became acquainted with Steve Baridon, the man she had married.

She learned that his father's fortune had been swept away in the crash of 1929, and everything had been sold with the exception of the old Chicago house, the farm and a few of the horses, to make up the loss. Steve had gone to work then, as reporter on a Chicago newspaper.

Despite his drawling, easy speech, Steve was an excellent conversationalist, and Linda listened attentively:

"When Father realized none of us was really equipped to lick the business world, he turned our horses into a money-making venture. All of us are horse fanciers and Mary and I were born to the saddle. By careful training Dad's horses mastered enough showmanship to be entered in shows, and Mary rides as a society horsewoman.

"That proved to be our salvation, and while there isn't a fortune in it, still we were able to keep our heads during the depression. Now Dad is down south with the champions for the Winter, because the exhibitions start in the east next Spring and he wants them to be in good shape."

He went on thoughtfully: "When Brenda realized that I was only a fifty-a-week reporter," his voice was bitter, she began looking around for better prospects. I had ideas about finishing my book and making enough money to satisfy her expensive tastes, but she wouldn't wait."

Linda changed the subject hastily, realizing that to continue talking about the former fashion model—for that had been Brenda's vocation until she met Jerry Coleman—might prove disastrous.

"You said there are caretakers at your farm. Are they expecting us?"

"Mr. and Mrs. Delaney take care of the farm," he answered. "Mrs. Delaney does the cooking and the housework, and Jim looks after the horses and keeps the place in good shape. I called them early this morning to expect us."

"Have you forgotten anything?" she asked anxiously when Steve told her they were nearing the farm. "Did you bring your portable typewriter and plenty of paper?"

"You sound like a wife," Steve grinned.

Linda flushed. "I—I hope I'll be a satisfactory stenographer. she faltered. "A role of this kind is new to me."

"If you're not afraid of good hard work," he said smiling, "I'm sure you'll do very well. Once we get some sort of system arranged we can accomplish a great deal on the book."

He glanced at her. "Do you ride, Linda?"

"Not very well."

"You'll learn," Steve's voice held a ring of confidence, "wait until you see Rusty and Challenger, and Old Topsy."

"Are those the only horses on the farm?" Linda asked. "If so, Topsy sounds like my speed."

"Dad is with Cavalier and Patrician. They're thoroughbreds. So is Challenger, for that matter, but he's mean—dangerous. We've never been able to master him. You should have seen the first Rusty." His voice sounded wistful. "The most beautiful horse in the country."

"Your story centres around the life of that horse, doesn't it?"

Steve nodded. "Around Rusty and my mother. She loved horses and was a real horse-woman. One of the main reasons Dad hung onto the farm was because he loved it so, Rusty was her horse."

"I—I understand your mother died when Mary was born. That must have been a terrible shock to your father," Linda said quietly.

The man nodded. "I was nearly twelve when—when it happened."

They were silent for a long time, and then Steve said proudly. "Little Rusty will be every bit as fine a horse as his old man. Wait and see." There was a comfortable sound to his words, almost as though she, too, belonged to Hillsacres, Linda thought wistfully, and she looked eagerly at the farmhouse as they rounded the hill and drove up the wide drive to the front door.

The farmhouse proved to be old and rambling, and yet as beautiful as Steve had described it. Sitting high on a now barren hillside, against a group of skeleton trees, the house—half old red brick, half weather-beaten frame—seemed to invite inspection.

In the rear and down the hill, yet clearly visible from the front, Linda could see the well-kept stables, and the figure of a man, pausing in the doorway, who waved in friendly fashion as he started up the path to greet them. This was Jim Delaney. He and his wife proved to be good-natured farm people, eager to please their employer and his bride.

Linda was introduced to the pleasant old house, modern in every respect, and gay with chintz and fine, old pictures. The library charmed her with its book-lined walls, the curved desk in a huge bay window, and a stone fireplace in which a small fire burned cheerily.

Without hesitation Steve gave her the room that had been his mother's, and with her eyes filled with tears Linda surveyed the room that was to be her haven and refuge in time of need. Without doubt Corinne Baridon must have been a wonderful person; Linda decided. Her bedroom revealed a quiet, select taste from the huge, canopied bed to the tiny figurines over the wide mantelpiece. The books on a small writing desk were in all probability books she had known and loved, for they were well worn, yet carefully handled.

Touching them gently, Linda whispered, "what do you think of me, Corinne Baridon? You were a wonderful person—a devoted wife and mother. Does it break your heart that I married your son, or have I saved him from something far worse?"

Then, suddenly, Linda said, half-aloud, "I won't fail you, or Steve either, I'll give him back self-confidence and pride. I won't let his life be wasted—the life that you gave him. Someday you shall be very proud of Steve as proud as he is of you!"

From the very first, however, Linda had little time to inspect the farm, for no sooner were they settled than Steve had pulled his typewriter from its case to a place on the library desk, thrust the familiar pipe between his teeth, and was ready for work.

However, this determination was short-lived, for Steve's amiability was soon replaced by dejection. Sometimes he sat for hours without writing a word, his eyes bleak, shoulders hunched in a gesture of defeat.

On these occasions he exclaimed pathetically, "I was wrong, Linda, to think I'd ever be able to write. I can't do it, I can't."

"Of course you will," she answered valiantly. "There's no hurry, Steve. We have plenty of time. Think it out carefully." She sensed that his despondency was brought on by thoughts of Brenda, and she had little time to think of her own bitterness and heartache.

For Linda, the next few weeks were particularly trying as she attempted to establish some sort of harmony between them. Many times she knew that he resented her presence. On these occasions he was curt. Although impatient, she worked quietly on his notes, revising, deleting; and gradually Steve's interest in his work returned.

Soon he was working furiously, and Linda was kept busy all thru' the day and sometimes far into the night as chapter after chapter took shape. Steve seemed to possess superhuman strength—a frenzied desire to finish the book. And for what? Linda wondered, dully. When it was finished—what then?

Sir Ernest MacMillan Plays at Opening Of Radio Station CKWS

Inaugural Broadcast From New Kingston Station Will be Held Tonight

Kingston, Aug. 31. —Arrangements have just been completed by the management of radio station CKWS to have Sir Ernest MacMillan, outstanding Canadian conductor and organist, come to Kingston tonight (Monday) as the guest artist at the inaugural broadcast of the new station.

Sir Ernest MacMillan is probably the best known musician in Canada and one of the best known on the North American continent. He was for years head of the Toronto Conservatory of Music and is at present the leader of the Toronto Symphony Orchestra and the famous Mendelssohn Choir.

At the opening of CKWS at 7 p.m., tonight, (Monday) Sir Ernest MacMillan will play a number of organ solos on the splendid pipe organ of Sydenham Street United Church. The broadcast will be carried from Sydenham Street Church to the studios of CKWS in The Whig-Standard building and relayed from there to the transmitter on Wolfe Island by ultra high frequency radio. The transmitter will then send out the program over a large area of Eastern Ontario.

The Hon. Angus Macdonald has also consented to come to Kingston this Monday evening to take part in the opening ceremonies of CKWS. Mr. Macdonald, who is the Minister of National Defence for Naval Services and the Member of Parliament, for Kingston and Portsmouth, will deliver a short address on a phase of Canada's war effort. Dr. W. E. McNeill, vice-principal of Queen's University, has also consented to speak on this program and a number of other men in high public office will take part.

The entire program will be patriotic in theme and will be devoted to arousing even greater enthusiasm for war work among the citizens of this district.

5 Calves in 13 Months Record For Holstein Cow

Some kind of a record in bovine reproduction is claimed by Mr. Morley Davidson, Massassaga, for one of the fine Holstein cows in his purebred herd. Thirteen months ago one of Mr. Davidson's cows gave birth to triplet calves, while last week the same cow gave birth to a pair of twin calves — five calves in slightly over one year.

Multiple births seem to be a habit with Mr. Davidson's Holsteins. Also last week another cow in his herd gave birth to twin calves. Both sets of twins are doing fine reports Mr. Davidson.

Vichy, France, Aug. 31 (AP).—A German official openly stated today that Germany wants France to counterbalance United States influence in the war and asserted that is the reason French workmen are encouraged to go to the Reich.

Addressing a group of French correspondents in Paris, Counsellor Schwendemann of the German Embassy said "if we appeal for your aid it is because our men are fighting in the east against our mutual enemy, Bolsheivsm, which in turn receives aid from the United States."

Toronto Police Arrest Suspect In Jewel Theft

Clem McAllister, Montreal, Held for Robbery of Elite Jewelry Store

RINGS RECOVERED

Toronto city police over the weekend arrested Clem McAllister, 37, Montreal ex-convict, on a charge of theft of the Elite Jewelry Store in this city on the morning of Wednesday last. Today Acting Chief Arthur Harman and Police Constable Arnott went to Toronto to bring back the accused for trial and they took along a warrant for the receiver of stolen goods, the Toronto police notifying the local force that the arrest of this party was hourly expected. The captors also recovered sixteen rings that were allegedly stolen from the store and these will also be returned with the prisoner. McAllister was released from Kingston Penitentiary in June last and local police believe the same party was responsible for the thefts at the Elite Jewelry Store and also McCurdy's, the latter burglary taking place about three weeks ago. It is understood that the arrest was made as the accused was passing the "hot" goods to a "fence" for their disposal. When McAllister arrives in the city late Monday night, he will be arraigned before a Justice of the Peace and remanded for trial until Thursday.

Strike Postponed Pending Parley

Sydney, N.S., Aug. 31 (CP)—James Nicholson, Secretary of the Sydney Local of the United Steel Workers of America, said today any strike of steelworkers at Sydney, N.S., and Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., has been "postponed" pending a conference at Ottawa between C. H. Millard, Canadian Organizer of the Steel Union, and Labor Minister Mitchell.

Nicholson said he had been advised of the postponement in a telegram from Millard which said the Ottawa meeting has been set for 10 o'clock tomorrow morning.

Steelworkers in the Dominion Steel and Coal Corporation Plant here and in the Algoma Steel Corporation Plant at Sault Ste. Marie had been prepared to cease working at 11 o'clock tonight if operators had failed to meet their demands for wage increases.

Millard, who had been granted authority to order the strikes by Union votes at both places, agreed to the meeting tomorrow at the request of the Labor Minister.

Last night, George MacNeil, President of the Local U.S.W.A. branch had said "we are just waiting for the word" to order a walkout of the 3,700 men working in the big steel plant here.

"We have made all necessary arrangements and set up our maintenance organization," he said. Certain Union men in key jobs would be permitted to continue working to prevent deterioration of plant equipment in event of a strike.

Allied Fliers Pound Repairs At Myitkyina

New Delhi, India, Aug. 31 (CP) — Striking after the Japanese had repaired damage caused by bombing raids, Allied fliers in two days of attacks struck sharply at the important Japanese air base at Myitkyina, in North Burma, it was announced today.

A communique issued by Brig.-Gen. Clayton Bissell, United States commander of air forces in India, Burma and China, said the new raids were carried out on successive days by medium bombers and fighters of the R.A.F. and American air forces.

(Lt.-Gen. Joseph W. Stilwell's headquarters in Chungking, China, issued a communique today saying that bombers yesterday raided the city and airdrome at Myitkyina. This represented an additional attack to the ones reported by Brig.-Gen. Bissell.)

The Japanese air base had been put out of commission temporarily in the previous American bomber raids.

Of the new attacks the communique said:

"The first raid scored direct hits on the air field and dispersal areas.

"Anti-personnel bombs were dropped on barracks and the town.

"On the second raid direct hits were made on the runway and anti-personnel bombs were scattered among buildings.

"From both raids there was no damage to our planes or personnel."

Thief Strews Coupon Cards Along Street

Trenton —(Special) — This was even better than finding dollars. Late Saturday evening a happening occurred on Dundas Street in the business section which may have caused a panic, but a large number of pedestrians quietly set to work helping police gather up a large number of tea, coffee and sugar ration coupons that had been strewn along the road and sidewalk. It was rather hard to believe seeing so many loose coupons without an owner. Later, one of the larger grocery stores on Dundas Street, reported to police that a large carton containing coupons that had been turned in, in return for the stipulated amounts of rationed tea, coffee and sugar, had been stolen from beside the cashier's wicket. The person who took the coupons then walked about half a block away and started scattering them among late shoppers.

Child Injured

Jennette Marie Robertson, 26 Metcalf Street, 4 years of age, narrowly escaped death or serious injury on Saturday at noon when she ran from the sidewalk directly in front of a car. The accident occurred on Front Street at the intersection of Bondhead. The child received severe bruises on the forehead and knees when thrown to the pavement after running into the right front fender and bumper of the car. Wm. J. Finley, 84 Dundas Street East, the driver of the auto, stated that he was only driving at a slow rate of speed and that the child ran along the sidewalk and without warning into the road.

Charged With Cycle Theft

Albert Brooks, Trenton, was arrested Saturday morning by the Trenton police when he tried to dispose of a bicycle, for six dollars, to a farmer near Glen Miller. He was taken to the police station and the bicycle recovered. Later in the morning Mack Robinson, Dominion Street, reported the theft of his bike during the night. He identified the one that Brooks had tried to sell as his. Brooks will appear in Trenton police court this week on a theft charge.

Arrest Springbrook Man

Elwood Cooper, Springbrook, was arrested at 6 R. D., R.C.A.F., Station, Friday on a charge of forgery by Trenton police. He was a civilian worker. The arrest followed weeks of investigation, following the reporting of the theft of a cheque from the Stockley-VanCamp Canning Factory. The cheque later turned up at a bank. Cooper will appear in Trenton police court this week.

Producers Arrange to Bring In Several Cars of Veneer to Make Boxes to Relieve Shortage

Alleviation of the cheese box shortage in the Belleville district was seen here late this week with arrangements having been made by the Ontario Cheese Producers' Association through their central office in this city to bring in several carloads of cheese box veneer for use of district box manufacturers.

The Association is working in cooperation with the cheese box manufacturers of the district in the matter and also with the assistance of the timber controller at Ottawa.

The arrangements made to ship in veneer for use by local box manufacturers is expected to overcome the cheese box shortage which for the past several weeks has been retarding shipments of cheese from the Belleville district. Many cheese have had to be left on the factory shelves owing to lack of boxes in which to ship them, it has been claimed by factory salesmen.

Several carloads of cheese boxes have already been shipped into the Belleville district from the Province of Quebec to help relieve the shortage and until boxes manufactured from the veneer which is to be shipped in are ready, every effort will be made by Mr. S. L. Joss, Secretary of the Ontario Cheese Producers' Association to secure a further supply to relieve the immediate shortage of boxes.

grad in house-to-house fighting which left hundreds of German casualties in the streets and also regained nearby hills, "thus obtaining a commanding position over the whole locality," the Moscow radio announced.

The Soviet information bureau illustrated the scope of the counter attacks by a declaration that one Red Army force, supported by armored crews, destroyed 18 German tanks and nine field guns and wiped out about 600 Germans.

Italians Cut Up

"On another sector northwest of Stalingrad," it said, "a heavy defeat was inflicted on an Italian battalion, which in the course of one day lost at least 70 per cent of its effectives."

Dispatches said the Russians had engaged the Germans in the heart of Rzhev, 130 miles northwest of Moscow, and crossed the Upper Volga west of that fortified city in an encirclement manoeuvre co-ordinated with the frontal assault aimed to wipe out the whole Rzhev-Gzhatsk-Vyazma salient.

The mid-night communique also spoke of victory in a river-front battle, but did not specify whether it was in the valley of the Volga or the Vazuza, 60 mile long tributary which rises near Vyazma.

"By the end of the day," it said, "our troops had crossed the river and continued fighting on its western bank."

Cost Germans Plenty

Three engagements in the battle for Stalingrad were officially declared to have cost the Germans 28 tanks, 16 field guns and 600 dead.

"In the Kletskaya area (within the Don bend northwest of Stalingrad) our troops continued active fighting operations and made a slight advance," it was announced.

Cossacks sabered about 300 Germans and fired 20 munitions trucks in an attack upon the rear of an infantry column in the mountainous approaches to the Black Sea south of Krasnodar, in the western Caucasus.

Russian artillerymen defending the pathways to the Grozny oil fields and trans-Caucasia in the Prokhladnenski area were credited with wiping out about a company of German infantry, three tanks and 11 trucks at an unidentified river crossing.

CAREFULLY-LAID

great damage on a Japanese fleet unit it was forced to retire. But that battle was the only action reported from the Coral sea of the scope suggested by the communique.)

The third Japanese effort, which the communique described as a "weak attempt", was the landing in the Buna-Gona region on the northeast shore of New Guinea and the advance inland to Kokoda, only 60 miles from Port Moresby.

This action still is in progress, but the enemy is held up by the Owen Stanley range and the communique said he "is subjecting himself to extraordinary air losses because of the extreme vulnerability of his exposed position".

"His latest effort was to turn the right flank by a surprise attack at Milne Bay. The move was anticipated, however, and prepared for with great care. With complete secrecy the position was occupied by our forces and converted into a strong point.

"The enemy fell into the trap with disastrous results to him".

Today's regular communique said that sporadic fighting in the Kokoda region had resulted in repulse of the enemy with heavy casualties. Japanese ground activity was reported as increasing in the Salamaua area, but there was no further explanation of this activity which might mean another Japanese attempt to drive inland toward Port Moresby.

ROMMEL'S SUPPLY

Thought I Would Never Get Out

There were times I thought I would never get out of it alive.

It's funny, but once when I had my face pressed to the deck a little brown cockroach scampered before my eyes. My first impulse was to kill it. But I knew it wanted to live. I flicked it away.

The dive-bombers came in teams of sixes or tens.

Exclamations punctuated the explosions.

"Stukas! Diving. Aircraft—range one four Zero."

I thanked God at least we had not run out of ammunition for if that ever happened the dive-bombers might blast the warships out of the sea like sitting ducks in a shooting gallery.

Big bombs washed the destroyer's decks with geysers of water and sand from the bottom of the Mediterranean.

German shore batteries then opened fire.

Vessel Rocked

Simultaneously, more dive-bombers roared overhead. Near misses rocked the vessel.

A dozen or more German shells whistled over my head before the destroyer passed out of range of the land-based guns. The destroyer never answered the shore shelling. We were involved enough with the planes.

I had had no food or water since the previous night. But there was water in a wash basin in the cabin of a lieutenant, apparently poured just before the attacks started.

It didn't matter. I drank it to wet my parched tongue. My lips were so dry they fairly crackled and I couldn't even make myself heard in conversation with sailors.

A petty officer found some ham and bread on the mess deck. I ate ravenously.

Smoke Poured from Tail

A Nazi flier dropped a stick of eight bombs on our port side. Smoke poured from the tail of his plane as he pulled away under the gunfire.

British fighters appeared to battle the enemy squadrons and brought down one plane.

Italian bombers and Messerschmitt fighter-bombers sped into the fray and explosives fell by the score. British seamen nearly dropped from exhaustion. Minutes seemed like hours.

Within sight of our home quay, the Axis crews ceased their assaults.

The launch of Admiral Sir Henry H. Harwood, Commander-in-Chief of the British Mediterranean fleet, swished toward the destroyer across the blue harbor waters and the Lieutenant Commander reported by megaphone that the ship's casualties were slight.

"Well done, you all," the Admiral said.

(The German High Command claimed yesterday that a British destroyer had been badly damaged by bomb hits off El Daba and that 12 British planes were shot down.)

Exceeds Expectation

Naval aircraft spotters reported that the shelling of the El Daba concentrations, one of the most important bases for repair and equipping of Rommel's tanks and an advanced supply centre for the entire army, exceeded expectations.

Fire control was plotted from photographs supplied by aerial reconnaissance camera crews. Naval planes dropped flares over Sandy Hill, a land mark of El Daba, and that hill was the aiming point for the concentrations of broadsides on the base about two miles inland.

Their guns spouting flame, the warships sailed slowly past El Daba and then reversed to send out other salvoes.

There was no immediate response from the Axis [illegible] batteries, whose crews were undoubtedly surprised, but a few hostile shells whistled out as the fleet made its turn.

MUNRO ANXIOUS TO GET BACK

Canadian Press Writer is Afraid Something Will Pop While at Home

Toronto, Aug. 31 (CP)—Ross Munro, Canadian Press war correspondent who told the world the story of the Dieppe raid, came home last night, "glad to be here" and anxious to get back with the Canadian troops "in case something pops."

Munro arrived in Toronto after a record-breaking flight from Britain to New York and thence to Toronto. He was greeted at the airport by his mother and his sister, Betty, whom he hadn't seen in two years after a hurriedly telephoned goodbye from Ottawa.

His sister met his main request—a 25-cent cigar, "a big one." He telephoned for it from New York.

The lights of Toronto as he flew from New York were "the best sights I've seen," he said. "I would almost sooner see them—the lights of Toronto than I would Berlin—and that's saying something."

"I came back in one piece and it's just a funny miracle that I didn't get a hole in me, that's all."

FIX GUN TURRETS? IT'S GIRL'S JOB

London (CP) — Dorothy Downs, cashier in a London store 6 months ago, is Britain's woman expert at fitting the Rota Service Junction in the gun turrets of new bombers. "That in plain English," Dorothy explains, "is connecting up everything a gunner is going to need on an 'ops' trip from his telephone to his heating apparatus."

When she started the job is took her 90 minutes to wire each turret. Now she raps it off in 29.

Raid on Island Tacitly Admitted By British Sources

Island of Antikythera Between Greece and Crete Raided

London, Aug. 31—(CP)—A swift raid by British forces on the small Mediterranean island of Antikythera between Greece and Crete, first disclosed by the Italians, was tacitly, if not officially confirmed by British sources today as a new surge of British air and sea activity on Axis communications to Africa became evident.

The Italians said the raid on Antikythera, which is about five miles long and from one to three miles wide, was made by "a small enemy unit" Friday night. The Italian High Command claimed the raiding party "fled on the quick intervention of our defences."

In London an authoritative source, who would not allow his name to be used, said "it is not unlikely that some sort of landing was made," adding that "if the report is true and whatever the nature of the landing, it doubtless was of minor importance corresponding to little more than patrol activity.

He added he would not be surprised "if we never heard of it officially."

"There may have been something there our forces wished to destroy," this source said.

Attack Sicily For 24 Hour

The air Ministry announced, however, that R.A.F. planes attacked Sicily for more than 24 hours starting last Wednesday night, destroying at least 14 Axis planes and smashing many ground installations. Only three British fighters were lost in the operation which started after a small number of Axis planes attempted to raid Malta, it said.

British night fighters were sent over to Sicily and they attacked a seaplane base and machine-gunned a motor vessel from low level. The action was continued during the day when troop concentrations, hangars, barracks, storehouses and railroad properties were strafed. Ten planes were destroyed on this sweep, it was reported.

At twilight an Axis convoy was attacked with torpedoes and bombs, and a medium-sized merchant ship was reported sunk. Smoke was seen pouring from an escorting destroyer. That evening the attack on Sicily was resumed and two Axis planes were reported destroyed by spitfires.

The attack on Sicily was seen here as an effort to drive Axis craft based in Sicily back to Italian bases and complicate supply problems for the Axis forces in Egypt.

unemployed or on part time jobs but not to efforts of selective service officers to have workers move to more essential jobs.

An effort will be made to arrange transfers so that men will not be asked to go to jobs with a lower wage rate than that which they now receive but provision is made in the new orders for supplementary allowances.

A National Selective Service officer may arrange for the payment of the cost of transportation of workers, their dependents and effects when it is considered necessary. A supplementary living allowance of not more than $5 a week may also be paid if the worker is separated from his family and his earning capacity of the new job is insufficient to pay increased costs or if the new job involves a decrease in his weekly earnings.

Farmers and Other Jobs

The regulations clarify temporary employment of agricultural labor on other jobs during off-seasons. It is permissible for an agricultural worker to take another job for a period up to 30 days without losing his status as eligible for postponement from call-up. Permits are required if he is to be away from the farm for more than 30 days.

It is the desire of selective service officials that farmers should get off the farm and undertake other war work in periods when farm work is not sufficient to keep them busy, Mr. Little said.

For all employment, permits will be granted by selective service officers on the basis of a priority schedule which has been established by selective service in close collaboration with the munitions and supply department and the Wartime Prices and Trade Board. This schedule will not be made public because of the constant revisions which are anticipated as requirements fluctuate.

Responsibilities

Increased control over manpower involves the acceptance of greater responsibilities by employers as well as employees, the announcement said.

"It is important now that every employer realize that he must notify his local employment and selective service office of his labor needs as fast as they are anticipated," the statement continued.

"Substantial increases in staff and in the number of offices have been made to facilitate the allocation of labor and from now on no excuse will be accepted from employers for any disregard of the order that they obtain all employees through these offices.

Greater Use of Woman Labor

"As the supply of labor decreases, employers must be prepared to make greater use of women, to use their labor more efficiently and to expect curtailment of certain less essential lines of industry ....

"In planning the best use of our available manpower, much information will be required. When employees receive requests for information they should bear in mind that it is required to provide them with the men and women they need. They will shortly be asked to file returns giving the numbers of their employees and broad occupational groups and from time to time they may be requested to give other information."

No age limits are mentioned in the regulations which appear today in a special edition of The Canada Gazette, Selective Service Officials said they apply to every employable person.

The regulations will not affect the employment of harvest help which comes under a provision enabling workers to take temporary work for not more than thirty days.

THE WAR TODAY

(By DEWITT MacKENZIE)
(Associated Press War Analyst)

Allies, Inc., took down their shutters for business this morning with prospects not quite so blue-Mondayish as usual, which is a cautiously-backhanded way of recording that things looked a bit brighter—and this was true both in the crucial European theatre and in the Orient.

We are not to jump to the conclusion the enemy are on the point of breaking up, or anything of the sort. Our dangers are terribly great in the face of Germany and Japan.

Still, the signs of strain undoubtedly are there. And that strain is the symptom which points to coming exhaustion.

That to my mind is the most important development in this fierce race against time. The Allies' hopes of winning without having to wage an interminable war of attrition depend largely on their ability to hold the master gangster on the Russian front during the few remaining weeks until Winter comes to stall him. This means that much hangs on how long the Hitlerites can keep up the terrific speed they've shown thus far—a rate which couldn't be carried on indefininitely by any fighting machine.

Moscow reports a continuation of the remarkable hardening of the Red defence. The Russians are holding on the vital southern front, while farther up the line they actually are maintaining their smashing offensive against the Nazis northwest of the Capital.

While this stiffening of Russian resistance is due in part to their own stout spirit, probably coupled with the employment of reserves held for eventualities, yet I believe we must attribute a good deal of the change to a natural weakening of the Nazi offensive. There's nothing strange in this, for the endurance which the Germans have displayed in their great drive has already exceeded the expectations of many observers.

Several things are working against the Nazis at this stage:

1. Their fighting forces are increasingly feeling the physical strain of this unprecedented offensive.

2. Their communications must be getting into sad state, being greatly over-extended and their transport in the recently-captured territory being dependent on war-torn highways and broken down railways which have the wide Russian gauge that doesn't fit German rolling stock.

3. Their war industry at home is slipping, partly because of deterioration of machinery which can't be replaced, partly because of lack of skilled workers, and partly because of shortage of raw materials. We have fresh evidence of this in the known shortage of German warplanes, and a scarcity of gasoline which the Russians report is so bad as to have stalled a large number of tanks in one sector.

Has Hitler the strength to smash Russia before he himself collapses? That's the crux of the matter, and indications are he hasn't.

Out in the Orient the Japs have been getting it from both the Australians, Americans and the Chinese in no uncertain manner. Australian headquarters announce the defeat of an enemy force which landed at Milne Bay, strategic point on the southeastern point of New Guinea, uncomfortably close to the Australian mainland. United States marines also have annihilated the Nipponese who tried to recapture the islands which they took in the Solomons recently. And three more enemy destroyers have been sunk or damaged by bombers.

On top of this the amazing Chinese, who just won't be beaten, are running riot in Kiangsi and Chekiang Provinces in an offensive which has carried them steadily forward. A notable achievement has been the capture of Chuhsien, which has the largest airport in China and is within easy striking distance of Japan. Chinese possession of this field presages some moments of Hell for Tokyo and other Japanese cities in days to come.

POLICE BLOTTER

Theft of gasoline ration books still continue to be reported to the local police with the driver of a York Trading truck reporting the loss of his ration book which had been left on the driver's seat while deliveries were being made. The theft of the ration book was made on Thursday afternoon.

Money Stolen

One case of money being stolen and another of a purse being lost was reported to police over the week-end. On Saturday night Peter Renshaw of the Mountain View Air Station was stopping over at the Y.M.C.A. and reported a purse containing $60 was stolen from beneath his pillow while he was sleeping. Mrs. Irene Harrington, Trenton, reported losing her purse, also on Saturday night, at either of two restaurants on Bridge street.

Estella Herrington, waitress at the Snack Bar restaurant on Front street reported being insulted by two sailors who called her "filthy" names. The two men drove away in a motorcar.

Bicycle Stolen

E. L. Lewis, Dafoe street, complained to police his bicycle had been stolen from behind the McCarthy Theatre while he attended the show. One lone inebriate was picked up by police over the week-end.

In a slight motor accident on Bleecker avenue Sunday evening an automobile bearing a Quebec licence number bumped the rear fender of a parked vehicle and failed to stop. Later Constables Wright and Rathwell arrested P/O Davis Terence, Trenton Air Station, as he drove on Front street, who admitted damaging the car. After questioning the officer was permitted to return to Trenton after promising to answer charges on Tuesday.

FOOD IN FRAGILE CONTAINERS SHULD NOT BE MAILED

Instances of parcels having to be removed from the mails because of glass bottles of jam or pickles had broken or because tins had in some manner become opened, is being reported to the postal department.

Cases of this nature not only cause disappointment for those to whom the parcels were intended but also frequently damage other parcels in the bag. The Post Office department again emphasizes the fact that parcels containing fragile articles or perishable goods likely to spoil should not be mailed. All parcels should be fully prepaid, securely packed in strong containers and wrapped in several layers of thick paper. They should be clearly addressed with the use of misleading abbreviations avoided.

Britons "Stay Put" During August Bank Holiday Season By Order of War Transport Board

By FOSTER BARCLAY
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, Aug. 31 (CP)—Britain's "stay put" vacation season, the most unique in the history of this seaside-living nation, is over.

The country's war workers, refreshed by a fortnight's breather after a year's all-out effort, have returned to their benches.

As the holiday season approached Philip Noel-Baker, Parliamentary Secretary to the Minister of War Transport, warned the public:

"We are at the gravest crisis of the war. We dare not allow the smallest interruption in essential war traffic...Guns and tanks and war material must have prior claim ...Railway companies cannot promise to take anybody where they want to go."

No extra trains were placed in service for holiday travel, the basic gasoline ration for private motoring was stopped. Everybody was warned about the inconveniences they would meet if they left home.

Britons seemed to have even scared themselves into a stay-at-home August bank holiday, normally the biggest excursion period of the year when everything closes down for three days. Early indications pointed to a "black weekend," but crowds which thronged stations during the initial rush tapered off. Holiday resorts weren't nearly filled and travel in some areas was reported to be quieter than on ordinary days.

Local authorities, urged by government officials, took the necessary steps to make the holidays as pleasant and entertaining as possible for the men and women who stayed at home and puttered about garden allotments.

Recreational and entertainment facilities were increased and extra provision made for hiking and camping. There were more bands in parks, more orchestras and other concerts and more community singing. One London borough imported 500 deck chairs to give a seaside atmosphere while Newcastle hired 100 donkeys to give children rides on the moor.

the German guns it was obvious the show was going to be super-tough. The landing craft were still aboard the mother ship when we could see an in-shore battle between other vessels and German E-boats.

"The most beautiful sight I ever saw was whes we came close to the beach in landing craft. We could see bombers sweeping in over the shore flying at zero height and blasting Dieppe. By that time the Germans were throwing everything they had at us.

"The whole beach was lit up with flares. We took the landing craft right in and I tell you it didn't take those Canadian "Pongos" long to get away. Under cover of our smoke screen they set up Bren guns and we pulled off to wait for the time to go in and get the boys again."

From others at this station came the story of Ramsay racing his landing craft in ahead of a motor launch to pick up a Norwegian airman who had been shot down, and the story of Koyl taking over and bringing back to England the flotilla after the flotilla commander was killed.

In peacetime the 26-year-old Koyl, a big, broad-shouldered fellow with an underslung jaw, played hockey with Saskatoon Wesleys and later for New York Rovers in the United States Eastern Amateur League and Philadelphia Ramblers of the American League. His wife lives in Winnipeg.

"Those coxswains, stokers and gunners—you never saw anything like it," said Koyl. There was, for instance Coxswain M. (Mac) McIntyre of Norwich, Ont., who took over the flotilla leader's boat and got it ashore when it looked for a time that he mightn't be able.

"He had to get right out into the water and untangle the rope which got wound around the propeller," Ramsay said. "Another time I watched one gunner put a whole pan of Lewis gunfire into a German plane. He never wavered but just stuck to the target until he had to turn away because another plane was coming in from another angle."

Koyl mentioned another gunner of this flotilla—Norman Mitchinson Anrie, a seaman from Ontario. "I saw him cut the wing clean off a JU-88 with Lewis gunfire," Koyl said.

"Or take those stokers. Most of them were prairie sod busters who used to run threshing machines but they can't be beaten on a job like this. Their job is a tough one. They're all by themselves and they haven't much protection. But everytime they'd pop up from their station they'd shout 'how're we doing,' then go right back to it and never mind what kind of fire was going on around them."
